Tough Road for Opposition When Just Small Minority

EDMONTON (CP) In a legislature of 75, an opposition of six has some obvious problems and the situation is that much worse if, as some Alberta opposition MLAs think, the government chooses to be secretive.

Premier Peter Lougheed turned the tables on the Social Credit party in the March provincial election when his Progressive Conservatives won 69 seats, leaving four Social Credit members, one NDP MLA and an Independent in opposition.

In the 1967 election, Mr. Lougheed found himself leading an opposition of 10, six of whom were members of his party. He formed a government with 49 seats in 1971.

If the opposition parties felt themselves run down in the election by the "Tory Tank," they find it equally difficult managing the Conservative hordes in the legislature, complaining of arrogance and a continued refusal to release what they consider public information.

"They've already become pompous and smug and overconfident and all the things that one can apply to a government that's got too much power," says NDP Leader Grant Notley, who has been the only NDP member of the House since 1971.

"There's one example after another that one could cite of refusing to release information which the public is entitled to possess."

Specifically, Mr. Notley and Bob Clark, the Social Credit House leader, are concerned about cost data on the province's investment in the massive Syncrude oil-sands project, arrangements to purchase and operate Pacific Western Airlines, studies on petrochemical development, the work of Alberta Energy Co. and the future of the proposed Heritage Trust Fund.

The lack of information "may be the biggest criticism I have of the government," said Mr. Clark.

"They are very difficult about giving information out. For example, the whole petrochemical thing. They won't give us any information on the studies they've done on petrochemicals.

"They have this stupid idea that the people have made their decision (in the election) and so that gives the government the right to go ahead and do whatever it wants until the people make the decision again."

But government house leader Lou Hyndman says the Conservative government hasn't changed since it faced an opposition of 38 in 1971. The uniqueness of the Syncrude and PWA situations makes non-disclosure acceptable and the heritage fund is not yet formulated to the point where the government can discuss it, he says.

Ron Ghitter, the Conservative MLA for Calgary Buffalo, who has made a reputation by asking questions in the house, agrees with Mr. Hyndman. At times, he says, the opposition has been unreasonable and can't expect the government to throw open questions under negotiation and see those negotiations fail because of the ensuing political melee.

Gordon Taylor, the Independent MLA for Drumheller and former longtime Social Credit minister, takes the government line, saying he gets answers to the questions he asks.

"In some of the questions that the government has refused to answer, I've supported the government. As a matter of fact, I've footed the bill for some of them, simply because Mr. Clark was very definite when we were in government that such information should not be supplied—now he has changed completely around.

"When governments are negotiating, I don't think the information should be an obstacle in the way of successful negotiations."

Mr. Ghitter admits the government must be careful not to abuse its majority but he asks what difference it makes if there are six or 26 opposition members—surely it's the quality that counts.

He said he and some other members on the Conservative back benches recognize the limits of the small opposition and try to keep ministers definite about what they give informational questions in the house.

Mr. Notley says it is "easier to expect government back-benchers to act like opposition MLAs.

"You are not going to get effective opposition from government backbenchers for a very good reason. Every government back-bencher eventually hopes to be a cabinet minister . . . so as a result they tend to stay in line."

The NDP leader disagrees that numbers aren't important.

"You can't marshal much of a debate (with six) but if you have 15 or 20, even if they are saying the same thing essentially, you can put some spirit into a debate. Now all the government has to do is close their ears for an hour and by that time the opposition has shot its wad and that's it."

Mr. Notley hinted there may be a sense of intimidation on the part of the opposition, facing such a huge majority and he noted the obvious about the limited time the opposition has to do its work.

Police Befriend Defrauded Youth

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A 17-year-old boy is back with his mother in Moncton, N.B., but there are two people in this interior city he won't forget. Together they picked him up when he was down and proved to him, and a few other people around town, that people aren't all bad and that justice maybe sometimes really does work.

The two are Constable Frank Boyle of the city RCMP detachment and Keith Gagne of the John Howard Society.

The name of the boy they put back together is Conrad and this is his story.

Conrad is the middle child in a family of eight, with no father, and not too much wealth around the old house in Moncton. He decided to get out on his own and set out for Winnipeg, where he found a job and made a few dollars.

There Conrad met "the artful dodger," a boy a little older than himself, who spun a fabulous story of the wonders to be found in British Columbia. Conrad withdrew his savings and the two set off westward.

Somewhere along the road "dodger" assumed control of the finances and by the time they reached Salmon Arm, B.C., they were broke. Dodger told Conrad they would have to split up, to meet again in Kamloops in a week.

Conrad had just turned 17 so the energy of youth helped him walk the 73 miles to Kamloops without a bite to eat.

His boots had fallen apart—just laces and uppers with nothing between his feet and the asphalt.

However, Conrad still believed in his friend so he took his stand and waited.

Conrad sat for five days waiting for the friend who would never come. Nobody noticed him. Just a small youth with no boots, undersized and underweight, dirty and pale.

Then Conrad made his mistake.

For some reason his feet, not his stomach, were of greater importance. He walked to town, went into a store, put on a pair of boots and tried to walk out without paying for them.

Constable Boyle arrived.

He took Conrad in charge. What else could he do? Theft under $200, section 294 of the Criminal Code. Maximum penalty—two years.

As Constable Boyle conducted his prisoner into the charge room, the offender broke down and cried.

Conrad poured out his story and Frank Boyle knew where to go from there.

Keith Gagne is the John Howard Society in Kamloops and a man of considerable experience.

Conrad was arrested on a Friday. He went into a cell at the city RCMP detachment, had a meal and a shower and slept on a mattress.

On Saturday morning Mr. Gagne walked in and Conrad repeated the story—walking, hunger, the boots, the arrest. Mr. Gagne couldn't get him out of jail so Conrad had to wait until Monday, when he was called up before the judge.

The problem was a tough one. If they released Conrad in his own recognizance he might leave town and evade the process of the law. If he didn't leave town where would he go? The Christian Hostel? No, said Mr. Gagne, not a suitable atmosphere for a 17-year-old. Kwanlin House? No, same problem. Keep him in jail? It only we had a remand house, everyone said.

Conrad confounded the system. He'd have to stay in jail until somewhere could be found.

Three days later Conrad came up in provincial court. A place had been found for him at the youth resources home and he was released after six days in jail.

At his last court appearance some days later, Conrad stepped into the dock wearing a new blue cotton shirt, new jeans, sneakers, and socks.

A young lawyer from Legal Aid called Mr. Gagne to give evidence. He told Judge George Lamperson how Conrad got there and what had happened. Conrad had made a mistake and had been in jail for six days. Now Conrad wanted to go home, and a rail ticket and meal money had been provided through the B.C. human resources department and the John Howard Society.

"Absolute discharge," said Judge Lamperson. "Make sure he doesn't miss the train."

Marks Anniversary

ALMONTE, Ont. (CP) — A former minister of Almonte United Church, Rev. J. D. McCrae, returned to the pulpit recently, 50 years to the day after he last preached there as a Presbyterian minister. The occasion was the 50th anniversary of church union. He and the present minister drove to the service in a horse-drawn carriage.

Fishing Comeback

Salmon Return To Great Lakes

TORONTO (CP) — A fishing miracle is occurring in the Great Lakes. The salmon are returning.

Coho, and to a lesser degree the larger chinook, now are beginning to provide anglers with moderate successes in all but one of the five Great Lakes and their thousands of miles of tributary streams.

The one exception is Lake Erie. Pollution is so overwhelming in Erie that in some areas of the lake little life survives.

The introduction of coho and chinook, which are Pacific salmon transplanted from British Columbia, was the idea of the government of Ontario.

The experiment began 10 years ago with a crash program of lampricide action to diminish the lamprey eel population in the lakes. Initial treatment of tributary streams was completed in 1973 and follow-up programs still are under way.

The lamprey is a particularly nasty creature about 12 inches long which attaches itself to fish and sucks their blood.

In the upper Great Lakes, where control efforts were first concentrated, the lamprey population has been reduced by more than 90 per cent.

With the lamprey in check, and pollution under control thanks to tough government legislation, the way was clear to stock the lakes with salmon.

In the period from 1966 to 1970, Ontario planted approximately nine million salmon eggs and fry in the upper lakes such as Huron and Superior.

In addition, smaller but substantial yearly plantings have also been made in Lake Ontario.

Fish ladders were also built around dams and natural obstructions so as not to hinder the migratory runs.

The outlook for both the coho and chinook appears to be hopeful in most areas of their new environment.

They now are sufficiently established in Lake Ontario to support a limited commercial fishing industry near Brighton which is within 100 miles of Toronto.

Sport fishing for salmon is rapidly becoming popular in southern Ontario.

One of the reasons for this is the fact rainbow and brown trout also inhabit the same streams as the salmon.

Another reason is the accessibility of the tributary streams.

One of my favorite spots, the Ganaraska River, is 65 miles from Toronto and can be reached by expressway in a little more than an hour.

This spring I took several coho out of the Ganaraska. Their average weight was three pounds.

Fish of this size are commonly called smolts. Many experienced salmon fishermen consider them the best eating size for salmon.

A junker coho will reach 10 pounds, but such fish still are rare in the Great Lakes. Chinook will grow to more than 30 pounds.

One of the most popular baits used is the roe sack containing either salmon or trout eggs.

Best results are achieved by letting the roe sacks be tumbled along the stream bottom by the current.

The salmon limit is five a day but so far few anglers have achieved that total. A serious fisherman must consider himself lucky if he hooks one in several outings and luckier still if he lands one.

Salmon are actually no strangers to the Great Lakes, particularly Lake Ontario.

In the early years of the last century the Don River, which runs through Toronto, was alive with Atlantic salmon.

Industrial pollution drove the fish away at the start of the present century.

Life for the coho begins in the winter when the eggs from the fall spawning hatch. They spend their first year in their home streams and then move gradually into the lakes where they grow quickly.

Near the end of their third year they move toward their birth streams where they spawn and die.

Li River Voyage Exciting

PEKING (Reuter) — In the distant day when China has developed tourism industry, the boat trip down the Li River will be counted with such sights as the Grand Canyon, the Nile and Niagara Falls.

For six hours the little steamer snakes downstream through ravines and by weird, cone-shaped peaks which shoot as high as 1,000 feet from the banks of the river.

It passes mud-but villages, waterfalls, bamboo groves and fields plowed by water buffalo—a luscious Asian landscape hardly touched by the 20th century.

The only other traffic consists of occasional convoys of sampans and fishermen squatting awkwardly on a few bamboo poles bound together into primitive rafts.

The 50-mile journey begins from the city of Kweilin in southwestern Kwangsi province bordering North Vietnam—an area known since ancient times as the most beautiful in all China.

It is the green hills which give the region its unique topography. They dot the sheepwise flat land like great Lumpies, the mist swirling between them, constantly changing the light.

Nearly every hill is riddled with caves—officials point out they would make excellent air-raid shelters.

Scans Schools

HOLBROOK, N.Y. (AP) — Electronic "watchdogs" may prevent some of the burglary and vandalism that has been plaguing Long Island's schools. Key areas in 17 schools will be scrutinized by electronic eyes, along with listening devices sensitive enough to hear even hushed conversations. Interior areas will be guarded by invisible electronic waves that can spot any movement, no matter how slight.

Archery Season Opposed

PICTON — Prince Edward County councillors have voted to oppose any proposal by the ministry of natural resources to hold an archery season for deer here this fall.

Councillors agreed during a meeting Tuesday night that if a season were held there would be trespassing on private property. Also, it was noted there has been no complaint from county residents concerning any damage done by the deer population.

Sophisbaroy reeve George Foster said that three years ago the natural resources ministry met with council and recommended an open season bid. The proposal did not gain council's support.

"I feel this year we should register our complaint before they come to us," commented reeve Foster.

Dam Now Complete

Official opening of the new Belmont Dam, built under the direction of the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority, is scheduled for Thursday, July 31 at 3 p.m.

At the opening winners of the symbol design contest will receive their prizes. They are Stephen Gasbel, Bancroft; Donna Latchford, Thomasburg and Beth Wiggins, Marmora.

The $150,000 dam project, begun less than two years ago, is designed to provide for year-round control and flood protection. The dam will also make summer water level maintenance possible for cottage owners and public recreation on the lake. The dam site is on the Crowe River about ¼ mile downstream from Belmont Lake.

Farm Plans Open House

SMITHFIELD — Preliminary plans are being made to hold an open house early in September at the federal experimental farm here, farm superintendent H. Blair Heeney said this week.

On display for visitors will be fruit and vegetable crops on the farm's 200 acres and in its greenhouses. Main function of the operation is to study problems that concern the fruit and vegetable industry in eastern Ontario, particularly the area bordering the north shore of Lake Ontario. Major crops under study are apples, canning crops and small fruits.

St. Thomas Pares New Church Plans

ST. Thomas' Anglican Church congregation voted Tuesday to approve a reduced budget of $67,200 for the restoration of the burned-out sanctuary.

Harold Carruthers, building committee chairman, said today, "We've got a pretty austere program."

He explained that to cut costs, the committee had to pare an original architect's design down to the bare essentials.

Eliminated were such items as a west-end entrance plaza, the courtyard, the ceiling baffle structure, elaborate furnishings, and adequate organ and basement meeting rooms.

Survey to Examine Transit System

The entire public transit system in Belleville will be the subject of a September survey to determine what modifications are required to meet changing needs of the community, Marylea Burtt, chairman of the transit commission, said Tuesday.

Mrs. Burtt explained: "We have an adequate system — but provides good service at a low cost. What we will decide from the survey is whether we supply the service that is needed."

The survey will be done largely by interviewers riding the buses along each of the routes collecting data on driver attitudes, fare and route structures and suggested changes.

Much of the information will be formulated by talking to passengers.

"Passengers are the ones who use the system and probably should have a major say in how the system works," said Mrs. Burtt.

Some overtures have been made to Loyalist College inviting students to carry out the interviewing stages of the survey, said the commission chairman.

Once the survey has been completed, the data will be condensed and placed before the commission.

This material will give the commission a good, overall picture of the existing system and provide information on which to propose any changes if necessary," said Mrs. Burtt.

Bus Service Shows Sharp Deficit Increase

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Transit Commission's operating deficit to date totals $100,064 — more than double the deficit experienced by the commission for the period last year.

The figure shows the commission has exhausted almost half of its projected 185,000 deficit before half of the year is out. The deficit for corresponding period in 1974 was $49,451.

All transit commission deficits are subsidized by 50 per cent from the provincial government with the remainder raised through local taxation.

Marylea Burtt, chairman of the local commission said during an interview Tuesday, the sharp jump from 1974 to this year is largely accounted for in increased labor costs. In April, the commission signed a one-year contract with its staff and drivers giving workers a 21-per-cent increase in salaries and benefits, retroactive to Jan. 1.

While costs went up during the period, fares were on the decrease.

Commission statistics show passenger volumes slipped four per cent during the first half to 594,600 riders, down from 614,000 in the first six months of 1974.

Mrs. Burtt said "the deficit always escalates in July and August . . . traditionally these months when most transit customers prefer to walk from place to place".

However, "we have four good months to come during the fall when we have a usual busy time," she said.

Industrial Parks May Get City Bus Service

Belleville's Transit Commission is once again considering servicing the city's industrial parks with daily bus routes.

Following requests from both full and an individual employed in an industrial park, the commission Tuesday decided to re-open the question of sending buses into the parks.

One year ago the commission tried a route into the park area and after two months of experimental figures showed an average 1.5 passengers were using each bus run.

"If the money to send buses into the park, it would have been cheaper to buy a car for the commuter," said Marylea Burtt, chairman of the commission.

In another instance of a company of 100 employees, only eight said they "might" use a bus to get back and forth to work.

Representatives several new industries located in the city's industrialized north end during the last year, Mrs. Burtt said it now is time to re-assess the situation and determine if a regular run would be feasible.

A study of industrial needs will be made this fall during an overall study of the entire transit system, said Mrs. Burtt.

Transit Tour

Louise Alain, right and Sonia Rioux, along with the rest of the visiting contingent of French-Canadian students were treated to a bus tour of the city, Tuesday. The two-hour trip arranged by the Rotary Club covered many of Belleville's points of interest including Corby Park, Zwick's Island and Albert and Loyalist Colleges.

20 Venezuelan Students To Attend Loyalist College

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

About 20 post-secondary Venezuelan students will arrive in Belleville next month to begin a nine-month study in an English as a second language course at Loyalist College.

Gail Larose, an awards officer with the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, said Tuesday in a telephone interview with the Intelligencer from Ottawa the students are part of a group of about 100 who will study English at four Canadian institutions this year.

She said this is the second year of a five-year scholarship program started by the Venezuelan government to alleviate a trained manpower shortage in the South American Country.

Called the Gran Mariscal de Ayacucho Scholarship Program, the operation will see 50,000 high school graduates, many of whom cannot speak English, sent around the world to further their training in such fields as engineering, petrochemistry, oceanography and computer science.

Mrs. Larose whose association is acting as the intermediary between Venezuela and Canadian learning institution, emphasized the program will not funnel any way by federal or provincial taxpayers.

She said all tuition, books and other ancillary school supplies, room and board, clothes and recreational pursuits will be paid entirely by the Venezuelan government.

Currently there are 69 students in Canada, 49 in Concordia University in Montreal and 20 at the Brockville, Ont. campus of St. Lawrence College, said Mrs. Larose. On Sept. 15, another 20 will take up residence in Kingston for study at the St Lawrence College campus there.

Mrs. Larose said the four institutions were chosen for their unique language laboratories. She noted since most of the students know little or no English, they are required to study the English course as at Loyalist before they can embark into other areas of study.

She explained the students will be billeted with Canadian families to enable them to practise their English and acquaint themselves with the different culture.

Loyalist is one of four Canadian institutions accepting the South American Students this year — part of a worldwide Venezuelan scholarship program to quickly educate selected high school graduates in specialized engineering subjects to keep pace with a fast-growing modern industry which is outdistancing the country's teaching capacity.

Mr. Young said fees for the students, who will be here for about nine months, "are set at a level that will reimburse the college fully for all of its direct and indirect costs so that the college and the community will derive a net financial benefit."

The program of studies has been carefully structured and planned in accordance with the most advanced known methods of teaching English as a second language," he pointed out Tuesday.

Mr. Young explained the host homes must be "willing to accommodate the students with food and lodging and to provide an English speaking atmosphere." He emphasized there is no cost to either the host or the Ontario taxpayer — the Venezuelan government is funding everything.

"The idea of dispersing the students among local families is to immerse them completely in the English language both during school hours and afterward," he commented.

College Seeking Host Families for Students

Loyalist College is seeking "host homes" in Belleville to accommodate about 20 post-secondary Venezuelan students who will arrive here about August 20 to learn Eng. lish, says Herb Young, college president.

Cyclist Injured

SMITHFIELD — Louise Ann Mclveen, 17, of RR3, Brighton, remains in Trenton Memorial Hospital in satisfactory condition today with a scalp injury after falling from a bicycle on Dundas St. just west of here Tuesday.

Police say she was rushed to hospital by ambulance after striking her head on the ground in the fall.

Roblin Lake Alive With Sounds of Music

AMELIASBURG — A center of Roblin Lake Camp is alive with the sounds of music.

What the sounds signify is that the annual Salvation Army music camp here is in full swing.

And Belleville's will have a chance tonight to hear the results of this year's "endeavors of music students and teachers.

The various choral and instrumental classes that make up the one-week camp here will be giving a concert at West Zwick's Park.

Some 100 students are participating in the 1975 music camp — a yearly event which has been running for more than 30 summers.

The students — and their instructors — come from the Army's mid-Ontario division — in an area that reaches from Oshawa to Cannanoque with headquarters in Belleville.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today:

Tuesday, July 22, 11:45 a.m. — A grassfire was extinguished at the site of 30 Prince of Wales Dr. Damage minor.

7:00 p.m. — Grass fire in an empty lot opposite 224 East Moira St., The fire too about 24 minutes to extinguish, with minor damage.

Water Witching - You Have To See It to Believe It

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

The Encyclopedia Britannica definition of water witching, dowsing or dowsing includes with this paragraph:

"Modern science approaches the problem as one concerning which the facts have to be accepted and explained by some natural, albeit unknown, cause."

In other words, you believe in it or you don't.

Earlier in the encyclopedia article it is stated that: "Like the 'homing instinct' of certain birds and animals, the dowser's power lies beneath the level of any conscious perception; and the function of the forked twig is to act as an index of some material or other mental disturbance within him, which otherwise he could not interpret."

On a subject as strongly divided and defended as water witching, the encyclopedia is appropriately vague, but evidence over the years has mounted to indicate the success of the method in locating sources of underground water supplies and, in many cases, their depth.

In 1931, for instance, the province of British Columbia hired an official water diviner, Miss Evelyn M. Penrose. The result was that the Okanagan Valley and Peace River Block now are prime farm country.

In the Quinte area, water dowsing is peculiarly practised. Some well diggers won't sink a hole without an indication from a dowser. Others remain skeptical.

A lot can be said on both sides of the argument. Sometimes dowsing works and sometimes it doesn't. Success seems to vary with the "power" of the dowser.

One scientific - minded local doubter extended his position this way: "I don't really believe in it, but I remember one time a dowser and I were both trying to find water. He got a strong pull at one place and I didn't get anything. Then he put his hands over mine on the forked branch. When he did his hand on the branch yanked so hard it pulled the skin off the palms of my hands."

Right There!

Stirling farmer Percy Craighead has been witching water as a favor for friends for many years. He'll be 80 next month. Here he exercises his talent on the province's Pancake Hill pasture farm, operated by the Hastings Farm Service Club, as a favor to Hastings agricultural representative Doug Tipper. Mr. Tipper also successfully tried his hand at water divining, using Mr. Craighead's apparatus — a bent piece of electrical wire.

Diefenbaker Musical

Handwriting-for Some an Insight into the Writer

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

One Belleville woman has a closer contact with history than most students ever obtain.

Carl Curson is a graphologist, a handwriting analyst, and she collects signatures from famous people.

The largest mass examination of handwriting analysis she has undertaken just after the Second World War was when she asked for and received from Lord Mazanta a sample of handwritings from most of the world leaders including Hitler, Roosevelt, Truman, King, Churchill, Eisenhower, Rommel and the Royal Family.

She still has the album in which she carefully catalogued and wrote her conclusions alongside each of the samples, she said.

"Most of the characteristics were those you would expect from people in authority," she said, "but some presented interesting examples.

"For example, I was fortunate to have two samples of Winston Churchill's handwriting, one when he was a young man just after he left military service and another when he was prime minister," she said. "And the difference is remarkable."

In his early and formative years he wrote rapidly and small indicating an adventurous refined person," she said.

"After he became prime minister his handwriting became much thicker, showing his disposition had changed and he had become very stubborn," Mrs. Curson said. "And certain letter patterns indicated he had developed a deep thinker.

While most of her samples from famous leaders are obtained by mail, a method she says may be inaccurate because she prefers to watch her subjects write it in person, one time she did get a signature she is fond of.

"It was at a Conservative garden party, in 1967, when I was introduced to John Diefenbaker and I immediately asked for a handwriting sample for my collection and he complied."

"Mr. Diefenbaker's signature indicated he is extremely kindhearted as well as a leader, but it also showed he has hidden musical talents he should have developed."

The only real tools you need to be a graphologist are a pen, paper and a magnifying glass.

"I used to require all my students to own a fountain pen because it showed the fine variations in thickness which are lost with a ball point," she said. "But many people are a little nervous and uncomfortable with one today so I had to make an adjustment."

The most interesting person Mrs. Curson ever examined, she said, was not famous but rather notorious.

"I told him he thought he was a confused person but it wasn't until the next call that I learned he was an exhumed murderer when the police captured him."

Large Spaces Sign of Deep Thinker

Did you know Franklin Roosevelt, past president of the U.S., may have been mentally disturbed or that Adolf Hitler had a wonderful sense of humor?

Ann Curson, a handwriting analyst says these are true facts she has deduced from careful examination of the subjects penmanship and signatures.

Since she was a 13-year-old girl who noticed everyone were different, she said she has pursued the study of graphology, originally as a hobby and then after a "five year apprenticeship" practising on friends and relatives as a professional, she said.

Since 1950 she said she has been charging a minimal fee of $3 to explore the minds and characters of anyone who came to her, handling 20-40 people weekly.

"It's really not that high a price to learn about yourself," she said in an interview, "and in addition, many people come to me with their problems and I try to help them solve them."

There are some general things a person might look for if they want to examine their own or a friends handwriting. She said the most dangerous sign and easiest to detect is when the handwriting is more than at 45 degrees from horizontal. They are going through an emotional crisis.

"Many people loop and pulse their signatures and this indicates an artistic person but if they loop over the name it is a sign of severe mental illness, as it was with Roosevelt's signature," she said.

If the last letter of a word goes upward it indicates the person is a daydreamer and generous.

She said people capable of thought often close their o's while those leaving larger openings between words are deep and positive thinkers.

What's in a Name

Belleville graphologist, Ann Curson, analyzes hand writing to explore their character traits she says. She also possesses a collection of famous signatures which she says gives her insight in their makeup, and how they might act in certain situations

Reilly Wants Transit Commissioners to Quit

The resignation of the Transit Commission, including chairman was called for by Ian Reilly, local labor leader Tuesday.

Mr. Reilly told Kiwanians commission members who he said have outlived their usefulness should have resigned without being asked, at the weekly Kiwanis meeting.

"Certainly they should acted wisely when they demanded a change in the policy of the transit commission," he said, who attempted "to reduce an already poor service".

He questioned the wisdom of curtailing public transportation when federal and provincial government are asking for increased services to counteract the energy and pollution crisis, calling for more and better Sunday and holiday scheduling.

These Visiting Gymnasts Will Have A Message

A night out with a new twist is on the agenda, Tuesday, at Bayside Secondary School.

It's a new twist for this area, at least.

There is nothing unique about athletes combining their talents at their sports with the bonus of being able to present a message with a religious flavor.

Tuesday, Olympix will be presented at the Bayside school at 8 p.m.

A press release says a team of 14 young men and women from Canadian Union College in Alberta, will perform.

The group will give a display of gymnastics and this, blended with the athletes' musical talents should provide an evening of enjoyment.

Initiated by Pastor Frank McMiller of the Belleville Seventh Day Adventist Church, the program will feature a gymnastic and musical presentation of the gospel.

He feels that a program such as this helps fill a need in the community, providing family entertainment.

The group began its tour in British Columbia in June and finishes up in Nova Scotia, late in August.

Amateur athletes are not the only ones combining religion with sports.

In the Canadian Football League alone, more than 80 players and their wives are dedicated to an organization known as Athletes in Action which is aimed at Christian fellowship and the teaching of Christian ethic among all.

Toronto Argonaut light end Peter Muller is a prime example of the professional athlete who is active in the movement.

Muller says: "I feel as though I wasted about 20 years of my life before I found Athletes in Action.

"I want to share the experience of asking God to come into my life, with others.

"Athletes in Action provides a forum where the individual can share his experiences with others, especially young people. We all need spiritual guidance as well as physical coaching to be good at what we do.

"We all need some spiritual belief to help us live each day. I have found that athletes in Action fills this need and I want to encourage others."

The group from Canadian Union College in Alberta no doubt has similar aims.

Tickets for Tuesday's performance at Bayside may be purchased at the Fish and Dove Book store, 38 Bridge St. E., or at the school the night of the event.

SLICES — Taking of sports happenings into a new twist, there's a dandy coming up Friday evening in Trenton.

It should prove interesting when Joe Vinkle brings his Warkworth Institution Oldtimers to Bay Shore Park for an exhibition game with Ted Bull's Trenton and District Ladies' Softball League entry, Quaker Oats.

The action is called for a 6:30 p.m. start.

Several volunteer workers were given a pat on the back for their efforts in a report on last Saturday's Prewee Softball Tournament. Seems others are deserving of recognition for umpiring and organizing. They are Bert Trice, Gord Campbell and Jim Campbell.

More minor softball tournament action on the sports scene, Saturday when the annual Bantam event is staged.

Here, Stacey West drives her second shot to the ninth green on the 162-yard Toronto golfer took six of the first nine holes in the Ontario Junior Girl's Golf championship at Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club Tuesday afternoon and went on to rout Liz Rutlan in just 12 holes in this match-play final.

Stacey West Leaves No Question As to Who Is Ontario's Best

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Stacey West left no doubt in anyone's mind that she is definitely the top female junior on the Ontario golf circuit. The 16-year-old Bayview Toronto golfer eliminated Michele Chouinard from La Portage, Quebec, in match play Tuesday morning and then rolled to victory in just 12 holes in the Ontario Junior Girl's Golf Championship final.

"I wasn't satisfied with the way I played this morning," said the pretty, young blonde. "but I was more than pleased with my showing this afternoon."

West proved to the gallery and her finals opponent, Liz Rutlan, just what kind of golf she was capable of playing. She took six of the front nine, added the tenth and was well on her way to taking the 12th when Rutlan conceded. In a match play competition golfers play for holes rather than strokes.)

"I'm very disappointed" said Rutlan, who earlier in the day downed defending Ontario champ Pam Johns to earn her berth against West. "this was my last chance for the Ontario Junior Championship and I wanted to win."

Rutlan, 18, had stayed out of the Ontario Women's Amateur Championship to prepare herself for the Junior competition.

"Nothing was working," added the finalist. "I was missing easy putts and they were really hurting. After playing so well against Pam this morning I felt certain I could take the title."

Rutlan and Johns squared off in the tournament class. Though match play is based on performance per hole, the two girls scores were 79-77 respectively. Rutlan never moved out in front in holes until the 17th and 18th when Johns bogeyed twice.

Two weeks ago Johns had won the Quebec Junior Girl's championship but commented, after being ousted here, that she was beginning to feel the strain of the tournament trail. Like Stacey West, she too has been travelling steadily all summer, and following her two days of golf at the Ontario Match Tournament at St. George's Golf Club this weekend, she plans to take a rest before travelling to the Canadian Junior Championship in August.

Rutlan also feels she will take a break before going to Quebec for the Canadian. However, West, the defending Champion, plans to keep right on rolling. She will be at St. George's this weekend and has entered a couple of other events before her trip to the National.

"I love to play," said the newly crowned provincial queen, "and it seems the more I play the better I perform."

With her Ontario title came 25 more points towards qualifying total for the Ontario inter-provincial team. She finished the 12-golfer race for the three-person team with 85 points, second was Rutlan with 58, and third was Judy Ellis from Kitchener, with 45. Just of the qualifying total was Johns with 44.

Rutlan, Ellis and West will now travel to Dartmouth for the August 12th, 13th and 14th Canadian Championship. They officially comprise the Ontario Junior inter-provincial squad, while Johns and two other girls yet to be named, will form an alternate squad.

Globals Here Tonight

Changes Expected In Macs' Lineup

The Belleville McDonald's who take the field tonight against Toronto will be noticeably different from previous Ontario Football League games.

The team won't be so revamped that you won't recognize it but the changes will be there.

Tonight Waxman Globals have taken two wins from the Macs this year, while Belleville entered their first Ontario Football League victory against the Globals.

The Globals, much like the Macs, don't score many runs, but keep the other team's scoring down to a minimum.

The two Global hurlers, Reg Martin and John Young, are new to Toronto this year, and have done well, if not in the same light as former Toronto chucker Peter Landers.

The two big men in the batting lineup for Toronto are John Barbowski, a power hitting first baseman and Lee Gaudin, a fleetfooted centerfielder who is second in the league in stolen bases.

The Macs will have a few surprises up their sleeves as they come in to the game with two new prospects, Dan Spring and Frank Kelly, from Peterborough.

The two are exact parallels of the Toronto strengths. Kelly is a power hitting first baseman like Barbowski, while Spring is quick in the outfield, much like Gaudin.

This is the Mac's first home game against Toronto, as the teams should be out to give Belleville fans what they've been looking for, one of their greatest close games.

With the changes, the close games may become wins, and even if they don't come out victorious, Macs will have the same steady team which has given Belleville some good ball.

OASA Entries Climb

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association has once again outdone its previous year's total for entries in their annual playoffs, upping the total to 236 over last year's 202.

The total was arrived at during the pre-playoff executive meeting in Toronto on the weekend to finalize the entries, and set the two-and-on-half months of ball that go with them into motion.

Included in the total are a record 45 in the Intermediate C category, as well as 34 entries from every group in Zone Four, which takes in the Bay of Quinte area.

Belleville's Devolin Motors has top billing in the selection of teams from the area, entered in the Senior B category for the third year in a row. Devolin will take on Brockville in their opening best-of-three series, with the first game to be played on or about the weekend of August 18.

Intermediate B is represented in Zone Four by Cobourg, who takes on Trenton, Picton, who meet Napanee, and Smiths Falls, who drew Bay Ridges.

Midget B will meet Norwood in the Zone Four round Intermediate C group, with Wellington playing Brighton.

The Ellis Juniors will meet Kempttville in their first round of the Junior A category, while Carlsbad will play Ottawa. The first games in each of the best-of-three sets will take place as part of the Kemptville Junior tournament, on the Civic Holiday weekend.

Moving on to the minors, Cobourg, Napanee, and Picton are all represented in the Juvenile B set up, with Napanee and Picton hooking up in the first series.

Madoc takes on Stirling in the Juvenile C category, and Campbellford meets Brighton.

For the first time in several years, Belleville has a team entered in midget competition, with the Yardmen meeting Ottawa in the first round. Peterborough is also entered in the Zone Four running.

In Midget B, Trenton Dickson's Sport and Bait, the only team entered in this area, is the one Four champion without stepping on the field.

Midget C is a different story, however, with no less than 11 entries from this Zone, including Napanee, and Odessa, who meet in the first round.

In Bantam A, Belleville will meet Ottawa for the Zone title.

Eleven entries are once again on tap in the Bantam C category, with Brighton and Picton, Napanee and Odessa, Campbellford and Norwood all tangling in opening play.

Belleville SAGO is the only entry from Zone Four in the Peewee A series, while Cobourg and Ernestown meet in Peewee B.

Peewee C presents a new team from the Quinte area, going by the name of Bay of Quinte. Playing out of the Deseronto - Shannonville area they will take on Napanee in the opener. Picton also meets Brighton in the same category.

Belleville's lone competition in Squirt A series is Ottawa, while Napanee take on Ambertview in Squirt B action. The lone Springbrook entry in OASA play this year take on Sunbury (North of Kingston), in the Squirt C series.

Als Team to Beat—Sazio

By MEL SUFRIN
CP Sports Editor

"Montreal has to be the team to beat and it will be a dogfight between Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton for second."

Ralph Sazio, general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, was offering his estimate of the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference race.

His view that the defending Grey cup champion Montreal Alouettes rank as clear favorites and that the Rough Riders, Argonauts and Tiger-Cats will battle over the crumbs is one that is shared by many realists.

The main reason is that the Als, who open in Hamilton Wednesday night, have only two new faces in their lineup. And when a winner can go with a set team, it would border on the reckless to pick it for anything but first place.

Missing from the Montreal lineup will be Marv Luster, the hard-hitting defensive back who retired, linebacker Ed George, who went to Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, and running back Larry Sherriff, injured in an off-season hang-gliding accident in California.

Newcomers are Joe Petty, an Arizona State graduate, at wide receiver, and Dave Lewis at running back and punter. Lewis played for the Als several seasons back before joining Bengals of the NFL.

Head coach Marv Levy elected to keep Patty rather than Hugh Oldham, as Ottawa castoff, although Petty is not as speedy.

"I liked how hard he's worked, his attitude, and I've liked his toughness."

With Sonny Wade back from a head injury and Jimmy Jones working well, the Als appear set at quarterback. Levis has shown some good moves at slotback and he joins Peter Dalla-Riva, Johnny Rodgers, Skip Kenney, Larry Smith and Steve Farrugherli to give Montreal a lethal pass-receiving and running attack.

The Rough Riders, who finished in a tie for second place with Hamilton last season although they got the nod because they won two of three against the Ticats, are carrying three quarterbacks veteran Jerry Keeling and rookies Tom Clements and Condredge Holloway.

Coach George Brancato says he doesn't know which one will start in the Rough Riders' opener in Toronto Thursday but he emphasizes he won't hesitate to use all three in a game if necessary to get the team moving.

Brancato won't say so but there is talk that if Holloway or Clements or both show they can get the job done, Keeling might become expendable and this make room for another import.

RALPH SAZIO

Fullback Jon Bledsoe, halfback Art Green and slotback Jim Foley will handle most of the Ottawa running, and Brancato is looking for a stronger pass attack with Tony Gabriel, acquired from Hamilton, at flight end, Gary Kuzyk at wide receiver and Rhome Nixon at flanker.

The trouble spot defensively is the interior line, weakened by the defections of Charlie Brandon and Rudy Sims. Bruce Smith has been assigned to the 21-day injury list and Brancato will go at the defensive tackle spots with Bubba Bridges, acquired from Edmonton Eskimos, and sophomore Carl Taylor. But don't be surprised if there are changes after a game or two.

The Argonauts, who finished last, a point behind Ottawa and Hamilton, last season, haven't made any changes. And while some surprise has been expressed, general manager John Barrow says he is satisfied with the team he has given rookie coach Russ Jackson.

The club's average age is 23 years and Barrow says he feels experience, rather than the wholesale changes of a year ago, is most important in his development.

Quarterback, where the retirement of Dave Rainey and move to the NFL by Tim Anderson left some gaps, has been the focus of Barrow's attention. The Argos have L. J. Clayton, a converted wide receiver, and Steve Dennis at those spots.

The off-season acquisition of Garrett Hunsperger, released by British Columbia Lions, has strengthened the defensive line. And when Jim Stillwagon returns from an injury suffered in a pre-season television competition, freeing Granville Liggins to move back to offence, the Argos attack should get a boost.

Mike Rae is back as No. quarterback with rookie Bill Bynum backing him up although Jackson is alert for the possibility of other team's players being placed on waivers. Doyle, Orange, Ed Shuttleworth and Eric Allen will handle the running, and Allen will join with wide receiver Chuck Herd and tight end Peter Muller in the pass-receiving corps.

Like the Argos, Hamilton will go with one veteran quarterback, Bill Etter, and one rookie, Jim McMillan, the junior standard from Boise State.

"It all comes down to quarterbacks," says Sazio. "McMillan, who was personally selected by coach Jerry Williams, has given us great optimism. Although Etter is not yet back to his form of last year, we feel he is healthy and can give us good quarterbacking."

Sazio also feels the kicking game has improved with Ken Clark, "the kick high in ball and this will give us a chance with the new punt-return rule."

Besides McMillan, the Ticats have only two rookies—linebacker Tony Pevea and running back Jim Reed. Veterans have brought such new names as defensive end Ron Pitwick and defensive half Morris Stroud from Edmonton and tight end Lawrie Skolrood from Saskatchewan.

"Over all we have a relatively young team but it is experienced from the point of Canadian Football League Service," Sazio says.

While the Alouettes have been artistic successes, they have been pretty much of a failure at attracting fans. But Bob Geary, the general manager, is feeling a little more optimistic.

He notes the team drew 38,000 fans for two home exhibition games compared with fewer than 15,000 a year ago. And season-ticket sales are almost doubled.

"We have over 11,000 season tickets sold so far. Last year at this time we had sold only about 6,000. People can identify with the Alouettes now. I've been around for a couple of years now and so has Marv and his coaching staff. We haven't made any big changes in management personnel either. That all helps. It gives the fans confidence."

The four clubs hoping to overtake Edmonton Eskimos in the race for the Western Football Conference championship got a head start this week, but Eskimo coach Ray Jauch can afford to sit back and wait.

Jauch enters the season with the most balanced club in the conference—on paper, anyway—and with the momentum that comes from two consecutive trips to the Grey Cup final.

Throughout training camp, Jauch has soft-pedaled talk that the Eskimos are invincible. He says there are few spots on any club that can't be improved and he warns that in a short season any team can produce an upset at any time.

As the Eskimos were running unbeaten through their four-game exhibition string, every other WFC club showed some weaknesses.

Calgary visits Regina to meet Saskatchewan on Wednesday in the season opener and British Columbia journeys to Winnipeg on Thursday. Edmonton's first game is at home July 29 against Winnipeg.

Based on past performance, Edmonton has the strongest attack in the West, with Tom Wilkinson, top player in the Canadian Football League last season, back to direct it.

Wilkinson can throw to George McGowan, Tyrone Walls or Don Warrington and on hand off to Roy Bell or Calvin Harrell. The offensive line will be intact again.

Edmonton's major changes have been on defence, where Wayne Matherne replaces Morris Nolan at cornerback and Tom Laputka has taken over the spot vacated by the retirement of John LaGrone at defensive tackle. Perhaps the biggest improvement is at middle linebacker where Sam Britts, back from a year in the World Football League, has helped settle down the defensive crew.

On the injured list and waiting to be placed on active duty are import pass receiver Jerrald Taylor and Canadian linebacker Mike Landrum, who have proved their ability to play in the CFL.

Saskatchewan made a surprise cut Saturday, dropping running back Pete Watson, who had been expected to replace Bobby Thompson. But coach John Payne is secure in the knowledge that quarterback Ron Lancaster and fullback George Reed have had outstanding training seasons.

If they have held this year might be their last and they want to go out as part of a winning team.

In the defensive team, Payne might have trouble where linebacker Al Humphrey lost his job to rookie import Tom Pate and where Charlie Collins is coming off an injury. Another linebacker, Steve Smear, has been placed on the suspended list and probably will not play because of a 1974 injury.

Winnipeg coach Bud Riley says he is pleased that his team is basically settled, a vast improvement from last season when 39 roster changes were made. The key change was at quarterback where Chuck Ealey moved in for Don Jonas.

Riley said Ealey has improved the strength of his throwing arm. Returning Jim Washington is a proven runner and there are plenty of talented rookies vying for a job beside him.

Imports Ken Peeples of Clemson and Buddy Brown of Alabama have been impressive in seeking spots on Winnipeg's solid offensive line. At linebacker, rookies John Murphy, Tom Waddell, and Harry Walters stayed as interesting scrap for a job in the middle.

British Columbia, coach Eagle Keys says he is having difficulty finding replacements for running backs Monroe Riley and Johnny Musso. Harris is solid at the primary running spot.

Peter Liske and Don Mourhead give Keys two viable options at quarterback, but a string of retirements—guard Mike Lansford, tackle Jimmy Boteski, defensive backs Bob Friend, Mike Wilson and Wayne Holm and tight end Leroy Hendrickson—caused problems the coaching job at training camp.

Also gone from last year are Bud Magrum, Garrett Hunsperger and Matherne, all involved in violence off the field last season.

At Calgary, coach Jim Wood has put together an interesting team which includes quarterback Joe Pisarcik, the focal point of Calgary's improvement last season.

Rudy Linterman is at slotback and Willie Burden at running back. Burden had four 100-yard games in his last five starts last season and had a fine training camp. So did Bill Ziegler, a running back from Missouri.

Defensively, inexperience figures to be a problem, especially where Larry Robinson must be replaced after a lengthy career as an all-star defensive back. Veteran Howard Starks is in good shape after a series of leg injuries and Larry Cates and Ozell Collier can do the job in the secondary.

Up front, John Helton, one of the top defensive linemen in CFL history, will be doubletreated as usual, leaving room for his partners in the front four to do some damage.

Canadian Open

Hole in One In a Warmup

MONTREAL (CP) — Some of professional golf's top names took a look Tuesday at what they will face starting Thursday in the $200,000 Canadian Open on the 6,838-yard, par-70 Royal Montreal Golf Club layout.

Don Iles, a 38-year-old Seattle pro, found at least one hole to like taking when he registered a hole-in-one on the 215-yard fifth hole.

"It was a thrill, of course," he said of the perfect two-iron shot. "But it would have been better if it came Thursday, Friday, Saturday or Sunday.

"I feel close to my game, and some of it might be that I was off the tour for two weeks and not knowing exactly what I'm going to do once I get back."

American Buddy Allin also said he is near top form but he could not say how soon his game might fall together.

"I'm close, but for me it comes and goes. I'm usually a little fast early in the week and I've got to slow down. Why am fast? If I had the answer, I'd give up the tour and make a million selling it to everybody else.

If Allin finds the answer later this week, he may contend for the $40,000 and Peter Jackson Trophy that go to the winner of the 72-hole test.

Others in the field include defending titlist Bobby Nichols, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller, Gary Player and British Open champion Tom Watson.

George Knudson of Toronto leads the Canadian contingent and said he is looking forward to a good showing.

"I'm swinging better from day to day—I'm really pleased. It's still not what I'd like it to be, but it's getting close. It's a progressive thing," said Knudson.

Field Is Complete

MONTREAL (CP) — The final five places to complete the field of 150 for Thursday's opening round of the $200,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship were filled by American professionals during a playoff Tuesday.

Twenty-two spots were open before Monday's qualifying round. But the playoff became necessary when, after 17 places were filled by golfers shooting 70 or better, 18 wound up tied with one-under-par 71s over the Royal Montreal Golf Club course. The playoff for the final places stretched into Tuesday when a thunderstorm delayed play Monday.

Bob Hogarth, assistant pro at the host club, and Jim Ballard of Arkansas City, Kan., headed Monday's field of 98 would-be qualifiers with Wednesday's round.

The final five U.S. golfers to qualify Tuesday were Roger Maltbie of Dallas; Nate Starks of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Don Pierson of La Crosse, Wis.; Bobby Heins of Monticello, N.Y., and Bill Crawford of Little Rock, Ark.

Two Canadian pros—Don Alman of Brantford, Ont., and Gar Hamilton of Toronto—were among those eliminated.

USSR, Japan Keep Winning

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada suffered its fourth consecutive loss as the women's national volleyball team series entered the second half of its cross-country trek Tuesday of the Winnipeg Arena.

Canada lost to the Olympic champion Soviet Union team in three straight games by scores of 15-11, 15-5 and 15-8 to remain winless in the seven-city tour. The Soviet Union's record now stands at three wins against one loss.

In the other game, Japan maintained an undefeated record by trounching the United States by scores of 15-5, 15-6 and 15-4 for its fourth straight triumph. The U.S. team has one win and three losses.

The United States is scheduled to meet the Soviet Union in Saskatoon Wednesday in the next game of the tour. Canada will play Japan in Victoria Friday before the final games of the series in Vancouver Saturday, pitting Canada against the U.S. and the Soviet Union against Japan.

World Aquatic Championships

Canadians Fail; U.S. Surges in Front

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Canadians failed in three bids for medals at the world aquatic championships Tuesday while the United States surged into a comfortable lead in the early medal standings.

U.S. athletes have picked up three gold, two silver and two bronze medals so far. East Germany and the Soviet Union each have one gold, one silver and a bronze.

Speed swimmers held the spotlight but although coaches had predicted that nearly all world records would fall, none were bettered Tuesday.

Tim Shaw won the men's 200-metre freestyle in 1:51.04, Kathy Heddy edged world record-holder Ulrike Tauber of East Germany to win the women's 200-metre individual medley in 2:19.80 and Phil Boggs was almost perfect with his final dive to win the men's three-metre springboard gold medal.

David Wilkie of Britain won the 100-metre breaststroke in 1:04.26, Roland Matthes of East Germany defended his world title in the 100-metre backstroke, winning in 58.15, add the East German women's 400-metre medley relay team easily won in 4:14.74.

Stephen Pickell of Vancouver finished fifth in the backstroke in 58.61, less than half-a-second behind Matthes. Becky Smith of Edmonton was also fifth in the individual medley with a time of 2:22.85. The women's relay team finished fourth in 4:22.77, Pickell barely qualified eighth and had to swim the final in the outside lane.

"I really blew it in the heat," the 17-year-old Canadian champion said.

For Smith, it was a case of not enough steam coming home. She was fighting for the silver medal halfway through but fell behind on the breaststroke and faded badly in the freestyle.

"I guess I didn't train hard enough," the tiny 16-year-old said. "I didn't have anything coming home. My freestyle was just terrible."

The relay team was a disappointment with its finish. It had been expected that Nancy Garapick of Halifax, Joans Baker of Toronto, Ont., and Wendy and Jill Quirk of Pointe Claire, Que., would win at least a medal.

But Garapick was beaten by more than a second in the open backstroke lap by Ulrike Richter of East Germany and the Canadians just fell further back with each stroke.

Many of the swimmers blamed the slow times on wind conditions which prevailed throughout the finals.

"Coming back the wind was right against you," Pickell said. "When your arm came out of the water you could feel your hand being pushed back."

Canada's major hope for a medal now seems to rest with synchronized swimmer Sylvie Fortier, 16, of Quebec City. After finishing a bad half a point behind heavily-favored Gail Bonsmas of the United States in preliminary competition Monday, Fortier completed the compulsory routine Tuesday about one point behind. They swim the final routine Friday for a race cancelled Sunday because of weather.

Meanwhile, Uwe Mares of West Germany maintained his grip on first place in the overall Tempest standings with a third-place finish.

John Albrechtson of Sweden, despite his third win of the week, still is in second place. A 16th place finish in the second race is holding him back.

Gulsepe Milone of Italy is third.

Peter Nygaard of Winnipeg, the top Canadian, is 16th overall.

Francois Fountaine and Marc Guyader of France stand one-two over-all in the 470 class. Steve Cocchiara of the U.S. bounced to third place after finishing 10th.

Guyader won his first race to move into second place over-all. Magnus Olin of Sweden, who finished in first place over-all in the singlehanded Finn class, with a third-place finish Tuesday.

The Soling sailors were to race twice today, to make up for a race cancelled Tuesday because of weather.

Meanwhile, Dave Mares of West Germany maintained his grip on first place in the overall Tempest standings with a third-place finish.

John Albrechtson of Sweden, despite his third win of the week, still is in second place. A 16th place finish in the second race is holding him back.

Gulsepe Milone of Italy is third.

Peter Nygaard of Winnipeg, the top Canadian, is 16th overall.

Francois Fountaine and Marc Guyader of France stand one-two over-all in the 470 class. Steve Cocchiara of the U.S. bounced to third place after finishing 10th.

Guyader won his first race to move into second place over-all. Magnus Olin of Sweden, who finished in first place over-all in the singlehanded Finn class, with a third-place finish Tuesday.

John Bertrand of Australia was second, with Kent Carlson of Sweden third.

David Howlett of Britain moved into fourth position over-all with a win, his second of the regatta.

Paul Allen of the U.S. remained in first place over-all in the Tornado class, ahead of Jorg Spengler of West Germany. Allen challed up his second win Tuesday.

Keith Notary of the U.S., at 15 is a budding Olympic champion. Coach Jack Donohue said the six-foot-three Devlin has had a history of leg injuries. Devlin will be replaced by three-year veteran George Raulins of Toronto.

Weigh-ins Ordered at CORK

All the Excitement Not on Water

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The upset of the week at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK), could come from the measuring shed at the Olympic Centre, rather than from the sailors.

Regatta officials called in two of the top Flying Dutchman class boats for a weigh-in Tuesday night that could have some effect on the standings.

The two top sailors in the standings, Yves Pajet of France and Jorg Diesch of West Germany are far ahead of the other competitors. But the weigh-in indicated that Diesch's boat was light after the fourth race Tuesday.

Class rules say a stripped Flying Dutchman must weigh at least 125 kilograms—about two pounds—but the German boat was light.

Diesch told officials he can's sized twice after the race and may have lost one of three weights, totalling 4.5 kilograms.

Officials said the boat was to be dried out overnight and weighed with the weight replaced.

If the craft is light, Diesch could be disqualified for the fourth race, dropping him from second place.

Uli Wolff of East Germany is third in the class, while Canada's best sailor is Hans Fogh of Toronto, seventh over-all after a fourth-place finish Tuesday.

Canada has had little to be excited about so far in the regatta. Fogh's fourth-place finish and Glen Dexter's third-place finish in the Soling class were highlights of a poor week.

Dexter, a Halifax native, now seventh over-all in the Solings. Dave Forbes of Australia is the class leader, after finishing first Tuesday.

It was his second win of the regatta.

Roger Haines of the United States is second and William Buchan, also of the U.S., is third.

The Soling sailors were to race twice today, to make up

Carter Tough In the Clutch

MONTREAL (CP) — The message here is, it should be clear: You do not walk a batter to get at Montreal Expos rookie standing rookie, Gary Carter.

Houston Astros took that route Tuesday night and the result was that the Expos took a 9-1, 11-inning win in a National League baseball game.

Pepe Mangual was on second base after a leadoff walk and a sacrifice bunt by Mike Jorgensen when Larry Bittner stepped to the plat. Houston pitcher Jose Sosa got the signal to put Bittner on base to set up a double play possibility at second.

Enter Carter.

"I was a little surprised," said the first-year player who turned 21 April 8, the day after the Expos opened their season.

"I was walking out there and a fan yelled: 'Now they got to respect for you. They're walking Bittner to get to you. Let's see something.' Actually, I don't know if it was a fan. I just overheard it. I was sort of thinking about that."

While strolling over the anonymous pep talk, Carter connected with the first pitch for a game-winning single over leaping second baseman Bob Andrews. "A couple of feet lower and it could have been a double-play ball," said Carter.

Sosa took the loss in his first major-league appearance after being called up Monday night from Columbus of the class AA Southern League. Montreal manager Gene Mauch had just briefly conferred with Larry Parrish, among others, who played against ball against the newcomer.

"Gene knew Sosa more than any of us," said Carter. "He said to look for a fastball, something hard. I didn't know what he threw and, of course, I only saw one pitch."

Sosa had thrown 1 1-3 innings for Houston after starter Doug Konieczny booked up with Montreal's Steve Rogers in what between starters. Both threw well and left only in favor of pinch hitters.

Rogers went 10 innings, scattering nine hits, before giving way to rel lever Dale Murray, 6-7.

GARY CARTER

errant throw by Braves catcher Vic Correll.

"Last night (Monday night) I hit a pop fly and it fell among three guys for a single," said Oates.

"Tonight (Tuesday), they hit me in the back with the ball and the winning run scored.

"Maybe someone upstairs is watching out for me."

Carlton, meanwhile, conquered the arm soreness and controlled his pitches.

"That's what makes it easier," said Carlton, who won 27 games for the Phillies three years ago. "It's something I haven't been doing all year.

"I knew I had good stuff warming up. It was the best I had thrown on the sideline all year."

In other National League games Tuesday, San Diego Padres blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0, New York Mets trimmed Cincinnati Reds 3-1, Montreal Expos edged Houston Astros 2-1 in 11 innings, St. Louis Cardinals nipped Los Angeles Dodgers4-3 in 11 innings and San Francisco Giants pounced Chicago Cubs 9-6.

2 Sore Winners Don't Complain

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Catcher Johnny Oates of Philadelphia has a small bruise on his back. He's not complaining.

There is pain in Steve Carlton's left shoulder and elbow. He's not really complaining, either.

With the bases loaded and one out in the ninth inning Tuesday night, Oates was sent up as a pinch-hitter by Manager Danny Ozark.

His grounder to second produced an easy force at home but Oates was hit in the back by the relay of what should have been a painless double play.

The ball caromed into short right field, allowing Greg Luzinski to score from second base with Philadelphia's run in a 1-0 triumph over Atlanta Braves in a National League baseball game.

Carlton, who has suffered from soreness in his pitching arm recently, finished with a three-hitter and his ninth victory—thanks to Oates and Luzinski.

Reggie Knows Why

A's in High Gear

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland A's, cruising toward their fifth successive American League division championship, are in high gear and slugger Reggie Jackson knows why.

"Last year I had a pretty good season and I didn't get much of a raise—only five grand," said Jackson. "Charlie Finley (A's owner) wants results. The man I work for is hard to deal with.

"If we get five runs, I want 10. I don't want no rest until October. October 20. The time to play ball is now and make that money."

The A's brought their salary drive into Detroit Tuesday night and manhandled the Tigers 11-0 and 16-4. The top-sided doubleheader saw the A's collect 24 base hits off five Detroit pitchers.

By the middle of the second game, the 29,089 fans at Tiger Stadium were booing when the A's made an out, cheering derisively when the Tigers did something right and chanting "We want Billy", a reference to recently deposed Texas manager Billy Martin who was a favorite when he managed the Tigers.

"I'm not out to humiliate anyone," said Jackson. "But you have to keep putting the pressure on because when you let down, nobody's going to let you down."

Elsewhere in the American League, Texas Rangers blanked Cleveland Indians 4-0, Baltimore Orioles whipped California Angels 8-3, Boston Red Sox shaded Minnesota Twins 5-4, New York Yankees rocked Chicago White Sox 14-6 and Kansas City Royals split with Milwaukee Brewers, winning 3-2 and losing 6-1.

RICK HAY — BOB BAUN

Help for Baun?

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association plan to hire an assistant for new coach Bobby Baun, a club spokesman said Tuesday.

The Toros already have talked about the job with Rick Hay, coach of Brantford Alexs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B series, but club president John F. Bassett says the final selection will be up to Baun.

Baun, 38, is looking for a younger man to communicate with the younger Toro players and to provide technical expertise.

"I know I can work the defencemen," said Baun, who played the position in the National Hockey League for 17 seasons. "But I'd like somebody else to help work with the rest.

Two Take Turns Leading the Way

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Long Island Tomahawks and Montreal Quebecois continued their keep-frosy game for first place in the National Lacrosse League Tuesday night, with the Tomahawks coming out ahead — for the moment, at least.

The Tomahawks took advantage of their home floor at Uniondale, N.Y., and recorded a 22-11 win over Quebec Carbonos while the Quebecois were joiled 18-7 by the Bolts at Boston.

The result was a two-point edge in the standings for the Tomahawks, who have a 21-13 won-lost record for 42 points. The Quebecois are 20-15.

Jim Johnston provided most of the offensive punch for Long Island, scoring five goals. Doug Hayes and Ted Greves chipped in with two apiece before 5,400 fans.

Travis Cook was Quebec's leading scorer in the rough-edged game that saw 147 penalty minutes assessed.

Bram Wilfong paced the Bolts with four goals before 1,458 at Boston. It was Boston's first win in four home games against Montreal. John Davis led the Quebecois with three goals.

The Tomahawks play at Quebec and Montreal meets the Wings at Philadelphia in game tonight.

The Quebecois will be without Dave Litzenberger, who suffered a pinched nerve in his shoulder against Boston and is out of action for an indefinite period.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Question: We are planning a trip to the Maritimes in August. Could you tell me about the National Parks and their locations. Also good sandy beaches for swimming.

Answer: If you're looking for a place to take the family by car this summer the Atlantic Provinces are an excellent place for a holiday. They are only 1,000 miles away over good highways and have sandy beaches and lots of excellent campgrounds. There are also plenty of motels and reasonable cottage rates in the Maritimes.

The magnificent beaches of Prince Edward Island, the spectacular beauty of Cape Breton's Cabot Trail, the foggy fishing coves of Nova Scotia will make your holiday relaxed and enjoyable. And there is no lack of campgrounds. Prince Edward Island alone has 4 National Parks, 28 provincial parks and at least 40 private operations. And it's only 140 miles long and four to 40 miles wide. Fundy National Park in New Brunswick and Cape Breton Highlands National Park in Nova Scotia are also superb. For beaches, head for Prince Edward Island. The shoreline is sandy, and safe and the water is warm, usually around 70 degrees. There are clams to dig as a family sport. There are fine riding stables, historic sites and children's playgrounds.

The best of the Island's campgrounds is the Prince Edward Island National Park, which is hard to beat anywhere. It sprawls along 25 miles of dunes and beaches, ponds and woods on the north coast, has 4 camping areas with laundromats and showers, supervised bathing and nature trails.

The Cape Breton campgrounds are spread around the rolling rugged peninsula. The 184-mile Cabot Trail runs through the park and offers spectacular views.

One of the attractions is the Alexander Graham Bell Museum on a hill overlooking Baddeck: where the Cabot Trail begins. The Bell museum is filled with the creations that flowed from the mind of the inventor of the telephone. This is where Bell had his summer home and where he conducted his experiments, which led to the first flight in Canada.

His genius for invention knew no bounds. Here you'll also see his iron lung and hydroplane. The Museum is open daily, May 15 to October 15, from 9 to 5.

Another attraction is Nells Harbor, a lobster fisherman's village near the northeast tip of Cape Breton. Not far away is Canada's 15 million dollar major work of historical reconstruction, the French fort of Louisburg, near Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Fundy National Park in New Brunswick has a shoreline with high tides and rugged sculptured sandstone cliffs. The park covers 80 square miles and its forests and nature trails are its major attractions. Along with riding, tennis, lawn bowling, plays, movies, golf and concerts, it has two major lakes with swimming, boating, fishing, and a huge heated salt-water swimming pool.

If you are driving to the Maritimes on the Trans Canada Highway, stop at the excellent Mactaquac Provincial Park which has 1200 acres 15 miles north-west of Fredericton, New Brunswick, on Hwy 105. The park, with its beaches, woods, meadows and golf courses, is a great place for a camping family to stop for a day or so.

If you are a member of the Ontario Motor League you can obtain maps, motel and camping books free of charge at our office, 1200 Princess Street, Kingston, or 102 Front Street, Belleville.

Has Hatching Record

SHUBENACADIE, N.S. (CP) — More rare wild waterfowl have been hatched in Nova Scotia's Wildlife Park in this community than anywhere in North America. The park contains over 150 species and subspecies including Canada and Brant geese, eider, wood and ringnecked ducks and trumpeter swans.

Shipping Declines

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Shipping on the Great Lakes this time of year is facing a decline, according to shipping spokesmen. Increased strikes in Ontario and Quebec and no prairie grains moving through Lakehead elevators have been cited as reasons. The situation was expected to improve if 1,200 miners end their contract problems so that Quebec iron production can resume.

Bikes Not Recovered

OTTAWA (CP) — City police say they recover 50 stolen bicycles a week but most of them will not get back to their owners. The average cyclist never records the serial number of his bike and Ottawa no longer licenses bicycles, says Staff Inspector Armand Soucie.

Poultry Parade

19 different poultry features! Count 'em. Odds are that you didn't realize so many different types and cuts of poultry existed. And these 19 features represent only a portion of the many fine poultry selections available at your Loblaws store.

Take a look at chicken. Loblaws offers fresh, frozen and precooked chicken selections. Confused by the many names? Don't be. Remember that chicken is classified according to age. There are only four basic classes for fresh whole chickens. Other types you see and buy are only variations of these basic four, as listed below.

CLASS	AGE	APPROXIMATE SIZE	COOKING SUGGESTIONS
Cornish Hen	4-6 weeks	1-1½ lbs	oven roast, broil, barbecue
Fryer (whole or cut-up)	7-8 weeks	2-4 lbs	oven roast, broil, fry, barbecue, stew, braise
Roaster	3-4 months	4-6 lbs	oven roast
Stewing Fowl or Hen	mature bird	2½-6 lbs	stew, braise

And don't forget turkey. It's available year round. Not just during the festive seasons. You can buy small or large birds, turkey parts (breasts, drumsticks, thighs, etc) and even boneless turkey rolls with or without dressing. With all whole poultry, look for the government inspection stamp and grade when shopping. Inspection ensures that the meat is wholesome and grading evaluates the quality of the bird.

Canada Grade A (red tag) is a very high quality bird with top quality flesh and finish or fat covering. Canada Grade B (blue tag) has somewhat less flesh and or finish. Canada Grade Utility (blue tag) may have originally been Grade A or B, but through processing a part or parts of the carcass were removed.

Finally there's ducklings. Sold frozen, ducklings can offer a change of pace whether you prepare them indoors or out on the barbecue.

A parade of poultry items await your selection at Loblaws. Come on over and try some today!

The egg and you

The egg. Consider it nature's own prepackaged convenience food. Nutritious, economical, flavourful and available in a variety of sizes, eggs truly have a lot to offer.

Nutritionally, eggs are winners. As an excellent source of high quality protein, eggs are listed as meat alternates in Canada's Food Guide. They are also good sources of Vitamin A, and the minerals iron and phosphorus. In view of their nutritional content, eggs are a bargain too. When Large Grade A eggs sell for 75 cents per dozen, that's equivalent to 50 cents per pound. Few high quality protein sources are so economical.

For your protection and convenience, eggs are graded under the guidance of the Department of Agriculture. Grading assesses the quality and size, according to the weight of the egg. Canada's four egg grades are: Grade A1, A, B and C. For the size classification of Grade A eggs sold at Loblaws see our illustration below. Grade A represents top quality eggs suitable for any cooking use. You'll see only these high quality eggs at your Loblaw store.

The egg. A great food choice for your nutrition, your pocketbook and your palate!

Showbiz Short

LONDON (Reuter) — Actor Henry Fonda, now 70 and with a false forehead and an electric pacemaker regulating his heart, scored a personal triumph Wednesday night in his London debut after about half a century in show business.

Fonda received four curtain calls after appearing alone on stage for two hours in the play Clarence Darrow, the United States radical lawyer who championed the underdog and defended 102 accused murderers without losing one to execution.

The play moved to London's West End after a long appearance on Broadway in New York.

Wearing little makeup but the hairpiece, Fonda appears as an aged Darrow spilling out homespun reminiscences and reciting a few of the stunning-up speeches which made him the most controversial lawyer in the U.S.

Fault could be found with author David Rintels' adaptation of Irving Stone's biography. For at least 30 years of his life—until about 1930—Darrow was renowned as a superb lawyer and an even more brilliant orator. But no one would know that from the material selected.

Fonda still shines through as a symbol of rectitude, which is also his screen image. But even he is reported to be incensed at the top ticket price of more than $9 for the show, highest in London.

Gamma Globulin Halts Infection

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you give me some information about what gamma globulin can do to elevate antibodies of the blood in order to throw off infection and help a person get to feeling stronger?

My daughter has been sick for two months, running a low-grade fever. Sometimes during the day, mostly late afternoon, she gets a let-down feeling and has to go to bed. Her tests showed she was low in antibodies. She has taken an injection of gamma globulin. Afterward, I noticed a red rash on her face. Could she be allergic to the gamma globulin?—Mrs. S.F.

Globulins are a class of simple animal proteins found in body fluids and cells. Of the three main types, the alpha and beta varieties have roles in various chemical reactions in the body. The third major type, the gamma globulins, include most of the antibodies that help the body ward off infections. When the body is deficient in these defence mechanisms, chronic infection results.

Why certain persons are deficient in g.g. is not quite clear, but chemical tests of blood proteins can determine the deficiency, as in your daughter's case. The injection was simply to make up the deficiency, which may or may not have been the direct cause of her continuing low-grade fever and infection.

The rash she experienced may or may not have been caused by the injection. In immunization, which is what the gamma globulin was intended to accomplish, the patient may sometimes exhibit mild symptoms such as this rash. The rash should be reported to her doctor as a matter of course.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 44, and my doctor says I have been going through the change for three years. I agree. I would skip periods, then have a scanty one.

Lately, my periods started coming closer together, and they have lasted longer. For the past year I have been spotting between periods and having really severe bleeding with heavy passing. I have also had bad cramps.

I have taken iron tablets for the past three months. My hemoglobin count is down. My doctor says I have to have a hysterectomy, and I have agreed to it.

What effect will this have on me in later years?

Will there be problems, since I have already started the change?—Mrs. K.

Irregularity of the menstrual cycle is common in early phases of menopause. Your excessive bleeding suggests trouble within the uterus, and the blood loss can account for your anemia (low hemoglobin). This cannot be offset by the iron medicine until the cause of the bleeding has been eliminated.

With removal of the uterus (hysterectomy), your bleeding will stop forever and along with it the anemia. If the ovaries are not removed you should go through your change normally. If they are also removed, you will undergo "surgical menopause"—another matter.

In this, the symptoms can be more intense, but fortunately they can be relieved and controlled by hormone supplements.

Beyond this, there would be no problems I can foresee. Your general health would probably improve considerably, and I believe you are wise to agree to the operation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a polyploma is discovered in the colon, should it be removed? Or is it something that can be watched? Will it necessitate surgery eventually?—Mrs. B.L.K.

It is best to remove a pupilloma of the bladder since there is a possibility of its being or becoming malignant.

Vancouver Fanciers Have Old Motorbikes

VANCOUVER (CP) — A shopping trip is no ordinary excursion for Bruce and Peter Clegg of Vancouver.

The first thing they did was order a catalogue. The next was to make a shopping list. Then came the hard part: They boarded a plane, flew to England and spent a month scouring the English countryside in search of bargains in old motorcycle parts.

Not your everyday shopping trip, but then, they weren't after everyday motorcycle parts either.

The Cleggs' catalogue came from the Antique Motorcycle Club of England and what they were looking for were long out of production mufflers, tires, fenders or any other old parts they could find.

The trip was successful and they could hardly wait to get home to start the hours of sanding, scraping, stripping and strapping which would make their pughases look as good as new.

After that, there were more hours spent painstakingly reconstructing the classic 1931 Ariel Square Four before it could be lined up alongside eight other modern and old-time motorcycles which have completely taken over the Clegg's family room.

Jim Brokenha of Vancouver is another antique motorcycle buff. He bought his first bike—a classic 1932 vintage—four years ago and spent six months reconstructing the motor on top of the dining room table in his apartment.

His wife didn't object when he baked newly-painted fenders in the oven or stored bearings in the freezer. But when he began buying job lots of parts just to get one special spare part, when the mailman started delivering cartons of parts ordered from Switzerland, wife weekend hunt shop sorties — yielded more old mufflers, plates, irons, gears and rods than could be stashed under the bed; then she was happy to go along with his suggestion that they buy a house with room for expansion.

"I never intended to get into this," said Mr. Brokenha, one owner of a meticulously-restored 1926 Harley-Davidson.

"I thought the Vincent would be it, then I found all these parts sitting around."

Denis Mitchell is proud of his 1914 Scott he purchased from a retired sea captain.

"It was a machine-gun carrier on the Western Front during the First World War," he said. "There isn't another like it in Canada."

He said it has a water-cooled engine, 21-inch wheels and a curbside head lamp. He added that he gave it six kicks and the engine caught after 12 years of not running.

Admitting he spends most of his leisure hours working on the machines, Mr. Mitchell said "We're like moles, we vintage bafs, but at least my wife knows where I am nights."

By Oswald and James Jacoby

East's spade overcall is not recommended, but in any event, North-South would arrive at three notrump.

Malcolm Brachman of Dallas, who held the East cards, won the first trick in dummy and decided to attack clubs rather than hearts. Probably it would have been better tactics to start the hearts and put in the ace if East followed low, but with West holding the heart jack that play was not going to succeed.

The club attack appears hopeless also. Anyway Malcolm led a club to his ace, returned to dummy with a second spade and led a club toward his hand. East discarded a spade and Malcolm played his king.

At this point Malcolm made the sort of play that winners come so with an occasion.

He needed three heart tricks to succeed. He cashed the ace, leading his 10 of hearts! West could have covered with the jack and still beaten the hand by winning a second heart and knocking out dummy's ace of diamonds but on one card Malcolm wins for ducking. When the 10 held it was a simple matter to cash the king of spades, lead the queen of hearts and wind up with three spades, three hearts, two clubs, a diamond and a top score.

Ask the Jacobys

A Maine correspondent asks, "My grandfather tells me there was a time when bridge all doubles were for penalty. In 1915, Bryant McCampbell of St. Louis and Major C. L. Patton of New York, independently of one another, conceived the idea of using certain doubles for takeout. The idea had gained much widespread acceptance by 1925 that takeout doubles have always been used in contract.

Historic Rhineland Village Termed Nuclear 'Garden of Eden'

JUELISH, West Germany (from Reuter — This rustic Rhineland town, which houses one of West Germany's most important nuclear research centres, has a habit of popping in and out of history periodically.

It got its name from Julius Caesar some 2,000 years ago when the Romans were keeping the watch on the Rhine.

Eight hundred years later when Charlemagne ruled half Europe from just along the road in Aachen, it was the corn bin of the Holy Roman Empire.

In the 10th century the House of Cleves and Juelich provided England's King Henry VIII with a wife.

It has popped up again in modern times as a nuclear "Garden of Eden." Shielded from prying eyes behind a high wire fence, The Adam and Eve of the reactor world are at the dawn of a new creation in industrial energy.

Eve is the abbreviated name of a heat converter. Linked to a high temperature atomic reactor, it turns thermal energy into gas that can be pumped for miles under ground.

Adam is the name of Eve's mate, a catalyzator that turns the gas back again into thermal energy at the other end of the system where it can be used in the form of hot water for heating or steam for turbines to generate electricity.

According to Prof. Rudolf Schulten, leader of the scientific team that was evolved Adam and Eve over the last seven years, it is the first practicable system for transporting thermal energy over long distances with practically no power loss.

Journalists visiting the Juelich research centre were told that the gas, which resembles ordinary house gas, can be transported over hundreds of miles.

It could revolutionize domestic central heating, which is one of the biggest consumers of expensive imported oil. It would also cut out the enormous waste of energy unavoidable in transmission of electric power.

Increases in the price of oil and steeply mounting costs in the coal industry have put the economics of atomic energy in a completely new light. Nowadays it can be two to three times as cheap as energy won from oil or hard coal.

Yet in West Germany and many other countries more than half the energy consumer comes from oil, while only one per cent is derived from uranium.

All industrialized countries have embarked on crash programs to build atomic reactors. At present the only way of using the power produced by reactors is to convert it into electricity on the spot and transport it, by a network of unsightly and uneconomic overhead cables.

Eve (Einsteinpiltroh—iversuchsanlage) does away with this. The reactor produces steam. But instead of the steam being used to drive turbines and generate electric current it is fed into Eve together with methane gas. Eve catalises the mixture into carbon monoxide and hydrogen.

The cold latent gas mixture now holds the heat in chemical form. It can be passed through an underground system of pipes for miles without any reaction taking place that would set the heat free.

This happens only when the mixture is catalyzed by Adam at the receiving end and the chemical reaction releases the same amount of heat as was originally invested in Eve.

The gases break down into spontaneous steam, which can be used for house heating, factory boilers or turning generators, and methane gas, which goes back to Eve by a return pipe to be used again.

The heat effectiveness of this sealed form of energy conversion and transport is estimated by Juelich to be about 75 per cent. This is considerably higher than the conventional process of using electricity as the secondary energy conductor because of the large power loss through the grid and the impossibility of storing electricity when not required.

Appropriately, in view of Juelich's ancient agricultural tradition, the high-temperature reactor, which actuates Adam and Eve, is known as a "potato reactor." It is so-called because its small, round nuclear elements are fed into it from a hopper at the top like potatoes and, when exhausted, drop out at the bottom.

This system enables the reactor to function continuously whereas some conventional reactors have to be interrupted while fuel elements are exchanged.

Plaque Erected To Grey Owl

HASTINGS, England (CP) — The life of Archibald Stansfeld Belaney, the parefaere English schoolboy who in a sense became more Indian than the Indians, has been commemorated with a plaque erected in a park here by the Ontario Heritage Foundation.

As a lively child in this Sussex community overlooking the English Channel, he early developed an obsession for North American Indian lore and wildlife and even falsely claimed Indian ancestry.

Eventually he went to Canada at age 18, lived with the Indians, learned the Ojibway language and as Grey Owl, famed author and lecturer, was popularly assumed to be a true Indian.

The son of a wealthy family, he went to Toronto in 1906 and soon settled in Temiscaming, Ont., adopting the life-style of the Ojibway, still claiming Indian ancestry. Later he drifted to Biscotasing, a small Canadian Pacific Railway settlement near Sudbury.

In 1915 he enlisted in the Canadian army at Digby, N.S., where he had fled to escape arrest following a number of drinking incidents.

Wounded twice, and discharged with a partial disability pension, he was shocked on his return to Biscotasing by the impact on nature of lumbering companies, hordes of inexperienced trappers and hunters and the wanton slaughter of wildlife.

In 1920 he proclaimed himself Grey Owl and, encouraged by his wife Anahareo, gave up trapping and resolved to work for the preservation of wildlife. He planned colonies for beavers, the most endangered species and fundamental to the Indian way of life, and also took up writing—admonishing his readers that "you belong to nature, not it to you," and became world-famous for his books and lectures.

Pilgrims of The Wild went through 18 printings and Sajo and Her Beaver People was reprinted 21 times and translated into 12 languages.

At the peak of his popularity he toured Britain, the United States and Canada, but the strain, and separation from his accustomed life-style, brought failing health and he died shortly after returning to his Saskatchewan home in April, 1938, aged 50.

A MODERN APPROACH TO BASKETRY WITH FIBRES AND GRASSES — Dona L. Meilach

Not only is basketry one of the oldest crafts known to man, it is also one of the easiest to learn, according to the author of this book. She describes the many new choices now available; designs taken from every possible art source; and new materials such as metals, plastics and fibres. Traditional and modern methods are shown.

LEISURE ROOMS — Sunset.

With these innovative ideas, a spare corner, garage, attic or basement can be transformed into anything from a craft studio or music room to a darkroom or workshop. Basic information on planning and materials emphasizes adapting limited space and avoiding excessive remodeling costs.

SAMPLERS AND STITCHES — Mrs. Archibald Christie.

Without stitches there could be no art of embroidery. A stitch should be chosen for use because it expresses perfectly the subject to be embroidered. Samplers and Stitches has 250 odd diagrams of stitches and methods all reproduced with great clarity. The text is both lucid and practical and very easy to follow. Needlework is durable and its patterns are decorative. It is also pleasing for wall decoration, either framed or filling panels and can be handed on to another generation.

MENU MAKER — Marguerite Patten

This is a book of complete menus for many different occasions and requirements. What shall we eat today? There are recipes for appetizers, main dishes, meats, slimming casseroles, picnics, celebrations and parties — they are all in Menu Maker.

HANDMADE LACE AND PATTERNS — By Annette Fishman

Lace has always been a source of delight as a form of decorative finery. Recently there has been renewed interest in lace-making and this book will be of tremendous help to anyone taking up this age-old craft. There is a chapter on "Lacemaking around the World" which tells of the magnificent laces of Italy, Flanders, France, England and Ireland, methods of making filet, drawn work and eutwork are described in detail and beautifully photographed.

Briton Reports Arthritis Cure

LONDON (AP) — A British medical specialist says he has found both the cause and a cure for rheumatoid arthritis, one of the world's most crippling diseases.

Dr. Roger Wyburn-Mason, a consultant physician at Guy's and Hounslow hospitals in West London who read his findings to the ninth International Congress of Chemotherapy which ended here last Saturday, says he is convinced the disease is the result of protozoal infections.

Protozoa are minute one-celled animals which live as parasites in the blood stream.

Dr. Wyburn-Mason said rheumatoid arthritis could be treated with the drug Clotrimazole, already used successfully to treat protozoal infections such as malaria.

He said persons who suffer from rheumatoid arthritis develop a substance in the blood known as the rheumatoid factor, which he found in patients with such protozoal diseases as infective hepatitis, bacterial inflammation of the heart and leprosy. He deduced that the factor "was produced in both cases as a defence mechanism against the same type of infection."

When he treated rheumatoid arthritis with Clotrimazole, he said, symptoms of the disease disappeared in times ranging from three days to up to four weeks.

"It was found that doses had to be continued for eight to 10 weeks to clear up the disease. Follow-up tests 15 months later showed the patients were still clear of rheumatoid arthritis."

Amin Says He's Ready To Invade South Africa

KAMPALA (AP) — Ugandan President idi Amin says he is ready to lead a black African invasion of white-ruled South Africa and Rhodesia, but details are "top secret—I can't even tell my wife."

Amin, recently awarded the military title of field marshal, told interviewers Tuesday the rank "will be put into use when I invade southern Africa, including Rhodesia."

He was only partly serious during the interview.

Amin gave no details of his military scheme and there was no indication any other country was prepared to join. But Amin said he would call a meeting of some black states that are ready to give him command of their armies in a joint African high command.

He said he has "made international contact" about invading from the sea and that long-range aircraft could be used if necessary. South Africa is more than 1,500 miles from Uganda.

"We already have trained very many—very thousands—of saboteurs which can make the situation in Rhodesia and especially South Africa worse than Northern Ireland," Amin said. These agents would get food and explosives within South Africa.

Amin, known for sudden anti-Western outbursts followed by friendly overtures, also said he wants to restore good relations with the United States and Britain and would welcome reopening of the U.S. embassy closed two years ago in a dispute over marine guards who now are "free to come."

Amin recalled that some British newspapers had described him as mad.

"The problem with me is that I am about 30 or 100 years ahead of my time," Amin said.

"My speed is very fast. Some ministers had to drop out of my government because they could not keep up."

McGregor Thought Payment Of $100,000 Was 'Incredible'

MONTREAL (CP) — Travel agent R. Y. McGregor told a federal inquiry Tuesday that a $100,000 payment he received from Air Canada struck him as "rather incredible."

Mr. McGregor told the inquiry into the airline's financial affairs that when he unexpectedly received three cheques for the money, he called John McGill, the vice-president in charge of eastern affairs, to ask for advice on what to do with the money.

He had of laughingly said "I hope you cashed them", Mr. McGregor testified.

Earlier testimony at the inquiry has indicated the money had been offered as part of an Air Canada attempt to get into the travel agency business on a national scale.

Airline officials have testified the payments were made for "consulting services" from Mr. McGregor because the airline's charter forbids it from operating travel agency services.

Mr. McGregor testified earlier he told Yves Pratte, Air Canada's chairman, April 17 that "consulting services had never been part of the deal, and none would be provided.

CP News Roundup

Turner Files Libel Suit

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Turner has brought a libel suit against the CBC over references to him carried in news broadcasts last March. In a statement of claim filed Monday in Ontario Supreme Court Mr. Turner seeks damages plus legal costs.

Libelous statements are alleged to have been made in news broadcasts that dealt with claims of attempted bid-fixing for a tender to raise a sunken barge off Prince Edward Island in 1970.

The broadcasts discussed possible links between the P.E.I. proposal and the Hamilton harbor dredging candal.

Mr. Turner's statement of claim says the CBC implied that he was corrupt, guilty of bribery, misused and abused his office as a cabinet minister and was a party to a criminal conspiracy.

No date has been set for hearing the case.

Commission Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Commission rates for the 27 Ontario distributors of Wintario lottery tickets have been cut to between five and 3.5 per cent from seven per cent, Marshall Pollock, lottery corporation managing director, said Tuesday.

Blast Not Bomb

NEW YORK (AP) — Police say a blast that injured 17 persons at a United Parcel Service terminal was caused by the explosion of a commercial shipment of a highly volatile chemical rather than a bomb.

Detectives said Tuesday the package which blew up when it fell to the floor of the West Side loading area Monday night contained methyl nitrate, an industrial chemical.

Toads Stop Job

HILDESHEIM, West Germany (Reuter) — Two dozen rare yellow-bellied toads have halted construction of five houses on a new suburban estate, town council said Tuesday.

The toads are protected by local law.

As a result, Hildesheim town planners have had to redraw their building plans for the 50-house development, and it is estimated the toads will cost the town about $122,000.

Jackie Happy

ATHENS (AP) — "I'm so happy for that girl," Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis said after the wedding of Christina Onassis and Alexander Andreadis.

"They are a wonderful couple," Mrs. Onassis said.

Christina, 24, and Andreadis, 30, heirs to two of the world's greatest fortunes, exchanged Greek Orthodox vows Tuesday night.

The bride is heiress to the $1-billion shipping empire left by her father, Aristotle Onassis. The bridegroom is a member of one of Greece's wealthiest families.

Non-committal, But - - -

Although Alderman Joe Cox was reluctant to comment on how the mayor's chair should be filled in the event Mayor Robin Jeffrey is successful in her bid for the Progressive Conservative nomination for the Ontario Legislature, he made his mind up Wednesday night who should get the mayoralty parking space at City Hall. Ald. Cox was attending a meeting of the subordinate planning committee at the time.

Russell for Election, Wants to Run for Mayor

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

It could cost Belleville taxpayers about $15,000 for a mayoralty election. That's if Mayor Robin Jeffrey wins the Progressive Conservative Quinte riding nomination and subsequent provincial election, and if council decides against appointing a new mayor from its own ranks.

Five members of council favor filling the vacancy by appointment. But one, Ald. Joe Cox, is undecided, and two — Ald. Stu Meeks and Wally Dever — were not available for comment. A fifth, Ald. Paul Russell, today pointed out that if a provincial election is held in September, the new mayor would be in office for more than a year. "That length of time would justify the cost of an election."

Ald. Russell added his name to the ranks of aldermen who would be interested in seeking the mayor's chair. These aldermen are Ben Corke, Art Keegan, George Zegouras and Mr. Russell.

City clerk Earl Dafoe said Thursday the last election cost city hall $13,000 — a cost that would be experienced again if a mayoralty election is called.

By appointment, an alderman needs a clear majority of council" through election during a public council session," said Mr. Dafoe.

World Tour Proposed

Last Apollo Comes Home

HOUSTON (AP) — The last Apollo comes home from space today, ending a history-making flight with the Soviet Union and closing a pioneering chapter in the United States space program.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton entered their Apollo toward a fiery re-entry and a 5:18 p.m. EDT splashdown in the Pacific Ocean 200 miles west of Hawaii.

The carrier USS New Orleans waited in the recovery zone to make the last ocean pickup planned in the U.S. space program.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton are to be the last Americans to fly into space for at least four years.

Future astronauts must await the Space Shuttle, the reliable rocket plane that will operate much like an airliner, landing on concrete runways.

The last Apollo crew returns after nine days in space during which it laid a foundation for a new age of space co-operation with the Soviet Union after linking with a Soyuz spacecraft and working in orbit for two days with two cosmonauts.

The cosmonauts, Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov, returned safely to earth Monday.

The astronauts wound up most of the earth observation, astronomy and other scientific experiments Wednesday.

They also jettisoned the 10 foot airlock that had served as a connecting tunnel between Apollo and Soyuz during the two days they were docked.

In Moscow, meanwhile, space commentator of Apollo Soyuz may make a world tour together.

"They will hardly have time for resting," one official said.

"Many countries already have seen invitations for the Soviet crew. Together with their American counterpart they will evidently make a tour of the world."

Space officials in Washington said they could not confirm plans for a tour.

Israel Now Wants Talks with Egypt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Israeli government source said today Egypt has "accepted in general terms" Israel's concept for an interim agreement in the Sinai.

It was not known whether Egypt had also agreed to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's call Wednesday night for the withdrawal accord to be completed "as direct negotiations" between the two countries.

The Israeli negotiating team—Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon and Defence Minister Shimon Peres—met today to discuss the Egyptian reply to the latest Israeli proposals received Wednesday night from Washington. U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger had conveyed the Egyptian stand to Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz.

A government source in Jerusalem said that, while the Egyptians accepted Israel's concept of a strong defence line in Sinai, details of the line still had to be worked out. Also to be decided, the source said, was the future of Israeli oil installations in the Sinai mountains and curtailment of anti-Israel political and economic activity by Egypt.

The source said issues in the agreement dealing with Israeli-U.S. relations had been nearly settled. These included the value of American economic assistance and American aid in replacing oil supplies Israel would be lost if Israel withdrew from the Sinai oilfield of Abu Rudeis. Israel now draws more than 50 per cent of its oil needs from the occupied Egyptian field, which will be returned as part of any agreement.

Rabin's speech Wednesday night appeared to add a new condition to agreement on another Sinai withdrawal.

"At the last phase of the negotiations, before an agreement is signed between Egypt and Israel, there must be face-to-face meetings between delegations of our two countries," Rabin said Wednesday.

Sources close to Rabin said the signing might take place in Geneva no sooner than Sept. 1.

They said the final stage may be preceded by another diplomatic shuttle by U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger.

In Washington, however, President Ford said differences "are still very serious" and United States efforts to ease tensions in the Middle East "might not work."

Rabin spoke after Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy announced Egypt's agreement to extend the mandate for the United Nations buffer force in the Sinai desert until Oct. 24. That mandate was to expire today.

Fahmy said President Anwar Sadat's original decision against an extension "awoke the world to the dangerous possibilities in the area and forced all the directly concerned parties, such as Israel, and the indirectly concerned parties, such as the United States, to confront their responsibilities."

Egypt had opposed the extension on grounds that Israel was using the 3,919-man force in the seven-mile-wide buffer zone to perpetuate its occupation of Egyptian land in a "no-war no-peace" situation.

Egypt responded to a last-minute appeal by the UN Security Council to Egypt to extend the mandate for three months.

The Security Council meets today to debate on the text of the extension resolution, which calls of both sides to make peace and asks Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to submit a report by Oct. 24 on steps in that direction.

Thirteen of the 15 council members were committed to vote for the extension—all but China and Iraq, which customarily refrain from participating in votes on the force.

A UN spokesman said Waldheim will make a stopover in Middle East situation with Egyptian leaders. Waldheim is travelling to Kampala, Uganda, to attend a meeting of Organization of African Unity heads of state.

Lang Forecasts Parole Revision

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Canadians seeking reinstatement of capital punishment really want more effective crime deterrents, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday.

He said he and Solicitor-General Warren Allmand are looking at the entire system of law in Canada and eventually will present a submission to the cabinet.

It is possible the presentation will contain amendments to the parole system, suggested by the law reform commission, which Mr. Lang described as "very worthwhile."

The recommendation would allow judges to sentence a criminal in two parts. The first is a denunciation sentence to a maximum sentence of 20 years which would not be changeable by the parole boards unless brought back to the courts.

The second part of the sentence, which Mr. Lang described as protective, could be altered by the parole board if it determines that danger to society is no longer present.

Russians Buy More Wheat Here

WINNIPEG (CP) — The sale of an additional one million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

The announcement of the sale—for approximately 37.3 million bushels of durum wheat—brings total Canadian sales to the the Soviet Union for the next crop year to three million long tons or about 112 million bushels.

Wheat board officials declined to place a value on the latest order, but based on current Thunder Bay, Ont., export prices, it could bring roughly $238 million.

The shipments of durum will start in November and continue through August, 1976, through both West Coast and St. Lawrence ports.

The sale of two million long tons of wheat to the Soviet Union was announced last week by the wheat board.

Tenders to Be Called Within Week For Shoring St. Thomas' Church Walls

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Tenders should be called within the coming week for removal of debris and shoring of walls at the burned-out St. Thomas' Anglican Church, says Harold Carruthers, building committee chairman.

"With any luck at all, we hope to have it (the restored church) closed in by Christmas," he said in an interview Wednesday.

The church congregation on Tuesday approved a reduced budget of $672,000. The building committee had to delete some non-essential features from an original architect's design in order to reach the minimum figure.

Mr. Carruthers said basement meeting rooms, elaborate furnishings in the nave and a pipe organ were among items eliminated but provision has been made to add those items as additional funds become available.

"Furnishings were something we just simply had to cut down on," he commented. "We're going to use a very mediocre organ."

As for the chopped items, "we'll have to do that later, when and if we can afford it," he said.

Mr. Carruthers said it would be nice if the church could be restored to its former splendour right away but "we don't want to wind up with a heavy mortgage. That would ruin the church."

One of the initial oceepts which disappeared was the proposed new roof, which he said was removed due to engineering necessities.

He explained a consulting engineer's report received recently has shown the remaining walls, badly weakened in the April 30 fire and which will stand free for stress in the new church, have to be six feet out from the new inside walls.

The sunken courtyard was supposed to give available light to the basement but the six-foot distance would decrease the light to the basement.

Mr. Carruthers said the new church will have stained glass windows in the amount of the insurance on them but only one will be of the memorial type.

He said the memorial window will be located in the back of the church and will contain the names of those persons who had donated to the other memorial windows lost in the fire.

Brief on the Way

PICTON — Hallowell reeve and chairman of Prince Edward County council's county government committee, Keith MacDonald, this week said a brief on single-tier government will be presented at the August council session.

He noted that county clerk Thomas Walker has prepared data for the brief and it should be compiled by the next full council meeting.

Sale Under Way

TRENTON — The third annual downtown mall sponsored by the Trenton Retail Merchants Association opened here today. The three-day mall on Dundas St. between Division and Front Sts. will close Saturday after a series of bingo games, rock group concerts, and an auction.

Canoe Trip Planned

TRENTON — The Trenton recreation department will hold another one-week co-ed canoe outing north of Lake Mattawa if response from Trenton teenagers is sufficient. Tentative plans call for a leave taking from Trenton Sunday, August 3. Registration for the final session of the Out Tripping program will close August 2nd.

Street Meet Fun Event

PICTON — The Prince Edward Auto Club this week reports a steady flow of entries for the Southeastern Ontario Street Meet '75 to be held August 15, 16 and 17 at Cow Beach Park, about ten miles from here.

Chairman for this special event, Bruce Allen says all interested motorists can enter the events planned and no special car is required.

Many "fun" contests such as a spark plug changing competition, a tug of war and a street sweep are planned. Also, a blind driver contest will be held in which the blindfolded motorist competes over a special course directed by his navigator.

Prize and trophies will be awarded in numerous categories and events.

All inquiries concerning the three-day meet should be directed to the Prince Edward Auto Club, Box 229, Bloomfield.

Fair Control Debated

PICTON — Prince Edward County council's property and supply committee will meet with the Prince Edward Agricultural Society to discuss regulation of activities at Picton fairgrounds.

At council's June session a motion to empower fair board director Charles Culmer to have authority to control buildings on the fairgrounds was defeated.

Prince Edward Warden Clifford Walker this week termed the motion "premature" and said there is need for discussion between council and the agricultural society.

He requested Athol deputy-reeve and chairman of the property and supply committee Harold Sills to set up a joint meeting between fair board directors and the property and supply committee.

Workers Picket

Construction workers belonging to Labor's International Union Local 247 today returned to their jobs at the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. plant near Picton today following a one-day strike. The laborers picketed the plant entrance Wednesday seeking a wage increase of approximately $3 an hour over a two year period. Bruce Price, vice-president of operations at the LOCL plant said, "four different projects are in progress with contractors.

Novice Sailors Learn Ropes During One-week Crash Course

TRENTON — For the third consecutive year, the mobile school of the Ontario Sailing Association (OSA) has stopped in Trenton to instruct 35 people in the rudiments of sailing.

And so far, says OSA instructor Norm Blayfair, lessons have gone on without a hitch.

Weather, always a problem for a sailor, has been good.

Mr. Blayfair, a 26-year-old Midland man with over 10 years of sailing experience, says foul weather is the major plague of the one-week, 15-hour, crash course he and fellow instructor Trevor Stinson of Toronto conduct.

Since the mobile school stays only a week, two days of bad weather seriously disrupts instruction. At a yacht club, for example, a budding sailor wil likely receive one month of instruction over a period of five years. By then, says Mr. Blayfair, "They'd become quite expert."

But poor weather serves as a respite for the two instructors. Since May, the two have been travelling in an OSA van used both as a bedroom and kitchen. They conduct three, three-hour instruction sessions daily. Between sessions, they bring the five Petral class sailboats up to ship-shape.

Before the van, one of four travelling Ontario, ends its tour in September, two instructors will have dealt with everything from lunches by a windy dock to phobias of new sailors.

One woman, Mr Blayfair says, fears capsizing her sailboat, not because she fears the water, but because she fears fish in the water.—Capsizing and righting the small craft is a necessary part of the instruction.)

He said he didn't require her to capsize the vessel, but did show her how it was done and how one recovered from the dunking.

The majority of beginners aren't phobic, he says, but if they are, instruction is gradual in the area of their fear' "We take them easily and play it by ear."

A certified Canadian Yachting Association examiner, Mr. Blayfair hasn't experienced such fears. He said Wednesday he has owned a sailboat since the age of 10 and spent each summer since then sailing. Only one year did he miss sailing in Georgian Bay waters, and that was the year his family sailed the oceans around Africa.

From Trenton, the instructors will be moving on to Pembroke and thus end the third annual OSA stint here, a situation, says Mr. Blayfair, that is unusual.

He attributed the three visits to the lack of proper docking and marina facilities in Trenton. Usually, he said, communities that have received visits from the OSA school get some facilities underway shortly after the first visit.

First we built a mid-size car inside.
Then we built a sub-compact around it.

Most cars are built the other way around. Body style first; passenger comfort second. Which is why in the back seat of so many cars, your head slants forward. Or your knees meet your chest. Or you shift positions sitting over the hump every time you hit a bump.

At Honda, we've virtually eliminated these problems. Because we designed our car from the inside out. What we ended up with is a sub-compact car with as much room as some mid-size cars. The experts have described our car best.

"Many makes talk about small on the outside, big on the inside, but Honda has done it." (Road and Track).

How'd we do it? Our car's shape is trapezoidal. A rectangle that's wider at the bottom than the top for all kinds of good reasons. For example, we give you more room where you really need it. More leg room on the floor and more seating room.

Another part of our roominess story is also a performance story. We gave our car front-wheel drive, not just to eliminate the hump inside, but for its excellent road-hugging ability.

Then we mounted the engine sideways to provide even more space. This also places the engine weight directly over the drive wheels for better traction. For added comfort, we equipped the Civic with a McPherson strut suspension, independent on all four wheels, for a stable yet cushioning ride.

The Honda Civic is more car than you'd expect. It's fast and yet it's economical to run. In fact, in the 1975 U.S. Environmental Protection Agency gas mileage test, the Honda Civic recorded a remarkable 49.2 miles per gallon for highway driving and 33.6 miles per gallon for in-city driving. Now, just try and find another car that performed as well.

Hassle Over PLO is a Reminder That U.N. Itself Was Born Amid World Trauma

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In the domestic hassle over the entry of representatives of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) into Canada to attend a United Nations Conference on Disarmament, the United Nations itself has come under great attack.

Most of the far-out fringe commentary has appeared that the United Nations is the creature of extremist elements and world government enthusiasts out to subvert mankind.

That sort of no . . . was effective enough in the early 1950s to bring about a ban on United Nations publications in both British Columbia and the State of California school systems.

For the crackpot element who view the UN this way, they have much more to work with now than 30 years ago when the UN was still dominated by the basically white and industrial nation members.

Today it is dominated by the primary groups and primary power blocs of the borders of nations existed in the world during the '30s and '40s.

The argument by those who favor Canadian admission of PLO representatives, (who are not Arab lawyers carrying no weapons or bombs), is that many other recent liberation movement leaders now sit in the UN as members of governments of the new nations.

A chief example is Algeria, whose president was in the late '50s a leader of the FLN, the tough and determined Algerian Liberation Movement who fiercely fought the French for independence and won.

The new arrivals, former colonies of the new defunct Portuguese African empire, are other examples, Mozambique, Guinea-Bissau, the Cape Verde Islands Republic about to apply for admission as a UN member state and Angola next winter unless its civil war delays independence.

On the other side, a tough-minded United States delegation is taking the hard line about Third World power blocs in the UN which has been shaken by growing world poverty.

In their ongoing post-Vietnam self-analysis, Americans are angry and impatient with the developing Third World, and their aid has been expanded on occasions when it suits them to take over Africa, can companies in Indonesia and American imperialism.

This fall two important sessions of the United Nations, the first to deal with economic matters, the second with political issues, will dabble the longtail fate of that important world body.

The question facing all sides is, they harden positions against each other, is whether the developed and developing worlds are going to apply confrontation or consensus to get on with their difficult relationship.

Those who are bitterly opposed to the observer status of the PLO in the UN, should remember that organization was born in the same kind of bitter struggle between countries and groups seeking identification and nationhood.

The Israelis and their supporters in North American journalism and communities have forgotten or won't remember that Israel which led to the creation of the United Nations. It was a UN resolution passed by a majority of the then member nations which led to the creation of the state of Israel in Palestine.

My point is the UN has always been surrounded with these kinds of crises. It is the focal point for nations often dealing with them in our chaotic world. There is no other place.

Support not attack is what the UN deserves in 1975, now more than ever.

Calling it A Day

For the past eight years Dr. Richard Potter has been a dominant figure in provincial politics.

It has been a career, first as a backbencher then as Minister of Health and latterly in Correctional Services, that was marked by singleness of purpose not to say controversy.

Dr. Potter had made no secret of the fact that, if appointed to the cabinet, the Health post was the one he wanted.

He was appointed Health minister in 1972 and his legacy includes the Queen's Self-Care unit here — a pioneering concept in the province — and other measures that had as their objective a more efficient and economic health care.

If Dr. Potter seemed to be attempting too much too quickly, and running into opposition — not least from members of his own profession — it was because here was a man who saw the need for reform and was prepared to work for it.

Many of these concepts are bearing fruit, and today, on the eve of his retirement, and while still active as Minister of Correctional Services, Dr. Potter can look back with satisfaction on a job well done.

Always a man of action, his tenure in the provincial Correctional field took him on visits to institutions throughout the province, including northern areas which he toured by train and by air.

The minister has been quoted as saying, as he looked back over the past eight years: "Since I have been there (at Queen's Park), I do feel I made a contribution." More than that, Dr. Potter has left an indelible mark on the health services of Ontario. If the same pioneering interest in the Correctional field was absent in the beginning, it was not long before the same instincts of caring and conscientious interest in the welfare of others was brought to play.

They are qualities which the Quinte area has come to expect of a man who previously served as Mayor of Belleville, and was a respected physician. Dr. Potter says he won't be returning full time to medical practice either. Like many a man of 61 years who has had a goal and come as close as any to realizing it, there are personal and family interests to consider.

It would be surprising, perhaps, if a man of Dr. Potter's energy and calibre were for-sake the sphere of public service completely; there could still be time in later years for that, if he felt so inclined, but meanwhile, the prospect of retirement is well-earned. The province and this community are in Dr. Potter's debt, for a dedicated career in the service of others.

"WOULD YOU TELL THE CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS I'M READY TO DISCUSS ENERGY POLICY!"

Museum's Attractions

Hastings County Museum continues to attract visitors from far and wide Sunday afternoon with its showers and brooding thunder clouds brought its usual quota.

It seems appropriate, in a repository of the past in this area, with fascinating insights into Quinte area life in an earlier time, that the guest book should include the name of a United Empire Loyalist descendant from California.

There is much to see, and imagine, from the lifestyle of a family in an earlier and more relaxed era, and further back to a more restless period and news by The Intelligencer of that time of the Fenian raids, to the fascinating memorabilia of local author Susanna Moodie who exchanged a sheltered upbringing in England for the rigors of settler life in Canada.

Here too we discover there is nothing new under the sun, as witness a document copyright of the Caxton Company 1896-1901 illustrating the effects of tobacco and alcohol on the human system.

Other visitors to Glanmore House of late have come from The Argentine and Chile among other countries, with the visitor from Chile noting, in Spanish: "I remember the houses of my country."

It is all further proof of Belleville's growing significance through contact with people from overseas, and a reminder of the city's own not inconsiderable cosmopolitanism.

In the most mature of communities and institutions though there are always some flies in the ointment. Thus the visitors' book contains at least one rude observation and from a local resident at that. Goodness knows what prompts such gauche drivel, but we may be sure that nuisance caller Martin Lewis and his staff have more important things on their minds than any graffiti-style remarks by those who come and go at Glanmore House.

Security of Northern Borders Is a Factor in Israeli's Strategy

By KEVIN DOYLE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Quiet and little-noticed set of developments on the northern borders of Israel has been a major complication in the United States efforts to develop a peace formula for the volatile Middle East.

At the same time, these new events go far in explaining Israel's traditional reluctance to accept any significant pullback of its forces from occupied areas of the Sinai desert, which recently led Egypt to threaten not to renew the mandate of a United Nations peacekeeping force in the region.

There now are strong suggestions, however, that Israel and Egypt have agreed to a three-year truce under which U.S. troops will man electronic listening posts in the Sinai and Israel will pull back from key mountain passes and the Abu Rodeis oil field.

Nevertheless, a U.S. state department source said Monday: "There is considerable concern that Israel's worries about her northern borders will eventually bring everything in the Middle East to a standstill and that's when things get dangerous."

The most pressing threat, from the Israeli viewpoint, is the danger of a drive by Syria to regain territory on the Golan Heights lost to Israel in the October, 1973, war.

And the Israelis believe the possibility of renewed war with Syria has heightened dramatically during the truce. Because of this, they have been reluctant to begin pulling back their forces facing the Egyptians in the Sinai to the south without some kind of declaration of non-belligerency from that country and the presence of U.S. monitors in the region.

An Israeli diplomatic source argued in an interview that without such concessions: "If we reduce our strength in Sinai and Syria attacks, we have no way of being sure Egypt won't join in and attack us from the other direction, and if we have already pulled back our forces in Sinai we'd be extremely vulnerable there."

The reasons for Israel's increased concern go back several months to the ending of a long-standing civil war between the Syrian government of a fellow Arab neighbor, and its rebellious Kurdish minority. This freed thousands of Iraqi regular forces, previously tied down by the Kurds, and raised the possibility they might be used in renewed fighting on the Golan in support of the Syrians.

A short time later, Syria and Jordan announced they were coordinating their military forces for possible future action against Israel. This seems to imply that Jordan will not remain relatively neutral in another war and that Israel will not be able to meet Syria through that country in a flanking move against Syria, a tactic which has been a key part of Israeli contingency planning for any future battle.

Adding to the Israeli fears was an outright offer by Iraq last week to send some of its troops immediately to the Golan Heights as reinforcements. Syria seemed to be giving serious consideration to the offer and, said the Israeli source, "the whole region is like a powder keg again."

The Mechanics and Economics of Buying a Home Today

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Edgar Guest once wrote that it takes a heap o' living to make a house a home.

It also takes a heap o' money to get the house in the first place, before your living can start to make it a home.

Just how much money it takes is the key question when you are thinking about buying a house.

The vendor will have a certain idea about its value, which will probably seem exaggerated to you. If you really want the house, though, you will have to decide how much to offer.

The first rule is to take enough time to know what you are doing. Don't sign an offer to purchase—probably the biggest investment of your life—on the spur of the moment.

On the other hand, the vendor or real-estate agent may be telling the truth in saying that another person is making an offer on the same house. Don't waste time unnecessarily.

Begin by looking into the circumstances surrounding the sale, suggests Richard Stacey in an article in Canada Consumer.

For example, if the vendor has already bought another house or is leaving town, or if the family is breaking up, then the purchaser who can offer cash and a quick settlement may be able to get a bargain.

But, says Stacey, the Consumer, "if you begin to feel too low, the vendor might respectively or insist upon the full price.

"A higher price might be grabbed immediately, and then you will be left wondering if you could have purchased the ready for a bit less."

The best plan is to get as rough information about the sale as possible, decide what you can afford, and then offer a little less than what you consider to be a fair price under the circumstances.

"If' may not be accepted," says Mr. Stacey. "But if it is not an insulting offer, you will undoubtedly find the counter-signed by the vendor with another price that you can accept, or negotiate further.

"And if by some chance your offer is accepted, you can sleep and consider yourself a happy buyer."

You can always increase your original offer if it is turned down by the vendor. But if your offer is higher than it should have been, it's virtually impossible to reduce it.

If you feel you can't decide what the value of the house is, seek the professional advice of an architect or real-estate appraiser (not a broker). The fee you will have to pay could be much less than the over-payment you might otherwise have made.

Retain legal advice early in the game, too. An offer to purchase, and the vendor's representations about the house, should of course be checked by a lawyer, who will explain all the points to you.

If necessary, you should qualify your offer with a clause to the effect that the offer is subject to your obtaining a commitment—from a lending institution for the desired mortgage on suitable terms.

And make sure that your heap o' money is big enough to take care not only of the down payment and the various professional and legal fees, but also such expenses as appliances, draperies, floor covering, garden equipment and the like—plus a little nest-egg for initial payments on insurance, taxes and all the public-utility services.

The Occasion Mr. Trudeau Admitted He Was in Error

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Increasingly over the last couple of years, Prime Minister Trudeau has been coldly enraged by challenges to his veracity and what, to some, seems to be his assumed infallibility.

His word has been questioned by members of both the Conservative and New Democratic opposition.

And while he has defended its face value, they have considered his word not as good as his bond.

His accuracy, too, has been found wanting.

But not to him, regardless of the documentary record which has been as unimpeachable as Parliament's Hansard itself.

There was a time when the Commons was and admired him as a man big enough to admit error.

But more recently such a confession has been beyond him.

And wrong or right, his pride or petulance he has refused admission of anything less than truth and accuracy.

He has been challenged on both values by many including former Prime Minister Diefenbaker, former NDP Leader David Lewis, ex-Trade Minister George Hees, Ontario cabinet minister Allan Grossman, Conservative Leader Stanfield, Alberta Conservative MP Jack Horner and Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, to list some.

And only once has he admitted error.

He went even further — he apologized.

It has become regarded as an historic parliamentary occasion, and Mr. Diefenbaker, who was involved in the incident, since has reminded the Prime Minister — to no avail — of his self-confessed fallibility.

Since that one moment of confession, the Prime Minister's word has come into such doubt that Hansard ... the question: "Is it true or is it Trudeau?"

The Prime Minister's remarkable admission of error was than perfection, and his apology, came as the result of a challenge by Dief about receipt of a letter from Lucien Saulnier, then chairman of the executive council of Montreal.

Chairman Saulnier had written to the Prime Minister warning him that certain members of the federal Company of Young Canadians were involved in subversive activities with the terrorists of the FLQ, the Quebec Liberation Front.

Here is how the questioning in the Commons proceeded:

Dief: Did the Prime Minister receive such a letter; will he table it in the House, and he in consequence instruct the RCMP to investigate?

The Prime Minister: I cannot remember every single read such a letter . . . I may say that no such letter was ever sent or received.

Dief: Sometimes people forget, even in matters of great consequence. Would the Prime Minister have a search of the files made to see whether such a letter was received?

The PM: Surely the letter is hypothetical.

Dief: Not as far as Mr. Saulnier is concerned. So will the Prime Minister have such a search made to see whether the letter was lost, and if it was not, will he table it in the House? Refreshing memory is one thing, the Prime Minister, or are they hiding something?

The PM: I know of no such letter, but if there were such a letter, I would not hide it.

And there it was. A flat denial. Not only had he not received the letter, swore the Prime Minister, but "no such letter was ever sent."

Only hours later presumably because a staff member may have alerted him to the fact that Saulnier admitted he had been altogether and totally wrong.

He may have been worried, too, by an awareness that Dief never, ever asks a question in the Commons without knowing the answer in advance.

"In reply to questions asked of me by the Right Honorable Member of Prince Albert (Mr. Diefenbaker) as to whether I had received a letter from Mr. Saulnier with respect to activities of the Company of Young Canadians, I replied in the negative," the Prime Minister reminded the astonished House.

Notwithstanding the admonitions of the Right Honorable gentleman that memories can be faulty, I remembered receiving such a letter, he said.

He should have heeded the wise counsel of the Right Honorable gentleman. On examination of my files I find that Mr. Saulnier did indeed write me on the subject.

"I wish to apologize to the House and to the Right Honorable Member . . .

And Trudeau history was made.

Will He Make it Stick?

A blast against the Post-master-General Bryce Mackasey by the president of the City of Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

Their national leadership has been "deceptive, irresponsible, unprofessional, and incompetent". They have failed to live up to their responsibilities to suspended workers. They have used every ploy to deny the membership believe in a non-existent threat of mass dismissal. By failure to "bargain in good faith," they managed to manage to win a contract comparable to that won by the letter carriers last May, which provided for salaries of $13,000. And they will have to be replaced if labor stability is to return to the Post Office.

He also had a warning in case the union leadership, now asking for a 30-hour work week and a 71 per cent pay increase, tries to cripple postal delivery in the country by a series of rotating strikes:

"I'll close the Post Office completely down from one end of the country to another."

"Should we get into a strike, it will be a long one, perhaps even a bitter one."

We hope he hangs tough — and we mean tough! But he has a contingency plan to run the mail while its regular staff is shuffling the months away.

New Pottery Shop Offers Unique Gifts for Visitors

MADOC — There's a unique little pottery shop near here that is attracting people from all over the province as well as points in the U.S.

It's known as Gal Studio, owned and operated by Trudy Veerman. The shop is three miles north of here on county Road 12 (commonly referred to as the Faraprenda Road).

What makes this shop so unique is that all the work is hand done from start to finish by Mrs. Veerman, and she does not use any molds or forms, but shapes every piece by hand on the wheel so that each is distinctively its own shape and size, with its own artistic finishing touches.

When she first went into pottery, Mrs. Veerman said she used to have her work and equipment in various parts of her house, but now, to allow the customers to see her actually working on the articles all the work is done in the same room as the store. Her kiln is right there, too, which people are surprised to learn is kept at 2000 degrees for firing the pottery.

And to add to the theme of wiry, it is the decor of the room itself. Mrs. Veerman has gone in for a quite old-fashioned with the one brick wall, an old wooden ceiling and semi-wooded walls.

In telling of some of her experiences in selling pottery, she said one of her products has become a collector's item already. It is a dinner bell with a Dickens theme, a trillium, also made of clay, glazed right on the bell. It became a collector's item when she first made one as described and requested by a representative of the Ontario Division of the North American Bell Association.

There has since been numerous orders for these bells. Not one to like mass production, Mrs. Veerman says she has made many of these bells, but all of them differ in some way. Although her business only went into full swing this spring there are already over 100 different items on the stock list. These include up to 8-inch vases, small ornaments, mushrooms, dishes, pendants, cream and sugar sets, pictures, bowls and also drawings of birds and flowers, all her own art work, and several wall hangings. Decoupage, a form of antiquing, is also part of her work, which she styles around the Hummel pictures. Each item is trimmed and finished with paintings and special glazes.

Mrs. Veerman has a natural creative talent. She attributes her European background to the bright colorful finishing touches she puts on the articles, which have proven popular with those who drop in.

The new shop has just opened this week, with the first customers coming in on Monday. Although most of her customers are from the Belleville area, there has been a great number of tourists from such distance points as Windsor and Toronto.

She said that most of the items sold are being bought as gifts. The fact that there will never be a repeat production of the items on the shelf is a contributing factor as to why these articles make such a unique gift.

Mrs. Veerman does all the work herself, although she has three daughters who are also artistic and handy in the work.

She says, "I don't doubt they'll go into the work someday — when they're a little older. I will have to trail them, but for now they help out only occasionally."

At one time, Mrs. Veerman sold wholesale to stores, but in order to allow enough commission, the profits were cut considerably. And Mrs. Veerman found it just as profitable to do all the selling from her own shop.

Mrs. Veerman teaches night classes during the winter months at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc. She said she is planning to have summer classes at her home next month on a one-morning-a-week basis so about pottery themselves.

NOW — ONTARIO REBATES SALES TAX!

Effective July 7, 1975, the Ontario Government will rebate the 5% Provincial Sales Tax to purchasers of specified new passenger vehicles manufactured in North America. This rebate applies to all new GM automobiles and station wagons, except full-size Cadillac. Together with our new, unique engine guarantee, stated below, that means greater value and savings for you!

60,000-MILE ENGINE GUARANTEE

47,500 miles tougher than the leading import.

Until now, in the 1975 model year, the toughest engine guarantee you could get on imported or North American cars covered either three years or 50,000 miles, or one year with unlimited mileage. Well, General Motors has just gone all the rest of them one tougher, with a 60,000 mile or five year engine guarantee (whichever occurs first), on new 1975 Chevrolet Vegas and Chevrolet Monzas equipped with a 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine delivered on or after June 25, 1975.

General Motors guarantees to the owners of these vehicles that any authorized Chevrolet dealer will make repairs, without charge to the owner, during the term of the guarantee, to the cylinder block, cylinder head, all internal engine parts, the intake and exhaust manifolds and waterpump made necessary because of defects in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is in addition to the New Vehicle Warranty but does not apply to repairs required because of misuse, negligence, accident or lack of reasonable or proper maintenance.

This guarantee is available at nominal extra cost to those taking delivery of 1975 Chevrolet Vegas and 4-cylinder Chevrolet Monzas earlier than June 25, 1975 through any Chevrolet dealer before October 1, 1975.

A five-year/60,000 mile engine guarantee! Don't make any deal until you see your Chevrolet dealer.

40 MPG.

The Chevy Vega equipped comparably to the models sold in Canada with 4-speed manual transmission achieved 40 miles per Imperial gallon in the U.S. Government EPA* Highway Tests and 25 miles per Imperial gallon in the City Tests.

37 MPG.

The Chevrolet Monza 2+2 Hatchback Coupe comparably equipped to models sold in Canada with the standard 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine, 2 barrel carburetor and 3-speed manual transmission, achieved 37 miles per Imperial gallon in the U.S. Government EPA* Highway Tests, and 24 miles per Imperial gallon in the City Tests.

VEGA.

The tough little car from Chevrolet now carries a tougher warranty. 5 years or 60,000 miles... that's a guarantee from General Motors no one else matches. Looking for small car convenience... test drive the 1975 Vega. It's priced about the same as the others... but built a little better.

MONZA.

Now one of the most popular new cars of 1975 is an even better buy. The spirited sporty Monza... style, value, economy... and a new 5 year or 60,000 mile guarantee on 1975 4-cylinder models delivered on or after June 25, 1975. Saying Goodbye Is Good for You

Every so often it's good to say goodbye.

If you've ever been on a diet, then you know how glorious that return to chocolate cake tasted.

If you've been away from home on a trip, you know how comfortable you felt back in your own bed on your return.

If you haven't seen a member of your family for a long time, you know how faults disappear and virtues blossom during an absence.

All good reasons, in other words, to remove yourself now and again from your usual pattern in order to re-examine it.

Separate holidays are a more drastic move than most married couples make, and are often regarded as the first cracks leading to an inevitable split-up. But not seeing each other can actually work therapeutic wonders for bo- hum or up-tight relationships, and won't harm an already secure marriage.

What, after all, is enviable about the couple who boast they've never had a night apart "except when the wife was in the hospital having the babies?" People who have never had the opportunity to miss each other have missed out on one of the good things in life.

Missing someone you love can be exquisitely painful, but it can also be a rewarding and useful experience. You think that's ridiculous? Well, consider this argument.

As you miss your spouse or sweetheart, you etch an image in your mind you wouldn't have otherwise. It's seldom that you think about a person if he's sitting across the living room from you. And thinking about someone can do a lot to clarify your relationship, and make you aware of your separate identities.

What do you miss about him, for example? Which of his qualities leaves you most lonely in its absence? Are there things about him that you're glad to be rid of for a while? How important are they, compared to the things that you miss?

How does the pattern of your life change when you're alone? Who are you, without your "better half"? How much of your personality (or his) is a result of being part of a pair?

Absence gives you not only the occasion to dwell on the reasons for your affection, but to write them down. How long is it since you wrote a love letter to each other?

Bidding farewell to familiar people, places and things can be a healthy step to a better appreciation of the life you lead . . . and a genuinely happy "Hello again!"

Aspiring Writer Contributes to IWY Magazine

Maxine Albert, who has been writing seriously for just six months, is one of 46 women whose work has been published in the International Women's Year publication Title Unknown.

Mrs. Albert, who has driven a taxi, worked as an optometric assistant and managed a ladies' dress shop, began writing in high school.

Writing full time began in January when "I got the feeling that if I didn't find a way to relieve what's inside, the top of my head would come off."

Besides, she says, "I could devote eight hours a day to somebody else, why not to myself?"

Separated from her husband, Mrs. Albert is currently in the process of packing up herself and four children for a move to Toronto, where she hopes she'll find independence and an atmosphere "richer in resources".

"I need more than I'm exposed to here," she says, adding that the faster pace of the larger centre may prove invigorating.

"It might force me to bite off a bigger mouthful," she says. "It's too easy to relax in Belleville."

In spite of that relaxed pace, she has produced, in a frenetic few months of writing, 80 to 100 articles and short stories and a children's book.

During the Fall, the piece in Title Unknown, is her first publication.

"I have some beautiful rejection notices. I think I'm realistic about the amount of competition I face and the limited market," she adds.

"But the dreams are not of castles and millions of dollars in royalties. I'll be happy to be able to buy the groceries.

"If the problems of hand to mouth living disappear, I want to explore existential philosophy. I believe we can do and be whatever we want to do and be."

The dreams of "working with ideas" are a far cry from the earlier life she had mapped for herself.

"I didn't become truly interested in anything alive until I was 27," Mrs. Albert, now 32, says.

"Then I learned how to talk. It was like waking up having been blind for 15 years and seeing again.

"I left school in grade 12 because I couldn't take it — I didn't even know why I couldn't take it.

"But I was underemployed and I couldn't articulate or understand that."

Now she is far from "underemployed" and bent on fulfilling her own philosophy.

"I want to talk about how much of our own resources we don't use; how much more we can do for ourselves."

Women's Festival Produces Book

The contribution that women make to our culture has coffee into clearer focus across the country during International Women's Year.

Here in Ontario, the Festival of Women and the Arts in Toronto during June brought women artist, musicians and writers together for a series of cultural events. Out of this assemblage came a one-issue magazine called "Title Unknown", a collection of drawings, poetry and prose by Ontario women.

Edited and designed by women, "Title Unknown" contains work by 46 women of all ages, many of them publishing their work for the first time. However, the three editors, and several of the contributors, are professional writers, who have already developed reputations in their respective fields.

Nevertheless, the magazine has an amateur air, a freshness of outlook that comes from the diversity of its material, and from the varied background of its writers. Schoolgirls, accountants, housewives, teachers, journalists and dramatists pressed their vision of the world from so many points of view that a generalization about the magazine is hardly possible.

If there is any criticism to be made, it is that the poems and stories tend to stay too close to the conventional "female" areas of birth, love, and personal observances about "life". Happily, the approach to these old-hat subjects is for the most part new and remarkably free of clichés.

Perhaps the most appealing aspect of "Title Unknown" is that in spite of its sometimes bitter chronicling of female struggle and frustration, there is no moaning. Instead, there's an optimistic tone much in the manner of the cover drawing — a "totem pole" of women, gradually rising from oppression to top-of-the-heap exaltation.

Young Adults Experience Most Crises

OTTAWA (CP) — Men and women in their 20s are going through more personal crises than any other age group in this city, says social worker Betty Ann Smith.

Calls to the Ottawa Distress Centre where she works are more frequent from persons 20 to 29, she said in an interview.

One explanation:

"Ottawa has a very young population, including many youngsters who are living here without family or friends."

Most of the 16,539 calls to the centre in 1974 were from people suffering anxiety or loneliness, she said. About 5.7 per cent related to suicide and fewer from people with drug problems.

Most callers were female, although a large number of calls came from men between 40 and 49 years.

"In the area of suicide prevention I think we have been useful, if only because in many cases we were able to help people before a suicide situation was allowed to develop," she said.

About 15 volunteers man the centre's telephones 24 hours a day. Mrs. Smith said the centre's demands range from the need for a sympathetic voice to advice on alcoholism or directions to a gas station open at a.m.

RICHARD BRUYNSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bruynson of Consecon, graduated from Queen's University, Kingston, as a Civil Engineer. Richard has accepted a position in Oshawa with Biddle and Associates.

Ann Landers

'Equality Means Happy Marriage'

Dear Ann Landers: I am happily married and have been married 13 years. I believe in equality for women; I'm my own boss and I do as I please.

My husband and I disagree a lot, but we seldom fight. I sometimes worry that our marriage is too happy and something unexpected will happen to spoil it. I believe we owe our marital success to the fact that we respect each other's opinions, needs and desires.

My reason for writing is to comment on the newlywed whom Ishmael refused to call on his tomato. She signed her letter, "Bleeding Addies." You suggested that she give him a pedicure.

Your answer elevated my blood pressure at least 50 points! The thought of a woman who has her knees cutting a man's tomatoes (which he was reasonably too lazy to do) sparked rebellion in me.

I suggest she tell him to sleep by himself until he cuts his own tomatoes. Honey may catch more flies than vinegar, Ann, but absence makes the heart grow fonder—especially for newlyweds.—Happily Married Libber

Dear Lib: To get down on one's knees can be a very good thing—whether to pray, scrub a floor or cut a husband's toe nails.

When you stand, you are a little taller for the experience.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a father who sits like a bump on a log and pretends he is deaf when you are reprimanding one of the children?

In our family, I have always done the reprimanding because my husband worked nights while they were growing up and was never around when "things happened." I feel I've done a good job. No child of ours has ever been in trouble or become involved with drugs.

Last Saturday I told my 18-year-old son to get a haircut. Jim's hair was not long, just ragged. I had been telling him for a week to get it cut. Jim is very handy, especially with cars. Someone always needs his car fixed and off Jim goes. Well, Saturday morning I said, "Get it today, Jim." He insisted he had work to do. When I said, "No excuses. Get it today," he shouted an obscene word at me. His father just sat there.

I am angry at my husband. VERY ANGRY, for not calling the boy back and reprimanding him. Please Ann, how can I make my husband understand it's part of his job to help me?—Helpless.

Dear H.: Sorry dear, but the discipline pattern is firmly established in your home and it's too late to change. Just hang in there, Mom, and keep on doing what you're doing. Be thankful you are equal to the challenge. Some mothers with "uninvolved" husbands can't back it and their kids are plenty messed up.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I love company. We invite two couples to our home for dinner almost every other week. Usually it's the six of us, sometimes it's just four. I'm a gourmet cook and enjoy putting together a fine meal.

They never invite us back. This has been going on for well over five months. When they leave, the women rave about my cooking and say, "You MUST come to our house next time." Then they add, "Of course, I can't cook like you do."

What should I do, Ann? I'm beginning to feel like a chump.—Seattle Crope

Dear Sue: The next time you get that song and dance say, "I accept your invitation. I'll place you tomorrow and we'll pick a date. It's time we ate at YOUR house. I don't care WHAT YOU SERVE."

Rules for Refreezing Food

OTTAWA (CP) — A food expert who has received queries about the wisdom of refreezing previously frozen meats says a few simple rules should ensure safe eating.

"It has been shown that any food that has been in the past to think that freezing killed them but it doesn't—it just activates them," says Maria Cunningham of the Ontario Food Council, bacteria grow again when the meat is thawed.

She said the care and handling of frozen food varies and the food council suggests ask six questions before refreezing any quantity of meat.

Has the meat changed in odor or appearance? Do discard it. But, says the council, spoiled food does not always have a bad odor or a poor appearance.

Have ice crystals still present in the food? If so, it may be safely refrozen. Fish, however, should be cooked and eaten. Bacteria grow more quickly on fish than on meat or poultry.

Was the food completely thawed and held at room temperature for less than two hours?—If so, large beef and pork cuts may be refrozen, but for best quality should be cooked first. Small beef and pork cuts and all poultry or fish should be cooked and eaten.

It is best to thaw foods in the refrigerator or under cold running water, the council says. And vacuum-packed meats should not be refrozen unless the vacuum seal is broken. Any vacuum-packed food that has thawed at room temperature should be discarded.

Foods in supermarkets have usually been thawed for some day they appear on the shelves because of a high-volume turnover, Mrs. Cunningham added.

"If you do buy previously frozen meat, though, run home and put it in the freezer right away. Don't leave it sitting."

The council emphasizes these two safety rules:

1. Discard any frozen food that has been completely thawed and held at room temperature for less than two hours'—if so, large beef and pork cuts may be refrozen, but for best quality should be cooked first. Small beef and pork cuts and all poultry or fish should be cooked and eaten.

2. It is safe to refreeze any frozen food that contains ice crystals because it is only partially thawed.

Native Women Get Better Deal

OTTAWA (CP) — She has no bodice and real authority, but Claudine Van Every-Albert feels she can make quiet waves to change things for the better for fellow native women.

In her role as special adviser on native women's activities for the federal Indian affairs department, she visits reserves across the country teaching women how to write effective briefs or word great applications to catch the right public servant's eye.

This year she will tell nearly 200 organizations how the federal government can help them with social and cultural projects, but she is handicapped by the fact her department's International Women's Year project didn't get off the ground until late May.

"It's frustrating, really frustrating," she said. "I've called health and welfare about their funds for alcohol and drug abuse centres, but they just say, 'Oh, Indian women; get that from your own department.'"

A soft-spoken 36-year-old graduate in native studies from Trent University in Peterborough, Ont., Mrs. Van Every-Albert said she thinks women should focus their attention on family living.

"If there is a settled home life, a strong cultural base, then smooth community life will follow."

Indian women aren't ready for liberation, she said, at least not the kind of self-fulfilment middle-class women are trying to achieve.

"On paper, my job looks great. But some of my own people are suspicious," says Mrs. Van Every-Albert, an Iroquois from the six Nations Reserve near Brantford, Ont.

"I have to be careful not to barge in on them with a lot of new ideas. They certainly haven't ready to dash into a new life style.

She said working inside the government will help her people because "most decisions are made at the top, and on the inside you can push and maybe make a few waves."

Years Disappeared

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Maude G. Tull became 100 years younger when her application for a renewed driver's license was rejected because a computer was fed information showing she was three years old. A check showed Mrs. Tull was born in 1872, not 1972 as the computer indicated, and she was then issued a one-year, limited-term licence making her one of the 16 oldest Californians to hold a driver's licence.

Call it Sugar

NEW YORK (AP) — In the sugar industry "mother liquor" is the syrup remaining after a quantity of sugar syrup has been processed and cooled of the sugar forms crystals. The whole amount is dropped and the "mother liquor" spun off in a centrifuge. This first result produces the whitest sugar.

Woman Joins Board

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — Margaret Shabenian has become the first woman in the history of the 43-year-old Wine Institute to be elected to the board of directors. She is currently vice-president and corporate secretary of Guild Wineries.

Good Excuse Needed

— Somewhere there is a husband who will have to do some fast talking. The last time he came, he with an explanation for his absence. He was called to the defence ministry and asked why he had been called to serve with the security forces four times in 18 months when his friends had not been called up. The ministry checked their records and found the woman he had done no military service at all.

Life at Syncrude Project Consists of Work and Booze

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP) — Stanley Roik is a 25-year-old university graduate who spends long days as a construction laborer and many of his nights drinking beer.

That's life for workers at the Mildred Lake construction site of the new $3-billion Syncrude Canada Ltd. plant near this community 250 miles northeast of Edmonton.

In fact, booze is so much a part of life for the 2,500 workers there that Canadian Bechtel Ltd., the site's main contractor, is adding the first major recreational facility to the site this summer, a 400-seat pub.

And Mr. Roik, an articulate University of Alberta graduate who aspires to become a playwright, will be sitting in that pub with the rest of them.

He says he took the job because it came without ties, and also because it means he will clear about $13,000 this year. He said a majority of Mildred Lake workers view their jobs as temporary, and estimates the turnover of workers at 400 per cent or more. (Both Syncrude and Bechtel deny that turnover is this high, but they won't say what the turnover is.)

"There's a saying there are three shifts at Mildred Lake," he said. "One shift is leaving, one is working and another one is coming."

Perhaps this turnover is inevitable, because of the kind of workers attracted to construction jobs in a boom town, he said. But he believes the "soulless" nature of camp life contributes to this turnover.

Little thought has been applied to the design of the camp environment. The modular units workers live in are virtually stacked one by one. They are all colored yellow and white and are all identical inside, producing an overwhelming sense of sameness.

The food is good in the camp. Steak is served two or three times a week and there's always a wide choice of meats, vegetables and fruits.

But meals are served in an hour to shifts of hundreds at a time.

There is little recreation at the camp. There are eight billiard tables, some ping-pong tables, and six color television sets. But the tables and TV room are always overcrowded, Mr. Roik said.

There is also an area set aside for gambling, he said. Quite often the stakes are high, and security guards tolerate nightly games even though they're technically illegal.

Mr. Roik said most workers bypass Fort McMurray, about 20 miles south of the camp, except to drink beer or maybe take in a movie.

"The whole town is geared to selling merchandise," he said.

On weekends, with the exception of a handful foreign workers who make the camp home, the lineup to Edmonton begins.

Mr. Roik said he cannot understand why Syncrude and the governments have not provided more recreational and cultural facilities at the camp and in the town of Fort McMurray.

"I really don't know how they expect to attract families to this place," said Mr. Roik. "Men only come here now because they feel they have to to earn the big money."

Vancouver Social Workers May Team with Policemen

VANCOUVER (CP) — If a "team policing" plan being formulated by the Vancouver police department is successful and becomes the general rule, it will be unique in North America, says Sergeant Jack Orich.

Sgt. Orich is preparing a proposal for social workers to team up with policemen this fall in the city's southeast sector if approval is given by the province's justice development commission. The southeast sector has 43 per cent of the city's area and 38 per cent of the population.

The sergeant is working out of an office under the responsibility of the attorney-general's department. The commission pays the salaries of a research assistant and secretarial help.

Other people working on the concept include those assigned by the province's human resources department and the city's social-planning departments.

Once implemented, the plan will have a year to prove its value and might then be adopted city-wide.

The concept places social workers and police officers on the same team, delivering their services to the community.

The police contingent of the team might include elements of traffic as well as patrol-division policemen and perhaps general investigation detectives. Special squads such as homicide, robbery, drugs, fraud and morality would continue to follow their current patterns of operation.

Sgt. Orich said in an interview the police team would have a leader and a yet-to-be-determined number of members.

"The team could ultimately include representatives of participating agencies as associates or full-time members," said Sgt. Orich. "These teams will be assigned a geographical area and will have 24-hour responsibility.

"The identification, analysis and resolution of community problems would be dealt with in a participatory manner by all team members."

He said the team concept is intended to include systematic referrals to social agencies and a unified delivery of services. Where possible, the research group is attempting to match team areas up with community resource board areas to achieve maximum co-ordination with human resources officials.

The concept of joining social workers with police officers in the war against crime is one of the changes that followed the Gastown riot of 1971 when police clashed with youths in the city's old core area.

Gas Tax Debate Drags On

OTTAWA (CP) — Many members of Parliament seem to be having the same midsummer night's dream: A lengthy recess to recuperate from the rigors of a busy session that began nearly 10 months ago.

But they can't turn the dream into reality because of a prolonged debate on the 10-cents-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes. The tax already is being collected, but the government still needs approval of a bill before it is legal.

The tax bill has kept MPs occupied since June 23, with only a few days off for other business.

Not even the defeat Wednesday of a Progressive Conservative bid to delay approval in principle of the bill signalled the possibility of a summer holiday beginning soon. The Liberals no sooner defeated the bid when the New Democrats insisted on resuming second reading debate.

This means that any or all of the 264 Commons members, except the Speaker, can speak again on the bill, raising the possibility that the House might not adjourn Friday as expected.

Boost Too Big

TORONTO (CP) — Egg prices need to be increased by the 10 cents mentioned by federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, the chairman of the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board said Wednesday.

James Johnstone, interviewed at a general meeting of the board, said he was puzzled by Mr. Whelan's statement that egg prices should go up 10 cents a dozen.

Lawyer Walks Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Hogan, the lawyer representing two prisoners charged in connection with a hostage-taking incident at the British Columbia Penitentiary, walked out of the Parris Inquiry Wednesday after being told transcripts of in-camera evidence would not be made available to him.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Members of the Prisoners Union Committee (PUC) and the American Indian Movement demonstrated Wednesday outside the British Columbia penitentiary where prisoners are holding a two-day work stoppage.

No Decision on Rents

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet is still undecided about the controversial issue of rent controls.

Housing Minister Donald Irvine who has been promising announcement of some form of government action in the rental field for weeks, emerged from a lengthy cabinet session Wednesday saying his colleagues want further information on the issue.

'Nice to Walk Out' Says Allan Grossman

TORONTO (CP) — "It's nice to walk out instead of being pushed out," Allan Grossman, Ontario's resources development minister, was saying Wednesday.

He had just announced that, after 20 years in the provincial political arena, he would not be a candidate in the election expected later this year.

Mr. Grossman, 64, became the fourth member of Premier William Davis' cabinet to announce he would not be running again. The others are John White and Jack McNie, ministers without portfolio, and Richard Potter, government services minister.

A fifth—Agriculture Minister William Stewart, who is recovering from a heart attack—is also not expected to seek re-election.

Health was a consideration in Mr. Grossman's resignation. He's healthy and wants to stay that way and feels his chances are better without the duties of a cabinet minister.

Nonsmokers' Consent Could Be Required

GENEVA (AP) — Experts of the World Health Organization (WHO) recommended on Wednesday that countries take sweeping legislative action to protect nonsmokers from exposure to smokers.

The 100-page report suggested requiring nonsmokers' consent before others would be allowed to smoke its their working environment.

One of the report's key findings said nonsmokers "may be exposed to harmful concentrations of smoke."

"Control of cigarette smoking could do more to improve health and prolong life in these developed countries than any other single action in the whole field of preventive medicine," the WHO experts said.

The report also suggested that nonsmoking areas in public transport and other public places be extended. It said special attention should be given to the "protection of infants from contact" with smokers.

Labor Group Meets

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor, business and government representatives on a newly-established advisory council to the federal government met Wednesday for the first time, touching on a variety of industrial relations problems.

The group, which consists of members each from labor and business and four from government, also decided to meet again Oct. 8.

Police Question Doctors On Abortion Statement

MONREAL (CP) — Several of the 116 doctors who signed a statement last May admitting they performed abortions to helped women get them have been questioned by the Quebec Provincial Police a police spokesman said Wednesday.

"It is true that we intend to visit all 116 doctors who signed the statement that appeared in newspapers," added Lieut. Raymond Girard.

Dr. Augustin Roy, president of the Association of Professional Doctors, said he was "sickened" by news of the investigation.

"I find it scandalous that the police are wasting time and money on such investigations when they could be better employed in the pursuit of criminals at large," he said.

The doctors signed the statement to show their dissatisfaction with articles of the criminal code governing abortions. The doctors described the laws in the statement as "discriminatory and stupidly repressive."

Catholic Bishop Paid by CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA regularly infiltrated church groups and missionaries working abroad and once had a South Vietnamese Catholic bishop on its payroll, says a former U.S. state department intelligence specialist.

John Marks said the bishop, who headed a diocese outside of Saigon, was on the agency's payroll as recently as 1971 and a CIA "case officer" would fly in from Saigon for secret meetings with him.

Marks is director of a research project for the Centre for National Security Studies, a private group frequently critical of the CIA.

In a study of the agency's relationships with church groups, Marks said:

"Congressional and executive pressure has forced the CIA to maintain a hands-off stance toward a few groups like Peace Corps volunteers and Fulbright scholars, but religious organizations have never been treated by the agency with such deference."

A spokesman for the Senate panel probing the CIA said the committee is looking into the CIA's relationships with missionaries.

Marks' study says a Protestant missionary in Bolivia periodically passed on names of Bolivians he thought were communists to U.S. embassy officials, whom he assumed went with the CIA.

The study also said a Belgian Jesuit, Rev. Roger Vekemans, received $5 million from the CIA in 1965 to help get Eduardo Frei elected president of Chil and to provide money for democratic labor leaders in Latin America.

A Jesuit friend of Father Vekemans confirmed that episode Wednesday in interviews with reporters but said he had no reason to believe the CIA had asked Vekemans to do anything he would not have ordinarily done for the church's social development projects.

The agency also supplied money for some foreign religious programs "used to manipulate events in other countries to push a political line congenial to the CIA," Marks said.

Mormons Prepare Pageant

Members of Belleville area missions of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints — Mormons — are inviting residents of the Bay of Quinte region to attend the Mormons' spectacular Hill Cumorah Pageant, America's Witness for Christ, in upper New York State for two weeks beginning July 31.

Over 900 young men and women of the church will act out to re-enact the pages of history and it is expected that over 125,000 people will view the pageant this year.

It will take place at the Hill Cumorah located four miles south of Palmyra, N.Y., the church's birthplace, and two miles north of exit 43 on the New York Thruway in western New York, 25 miles east of Rochester.

The pageant traces the history of a small band of Israelites who left Jerusalem about 600 B.C. and journeyed under the direction of the Lord to America where they struggled to establish great civilizations.

Since its inception 37 years ago, the pageant has been presented annually. Parking and seating will be provided free.

Collection Costs Rise

The cost of collecting "nightsoil" has gone up.

The reason: The cost of gasoline and oil has gone up.

Because of this George Masterson asked city hall to increase his contract price for collecting "nightsoil" in Hillcrest from $375 to $600 a month.

City council Monday night passed a bylaw to amend Mr. Masterson's December 1974 contract.

Property Purchased

Bylaws covering land acquisitions for several city works projects were approved this week by city council.

They were:

Purchase of land from the Trustees of the First Pentecostal Church — for the Pinnacle St. extension; part of property owned by Susan Fraser for the College-Byron road and trunk sanitary sewer project; purchase of property from James Ross and Betty Ross for sidewalk construction on Sidney St.'s west side.

Farmers Now Liable For Herds

Under new Ontario law, individuals who allow cattle, goats, horses, sheep or swine to run at large may be liable to fines ranging up to $300 and will be held responsible for any damage caused by the animals.

The law does not affect areas that are municipally organized and municipalities continue to have the power to deal with animals running at large through bylaws under the Municipal Act.

Announcing the legislation, agriculture minister William Stewart said the problem of animals running at large was particularly prevalent in Northern Ontario. "The increased fines should now result in a more equitable solution to a persistent problem."

Approval of Condominium Delayed

Approval for a 75-unit condominium project for North Park St. was delayed by a committee of city council until staff of the Quinte Planning Board make their recommendations.

The project was the subject of a brief, public meeting in council chambers Wednesday — a meeting which only two members of the general public attended.

Bob Marcotte, vice-president of the development firm, Maurice Rollins Construction Ltd., told the subdivision planning advisory committee that the re-zoning application, if approved, would comply with zoning for the area already approved in the official plan.

Mr. Marcotte said the area is ideally suited for condominium development having ready access to north Front St., and its proximity to shopping and playground facilities.

Quinte Planning Board staff are expected to have their recommendations back before the committee in time to allow a committee recommendation to be made for its Aug. 18 meeting.

Old Report May Become Basis of Control Bylaw

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A four-year-old urban redevelopment bylaw is being brought out of mothballs as a possible framework for future control of downtown redevelopment following a Wednesday meeting of the subordinate planning advisory committee.

Since last January upon the request of the city's industrial commission, the committee has been researching a bylaw that will control downtown development.

An initial showing of the proposed bylaw drew considerable criticism from downtown businessmen, who said it could mean some firms being forced out of business.

The bylaw would require new development to conform with council - imposed controls and includes provision for parking and a variety of other amenities. Merchants contended it fire-trucks and they had to re-build an establishment, and at the same time provide for wider sidewalks and parking at the rear, the loss of floor space could make business financially impractical.

Quinte Planning Board director Bert Kenny told the committee the merchants are looking for some explanation of what controls council might exercise over re-development.

"Some plan — such as the old urban renewal plan — would give some indication to what extent council would use its powers to control development," he said.

In 1969, the federal and provincial governments urged municipalities to consider urban renewal schemes and offered to subsidize 75 per cent of study and implementation costs.

The federal government subsequently reversed its position on implementation subsidy and the local plan was shelved.

The committee passed a motion calling for the planning staff to "dust off" the plan and determine what portions of it remain valid.

It is still appropriate it could become the master scheme so, so speak, for downtown development," said Mr. Kenny. "There should be some plan to outline controls."

The reason we begin this study at all is because the downtown is in trouble," said committee member Ray Michel, referring to increased pressure on the downtown exerted by the Quinte Mall. "We are hoping a development bylaw for the downtown will help it to keep up with other commercial areas."

It is expected the Quinte Planning Board will have a report for the committee by the end of the summer. Representatives of the merchants' association will be invited to the meeting to discuss the study.

The Private Wore Pigtails

Private Judy Burgess takes aim on keeping up with the rest of the members of the Hastings and Prince Edward militia regiment during summer training and employment program. More than 40 local school students are employed in the course. The summer's finale will be a two-week concentrated training course in the field at CFB Petawawa. "My mother thinks it is terrific," said the private.

All Centennial Projects To Pay Own Way: Kells

Is Centennial '78 a city department? How much money will the project cost the taxpayers? What happens when the celebration is over?

These are a few of the many questions posed to Larry Kells, centennial chairman, by Bellevillians since he assumed the position.

"The steering committee is not a city department," he said in an interview, "but a group of volunteers supported by the Chamber of Commerce working closely with city hall".

He said some city money is being used to fund the coordinating drive.

"Council has named me centennial chairman and for 1975 has provided a honorarium of $3,000 and a budget of $1,000 for administration and other expenses." Mr. Kells said, with the chamber providing office space and secretarial service at no cost."

The question of money available for centennial year projects has been asked numerous times he said, and Mr. Kells said no money can be obtained from either council or the steering committee.

"All projects are voluntary and must be self-supporting," he said "but the steering committee may be able to match groups with prospective sponsors."

And finally, Mr. Kells is constantly asked what will happen after the centennial celebration has been completed.

"A certain amount of correspondence and tidying will be required, and probably the history committee will produce a summary to tell the story of Centennial '78," Mr. Kells said, "so year after year participants will be saying 'I remember' and 'Do you remember'".

Controls Tightened

City council this week amended the covenants by which the Belleville Economic Development Commission may transact sales of industrial sites.

The new covenants "tightens up controls" on the terms of such agreements, explained Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Only city-owned industrial land is involved.

LIP Grants Start Early

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It's summer — and this year the right time to start thinking about winter works projects.

This year, the federal government's Local Initiatives Program (LIP) is off to an early start.

Any LIP project organizers should obtain application forms as soon as possible from local Canada Manpower offices, says Barbara Heller.

Mrs. Heller is a LIP project officer whose jurisdiction includes Hastings County.

Right now, her assignment is to focus as much attention as possible on LIP and its 1975-76 features.

With higher unemployment feared these include:

— More money available — $150 million for this winter, compared to $90 million in 1974-75.

— More weeks of work. This winter LIP projects can run as long as 30 weeks, against last year's maximum of 26 weeks.

An early start. Projects can be at work as early as Nov. 2.

— Pay is higher. Allowing for cost-of-living increases the maximum now is $125 for an employee, up $10.

The same criteria for eligibility applies: LIP projects must create new jobs and provide a worthwhile community service or facility, says Mrs. Heller.

Maximum funding is $100,000 for any single project and $150,000 for municipalities.

"It's been proven that LIP has decreased unemployment across the country," says the LIP officer.

Nonetheless, despite the drive to attract attention to LIP — and ease unemployment — some of the rules of unacceptability still apply.

Projects that create a community dependency which can't be met after the LIP scheme is through are discouraged.

Last year the federal constituency of Hastings was allocated $149,000 in LIP funds, says Mrs. Heller.

Company Formed To Plan Birthday

The steering committee for the centennial project will incorporate under the name Belleville Centennial '78 Corp. it was decided at the group's monthly meeting, Wednesday.

The committee considered a brief regarding a contest for an official logogram submitted by Mr. L. F. Reid, but further information was requested and a decision was withheld.

Stanley C. Wiggens was appointed chairman of the centennial music committee which has recently been formed and he will assume his responsibilities immediately.

Larry Kells, chairman of the committee said he is pleased with the progress being made and the necessary momentum to complete the project was still present.

In a recent interview, Mr. Kells had said the most pressing concern was to maintain interest and keep the organizers working on the centennial plans.

Slow Motion

A lumber truck rolled onto its side on the westbound entrance to Highway 401 near Highway 14 when the load it was carrying shifted. Inspecting the damage, which police estimated as between $200 - $300, is Linda Carson, a passenger in the truck driven by her husband, Don. "It all happened in slow motion," she said. "We could feel the load shifting but couldn't do anything about it." The Carsons were not injured in the shipment.

It's Not All Routine For Local Locksmith

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

As a result of the increase in thefts and vandalism in recent years, protection for the home and office is a growing business.

"People are becoming more lock conscious," says Keith Gordon, locksmith and owner of the Gordon Company.

"A lock is more important than a car."

"A person owns a car for about two to five years, but a lock, it is for life," says Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Gordon says most of the problems he works on is opening up cars, houses and stores.

"I had a job recently where I had to open the trunk of a car because the owner had locked his keys inside," says Mr. Gordon.

Not everything, however is as routine.

About 10 years ago, Mr. Gordon says he was asked to enter a hunting cabin north of Belleville for repossession purposes.

He says, "We didn't even get near the cabin when they started to shoot. The hunters stole my truck which was found a few days later in the bush."

Though not being hit, "once is plenty" says Mr. Gordon.

There is an increasing variety of new locks being introduced onto the market.

The Hastings Board of Education is installing expensive locks to prevent vandalism.

The new system of locks depends upon the angle of the grooves or teeth on the key and is not just the normal straight teeth, says Mr. Gordon.

The new keys will be restricted to certain members of the board and staff to avoid unauthorized duplication.

There will be a master key, but there will be only one in the entire county, says Mr. Gordon.

One of the newer methods of protecting the home is the electric alarm system.

"There is not much of a demand as yet, but a few people have enquired about them."

Locksmith Busy

Keith Gordon. of the Gordon Company, is kept busy not only cutting keys but opening cars and houses which people have lost or misplaced their keys. Mr. Gordon says, "There is something new on the market every day, but there is still nothing which cannot be broken into."

New Telephones Installed

Calling rates in most telephone booths in the Belleville area have doubled with the installation of a new type telephone booth occupied here by Royal Bank teller Joan Leichnitz. The new booth allows emergency calls to the operator without using a dime. Some booths will remain at the former 10-cent rate.

New Pay Phones Provide Free Emergency Service

A new type of pay telephone now being installed in 454 of the 486 booths in the Belleville area brings good and bad news.

The new phones, called the Centurion, will allow callers to contact the operator for emergency assistance without using any money. But, calls from most booths will cost twice the ordinary 10-cent toll.

Bell Telephone announced this week the Centurion will be installed in most localities and is specially designed to ward off vandals.

The telephone is equipped with only one slot for coins. If the outer casing is broken while an attempt is made to get at the change box, the inside of the set, painted in bright colors, will serve as a visual alarm for passers by.

George Thompson, Bell area manager, said during an interview Wednesday, "the set is great innovation in that it allows emergency calls to be made without a dime."

"On the other hand, in the case of pranksters, the operator will have to use her own good judgement though we'll have to take a lot of calls at face value and believe that an emergency does exist."

The increase from 10 cents to 20 cents is the first to hit the phone booth since 1952, a Bell news release states — an increase necessitated by capital costs of "replacing equipment and provision of toll-free operator assistance," said Mr. Thompson.

The 10 cent rate however will remain unchanged at railway stations, bus terminals, nursing homes, rooming houses, churches and sidewalk locations.

The majority of booths "in private type locations," will have the new rates posted on them, said Mr. Thompson.

The company release states, the public telephone replacement program started in Toronto and Montreal in 1974 with completion for Ontario conversion set for the end of this year. The conversion to Centurion type phones is expected to cost approximately $14 million.

Levy Not Happy Despite Als' Win

HAMILTON (CP) — Montreal Alouette' offensive stars were at their best in Wednesday's Eastern Football Conference season opener but coach Marv Levy wants have Ekas a bigger point spread.

The defending Grey Cup champions, led by split end Johnny Rodgers, fullback Steve Ferrugbelli and quarterback Jimmy Jones, beat the Ticats 35-25 before a crowd of 22,132.

The EFC's other two teams get into action tonight when Ottawa Rough Riders visit Toronto Argonauts for a game starting at 8 p.m. EDT with the CBC eastern network providing television coverage.

"We've not going to win if we don't play better defence," Levy complained. "Particularly when we have someone on the ropes."

The Als defence held the Ticats to only 87 yards rushing but rookie quarterback Jim McMillan led the Hamilton passing attack to a total gain of 346 yards and two touchdowns.

Levy was particularly pleased about his punting team which allowed the Ticats to block one Dave Lewis kick. Hamilton linebacker Tony Perea recovered the loose ball in the Montreal end zone for a touchdown.

But if Levy was annoyed at his punting team, Hamilton coach Jerry Williams was bewildered.

When asked why punter Ken Clarke surprised everybody by angling his kicks towards the explosive Rodgers, Williams said: "It was a surprise to me too."

He said the team had planned to keep its punts away from the reach of Rodgers but, "sometimes you don't punt where you are trying to."

Rodgers picked up a total of 106 yards on six punt returns and added 47 yards on three rushes from scrimmage and another 80 yards on two pass receptions.

One of the passes was a 25-yarder from Jones for the Als' second touchdown. Ferrugbelli scored the first one on a one-yard plunge in the first quarter.

Jones also connected on 10-yard scoring passes to tight end Peter Dalla Riva and halfback Larry Smith and added a two-point convert pass to Rodgers. Rodgers missed the pass but the Ticats were called for interference and the Als were awarded the convert.

Don Sweet added three single-point converts, an 18-yard field goal and a single for the Als.

JOHNNY RODGERS

McMillan, the rookie quarterback from Boise State University, took over after Bill Etter failed to move the Ticats in the first quarter and completed an 11-yard pass to veteran Garney Henley for one touchdown and sent halfback Andy Hopkins on a 15-yard run for another.

McMillan also ran twice for two-point converts and Ian Sutter kicked a single-point convert.

Ferrugbelli found plenty of running room both inside and outside, picking up 62 yards in 18 carries to lead the Als' ground attack which gained 221 yards.

Jones' passing added another 250 yards to give the Als a net offence of 481 yards, compared to the Ticats' 203.

Old Mates Meet

TORONTO (CP) — A couple of old Canadian Football League team-mates hook up as coaching opponents for the first time tonight when George Brancato ships his Ottawa Rough Riders into town to meet Russ Jackson's Toronto Argonauts in the Eastern Conference opener for both clubs.

Brancato, starting his second year as Ottawa's head coach, was a defensive back with the Rough Riders from 1957 to 1965, and Jackson was the quarterback from 1958 until his retirement after leading the team to his third Grey Cup in 1960.

As coach, Jackson is still looking for the breakaway speed that was supposed to be a backfield priority this season. With Randy Sweetback Walker still recovering from a thigh injury, he will rely on last year's running backs, Doyle Orange and Ed Shuttleworth, with Chuck Herd, Mike Eben, Eric Allen and Peter Martin in familiar roles as pass-catchers.

Stampeders Thumped 20-2

REGINA (CP) — It already has been a long season for Joe Pisarcik.

The promising Calgary Stampeder quarterback was the primary target Wednesday night as Saskatchewan Roughriders turned in a brilliant defensive display and trounced the Stampeders 20-2 in the opening game of the Western Football Conference season.

The second game is tonight when Winnipeg Blue Bombers meet British Columbia Lions in Winnipeg.

Pisarcik was sacked several times by the hard-charging front four, which played so well it drew attention from the anticipated battle between the Stampeders and their former teammate, linebacker Roger Goodwin.

Asked if Gorree had played well after joining the club during the weekend, head coach John Payne admitted he didn't know.

Pisarcik was flattered by defensive end Tim Roth on a pass attempt late in the second quarter. He returned in the last half but evidently was shaky. It was the second battering in two games for Pisarcik, who had his back x-rayed after Dave Fennell of Edmonton thumped him in an exhibition game.

Pisarcik's individual statistics were abysmal—12 completions in 17 attempts for 123 yards—but he failed to generate a consistent attack. Calgary coach Jim Wheel admitted his disappointment and said Pisarcik and replacement Karl Douglas both missed open men with pass attempts.

Bill McCall got singles on wide field goal attempts for both Calgary points. After that, Calgary got no closer than a third-down gamble that failed in Saskatchewan territory.

"Maybe we took the wind out of Calgary with our play on that gamble," said Payne, who was pleased with his team's consistency.

George Reed and Rhett Dawson scored Saskatchewan's touchdowns. Reed on a one-yard plunge and Dawson on an 18-yard flip from Ron Lancaster. Reed now has 127 touchdowns as a professional, giving him sole possession of a record he shared at 126 with Jim Brown, former star running back with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

Reed, who gained 108 yards in 18 carries, was not impressed.

"It's nice to have," he said. "It's nicer to win."

Brian Berg completed Saskatchewan's scoring with two converts and field goals of 20 and 22 yards.

Quarterbacks on Spot

WINNIPEG (CP) — The starting quarterbacks will be fighting for their jobs when Winnipeg Blue Bombers and British Columbia Lions tangle tonight in the Western Football Conference season opener for both clubs.

The Lions have backup Peter Liske waiting in the wings if top signal-caller Don Moorhead doesn't click, while Winnipeg's Ralph Brock will be set to play if first-string quarterback Chuck Ealey falters.

B.C. head coach Eagle Keys, whose club had three wins and a tie in pre-season play, and Winnipeg's Bud Riley both say their top quarterbacks will have to produce if they want to hang on to the starting assignments.

The Bombers won one game and lost three in pre-season play.

"I don't know why it is, but I've always had trouble getting it together early in the season," said Ealey, a 25-year-old native of Portsmouth, Ohio, who joined the Bombers from Hamilton Tiger-Cats part-way through last season.

"I've always been able to come on after the first few games. I hope the pattern stays the same."

Brock looked sharp against the Lions while Ealey, who rode the bench for the first half of the game, couldn't get the Bombers moving, completing only one of five passes and getting just four first downs.

Quebec Amateur Champion In Foursome with Greats

MONTREAL (CP) — Robbie Jackson, winner of the Quebec amateur golf championship last weekend enjoyed his greatest thrill to golf Wednesday on the eve of the Canadian Open golf championship.

Jackson was thrown into a foursome which included Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf and said afterwards that whatever befalls him in the Canadian championship which starts today is "irrelevant."

"What is there left to say after you've played with two greatest golfers in the world?" Jackson asked.

Jackson drew Nicklaus as a partner in a head-to-head confrontation with Weiskopf and Ed Sneed, the last warmup for the $200,000 event. The field of 150 includes 10 former winners.

The foursome birdied eight holes and Jackson made three of them. He shot a four-over-par 74 over the 6,529-yard Royal Montreal Golf Club course. The other members of the foursome did not keep score.

Nicklaus lauded Jackson's action and seemed surprised that at 30, Jackson does not carry more tournament credentials than two Canadian Open championships and two Quebec amateur titles.

"He's got all the ingredients," Nicklaus said. "He's strong, he physically imposing, he appears to have a good temperament and he looks like he's smart.

"But sometimes get a kid who is an obvious scatterbrain and is so diplomatic you have to say he's a fine player, but you don't really mean it. That certainly wasn't so today."

Later, Weiskopf said he picked out a few in Jackson's swing, but would not disclose what it was.

"He'll have to ask me," Weiskopf said. "That kind of thing you don't volunteer."

"It was my grip," Jackson said. "I had the thumb of my right hand too far back on the shaft. I didn't have the feel with the forefinger and it left me not being firm enough at the top of my backswing. I pulled three shots from it."

Top prize in the 72-hole event is $40,000.

AUSSIES WITHDRAW

ZURICH, Switzerland (Reuter) — Australia has withdrawn from the qualifying round for the 1976 Montreal Olympic soccer tournament for undisclosed "internal reasons." As a result, Papua-New Guinea goes to the Asian finals in Inconcesi next Feb. 1-15.

Belleville Nosed Out by Globals

Same Old Story for McDonald's

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

The Belleville McDonalds played their usual exciting and steady game on Wednesday night in Senior Football League action, and they came out losers once again.

That's right, another close one slipped by the Macs as they lost 2-1 to the Toronto Waxman Globals.

Hitting was the big show on both teams, as Toronto had 14 hits and Belleville had 11 safeties.

What overshadowed that though was some fantastic fielding from players on both clubs.

A Belleville double play in the first inning kept Toronto from jumping off to an early lead, while on another play Paul Goodfellow went all the way into foul territory to catch a pop fly near third base.

For Toronto Lee Gould made a charging catch on Glenn Carlton's sezzlin ball to steal a single from Belleville.

Toronto took the lead in the top of the seventh when Cavern Simpson scored on Lee Gould's fourth single of the night.

The Macs came right back in the bottom of the frame to tie it up when designated runner Doug Adams scored on Steve Ling's single. Adams was running for Frank Robinson.

The top of the eighth spelled the end for Belleville.

Toronto scored when John Barkowski came in on Gerry Rayerat's triple to right field.

The Macs made things exciting for the fans, as they had men on first and third in the bottom of the ninth, but couldn't get them anywhere.

Jim Chase took the loss, his third of the year. He pitched steadily until the seventh. Scott Reid did an excellent job in relief.

Reg Martin took the Toronto win, relieving John Young in the latter stages of the game.

It was quite a night for Belleville hitters. They got an base, but couldn't score. Steve Ling had two singles, while Larry Mavety had a scratch double, which he managed on hustle, and a single.

Other singles came from Doug Dafoe, Jim Chase, Carl Brownhower, Wayne McTaggart with two, Paul Goodfellow, Terry Meagher and Frank Robinson.

SLICES — Terry Chase is the team's leading hitter, with four hits in 10 at bats.

Paul Goodfellow leads the Ontario Fastball League with seven doubles. He's also near the top in triples. "Larry Mavety is tied for third in the league for homers. The Macs have the third best fielding average in the OFL, a tribute to all of the players.

Steve Ling is now a pitcher, according to Ontario Fastball League statistics. Ling has a 4.50 ERA and he has struck out two batters.

According to Ling, he hasn't pitched any games and it looks like the league's computer may be a little off.

Black Diamond, Constellation Deadlocked

Sudden Death to Decide Pennant

Things couldn't be much closer in the Belleville Industrial Softball League's East Division. It's all tied up between Black Diamond and Constellation, both with 30 points.

The tie came about Wednesday night, when Black Diamond came through in the clutch to pick up a 6-1 victory over Brooke Bond.

Black Diamond now has 14 wins and two ties, as does Constellation, while they've split their games with each other and won the same amount in their division; in other words, it's a deadlock.

"That's made a sudden death playoff necessary," said vice president of the league Eric Williams.

That game will be played at Sir MacKenzie Bowell at 6:30 p.m. tonight, and should be a real match up.

In other league action Canadian Tire upset Mead Johnson 13-10.

Ron Andrews picked up the win for Black Diamond over Brooke Bond, giving up just two hits and a walk while striking out seven.

The loss went to Tom St. Jules, who gave up 19 hits and a walk while striking out just two.

That marked the end of the Belleville Industrial Softball League season, with the playoffs on the way.

On Friday night at the Alemite the league's "dream teams" from the East and West Divisions will meet at 7 p.m. The two squads will be coached by the staffs from UIC in the West and either Black Diamond or Constellation in the east.

In the game between Canadian Tire and Mead Johnsons, Andy Prudd picked up the win, while the loss went to Fred Davis and Herb Poister.

Pete McBride hit a triple in the win, while Davis had two triples in his team's loss.

Latta, Plane's Victors in SHBL

Bob Reid gave up just two hits against Shannonville as he hurled a victory in South Hastings Baseball League play Thursday.

The final score had Reid's Latta team over Shannonville. Reid walked three batters and struck out 12 to take the easy victory 8-2. Glenn Barkowski was saddled with the loss. He gave up eight hits and three walks while striking out six.

Bob Smith's three singles meant three runs for Latta, as he was credited with three RBI for his night's work. Damon Richardson and Rob Allison doubled in the Latta victory.

The two Shannonville hits came from Reid Mallery and Murray Maracle.

In other South Hastings Baseball League play Plane's Concrete defeated Boyd 5-4.

Bob Robb picked up the win while Phil Badgley took the loss.

Ralph Plane smacked two singles to help the team to victory as they won it in the ninth.

A's Chalk Up Shutout

With Gary Eardley and Harold Werkhoven sharing the pitching, Ameliasburg A's rolled to a 10-0 win over Carrying Place, Wednesday in Prince Edward North Shore Softball League play.

Eardley worked the first four innings of the abbreviated five-inning contest, allowing only one hit while fanning three and walking none. Werkhoven finished up, surrendering no hits, striking out one and walking one.

Losing pitcher Dan Nannabaker was touched for 15 assorted base hits. He struck out three and walked three.

Leading the winners' hit parade was Gary Thompson, with a triple included among his four safeties.

Bayview picked up a victory over J. Goodes 9-1 in the other league contest.

Don Bonter picked up the win, giving up two hits and three walks while striking out five.

The loss went to Sonny Hinkway, while Larry Waite pitched in relief.

Rob Roblin had three safeties for the winners, while Steve Dontaine and Gerry Inglis both had two.

Hellenic Bounces Back

SWIM DELAYED

FOLKESTONE, England (CP) — High tides and roaring gales have stymied 10-year-old Cindy Nicholas of Toronto in her attempt to swim the English Channel. "Nobody would be dumb enough to go out there in a boat," she said at her hotel, where she has been waiting 10 days for the right conditions. Cindy said the tides will be right again during the weekend, and will improve until July 31 as soon as the wind lets up, she will take the plunge for her swim to France.

Brighton couldn't make a 2-0 lead stand up in its Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match with Quinte Hellenic, Wednesday.

Playing at home, Brighton appeared capable of upsetting Hellenic but with the help of two goals from the penalty spot, the visitors stayed in a come-back to pull out a 3-2 win.

In the other Wednesday game, Quinte Italo-Canadians and Cobourg Tony's played to a 1-1 draw.

Purinettes Close Gap

Purinettes climbed to within three points of first place Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund in the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League standings, Wednesday, scoring a 13-1 win over Broadloom.

The win gives Purinettes 31 points while league leading BYBF has 34.

A seven-run second inning highlighted the winners' attack. Broadloom's one run came in the first frame.

Sandra Fleming picked up the win on a solid five-hitter. Losing pitcher was Sue Fobert.

Penny Graham socked a triple and double, and added two singles to lead Purinettes in the hitting department. Carol Holland had two singles and Joan Bailey checked in with a double and two singles.

May Ann Sills cracked a double for the losers, who had only run was driven in by a Chris Fyke single.

In another game, Quebec Carribous topped Long Island Tomahawks 19-14.

Montefusco Produces

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John (The Count) Montefusco, a 25-year-old free spirit who throws baseballs for San Francisco Giants, thinks he can win 30 games this season, even if he has to do it all by himself.

Montefusco beat Chicago Cubs 10-2 Wednesday as the Giants posted their sixth victory in the last seven games. Montefusco allowed just six hits, struck out nine batters, walked six more just to make it interesting and even hit a home run.

"The guys were kidding me around the batting cage before the game," said the rookie right-hander. "I hit two home runs last year and none this season, so I had to go out and prove it was no fluke."

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates beat San Diego Padres 8-1, New York Mets defeated Cincinnati Reds 5-2, Philadelphia Phillies beat Atlanta Braves 3-2, Houston Astros edged Montreal Expos 2-1 and St. Louis Cardinals defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

Montefusco's victory against the Cubs gave him six victories in his last seven decisions and raised his record to 9-4.

"I'm a streaky pitcher, so 30 wins isn't out of the question," he said. "I figure I've got 15 starts left, so why not?"

The Giants are third in the National League West with a 47-49 record and 15½ games behind front-running Cincinnati. That shows marked improvement over last year when they finished in fifth place, 18 games below .500 and 30 games off the pace.

San Francisco wasted little time in getting to Chicago starter Steve Stone. One out walks to Derrel Thomas and Bobby Murcer and RBI-singles by Gary Matthews and Willie Montanez made it 2-0. Then Chris Speier unloaded his fifth home run of the season, three-run shot, and Montefusco coasted the rest of the way, adding his own homer in the fourth inning.

Pittsburgh's Dock Ellis pitched a no-hitter for 4 2-3 innings and finished with a 7-hitter to raise his record to 7-4. Manny Sanguillen hit a two-run homer and Richie Hebner and Willie Stargell had run-scoring singles for the Pirates. The losing kept Pittsburgh four games ahead of second-place Philadelphia in the NL East.

Astros' Big Guy Checks Expos

MONREAL (CP) — Houston Astros pitcher James Rodney Richard spreads 220 pounds over his six-foot, eight-inch frame, ample bulk to strike fear into mortal National League batters.

Yet the imposing second-year hurler has been known to cause as much grief for his own baseball club as for the opposition with his frequent wildness.

Richard, 6-6, has had tendencies in check just enough Wednesday night, however, to record a five-hitter as the Astros took a 2-1 win from Montreal Expos.

"He has great stuff, but he gets in trouble walking men," said Astros manager Preston Gomez. "But he has the arm and the size to intimidate you."

The complete game was Richard's third in 18 starts this year and seemed in jeopardy almost throughout as he worked out of jams after jams.

"Most of the time I have one or two bad innings," he said. "I knew I was trying to overthrow the ball so I just told myself to slow down and make them hit the ball."

The Astros backed Richard's pitching with runs in the first and fifth innings.

The first came on Bob Watson's double after a hit by Greg Gross. Larry Milbourne scored the second as he singled, beat out a sacrifice bunt, and came home on a hit by Wilbur Howard.

Gary Carter, leading off the fourth, slugged his 12th home run of the year for the Expos.

Richard twice walked two men in an inning before shutting the door on the Expos. After working out of such a spot he in the second inning, he issued consecutive one-out walks to loser Dennis Blair, 6-11, and Pepe Mangual in the fifth.

But shortstop Roger Metzger robbed Mike Jorgensen of a hit, turning a double play that ended the threat.

The Expos loaded the bases with one out in the sixth on a walk to Carter and singles by Tim Mackanin and Barry Foote for a run.

After wild-pitching Jorgensen aboard and then to second in the seventh, he settled down and retired the last seven men faced.

Another Angel Coming Through

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That California Angels pitcher who is leading the major leagues in pitching and has won eight of his last nine decisions is Frank Tanana.

That other California pitcher who watched Wednesday night's Angels game from the bullpen is Nolan Ryan.

Strange as the role reversal may seem, young Tanana is the pitcher heating up the American League while Ryan languishes with eight consecutive losses.

"He's getting more mature all the time," Angels manager Dick Williams after the 25-year-old left-hander blanked Baltimore Orioles 1-0 on six singles Wednesday night.

Tanana, 9-5, had eight strikeouts against the Orioles. He raised his major league-leading total to 19 in 143 1-3 innings and avenged a 1-0 loss to the Orioles and Jim Palmer on May 16.

Tanana now leads Ryan by seven strikeouts in 17 3-3 fewer innings. Joe Lahoud gave Tanana all the support he needed with an RBI single in the first inning.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's beat Detroit Tigers 3-0, Boston Red Sox defeated Minnesota Twins 4-3, Kansas City Royals beat Milwaukee 4-1 and Texas Rangers beat Cleveland Indians 9-8 in 15 innings while the Yankees game at Chicago was rained out.

"We noticed last year that Frank was running out of gas after the ninth inning, giving up a lot of home runs on hanging sinkers," said Williams. "So this year in spring training, we put him into better condition."

That, obviously, has paid off. Meanwhile Ryan, the temperamental exiled Angels ace, watched from the bullpen after throwing just 40 pitches Tuesday night in his most recent loss.

"He volunteered and I think it's just great," said Williams. "I wouldn't have hesitated to use him if we had needed a strikeout in a tough situation."

Oakland's Vida Blue struck out nine and scattered seven hits to snap his three-game losing streak while Gene Tenace drove in two runs as the A's won their 11th game in the last 12.

It was the fourth consecutive loss for Detroit, which scored just four times and was shut out twice in the three-game series while Oakland amassed 30 runs.

Boston's Cecil Cooper homered and left-fielder Jim Rice added a two-run defensive play in leading the Red Sox to their 13th triumph in 15 games.

Rice robbed Minnesota's Glenn Borgmann of a home run with a leaping catch at the left-field barrier in the fifth inning and took an extra-base hit away from Borgmann in the seventh with a running catch against the fence in left-centre field.

Mike Cubbage's sacrifice fly in the 15th inning capped a twelve-run rally and the Texas pasted Cleveland. The Rangers entertained the visiting trailing 8-7 but pulled even on an outfield error before Cubbage struck.

The Indians scored five times in the first two innings and then tied it at 7-. The victory was the third in a row for Texas since Frank Lucchesi replaced the deposed Billy Martin as manager Monday night.

Buck Martinez and John Mayberry hit back-to-back homers, lifting Kansas City over Milwaukee in a game delayed by rain for nearly three hours.

Still Looking For Win

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — It has been a bad week for Canadian sailors at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK), as they enter the last half of the racing schedule without a single win in any of the six classes.

The best showings have been a couple of thirds and the best placing in the over-all standings is that of Toronto's Hans Fogh who is sixth in the Flying Dutchman class.

The weather may have had something to do with it as the Europeans, in many cases, are more used to strong breezes. Previous CORK meets have seen fairly light winds, but this week, winds have been as strong as 40 knots.

Nationwide indominable the over-all standings, leading four of the six classes. Ad Australian and an American are the other class leaders.

Bronze Medal For Garapick

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Nancy Garapick of Halifax won a bronze medal in the 100-metre backstroke of the world aquatic championships Wednesday night and then immediately looked ahead to a rematch with East Germany in the 200-metre backstroke.

The tiny, 15-year-old blonde was unable to keep up to the pace set by gold medallist Ulrike Richter on her left and silver medallist Birgit Treiber on her right.

Miss Richter finished in 1:02.32, Miss Treiber in 1:04.24, Miss Garapick in 1:04.70 and Wendy Cook of Vancouver was fourth in 1:06.48.

"We're very pleased with the bronze," said coach Denis Stelling of Vancouver.

Miss Garapick said, "I'm not much of a sprinter and run out of pool in the 100. But now that I know the East German girls will both probably be in the final of the 200, I'll get ready. That extra 100 metres should help me."

While Canada was celebrating the bronze medal, the United States was jubilant over its world record and a break-through of sorts against the powerful East German girls.

The U.S. men's freestyle relay team cut a 400-metre world record of 3:38.85, breaking its own mark set last year.

But the most surprising race of the night was the women's 200-metre freestyle won by Kornelia Ender, daughter of Fountain Valley, Calif. She trailed world record holder Kornelia Bender by almost 10 feet with less than 40 metres remaining in a frantic kick combined her ahead of the East German girl at the end. Miss Bender finished in 2:02.50, Miss Ender in 2:02.64.

East German picked up another gold medal in the women's 100-metre breaststroke with Hannelore Anke winning and Andras Hargitay gave Hungary a gold medal by winning the men's 400-metre individual medley.

Gail Amundrud of Vancouver finished sixth in the freestyle, fifth in the medley. Wendy Cook of Vancouver came in fourth in the backstroke, and Marian Stuart of Pointe Claire, Que., was seventh in the breaststroke.

The results left the U.S. with five gold medals, two silver and three bronze. East Germany remains second in over-all medal standings with three gold, two silver and two bronze.

There was no competition Wednesday in synchronized swimming or diving but Canada's water polo team suffered its fourth loss in five games, dropping a 9-5 decision to Spain.

IN MEMORIAM

DOWNEY — In loving memory of a dear friend Leah Downey who passed away July 30th, 1974.
Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest
And those who knew her best today,
Are those who loved her best.
Written by and Block of you.
We miss you Leah, and always will.
—Lovingly remembered by Gordon, Bernieece and Horace Clancey.

BYRD — In loving memory of a dear brother and brother-in-law Howard Andrew Reid who passed away July 30, 1964.
Time cannot have the old days back,
Time cannot heal the grief that
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory keeps your face in view.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by your brother Brenda and sister-in-law Cora.

LOUCKS — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mabel Louck who passed away July 30, 1964, and a dear father, Bruce, who passed away July 31, 1963.
O happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet thy memory still,
But one more dear, more loved
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by Glenn, Barb and Laurie McCannon.

HUFFMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband, Roy Edward Huffman who passed away July 24, 1974.
From hospital bed to Heavenly rest,
God took you home to be His guest.
We miss you so much and prayers are from
You never deserved what you went through.
I was not there to see you die,
I was not there to say good-bye,
But you died the best and did it well.
And I'll remember our whole life through.
The kind words I had with you.
—Wedded and dearly loved by wife Teresa.

DOWNEY — In loving memory of Leah.
If all the world belonged to me,
I'd give it all and more.
To see her smile and hear her voice,
And call her "Mum" once more.
—Dennis, Rose and Jacqueline.

HUFFMAN — In loving memory of a dear brother, Roy Edward Huffman who passed away on July 24th, 1974.
One year has passed, one year has gone,
One of the best that God could send,
Used he suffered and died in peace,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
—Sorely missed by Grace and Harold and family.

SIGN OF SUCCESS
When you buy one of these 33-acre estate lots to build your family's dream home on, you know you have made it after all these years of hard work. You can really communicate with nature here, on land and in the water. The Crowe River is a short drive to the west for crystal clear scuba diving. However, you are not really isolated, since you could drive to the Quinte Mall in just slightly over 20 minutes. We have six of these 33-acre home sites at $15,000.00 each.

SAVE THOUSANDS
If you could live on a street without traffic zipping by all the time, could send your young children off to school just around the corner in safety, or walk down to the library at the end of your street, or go around the corner and shop to your heart's content, wouldn't you phone us for some further details? And save thousands of dollars as well? Solid brick at $29,500, and just far enough away from Belleville to keep the farbon out of your car's engine.

FOR THE ENTREPRENEUR
This building in Stirling is presently being used as a variety store, but has tremendous growth potential. The inside of the store is about 27 feet by 90 feet, well lit and well, and there is storage in the rear with a walk-in meat cooler. There is also an upstairs apartment, and vacant land out back that could be used for parking or building an addition. Stirling is on the move, and when the sewer extensions are finished, the population should go up along with the numerous building sites that will be available.

Theatre August Four-play Production Well Worth Seeing

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

A multi-media marvel is being presented at the Pinnacle Playhouse tonight, Friday and Saturday compliments of Theatre August.

The four one-act plays weave into a mixed bag of entertainment, with the music of John Kidd and an accompanying film, are skillfully brought to life by the young theatre company.

The program opens with a recital by John Kidd, accompanying himself on the guitar, a pleasant addition to Theatre August, which serves to relax the audience.

The first offering is Lord Byron's Love Letter, by Tennessee Williams, the only period play of the group, directed by Lindsey Hallam.

It is introduced by a visually exciting 3½ minute film produced by Sunday Rock Enterprises, a local film company.

The cast of four, particularly Sue Shipton playing Old Queen, perform admirably during the short production. Brighton makes her presence felt most strongly when she is delivering her dialogue from offstage, as a counter point to the other performers.

The second play is Chicago, by Tom Sheppard, and directed by Brian Duffy.

The play, a black comedy, is an analogy of the poor condition of mankind delivered by Ma as played by Frank Creamer. Creamer gives a fine performance throughout, he production playing his part while sitting or standing in a bathtub. He is best at sustaining his long monologues which might have presented some difficulty to another actor.

John, the mood man' Kidd returns following the intermission.

Calm Down Mother, "A transformation for Three Women written by Megan Terry and directed by Jan Austin is a stunning example of what three young performers can accomplish with hard work.

It is a blend of many emotions and the action is carefully staged and marvelously executed by the cast of three.

Theatre August Take 2

The final play of the evening is Canadian Gesture of Concern, written by Dave King, with the action taking place in Winnipeg.

It revolves around the unsuccessful rape of a young woman by a man torn between his mother and a loyalty to his friend. The entire cast plays the lines as well as the author has a right to expect, delivering the comic dialogue with rapid fire timing and sureness rarely seen in amateur productions.

If the entire run of the show is as successful as the preview performance anyone who can attend the plays and does not deserves to be disappointed when they hear about it from friends.

Compliments must be extended to the stage and technical crew who work under a difficult strain succeeding in presenting the different plays within the limited lighting and space available in the theatre.

Dramatic Treat

Catherine Cunningham, standing and Shelly Wildgen perform in Lord Byron's Love Letter, by Tennessee Williams. The play is part of a four-play program being presented tonight, Friday and Saturday by Theatre August. A preview performance established the excellent quality of the performances and many people will be losing out if they don't manage to attend the production at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Actor Burt Reynolds, burgled last February by a man police say they believe is the Los Angeles "slasher," took the stand in court Wednesday to identify stolen property from his home.

Reynolds was testifying had against Vaughn Greenwood, 22, the man Los Angeles police say was the prime suspect in a series of nine savage threat-slashing murders in the city's skid road area and in Hollywood last December and January.

Reynolds was not at home at the time of the burglary. But later the same night the prosecutor says Greenwood, wielding an axe, crashed into the house next door to Reynolds's, and started slashing at the head of William Graham, 36, a Hollywood producer asleep in his bed.

Greenwood is facing trial on burglary and assault charges arising out of the burglary at Reynolds home and the attack next door.

He has not been charged with any of the slasher murders and the police have been barred from the trial.

But commenting further on the alleged slashings until Vaughn's current trial has ended.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Singer Sonny Bono lost about $2.4 million because of emotional distress he suffered from a false arrest in 1969, Ewart Abner, president of Mo town Records testified in Superior Court in Robinson's $300,000 damage suit against the police department.

Robinson was arrested May 14, 1968, on charges of refusing to pay a limousine driver $50. The charges were dismissed a month later.

Abner said that "if Smokey had not been performing at his former level" after the incident, he would have earned an average of $400,000 a year more than he did between 1968 and 1974, mainly from increased night club bookings and a greater production of records and songs.

He said the suit asked only $500,000 because it was filed before Robinson realized the magnitude of his injuries. "I was going to explode the way it did."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After years of trying to get one museum, Hollywood now has three projects to celebrate the past glories of the film industry.

Lew Wasserman, chairman of the board of MCA-Universal Inc., said Tuesday his firm tentatively plans to build a museum adjacent to the entrance of Universal Studios' visitor tour.

Monday, the Los Angeles city council voted to give $2 million to movie artists it hopes to lure to Hollywood Chamber of Commerce for another proposed museum.

The City of Burbank also is planning to construct a motion picture museum at its civic center.

British Film Industry Faces Financial Crisis

LONDON (Reuter) — The British film industry is in crisis for more than a decade, one faces a crisis of confidence and cash.

Yet another stage in the industry's run-down came recently as the Elstree studios that made the money-maker Murder on the Orient Express cut its payroll from 250 to 48.

"Crippling the British film industry by sacking studio staff is a sure way of destroying our industry," say jobless film workers.

Their fears echo through an industry which retains self-confidence but has to struggle desperately to convince the world outside that it is worth backing.

Film audiences are there, returning after watching television. So too is talent. Also there are writers to make more and better feature pictures use the current annual crop of about 70.

But the investment needed to sustain a British film production is in ominously short supply.

"We are facing our most difficult period ever," said Michael Relph, producer of 32 films and chairman of the British Film Production Association.

"We all realise that solutions to our problems, particularly investment, must be found now if the industry is to recover."

The withdrawal of much American finance has left the British film makers a serious blow, said Relph.

"We had come to rely on American investment in our industry. Increasingly they have pulled out of overseas production.

"Their withdrawal has caught us with no alternative finance."

At Elstree, once a prolific maker of British films, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stepped in with major investment in 1971—only to pull out in 1973. A production team of 500 in 1973 has been cut back to the shell of 48 after last spring's redundancies.

During the 1960s an estimated 90 per cent of British film production was American-financed.

"They pulled out because of their own financial troubles and have since made highly successful films at home in America," said Relph.

"It used to be a bargain to make a film in Britain," said Carol Reed, whose work includes two of the most successful British films of the early 1960s—as director of Saturday Night and Sunday Morning. Albert Finney's first film, and producer of The Sporting Life with Richard Harris.

"But the price has risen fantastically," he explained. "Partly because there was so much American money about, some people in the industry here thought American backing would never end."

Reisz made his latest film, The Gambler starring James Caan, in America. The powerful characteristics of the New York professor took him to the U.S.—but he doubts whether he could have raised backing for a similar production in Britain.

"Eighteen months ago, when I first began The Gambler, I think I could have found the money. But now, with the British industry so depressed, I'm not so sure. America is buoyant, Britain is down."

National Ballet Packs Met Opera

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Ballet of Canada has earned a well-deserved niche in the big time of the dance world.

The Canadian company of 60 dancers and guest artist Rudolf Nureyev drew a standing-room crowd at the Metropolitan Opera House Tuesday night for the opening performance of Sleeping Beauty.

More than 4,000 people gave a 20-minute standing ovation to the Canadians.

It was Nureyev's own production of the Tchaikovsky—classic that launched the National Ballet's three-week season at the Met.

Nureyev, 37, has been bouncing from one ballet company to another, keeping up the killing pace that has been his trademark.

He portrayed a deep-feeling Prince Desirmond, capably filling the changing moods of the fairy-tale classic.

But Karen Kain, 24, the tall principal dancer from Hamilton, Ont., in the demanding role of Princess Aurora, was a bigger success.

In just two years, Miss Kain has achieved an international reputation as one of Nureyev's favorite partners.

Relive History

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Children in the second grade from Lucas Valley School retire here dressed in clothes and did their lessons in the period of 1900 when they spent a day at the old one-room Dixie Schoolhouse. The school was made an historical landmark several years ago.

Nureyev chose Miss Kain for his Australian tour last month with the London Festival Ballet. The two appeared together the last two weeks with Dame Margot Fonteyn and Paolo Bortoluzzi in Washington in a program similar to the Nureyev and Friends presentation seen here last winter.

Nadia Potts and Frank Augustyn were perfect matches in the Bluebird pas de deux, giving a clean yet wistful touch to their restful performances. Theirs was the icing on the cake.

In her dressing room, Miss Kain said doing Sleeping Beauty was physically exhausting, more like running a 10-mile race.

"It's really backbreaking," she said. "It's a major test for a ballerina because it is so difficult and because it is so long. It's got beautiful music and the music just carries you along even though the steps are so difficult."

Miss Kain credits her Australian tour with helping build the stamina she needed for Sleeping Beauty.

"If I hadn't gone with Rudolf to Australia I wouldn't have danced Sleeping Beauty for a long time. I think it was really good for me."

Miss Potts agreed that performing at the Met can be nerve-wracking.

"It gets built up in your mind how nervous you are about it. It's New York and it's terribly important. Then when I got out on the stage I felt more relaxed.

"And I thought, well you know the New York audiences are fantastic. They're so appreciative, more appreciative than anywhere in the world. And if you dance well, they give you all the credit."

Crew Rows

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — University of California's had its first eight-woman rowing crew this year. The crew won over schools in competition. Although 60 women responded to the first crew, 20 survived the rigorous training which consists of rowing three times a week for two hours, running two miles twice a week and other training.

Vitamin Can Cause Some Body Odor

By G. C. THORESEON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoreseon: For the past several months we have noticed that my 13-year-old granddaughter has had an unpleasant scalp odor if she doesn't shampoo every day. She has tried many different brands, but none seems to help. She is embarrassed.

We were wondering if possibly vitamins could have something to do with it. — Mrs. G.C.

Yes. Vitamin B-1 (thiamine), used in large doses, can produce a mild body odor. If she has been taking massive doses you can suspect it as a cause. The odor most often occurs in the urine however.

The cause of the odor is more likely a hormone common at her age. With puberty there is an increase in activity of the sebaceous glands, and this may produce a slight odor.

One should consider also some scalp disorder, and this should be checked out first. The dandruff-producing yeast may cause the problem, unless it results from some chemical in the preparation itself. If her hair is excessively oily you might select a shampoo designed for that type of hair. I suggest taking her to a dermatologist.

Dear Dr. Thoreseon: I have hiatal hernia but I'm afraid of it. I can find out much about it.

One question I would like you to answer now is, will it cause chest pains inside my left breast and under my breasts I also have heart pains, yet my doctor shows no abnormality. Can you give me reasons for these abnormalities? — Mrs. T.

Hiatal hernia can mimic heart symptoms because of the location of the "hiatus." This is an opening at the diaphragm through which the pulse passes before connecting with the stomach. In hiatal hernia, this opening becomes enlarged, and there is a large portion of the stomach is forced upward. This may result in misdirected stomach juices, the major cause of the pain. It is usually more severe on the left side of your chest, since the opening is located slightly to the left of center. Pain can radiate downward and under the rib cage, in somewhat, can reach the back area.

Complaints of heartburn that can't be traced to other causes can often be attributed to this type of hernia. Since your EKG showed normal heart patterns it is probably the hiatal hernia that is troubling you.

If it becomes cause surgical repair of the hernia may be required. Usually, though, conservative approaches are sufficient.

Dear Dr. Thoreseon: I drink a lot of black coffee during the day. What I would like to know is whether or not coffee brings the cholesterol level in the blood higher. — T.Y.

I read your question correctly, you are asking whether there is some substance in coffee that somehow raises the actual cholesterol level by producing some chemical reaction in the body. Am I right?

I know of no evidence of this. For those who use cream with their coffee, it should be noted that coffee cream contains good deal of saturated fats, a culprit in cholesterol formation.

Indira Gandhi's Life Story Told

LONDON (CP) — Once, when still a small girl, Indira Prime Minister Indira Gandhi nearly cut off a policeman's thumb with a bread knife.

The edition of a newsletter for the British colonial government, carrying the story of many arrests and property seizures against Jawaharlal and father, Jawaharlal Nehru.

These repeated experiences of arrests and separations from her parents may have hardened Mrs. Gandhi for the same kind of treatment she now is dealing her own political opponents.

But who is this 57-year-old mother of two running the world's largest democracy, and what has led her to turn it into a semi-dictatorship?

At least some of the answers are offered in a newly released book, Indira Gandhi: A Biography, published in London by Hamish Hamilton.

The author, Trevor Drieberg, begins with an account of a troubled childhood, racked by the uncertainties and hardships of the anti-colonial movement that helped lead to lead.

Those early years, when both parents spent months in jail, developed their only child a protective callous against hurt and against the open expression of affection.

Masani says.

It is that callous that seems to make Mrs. Gandhi so hard to understand as she leads her country today, and leaves her friends and political allies loosphy so open to conscienceal accusation.

By supporters, she has been variously seen as a secular reformer, a pragmatic stabilizer in the raucous politics of India.

By critics, she has been seen as a dangerous demagogue and an easily swayed servant of the rich who pandered to Indian sentimentalism with socialist rhetoric.

Masani, who interviewed Mrs. Gandhi and had access to her personal correspondence, finishes his book months before her recent assault on civil liberties on conviction on charges of electi corruption.

But he describes her childhood, her years as Nehru's confidant, and her strange rise-and-fall-and-rise-again ascent raised from her late husband at her father's side.

He records her rise through the ruthless Congress Party hierarchy to the prime minister's office in 1966, and how she then disarmed the conservative party bosses who had helped put her in office.

Masani goes on to summarize the Indian political malaise, and proffers glimpses of the future:

"While the Indian economic system heads for disaster, driven recklessly on by its even inflationary deficit-with, established political institutions exhibit similar symptoms of decay," he wrote last fall at the end of his book.

"Never has the gulf between political and economic implementation been wider; never has administrative mismanagement and paralysis been greater; never has factional intrigue and infighting in the ruling party been more widespread; and never has corruption been more blatant and all-pervasive."

He suggests alternative political strategies Mrs. Gandhi might follow in future:

These would involve an increasing reliance on repression, culminating in the establishment of a dictatorship," like those of Indonesia or Kwame Nkrumah's Ghana.

"The second possibility is that Indira Gandhi might break free from the deadwood of her own defunct party and form the nucleus of a new party coalition. This would include the two Communist parties, the socialists and other radical elements committed to genuine reform."

Even before the latest events in India, the author noted the prospect of this second option as distant.

The woman Masani describes has always had a courageous, tenacious grasp of power—a trait that emerges again and again in his book.

"The world is not interested in excuses for failure," she once told a group of students. "The world is interested in who wins. Very few care to find out why one has lost. It is success and victory that matter."

The defense took a short, sweet and unsuccessful. East rose with the ace of diamonds and continued the king of diamonds. He held and he continued with the queen. West thought about overtaking but finally ducked. East then led a spade and South ruffed off the rest of the tricks.

"You play like a jackass, Dodgeball Tad. Don't you know that I would have raised you in spades if I held three spades and another."

West was tempted to stand up and poke East in the nose, but refrained for two reasons. First of all, he was a trifle ashamed of his play, but secondly he had a beautiful sarcastic speech ready.

"You know," he told his partner, "there is a traditional way to get a jackass' attention. You hit him over the head with a two by four. You could have obtained this effect by leading the queen and then the king of spades. This unnatural play could mean just one thing. You held just two spades. I would have risen with my ace and given you a ruff to set the contract."

The correct response is two clubs. You are on your way to game or higher if your good game or higher for you to do is to give your partner correct information about your distribution. Make sure he will know that you hold more cards than spades.

Sheriff Missing Parts

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — The sheriff's patrol car was involved in an accident recently and was left in the sheriff's department radio shack under lock and key to have all electronic gear removed. No work was done on the car for two days and then the sheriff's office discovered someone had gained entry to the shack and stolen the radio transmitter, receiver, microphone and other equipment.

With six dollars in his pocket, no luggage and no passport, Konstantine (Gus) Boulis jumped ship in Halifax, N.S. in 1968 and today he makes about $175,000 a year. Living in Toronto, with landed-immigrant status, he is a major shareholder and national manager for Mr. Submarine, a thriving chain of sandwich shops. (CP Photo)

WHERE IT CAME FROM

Dark Horse is a term, first used in 1844 in American politics to describe a major party presidential candidate who is not expected to receive the nomination.

Seaman Jumps Ship Quickly Makes Million

TORONTO (CP) — Seven years ago, a young Greek seaman jumped ship in Halifax. He had $6 in his pocket, no luggage, no passport and he spoke no English.

Today, he's a millionaire.

Konstantine (Gus) Boulis, 25, has made his fortune in submarines—the edible kind. He is the major shareholder and national manager of Mr. Submarine, the chain of sandwich shops that last year grossed more than $16 million on long submarine-shaped sandwiches filled out with meat and vegetables.

Mr. Boulis said he came to Toronto in 1968 because he was afraid he might be caught by immigration authorities in Halifax.

"The Greek community was too small," he said. "I could hide much better in Toronto."

Jack Levinson, one of the owners of the only Mr. Submarine outlet at the time in Canada, hired him for $1.35 an hour.

He said he nearly lost his job in the first week because he couldn't speak English, but within a few months he had shown the owners how to expand the business.

He impressed them so much, he said, that they offered him a partnership rather than lose him.

But in 1969, immigration officers tracked him down and ordered him he was ordered deported.

Mr. Boulis immediately appealed the decision. He was afraid that he would be imprisoned if returned to Greece because he had deserted a Greek merchant vessel to avoid the military draft.

The Immigration Appeal Board heard his case in 1972 and upheld the deportation order. He took the case to the Supreme Court of Canada, but the court refused to intervene.

By that time, Mr. Boulis had spent $5,000 in legal fees. He was married and had a son born in Canada.

"Immigration authorities told him his wift could sponsor him to Canada, but only after the deportation order was completed.

A senior official in the United States Consulate in Toronto offered him a temporary visa to that country.

Within two weeks, immigration authorities allowed him to return to Canada, and he was granted landed immigrant status 18 months ago.

Since then, Mr. Boulis has been planning expansion of Mr. Submarine to the U.S., South Africa and Australia. The company now has 85 outlets.

AGENCY INDEPENDENT

The General Services Administration, an independent agency, was created by the United States government in 1949 to establish an economical and efficient system for management of property and records.

Forest Fires Found Useful

SASKATOON (CP) — A University of Saskatchewan researcher says studies of forest fires in the Northwest Territories suggest they are an important part of a natural system of forest renewal.

Prof. Stan Rowe of the plant ecology department says fires promote the health and variety of forests keeping them vigorous and suitable for recreation.

Most fires are caused by lightning and have been recurring periodically since the glacial age and the forests and animals have adapted to them. There is little evidence that many animals die in forest fires, but if all fires were suppressed, some types of plants and wildlife would virtually disappear.

Prof. Rowe has been directing fire studies since 1973 in the upper Mackenzie Valley for the department of Indian affairs and northern development. The department is interested in the frequency and intensity of fires along proposed pipeline routes, since compressor stations could be threatened by flames and lines might be ruptured if the terrain is disturbed by melting permafrost.

Gen. Quang Given Marching Orders

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday that Dang Van Quang, the controversial former South Vietnamese general, has "his marching orders" to leave Canada.

The remaining problem is to find a country that will accept Quang and there is no indication the United States is willing, Mr. Andras told reporters.

The immigration appeal board has rejected Quang's application to appeal a deportation order because he made it too late.

Quang, a former top Saigon official, was admitted to Canada from a U.S. refugee camp but was ordered deported earlier this month after checks on allegations that he had been involved in corruption and narcotics trafficking in South Vietnam.

He said Taiwan was a possibility and the new Saigon government would be willing to take him back.

Last week it was reported that Quang requested permanent residence for himself and his family in the United States and a U.S. American consular official in Montreal said the request was being studied.

Quang Prays God Can Change Ottawa's Mind

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Journal quotes Dang Van Quang, a former South Vietnamese lieutenant-general, as saying: "I hope that God can open up the minds of the Canadian government."

In a copyright story from Montreal, the newspaper says Quang says he is spending much of his time reading the Bible.

Quang denied allegations concerning his past.

Morgentaler Asks Pardon

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler, convicted by the Quebec Court of Appeal of performing an illegal abortion after being acquitted by a jury, has asked Prime Minister Trudeau for an immediate and unconditional pardon.

Dr. Morgentaler, in a letter to the prime minister, says that "the verdict of the people must be honored."

The letter says it would be "unjust, even indecent" to continue to imprison a person acquitted by his peers.

MPs Want Catch Cut 40 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet fishing fleet operating in the Atlantic was barred from Canadian ports Wednesday in a move to force it to abide by international fishing quotas.

Commons members unanimously approved a resolution supporting the Canadian position that the foreign fishing catch off the Atlantic coast must be reduced by 40 per cent.

Canada proposed the 40-per-cent cut at a meeting of the 17-country International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries (ICNAF) earlier this year and will press its point at another ICNAF meeting in Montreal in September.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, called again for a warning that this country will unilaterally declare a 200-mile offshore fishing zone restricted to Canadian vessels.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) asked for a warning that all foreign fishing fleets will be banned.

Mr. McGrath said he has been opposed to closing the ports in the past, but welcomes the move now because it shows the government finally is taking the fishing situation seriously.

Mr. Broadbent said the closure means that Canada will lose both ways—there will be economic damage to eastern ports and the Soviet Union will continue to overfish.

Three Dead, 45 Injured

Tornadoes Hit Quebec Town

ST. BONAVENTURE, Que. (CP) — Residents of this small community 50 miles northeast of Montreal began cleanup operations early today following a deadly tornado early Thursday evening that killed at least three persons and injured 45 others.

Heavy equipment and civil protection personnel worked through the night to clear debris and it was reported early today that fallen trees blocking roads had been cleared.

Mayor Jean-Paul Pepin said early today he estimates damages to his town at between $1½ million and $2 million and he plans to approach the Quebec government for assistance in rebuilding.

The three victims have been identified as Mrs. Denise St. Laurent, 26, and her twin children Patricia and Patrice, both two months, killed when the mobile home they were in was hurled into the air by the tornado.

The first tornado hit the town of 1,000 about 8:30 p.m. EDT and lasted until about 8:45 p.m. Another twister passed over the town again about 15 minutes later.

Quebec Provincial Police (QPP) had earlier reported 15 persons were killed and 75 injured in the storm but they revised those figures after further investigations.

The early figures, they said, were based on information from townspeople.

The storm destroyed between 75 and 100 structures, including the local Roman Catholic church, the rectory, the town's water tower and a school.

Witnesses said the path of the storm was five miles long by ½-mile wide and the village's main street section was almost totally destroyed.

Most homes and barns in the rural town were also heavily damaged or destroyed and one source reported only three homes were left undamaged.

About 300 people were left homeless in the disaster and some were put up at a nearby monastery while others went to stay with relatives.

Work crews from Hydro-Quebec and Bell Telephone began early today to restore services to the town. All communications, power and gas in the village were cut off almost immediately after the storm began.

The nearby town of St. David also got some of the storm but no details were yet available. A to the extent of damages.

One resident here, Etienne Laboite, said she had just started her family's supper when the storm hit.

"I had just put my steaks on when everything started to go crazy," she said.

"Then my cousin came screaming into my house yelling her house had been destroyed.

"The air was full of debris. Trees were falling everywhere.

"Thursday's storm is the third, and worst, tornado to hit this Quebec in the last two months.

Hint Given Of Fraud At Airport

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Ron Huntington said today he will be said the biggest political scandals in Canadian history, but he said Thursday night he wants the proof in his hands before he takes further action.

Mr. Huntington (Capilano) said the affair involves possible large fraud in consulting contracts for the new Mirabel airport near Montreal.

He said in an interview that he got what scanty information he has from a transport department employee. It basically is that the contracts, which should have cost about $6 million, are costing the taxpayer $60 million, he said.

Mr. Huntington placed written questions on the Commons order paper July 15, but said it does not expect answers before Parliament adjourns for a summer recess.

He had been led to believe by "other sources" that the RCMP already is investigating the case and that it could erupt publicly before he gets the answers.

Close Watch Ordered On Fishing Fleets

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada plans to step up increase inspections of Spanish and Portuguese fishing vessels off the East Coast to see if they should be banned from Canadian ports along with the huge Soviet fleet for overfishing.

To help do this, the fisheries department is calling on the defence department for increase surveillance and patrol with ships and planes.

This was revealed Thursday in the Commons by Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc and department spokesmen after the minister repeated that unilateral declaration of a 200-mile fishing—zone is "a very much lively option" of the government.

The minister was questioned by T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) and reporters a day after he announced that the Soviet Atlantic fleet is banned from Canadian ports because it violated fishing quotas established under the International Commission for Northwest Atlantic Fisheries (ICNAF).

He said then the large Portuguese and Spanish fleets also could be banned if they don't cease violations of the quotas.

An external affairs spokesman said Thursday the Soviets are not happy at the Canadian move and their initial reaction has been to dispute some of the information Canada used as a reason for the ban.

Spacemen Safely Home Despite Gas in Ship

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The three astronauts were carried in sick bay aboard this recovery ship as a "precautionary measure" after their return to earth Thursday because of a yellow gas they were exposed to aboard their space ship during reentry.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton splashed down at 5:20 p.m. EDT, 330 miles west of Pearl Harbor.

"Everything went great," Stafford said. "It was a great ending to the Apollo project."

However, the astronauts later reported a "yellow gas and odor that caused a burning of the eyes" inside their space cabin as it descended towards earth.

Doctors said an examination did not show any medical problem but no chances were being taken.

Officials said they suspect the gas was nitrogen tetraoxide, a chemical used as a propellant in the small thrust rocket engines of the Apollo.

Longshoremen 'Arrogant'

Union Chief Flays Dockers For Refusal to Load Grain

TORONTO (CP) — William Mahoney, national director of the United Steelworkers of America, said Thursday that the refusal of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) to load Canadian and United States grain shipments bound for Russia is "arrogant and incomprehension."

"I can only hope that Thomas Gleason, president of that union, will quickly rescind the resolution, particularly as it implies to Canada," Mr. Mahoney said in a news release.

"What would prompt such an action—by a responsible trade union is beyond my understanding, particularly at a time when our economies, both in the U.S. and Canada, require a massive infusion of consumer purchasing power.

"We are not going to get out of this economic slump by going down the road of narrow institutionism and cutting off our noses to spite our faces and that is where the ILA action is leading us."

Mr. Mahoney, who is also general vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Canada's trade policies are set by the government, not by the longshoremen.

"These are the kinds of thoughtless and hare-brained stunts that set back the cause of trade unionism and give the general public a biased picture of what the union movement is all about," he said.

The steelworkers union has 167,000 Canadian members.

Locked in Room, Eleven Escape Montreal Blast

MONTREAL (CP) — Moments before a bomb explosion ripped through an east-end bar early today, 11 persons escaped from the building after being locked in the washroom by the bomber, police said.

One man was taken to hospital with a severe head cut after being injured by flying glass and three others were reported slightly injured by the bomb which exploded at about 8:30 a.m. EDT.

Ten men and one woman, including the manager of the Brasserie Iberville, were in the bar shortly after it opened when an armed man entered the building and ordered them into the washroom.

Six of the men were handcuffed, police said.

One man broke down the washroom door shortly afterwards and noticed wires running to the bar area, kitchen and basement.

The group rushed to the front door but found it locked. Several of the men managed to break it open and the group raced outside before the bomb exploded.

Police investigators have yet to find a motive for the bombing which caused extensive damage to the ground floor of the bar. However, one spokesman said it may have been an underworld settling of accounts.

Two men, both "known to police," were killed in De Bar June 12 by a lone gunmen in what police believe was an underworld score settling.

Last Jan. 21, 13 persons died in a similar incident at the Gartanlua Bar Salon in the city's north end.

Club manager Rejean Fortin was shot by the gunmen and his body was locked in a storage closet along with 12 patrons in the bar and the club was set on fire. The nine men and three women died of asphyxiation.

Egypt Rejects Direct Talks

Labor Council Plans For Centre Stalled

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A 1,300-seat convention centre proposed for construction in Belleville by the Quinte District Labor Council has been stalled for the time being, says council president Doug Sword.

During an interview Thursday, Mr. Sword said the project has not been dropped but it has been "stalled" until the council and its lawyer can meet with Peterborough labor organizers to discuss a similar centre in that community.

"The Peterborough labor council runs a very successful centre but they've had some trials and tribulations that we don't want to run into," said Mr. Sword.

"When we go into this thing, we want to go in with our eyes wide open and have all the information that is available," he said.

"It has been stalled temporarily. It certainly has not been dropped," said Mr. Sword.

In the first week of June, the council invited representatives of the area's largest union to a meeting to discuss the project "where it was voted overwhelmingly to build a centre."

At the same meeting unions pledged to chip in to pay for a portion of capital construction costs.

"A centre of this sort is a necessary thing that would be of great value to the entire community," said Mr. Sword.

Californian Swimmer Is 'Spat Out' by Shark

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm just glad to be alive," a shaken college student said Thursday after a large shark attacked him and then spit him out.

Robert Rebstock was attacked while scuba diving about 5a hour after another diver said he saw a white shark—the antagonist in the movie Jaws—off the seaside city of Santa Barbara.

Rebstock, 22, said he had been in the water only a couple of minutes when the shark darted straight up "and my feet went right down his throat."

Jeff Morris, 22, Rebstock's roommate who was along on the trip in a 16-foot outboard, said:

"It came up in a rush and Rob in the mouth, straight up out of the water maybe three feet or so, then it just dropped him and we grabbed him out of the water and took off."

Morris said the shark looked about "14 to 18 feet" long. It attacked Rebstock in about 30 feet of water.

Rebstock was treated Wednesday for lacerations of both legs and puncture wounds of the thigh and released.

Quinte Mall Expansion Considered

Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee this week gave brief consideration to mall expansion and this week will decide between Aug. 13 and 14 for a public meeting to discuss plans. Going over the maps are Frank Sokmatsu of the Quinte Planning Board (centre) and committee members Ald. Jack Ireland (left) and Ray Michol. Committee chairman Ald. Joe Cox said the date of the meeting is being left flexible so that the public meeting will not conflict with a Progressive Conservative nomination meeting scheduled for the same week.

Big U.S. Surplus Is Predicted Of Science, Engineering PhDs

NEW YORK (CP) — Within 10 years, the United States is expected to have a surprisingly large surplus of 10,000 scientists and engineers holding PhD degrees.

Projections prepared by the National Science Foundation (NSF) indicate that by 1985, some 400,000 science and engineering PhDs will be on the employment market. However, no more than 300,000 positions relating to their training are expected to be available.

The NSF is financed by the federal government. One of its tasks is to project the manpower trends in various scientific fields.

Its previous studies have suggested an oversupply of graduates in the physical sciences, but the NSF has observed that there now is a growing trend toward increasing imbalances between the supply of PhD scientists and engineers and the demand for their services.

The Washington-based science foundation predicted "some outright unemployment" of doctors entering fields not requiring extensive training.

"At this stage, I can't be fussy," said a highly-trained physical scientist, with a PhD from the country's leading engineering school. "I have a wife and two children to support. Of course, I wanted a job in a research firm, or hopefully a professorship, but that's definitely out. At least for the time being. Maybe later."

The situation was different one or two years ago, when fewer than one in 10 graduates with a PhD in science or engineering had to settle for positions not related to their fields or commensurate with their training.

Engineers and scientists can also expect a significant shift away from academic and other research and development jobs into non-traditional job opportunities, the NSF study found. These may range from non-research activities related to science and engineering, such as production or quality control, consulting and marketing, to positions that have no relation to science or engineering.

Within 10 years, the NSF predicts, one-third of the qualified doctoral-level scientists and engineers may find it impossible to get employment in academic institutions, traditionally the major employers. Non-academic institutions including government, industry or non-profit laboratories that in the past have sought PhDs for research and development may also close their doors to those with doctorates.

The shift in non-traditional job opportunities will probably have a more profound effect on new doctorates than on those already in the work force. Consequently, the NSF said, the expected shift has major educational implications for institutions and its students.

Bancroft Landmark Closes for Last Time

BANCROFT — After more than 85 years of serving the travelling public in the Bancroft and North Hastings area, the Bancroft Inn closed its doors this week for the last time.

The Inn has long been a landmark at the corner of Hastings and Bridge Street here, and although it hasn't been licensed as a beverage hotel since 1939, was still a favorite gathering place for the coffee crowd.

No plans have been announced yet for the disposal of the large three-storey brick building.

The original hotel, which was built in the early 1890s, was replaced in 1914 following a fire.

According to the current manager of the Inn, Evelyn Bowers, the general move of the Bancroft business community away from the "hotel corner" and towards the north end of the village has played a part in the reduced business of the Inn.

A major renovation program for the 60-year-old building was instituted several years ago but has not been completed.

There are 27 rooms in the Inn as well as dining rooms and a coffee shop.

For a number of years the Bancroft Inn has been the regular size for the bus travelling from Toronto to Pembroke.

Alternative stops for the bus and express stop have not been announced.

On Wednesday morning, the coffee crowd gathered for the last time in the Inn to discuss the future meetings of the group.

For the owner of the hotel, Carol MacAlpine said "We first opened the coffee shop in 1945, and there has been a group meeting here for coffee since we opened. Of course, it's not the same group now."

Prostitutes and Pornography Have Vanished from Saigon

SAIGON (Reuter) — South Vietnam's new rulers have turned Saigon from a city of sin into a capital of austerity.

Two months after the revolutionary administration took over, Saigon's "sin-strip" in nightlife has disappeared and the motto now is "early to bed and early to rise."

Prostitutes and drug addicts have been rounded up and released after being told why they should abandon "the dark and hopeless road" which the Americans and their lackeys forced upon them.

All bars and discotheques have either been closed or converted into popular restaurants, pornographic literature has disappeared and so have records of Western and Vietnamese pop music.

Though the population of Saigon is not known for extolled to lead an austere life, the message is implicit in the lifestyle of the people at the moment. With the exception of ministers, most high officials now walk or pedal a bicycle to their offices.

WEAR WHITE

Besides the drab green uniform and pith helmets worn by members of the Liberation Army, the standard wear for other officials is a white bush shirt, cotton trousers and plastic sandals.

Although many of them now live in former modern hotels and apartments abandoned by their owners, air-conditioners have been switched off.

The standard meal of officials here consists of rice, that of the Liberation Army soldiers based in Saigon of rice, vegetables, dried fish and shreds of meat.

Saigon's changing style is being felt even in the most fashionable districts of the city. Instead of the neon-lit nightclubs on Tu Do Street have been converted into popular restaurants selling soft drinks and cheap noodle soup. On the pavements, stalls have sprung up to sell "Ho Chi Minh" pasads. Cut out of rejected tires, they have come to symbolize the simplicity of Liberation Army soldiers.

The austerity measure that has made the most visual impact has been the closure of the city's gasoline stations.

The thousands of Japanese Honda motorcycles and other vehicles which used to clog the city's roads have vanished. Private cars now are a rare sight amid streams of people bicycling, pedaling tricycles along clean but neglected streets.

While the authorities are spending generous amounts of diesel oil to public transport operations, filling the lines remain closed.

As the anti-drug campaign attacked "depraved and reactionary culture" is being stepped up, some of Saigon's movie houses have closed. Others have switched to showing habitual fare of westerns with films on the life of Liberation fighters.

At the end of the first phase of the campaign, launched by the student and youth organization, official figures put at more than half a million the number of "reactionary" books handed over by the people. They also burned 27,000 tapes of what is considered "decadent music."

Besides academic books and magazines still on sale, the people of Saigon have to be content with the official daily newspaper, Saigon Giai Phong (Saigon Liberation) and three weeklies devoted to culture and the women's and youth movements.

Several North Vietnamese cultural troupes have given performances for a traditional Vietnamese opera, songs and dances and the 40-piece military band of the Liberation Army surprised a foreign audience with a rendering of Beethoven and Strauss.

Television continues to be the principal source of entertainment, featuring films, animated cartoons and traditional ballets.

After an initial steep increase in the cost of living following the Communist takeover here, prices have come down. Rice now sells at its pre-liberation price and the cost of other foodstuff items for the Vietnamese household has also stabilized.

Highway Repaired

BANCROFT — Anyone who has travelled the highway 127 from Maynmith the Lake St. Peter turnoff will know that construction project is under way for those 6.1 miles.

The tarmac fully road is being lowered, raised and straightened in a project that will cost $1.3 million.

The project, being done by Seegmiller Construction, also includes the repaving of six miles of Highway 62 north.

A major portion of the project involves the creation of a rock cut at the south end of the work.

The rock cut will be 12 feet deep and will be the equivalent of 10,000 cubic feet of rock.

Work on the job should be completed by late fall of this year.

Street Dance Planned

DEMORESTVILLE — A street dance will be held in Demorestville on Saturday, Aug. 2, sponsored by the Sophisburg Fire Fighters Association.

Music for this special event will be provided by Anita and Company. Tickets are available at Carter's Store, Demorestville.

Smoke Flares Sought

TRENTON — CFB Trenton explosive ordinance disposal unit officers have issued a warning to residents in the Presqu'ile and Weller's Bay areas to be on the alert for aluminum-encased flares that they term "dangerous".

The signal flares belch smoke and a red flame up to a foot long and failed to activate when dropped into Lake Ontario from planes of 424 Search and Rescue Squadron. Since May, the squadron has been using the "smoke flares" in training exercises.

The flares are 16 inches long and three inches in diameter. Each cylinder has a spout for smoke emmission at one end and a dial marked "armed" and "safe" at the other end.

A base spokesman said once readied, the flares cannot be deactivated.

Base spokesmen say the flares are not to be handled and ask the public to call CFB Trenton or provincial police if found.

Normally, the phosphorus in the flares is activated by contact with water. Once spent, they sink to the bottom.

FRANKFORD — Operation Clean Sweep, a massive one-day cleanup of the Trent River from Hastings to Trenton, will not take place as originally planned this year.

Cy Macdonald, water control board chairman of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority, announced in May that program would be resurrected this year after a three-year break.

Thursday, he said it had died, likely permanently, because councils along the Trent River "weren't overjoyed" with the prospect of volunteers filling garbage containers in their municipalities.

Municipalities, says the chairman, have switched garbage disposal areas over the last three years.

Formerly, the town or township dump was used for deposit of tons of refuse collected in the river waters. Now, councils have switched to the container system.

Mr. Macdonald said the contains "cost them a bundle to supply". Councils were in favor of Clean Sweep but didn't want their containers used.

"All municipalities are on container systems. They are spotting containers and then carting them off yonder, and yonder is getting full, I suppose.

Containers, whatever their size, would likely not have been sufficient to handle the amount of refuse, from old automobile tires to tin cans, pulled from the river.

In 1971, the river gave up 70 tons of garbage. In 1970, the first year of the program, 118 tons were collected.

Mr. Macdonald attributed the drop in 1971 to cleanup operation the previous year. It had cleaned a lot of refuse from the river, he said.

Another factor influencing the decision to drop the project was indication from volunteer captains that it had outlived its usefulness. Only one if 10 captains, responsible for a specific stretch of the river cleanup, agreed to take on the job again.

Each captain was required to mobilize a crew of volunteers to clean a part of the river.

As an alternative to Clean Sweep Mr. Macdonald said he will ask the authority executive next year to okay a survey of sources of pollution along the Trent River.

The survey will be conducted by students the authority annual hires in summer Mr. Macdonald says it will involve a "close inspection of river banks to determine the location and size" of sources.

Colborne to Replace Gutted Legion Hall

COLBORNE — Colborne Legion members have given contractors the go ahead to erect an $83,000 hall to replace the building they lost in May in a $100,000 blaze.

The century-old former public school went up in flames, believed caused by an unextinguished cigarette thrown into a garbage container.

Royal Canadian Legion Branch 187 past-president John Dunk said Thursday he expects construction by Riverside Construction of Glen Ross to start soon.

It will take eight to 10 weeks to build and is expected to be completed in October, he said.

The new hall, a 105 by 60 foot Butler pre-engineered structure, will go up just south of the location of the former King St. East building. The $83,000 cost does not include furnishings or a heating plant.

Most of the money ($65,000) came from an insurance settlement and the remainder was raised by the 140 members of the Legion branch, said Mr. Dunk.

He said Legion members opted for a new structure after attempts to get a building east of Colborne seemed looked discouraging.

The single-storey building will be of all - steel construction and windowless.

Riverside Construction building consultant Rolly Gray said Thursday the Legion Hall will be a basic structure. Cosmetic additions to the building will be made when money becomes available later.

Lightning Blamed In Cottage Fire

TWEED — A Thursday afternoon fire started by lightning destroyed a one-storey, frame, fully-furnished cottage on the east side of Sloco Lake about six miles east of this village, says the Tweed Volunteer Fire Departments.

A department spokesman said a lightning bolt struck the cottage at about 1 p.m. during Thursday's brief thunderstorm.

The cottage, owned by Dr. Frank J. McCue, a Tweed physician, is located at a small summer homes settlement popularly known as Buck in the Moon. The blaze was reported by a neighbor. The cottage was not occupied.

The department's pumper and emergency vehicle and nine firefighters answered the alarm. They were able to keep the fire from jumping to two cottages situated on either side of the burning structure.

A damage estimate was not available and it was not known if the cottage was insured.

Super-Nationalists Angry That Foreign Investment Act Leaves Door Ajar

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In a country as diverse as Canada, there are some problems that may never be solved to everybody's satisfaction.

The freedom or control of foreign investment is one of the most constant of those problems, as federal Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie is finding out.

He has recently introduced Phase 2 of the Foreign Investment Review Act, to take effect Oct. 15.

Phase 2 doesn't alarm the door or foreign investors slightly. Therefore, it's being denounced by super-nationalists, dyed-in-the-wool American-haters, and those who cry for quick, drastic solutions.

But Phase 2 imposes guidelines or restrictions on foreign take-overs of Canadian businesses. And so it is condemned as well by rabid foreign investors and those who consider any government guidelines to be unwarranted interference in the marketplace.

Nobody argues with the concept of being master in one's own house.

The argument is whether matters of control of foreign investments here. Studies that have been carried out in the last half, however, have suggested whether it can be achieved just as effectively—and more cheaply—by establishing rules to govern the conduct of the foreigners.

The simple solution, of course, would be for the government to step being Mr. Nice Guy and take over foreign-owned businesses.

Plenty of governments have done that—Cuba, Chile, Uganda, Portugal, to name just a few. Somehow, nationalization has failed to improve the lot of the people in these countries.

Our government has not proposed nationalization of foreign investments here. Studies that have been carried out in the last half, however, have suggested that the inflow of new foreign capital be sharply curtailed.

Canada adopted that course, we could expect:

—Still higher unemployment. Some of the foreign capital coming into Canada is used to build new plants and create new jobs. Some of it is used to buy failing companies and thus to preserve jobs. (Some, of course, goes to buy control of and has little or no direct effect on employment figures).

—Huge deficits. Foreign capital helps offset our chronic current-account deficit on foreign trade.

In the past 10 years, Canada's average current-account deficit has been $2500-million. Without average outflow of short-term capital $441-million, and average inflow of long-term capital $1,200-million.

—A weaker Canadian dollar. Without the foreign-capital inflow, the value of the Canadian dollar would fall. That would intensify the inflationary trend, and make our exports even cheaper than they are.

The approach to foreign capital that the government had adopted is to leave the door open, but to emphasize that it reserves the right to refuse admission.

That makes more sense than trying to cure the "disease" of foreign economic influence by killing the patient—the Canadian economy.

What is left, then, is something like an up-dated version of the guidelines for good corporate citizenship that one of Mr. Gillespie's predecessors — the late Robert Winters—laid down nearly a decade ago.

That wasn't entirely reality the government's critics, regardless of which side of the question they are on.

Given the improbability of a broadly satisfactory general solution, Canada ought to take the lead in pushing for international agreement, through the United Nations or some other international body, on such questions as control on the flow of investment capital, harmonization of taxes, consistency of rules and exchange of information.

Crime and Gun Control

Attorney-General Warren Allmand, adamant in his conviction that capital punishment is not the answer to homicide, has stated repeatedly that his Government must seek other means of dealing with the problem.

Capital punishment of course remains on the statute book in the case of the murder of police officers and prison guards. Ottawa however chooses to regard it more as fiction than fact and finds some reason or other for commuting death sentences.

By "other means," Mr. Allmand presumably is thinking of something else besides existing laws, but thus far we have yet to hear of any fresh new ideas.

As it is, recent years have seen a disturbing tendency by the authorities, including the courts, toward leniency. The deadly consequences of this have been all too obvious, and it is recognition of the resulting public outcry to which Mr. Allmand has been addressing himself.

But where do we go from here? What Mr. Allmand had to say was little more than lip service to a problem that is not going to go away, yet from a public security standpoint demands something be done.

Existing laws require greater rigidity. They need to be administered too, so that parole is not granted willy-nilly, with persons convicted of crimes against the person and other anti-social behavior being let out and about within a short time of an offence.

Gun control remains another burning issue; and it was encouraging to see the jury at the inquest into the Brampton school shootings urge stringent controls on possession of weapons. Another tragedy in recent days — a murder-suicide at a cottage in the Lake Simcoe area, and wounding of two girls aged only 11 and 8 lends further urgency to this matter.

It may not be possible to legislate against the instability of human nature, but where possession of weapons is concerned and the ease with which they currently are obtained, there should be stronger controls. This way, the likelihood of such terrible events occurring, could be lessened.

And the Highway Toll

Even more of a threat to life and limb than guns is the automobile. Or rather the careless if not reckless abandon with which drivers operate their vehicles.

Given this premise, there is reason to applaud the federal government's decision amending the Criminal Code to allow police to set up breath testing machines near bars and require patrons driving away to take such tests.

If this is a threat to a person's rights, or to his civil liberties, as he it. The Ontario Attorney-General, John Clement, put it well when he said: "It's not a game of cops and robbers anymore. It's a question of slaughter on our highways."

It will mean more work for the police, but the way things are going there is no alternative. Either such steps are taken, or else the accident rate, already of grave dimensions, will escalate further.

The interesting little bulletins that come with Family Allowance cheques have come to dealing, in the current issue, with the importance of wearing seat belts. Every year, it is pointed out, more than 6,000 people die on Canadian highways. Many of them could have been saved — at much as 40 per cent fewer deaths in the 5 to 35 age group — if only everyone would buckle up.

In 1973, more than 220,000 Canadians were injured in auto accidents. This in turn meant over 8,000 hospital beds put out and a cost to the economy of more than a billion dollars through lost wages, medical expenses, administrative and claim settlements, cost of insurance and property damage.

In the Australian state of Victoria, mandatory use of seat belts has been compulsory since 1971. As a result, deaths from auto accidents decreased 18 per cent in nine months.

The bulletin concludes with sure conviction: "Use the seat belt. Too often, neglect of this safety accessory leads to avoidable disfigurement or death."

It's as simple — and compelling — as that.

African Unity a Misnomer And Some Talk with Vorster

By JOHN HAY

The Canadian Press

The Organization of African Unity is preparing for a summit meeting in a mood of discord.

Ministers of the 43-member OAU are in Kampala, Uganda, laying the ground for the heads-of-state summit next week. But three members—Tanzania, Zambia and Botswana—have said they will take no part.

At the centre of the controversy is Ugandan President Idi Amin, who is to take his turn as OAU chairman at next week's meeting.

As the ministers opened their talks, Amin's government-controlled radio accused the three absentees of spying for white-ruled South Africa.

Amin has often accused Tanzanian President Julius Nyere of courting a strip of Ugandan land on the border, and occasionally puts his forces on alert to ward off an attack that never comes.

Aside from this dispute, other issues tend to divide the non-white OAU and cloud the future of African institutions.

—Ethiopia has threatened to kick the OAU headquarters out of the country if the OAU accepts the entry of membership of the Ethiopian secessionist state of Eritrea.

There is also a disagreement about whether to set up an OAU force to intervene in the fight among rival nationalist groups in Angola, the independence-bound Portuguese territory where battles have cost hundreds of lives in recent weeks.

—Perhaps most important, there is uncertainty about the future course of relations with South Africa and Rhodesia, also white-ruled.

The hectic diplomatic activity of last winter, aimed at reaching a peaceful settlement of the Rhodesian question, seems to have run out of steam.

The lack of success so far may have somewhat discredited — in some African eyes—Nyerere and Zambian leading go-between in the Rhodesia talks.

It also casts doubt on the power of South African Prime Minister John Vorster to persuade Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith to drop his opposition to black-majority rule.

Hopes for a Rhodesian settlement have been further discouraged by infighting among Rhodesian black nationalists.

Yet there are signs of change. Many countries now are more accustomed to talking with South Africa—secretly or openly—and to some sense of economic benefit in improved relations with Vorster's government.

Those changing relations with South Africa are putting new strains on the OAU, between men such as Kaunda and Nyerere and those such as Amin, who want to trust or trade with Vorster.

Amin's quirkly and sometimes dangerous behavior has put off fellow leaders in the past, and has translated an OAU host is reported to be earning some sympathy for his critics.

Amin is said to be planning a military demonstration for his guests, complete with Soviet-built jet fighter planes and missile.

Closing Ports to Soviets Seen as Only Token Gesture

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc admits his recent measures closing two Maritime ports to the ships of the Soviet fishing fleets isn't a strong measure against them when other strong measures are long overdue.

Mr. LeBlanc is the same federal cabinet minister with responsibility for a Canadian food industry hard-hit by foreign fishing fleets who once told this columnist the Liberal caucus responded too easily to the complaints of some of Canada's politicians and mass media.

He could have added Western Canada as well. Wheat comes first. Then federal government measures to control incoming foreign ships thanks to constant hammering to restrict their activities in our economy from left-wing critics, fellow-travellers and nationalists in the media.

Next come the publicists for social issues calling for action from Ottawa and getting it. Central in the news have been pressure groups clamoring for laws.

And haven't you heard all you want to hear about Mr. Moreenthaler and his "rights?"

If you haven't, he has added more publicity to the case by writing an "open letter" to Prime Minister Trudeau requesting his immediate release!

By comparison with these issues, the crisis central to the livelihood of many in the Maritimes and along the British Columbia coast, over dwp-sea fishing industry, hasn't short-shrift in Ottawa.

On the Grand Banks and beyond, in effect within a 200-mile range of seaward the fishing industry wants declared Canadian territorial waters, our deep-sea fishing industry faces a problem as old as the existence from the mass fishing operations of the Soviet Union, its Eastern European satellites, Spain and Portugal.

On the West Coast, other Soviet fishing fleets complete with integrated factory trawlers which fish, process and package their large catches, are joined by the Japanese fleets—which do the same.

Ottawa's responses including Mr. LeBlanc's publicity to close two ports to the Russians seeking food and water, have been short-term and appallingly make-ready.

National Defence Minister James Richardson, who shows great ineptitude in what to do with his unhappy, disoriented department, has given our sophisticated anti-submarine warfare sleeper exercise the extra task of fisheries surveillance.

This is a very costly way to use war ships built to track and attack Soviet nuclear submarines, especially when they are already under Ottawa's orders to practice great restraint in their fuel consumption.

No wonder Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores has been talking about a reconsideration of the confederation agreement.

What he wants along with Maritime members of Parliament, including those from Mr. LeBlanc's Liberal party in power, is a declaration by Canada of North Atlantic territoriality out to 200 miles, before the seas are fished out by the Russian fleets.

In all other world fishing nations, many with fewer other resources to rely on than Canada, like Peru, Ghana or Chile, come with no other resources than the products of the sea for national income, like Iceland, such extended territorial waters are declared and self-policed.

Iceland with Russian gunboats takes on the Royal Navy. Peru with German and British basic naval torpedo boats challenges the U.S. Navy.

Canada's NATO naval power with a huge civil fleet of 150 ships and 5,000 men is second longest coastline on the Atlantic, Pacific and Arctic, has no one.

And all the Trudeau Government wants to do is wait and see.

Ex-Argonaut, Trade Minister, George Hees One of a Kind

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There aren't very many in the House of Commons like the Hon. George Harris Hees, Conservative MP for the Ontario constituency of Prince Edward-Hastings.

Correction: There aren't any, there is only the one most copy.

Twenty-five year veteran of Parliament.

Sportsman, businessman, and as a politician a man of great heart and a man of his word.

George Hees tells you he'll do something, no matter how important or trivial it may seem at the time. He'll do it. Whether it takes a minute or takes months.

Look at his life's track record: Once a Toronto Argonaut football star. World War Two brigade major who flew home to help fight the political battle no-conscription policy, and play a key role in the North Grey byelection defeat of General A.G.L. MacNaughton, the prewar Liberal defence minister replacing the dismissed James L. Ralston.

George Hees was a member of the "Flathacker Original," when the Tories, for the first time and so far the last time in 40 years, held power in 1867 through 72, as Minister of Transport and then, of Trade and Commerce.

Over the go-go guy, he gave Trade and Commerce its greatest years ever with his phenomenal ideas, plans and outfitting embassadors with the other THOUSANDS of samples for "You Can't Do Business Sitting on Your Ass." Hees is a very real way, has been his creed.

Always in great shape — he swings around Parliament Hill with the disciplined gait of a military man and does a jump-to lengths of Chateau Laurier pool every working day — he has a rapport with Prime Minister Trudeau.

They have their own body language — an exchange of quips and signs and signals that alone can read — and relpice in the shaft and chiv. Always in fun.

They had a go-round the other day when George Hees turned 65 and was asked in the Commons as a Senior Citizen by Liberal Member Stanfield.

It was on behalf of the Prime Minister that Mr. Stanfield said he wanted to be kept in straight congratulations.

Health Minister Marc Lalande answered it back with the promise of a special presentation of the first of the new Senior Citizens' identity cards.

He promised to be on the watch, too, for George Hees' application for the old age pension and said that if he cared to apply for a senior citizen's New Horizons grant, it would be given "careful consideration."

All good fun, but serious business stuff because the Prime Minister was missing.

Bad luck! If the PM was there, and George Hees was in first and fast with the shaft.

He said he knew his pal Pierre had been "very disappointed not to have been in the House the day before to write me happy birthday . . . but I want to assure him that I have forgiven him and to assure that I'm volunteering as his coach and sparring partner as he trains for that very important wrestle match he will take part in next year at the summer Olympics in wrestling, inflation to the ground in front of the main stadium."

Hees, who is a coach him some tricky moves perhaps stabbing even him in the back, is a good no-far-asking wrestling match against the most wily opponent."

As coach and sparring partner to the Prime Minister, he added, "I'm giving serious training program of research develop, meet a program of greater Canadian productivity and more intensive competition in world markets" and thereby prevent the current recession from sinking into depression."

It was the old work-work, work, self-sell and VICENOVA stuff of the go-go days in Trade and Commerce.

And the Prime Minister bought it.

But first there was a little counter-kidding.

He was glad that "old George Hees," as a new Senior Citizen was "actively participating in the life of the community in every way."

And, yes, he was ready for a little coaching in tricky moves, perhaps even the old skipping rope he thought he might have the better of senior citizen Hees."

Not to believe it, moried George Hees. They would race down the ski hills yard whirlpool, "and I'll hold you to it."

It was dandy with Old Pal, and as for George Hees' tips on how to get the economy up off its recessional butt, he would "examine the representations as I consider all suggestions from senior citizens."

Audrey Hepburn Back at Work in Spain

MONTE URBASA, Spain (AP) — "I never said that I was going to quit acting to retire," says Audrey Hepburn. "Retirement means that if you do another picture, that's a comeback. I'm not having a 'comeback.' I may never make another movie."

Miss Hepburn, back at work after an eight-year absence, was sitting on a tree stump overlooking a plain in Spain where Robin Hood and the sheriff of Nottingham were battling early in the filming of Robin and Marian.

"You take an awful chance every time you make a film; you never know how it's going to come out," she said. "But I must say I've been very lucky."

After a few roles in minor English films, she won the 1953 Oscar for best actress in Roman Holiday. Four nominations followed—Sabrina, Breakfast at Tiffany's, The Nun's Story and Wait Until Dark. And there were other remarkable roles in Funny Face, How to Steal a Million, War and Peace and My Fair Lady.

Suddenly the pictures stopped. Her marriage to Mel Ferrer ended, and she married Italian psychiatrist Andrea Dotti, maintaining homes in Italy and Switzerland.

"I guess everyone reaches a point in his life where he wants to find out who he is and what he wants his life to be.

"When you're in films, it means that you're completely absorbed for three months or more; your life isn't your own. It's not so bad when your children are very young. But it becomes hard when your son says, 'Why do you have to go away for so long?'"

She has two sons, Sean Ferrer, 15, and Luca Dotti, 5. She agreed to do Robin and Marian because it requires only two months and is being filmed in the summer, when her sons are on holidays.

"I am incredibly busy," she said. "When you have three men to care for, as I do, there is scarcely time for anything else. The mornings are devoted to my younger son; then in the afternoon my older son comes home from school. The Italians have different working hours, and my husband doesn't finish with his appointments until nine. So the evenings are his. He also comes home for lunch, which is a rather civilized custom, I think.

"People are always asking me if I'm not bored being just all. I'm sure some women who have to do housework find it tedious; fortunately I don't have to. I find my life very stimulating. I am a very fortunate person."

Ag Show Popular

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — A 34-year-old Canadian has made a return visit to Britain's Royal Show after 20 years, and after touring the show his reaction was: "It now must rank as the greatest agricultural show in the world."

Bob Brydon of Lanark, Ont., who has spent a lifetime managing property and cattle farming, came to Britain just to see the Royal Show, the country's premier agricultural event, and two other important shows in the British agricultural calendar, the Royal Highland and Royal Yorkshire.

After touring the permanent Royal Show site at Stoneleigh in the Midlands, Brydon said of the show: "It is just fantastic. I never expected it to be so big. I used to take part in these shows many years ago, having started when I was 11. The last one I took part in was in 1965. Then I moved to Argentina, and eventually to Canada."

Brydon toured both cattle and machinery exhibits at the show — which has broken records for livestock entries and for attendance—and he also saw the Duke of Gloucester present agricultural machinery awards. The show ended July 3.

Brydon said: "British agriculture is obviously in a very strong position if it can produce a show of this standard. Some of the machinery I have seen has shown particular advancements in economy of farming methods, and I have seen many things at the show which show real inventiveness and [illegible] just three shows, and already I feel that it was a worthwhile investment.

More Shoppers Use Coupons Now

Thrifty shoppers are more likely to use discount coupons than in the past according to the majority of supermarket managers in Belleville.

"We go through quite a few coupons", says Tom Brownlee, manager of Amodeo's Super Save Market.

On an average, Mr. Brownlee says the store redeems $2 to $4 in coupons a day, of the coupons generally valued at 10 to 25 cents.

"People are more money conscious these days. We are even getting more bottles brought back he says.

Sam Mulholland, manager of Food City, says the use of discount coupons is up 35 to 45 per cent in the last six to nine months at his store.

"If you can buy a product with 10 cents or 15 cents off, you are going to take advantage of it," says Mr. Mulholland.

The assistant head checker at Loblaws, Lorraine Gill says the great majority of shoppers return coupons.

"In one week, we sometimes redeem $60 to $70," she adds.

Mrs. Gill says people are turning in the discount coupons because of the savings available.

A similar situation is occuring at A & P, says Floyd Bell, store manager.

The people are getting larger redemptions for their coupons says Mr. Bell, resulting in the increased use.

"People are looking after their money because of the economic conditions," he adds.

At the Dominion Store, the use of discount coupons has increased by over 75 per cent this year compared to last year says Jim St. Louis, assistant-manager.

"When you get 10 cents off a can of cat food, for example, that's 10 cents saved."

At Miracle Food Mart, store manager Robert McGall finds the opposite situation, Coupon use has decreased.

"We get very few coupons. The coupons we get mainly are for baby foods and coffee," says Mr. McGall.

Mr. McGall says there has not been much use of the coupons within the last six months because of consumer resistance.

"Compared to four years ago, it's not as much. Presently the coupons are confined to about four or five items," says Mr. McGall.

The use of the discount coupons, although prevalent in the past, seems to be on the increase elsewhere as one means to combat inflation.

Shopping Habits Change As Prices Increase

Shoppers aren't turning in more coupons at Fenboro Groceries but proprietor Marian Madden says that they've changed their buying habits in the last two years.

"We used to sell more t.v. dinners then we do now," she says.

"They've basically gone back to old ways. People are cooking a lot more. For a long time, it was whatever was quick but now people are cooking again."

Mrs. Madden, who worked in Fenboro Groceries for several years before subsequently becoming the owner with husband Carl, says that for years she was afraid little children would grow up thinking a potato was a frozen french fry.

"Now we're selling potatoes again. People are even making ice cream. I hadn't heard of that for years. Ingredients for home made soups and casseroles are more popular, too."

Mrs. Madden adds that many of the customers who insist on "making their own" are young people.

"They don't come in for pancake mix, they come in for the stuff to make pancakes," she says.

Slimmed Down and Layered for Fall

NEW YORK (CP) — Clothing for fall, as indicated by the American designers who showed their lines here recently, shapes up as a slimmed down, wrapped up and layered season.

The big emphasis is directed at the Oriental look, achieved in the showing of padded jackets with classic Chinese side closings and the return of the stand-up mandarin collar. Touches of Japanese and Chinese embroidery added to the styles complete the aura of the Far East.

The big bulky coats and capes of last fall and winter are replaced by pared down versions, although layer upon layer is still very much in evidence.

But for fall '75 there are some new ideas such as two coats in varying fabrics worn over a suit or a skirt, sweater and skirt. Yet the total shape isn't bulky as one would imagine, instead, it comes off as a total look where individuality can come into play by mixing light, medium-weight and even heavier textures of fabrics.

Skirts too are much slimmer, but soft. Mohair which gives a certain fluffy but light warm look was featured in a variety of skirt and jacket combinations.

Big, triangular shawls appeared with every type of outfit whether it be for day or night. Finally, a return for both casual and evening wear is the jumpsuit. It's seen under slimmer wrap coats and is often worn with an open front and printed shirt.

At left, fall news in casual co-ordinates features the wrap skirt, sweaters and shawls. These outfits with matching shawls and knitted Tibetan caps co-ordinate with gabardine skirts for J.L. Sport.

The layered look for fall by Calvin Klein in an outer rainshell over a camel hair balmacaan worn over trousers and a camel hair turtleneck. A long scarf finishes off the look.

Ann Landers

Burglary Victim Criticized

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I was the victim of a burglary. The story appeared in the newspaper. I immediately began to receive phone calls from all sorts of people, giving me hell for being so stupid as to own "valuable things." I was chewed out unmercifully for keeping jewelry and a fine coin collection in my home.

The last straw was yesterday when an old friend phoned me at the office and became hysterical. She called me every dirty name she could think of—screaming at the top of her lungs. Several people near me could hear every word she said. I was so humiliated I finally hung up on her.

The Kitchener police had questioned this woman's son about the burglary. He was asked to give them a list of everyone who had been in my home for the past two months. She and her son happened to be among them. I have no power over whom the police question and I was devastated by this woman's attack.

Will you kindly print my letter and put the matter into proper perspective?—Nale To The Whole Human Race

Dear Hassan: Drop Mrs. Fire Bomb a note and tell her you did not appreciate her phone call. Explain that the police questioned everyone who had been in your home for the past several weeks and that you were in no way responsible for their procedures.

By the time your letter arrives, she will no doubt have cooled off. If not, this column should help clear her sinuses.

Dear Ann Landers: What I am about to write is hard to put into words but I will try.

My brother, Larry, who is 16, started me on drugs when I was 13. I am now 15. Today I decided to quit. My brother was busted last night. I have never seen my mother cry before and it broke my heart.

Larry was driving around town with some friends. They had a couple of 8ds of pot and a case of beer and some wine in the car when they were stopped by the police. One of the headlights was out. When the cops saw the beer they began to search further and found the pot.

Tell your readers out there who think they can get away with it forever that my brother bought the same way. It's a shame how many kids don't quit till they get busted. Please warn them to spare themselves and their families a lot of grief and quit NOW. Sign me—One Step Ahead.

Dear One Step: You warned them and I hope it does some good.

I'm in favor of removing criminal penalties for the possession of small quantities of marijuana, but until that is done in your state it is foolhardy to take chances.

My position on the LEGALIZATION of pot is unchanged. I am AGAINST it.

Dear Ann Landers: Every year about this time my husband starts to nag me to go to a nudist camp with him. He says it is healthy and very recreational.

I have no interest whatever in this sort of recreation and have told him he can go without me if he wishes, but to please leave me out of his plans. What are your views, Ann?—Anonymous, Of Course

Dear Ann: You've given Nature Boy permission to go alone. I believe your generosity should end there.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who is as good as gold. I love her dearly. But she can't throw away a newspaper or a magazine. Her apartment has stacks in every corner, on every chair and table. A person can't find a place to sit down.

I worry because she smokes a lot and is carelessness with her cigarettes. I'm afraid one day the whole place will go up in flames. Any advice?—Concerned

Dear C.: "Golkie" is a menace to her neighbors as well as herself. Her neurosis could cause a disaster. Tell her that if she doesn't get rid of the fire hazards you'll report her to the apartment manager because you love her and want her around a while. Then do it.

The oriental influence is prominent in fall'75 fashion look. Mandarin collared tunic worn over pinstripe flannel trousers (left) and Kabuki jacket and trousers with an angora-and-wool turtleneck sweater are two designs that illustrate the interest in the Far East.

Reject Settlement

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Striking workers at the Trend-It-Flush quality processing plant rejected a tentative settlement Thursday night by a vote of 75 to 53.

The workers began their strike July 9 and were joined the following day by workers at the Canada Packers Ltd. plant at Walkerton, about 100 miles north of here.

The Walkerton workers voted earlier this week to accept an agreement similar to the one reflected by the Tend-It-Flush workers.

Air Canada Officer Defends Travel Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — Yves Menard, the central figure in several controversies involving Air Canada, further defended his actions Thursday at an inquiry into the question of why he would complete a $100,000 payment he arranged with travel agent B.W.T. McGregor if he were still with the airline.

The inquiry into Air Canada's financial operations was told the transaction was for the acquisition of stock in a proposed national travel agency being promoted by the Montreal travel agent.

For legal reasons, the payment was described in letters of agreement as being for "consulting services."

Mr. Menard, former Air Canada vice-president of marketing, said: "My conception of the consulting services were essentially things which could be logically done by Mr. McGregor as an individual but not forgotten this thing was for the acquisition of stock."

He said when the transaction became public he never felt he had to back-pedal or cover up his actions.

Mr. Menard, who resigned last February, said Thursday he did not never think with a former employer. Herdt and Charton Inc., when he joined the airline in 1970.

The company, which specializes in the sale of wines, cosmetics and pharmaceuticals, supplied Air Canada with red wine for domestic flights during Mr. Menard's employment.

Mr. Menard described his relationship with Herdt and Charton after 1970 as a "counsel" to the board of directors. He denied that this relationship influenced the airline's purchase of wine.

Air Canada chairman Yves Pratte said Wednesday he would not have tolerated the arrangement had he known about it at the time.

Police Deny Seizing Large Sum at Midway

EDMONTON (CP) — The Edmonton police said Thursday police raid at the Edmonton exhibition grounds earlier Thursday his men seized a large amount of cash from an American midway operator.

Staff Insp. W. H. Stewart of Edmonton city police denied reports police seized $750,000 in cash and jewelry from the trailers and offices of Royal American Shows.

However, records and ledgers of the Florida-based company were seized during the five-hour operation. No charges laid against two employees for unlawful possession of firearms, he said.

Insp. Stewart refused to reveal the reason for the raid, saying it may be weeks before its cause is sorted out.

The firm's business manager, Guy Gardner, was put over to June 26 and ordered on charge of possessing an unregistered firearm. He pleaded not guilty in provincial court.

In an earlier court appearance, show employee Stanley Goldworm pleaded guilty to possessing an unregistered restricted weapon, and was fined $100 or 20 days in jail.

About 120 city policemen and RCMP officers searched the grounds and cars leaving the gates in the largest joint police operation ever held in the city.

Wrong Time Frame

Gazette Apologizes to Reid

MONTREAL (Cm) — In its lead editorial today, The Gazette made a partial apology to Finance Minister Jean-Pierre Reid while reaffirming its claim that Mr. Reid told the newspaper he had access to confidential budget information.

In its Thursday editorial, The Gazette quoted Mr. Reid as saying he had prior knowledge of a proposed federal excise tax on larger motorbikes as motors.

Mr. Reid Liberal MP for Kenora-Rainy River and secretary to Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, denied the newspaper report later Thursday in the House of Commons and demanded a retraction and an apology.

In today's editorial, The Gazette said the proposed excise tax was first introduced in the May, 1974, budget and reappeared in the November budget.

Mr. Reid said in the Commons he suspected the government would revive the excise tax after the November budget. He had no advance information, he said, but believed he had a hunch he sent a letter to a manufacturing company on Dec. 18 predicting that the government would withdraw the excise tax. An amendment removing the excise tax was introduced Jan. 28.

The Gazette editorial said: "Smaller boats were already excluded in the November budget provision" and a reporter thought Mr. Reid was referring to this in an interview "rather than to a post-budget amendment of Jan. 28 under which boats were exempted entirely, no matter of what size."

Mr. Reid has confirmed to us he told our reporter that 'we put on a hobby and we knew about six weeks before it was announced that it was coming off the boats but not the motors'," the editorial said.

"We apologize for putting his disclosures in the wrong time frame in an editorial on the front page of yesterday's Gazette owing to a misunderstanding," the editorial said.

"The divulgence of inside information on a tax change prior to public announcement is, however, just as serious whether tax change is included in the budget or in an amendment.

"So long as the intended tax change remains secret from the general public, there is advantage to particular interests concerned. But the moment the warning of what is to happen," the editorial said.

CBC Hit For Answers Given Senator

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator George Fergusson (—Ontario) said Thursday that replies from the CBC to questions about the appearance of Gerda Munsinger in a television interview show were "contemptuous non-answers."

He said in the Senate the CBC's statement that it is not customary to provide details about its internal affairs is a bad custom and it's time Parliament asserted its right to get this information.

Senator Forsey had said eight questions about Mrs. Munsinger's appearance on the Barbara Frum show last month to discuss the mid-1960s when her name was linked with those of a former associate defence minister, Pierre Sevigny, and former Conservative trade minister George Hees.

The written reply from Privy Council President Mitchell Sharp said the RCMP is unable to say if Mrs. Munsinger had a criminal record, without getting her fingerprints for identification.

Senator Forsey said he had never heard such a preposterous statement. He might just as well insist on a charge of possessing an unregistered firearm. He pleaded not guilty in provincial court.

In an earlier court appearance, show employee Stanley Goldworm pleaded guilty to possessing an unregistered restricted weapon, and was fined $100 or 20 days in jail.

About 120 city policemen and RCMP officers searched the grounds and cars leaving the gates in the largest joint police operation ever held in the city.

London Blast Cuts Power

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Power was restored to most of London's downtown area late Thursday after an explosion and fire at Ontario Hydro's southeast sub-station in mid-morning caused a blackout in the central part of the city.

Public utilities officials said power will be restored to the rest of the downtown area "sometime today," but added it will take more than a week to repair damage to the station and replace burned-out equipment.

No one was injured in the explosion and fire, which blacked out institutions, office buildings and about 10,000 homes.

Alex Dobronyi, assistant manager of the public utilities commission, said the fire began in side one of the sub-station's four transformers. The cause is under investigation and no estimate of damage has been made.

Police temporarily evacuated the area near the sub-station because of danger of high-tension wires falling. Burning oil created thick black smoke which hampered firefighters.

A Hydro official said he was concerned that water poured onto the station might cause short-circuits in other equipment. Hydro crews from several western Ontario cities worked into the early-morning hours and used two of the transformers to restore power. A third will be tested later today for water damage.

All traffic lights in the area were without power and citizens helped police direct traffic. Most stores closed when the blackout began.

Large buildings such as hospitals had alternate diesel generators.

At St. Joseph's Hospital, the emergency power switched on for about a minute before it failed.

The hospital was left without power for about 10 minutes, and some operations were completed with flashlights. Cause of the failure was not known.

A hospital spokesman said all operations were completed successfully.

Rodney Thorfinnson, executive director of Victoria Hospital, said visitors were allowed into the hospital during the blackout, but were restricted to visiting critically ill patients.

Thames Valley Ambulance diverted all calls to University Hospital, which was not affected.

The London police station and the main fire hall also were affected, but their emergency power systems functioned properly.

Hydro Raises Power Price To Cover Pollution Damage

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro has added two per cent to its average price for power sold to the United States to cover the costs of repairing pollution damage caused by its coal-fired generating stations, it was disclosed Thursday.

Wallace H. Winter, Hydro's operating engineer, told an Ontario Energy Board hearing that the figure is based on a consultant's report completed in February at a cost of $75,000.

The report says that the additional $1 million to be collected this year from Hydro's "social cost" charge will go into the utility's general revenue, even though it is to compensate for "those costs incurred outside Ontario Hydro as a result of the additional generation for export sales."

Officials from Energy Probe of the Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC), the two organizations whose intervention at National Energy Board hearings in 1973 led Hydro to write the report, say the utility refused to give them a copy of the report before the energy board hearing begun.

Andrew Kerekes, lawyer for the CAC, said the association did not cross-examine Hydro because it did not have time to study the report's contents before the hearing.

In 1973, Pollution Probe calculated the cost of pollution at about a just one generating plant near Toronto to be $8.5 million for its added yearly output in 1974. Pollution Probe and the CAC argued that pollution from Hydro would be eaten up by the costs of increased pollution.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo astronauts have opened a new field of astronomy by discovering a source of ultraviolet radiation outside the solar system.

The importance of the discovery is yet to be determined, but it could uncover new secrets of the universe.

We have made definite confirmation of an extreme ultraviolet source outside of our solar system which is the first time such detection has been made," said Dr. Thomas Gull, chief scientist for the flight.

He said the experiment opens a new branch of astronomy, "in fact . . . the only remaining branch of astronomy to be opened."

Scientists won't know until they analyze data from the returning spacecraft what causes the extreme ultraviolet radiation. They know that the area, in the constellation Coma Berenices, includes a "white dwarf"—an old, dying star.

The Apollo astronauts pointed their instruments at four "ringers"—suspected sources of extreme ultraviolet emissions. The first three produced nothing.

Prof. C. S. Bowyer of the University of California at Berkeley, the principal scientist on the experiment, said the fourth target was selected because of two intriguing observations.

Last November, a rocket flight saw a "soft x-ray source" in that portion of the sky. Last month a Massachusetts Institute of Technology satellite saw the same size source in the same area.

"So that was a candidate that looked like it was potentially an intriguing thing," Bowyer said. "In fact, that turned out to be the one that blew us off"the panel.

"It just came booming out at us just as we looked at the data as it came across the console.

"I don't know what it is and I don't know what it means," Bowyer said. "But with NASA we're going to find out, I hope."

Bowyer said scientists could only guess about what kinds of physical phenomena could produce the extreme ultraviolet radiation. There have been no visible observations of the source, although scientists know the area and know that the source is in the 100 to 250 angstrom range.

Pay $10.48 an Hour

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — About 650 members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners in Sudbury, Timmins and North Bay have ratified an agreement giving a wage increase of $2.78 an hour over two years, bringing the hourly rate to $10.48 an hour in the second year.

Police Deny Seizing Large Sum at Midway

No Dramatic Change Likely In Regional Setup: McKeough

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Thursday:

"Whether the decentralization of powers from the province properly placed at the regional or municipal level is a matter we are constantly reviewing," he said.

Mr. McKeough is visiting newly-formed regional councils and spent several hours Thursday with the Peel region council.

The regions of Peel, Halton, Durham and Hamilton-Wentworth were established Jan. 1, 1974.

"I hope you are not looking for anything dramatic in the way of changes," he said. "I feel a region should operate five to 10 years before substantial changes are explained."

He told regional councillors had two formal reviews of the regional system of government in the country in Metropolitan Toronto and Ottawa-Carleton.

"Keep your eyes open for reviews. See what input is being made and what comes out of this input."

Mr. McKeough also said his ministry is studying methods of equalizing capital budgets earlier each year.

"It seems sensible to us to have one government—the provincial government—during its fiscal year than asking 850 municipalities to change theirs."

He also said the province will clear up inequities caused by municipal financing of police forces.

In many areas of the province, such as Caledon, about 40 miles north of Toronto, taxpayers were paying $30 per capita toward local police while their neighbors across the road were not being levied for police services.

Century Place Construction to Continue Uninterrupted

Braces supporting the north wall of the Army, Navy, Air Force club on Front St. will remain in place until an engineering study has been completed. The wall was shored up after excavation for the adjacent Century Place building at the Four Corners apparently weakened the structure.

Work on the Century Place project will continue uninterrupted "even if we have to pour concrete around the braces and take them out later," said Brian Holmes of Cornerstone Holdings Ltd., general contractors for Century Place.

Members of the executive of the veterans' club, under consultation with a lawyer, have commissioned a study to be made of the wall which apparently sustained damage during Century Place blasting operations.

Two weeks ago when news of a study was released, it was also announced the club's second floor, Tartan Lounge would be closed. The lounge remains closed.

John Miller, lawyer for the club, said in an interview Friday he does not know if the engineering study has been completed.

Builders deny the wall posed any danger with or without the braces but are waiting for completion of the study. Several studies have already been made by the builders.

The club study was to have been completed by last week.

Mr. Holmes said during interview Thursday workers will begin pouring the front half of the ground floor this week. The floor will be poured around the braces. Encased in sleeves, the braces will later be taken out.

"We're convinced the wall is absolutely safe — but in the interest of safety we are leaving the shores (braces) in place until the study is completed," said Mr. Holmes.

Mr. Holmes said his firm, if necessary, will keep right on building around the braces to keep up with a schedule that calls for completion of cement pouring by the end of September.

"It's just a great big inconvenience," said Mr. Holmes.

Commenting on the project in general, Mr. Holmes said everything is proceeding "nicely" and that bricklayers will be erecting walls within the next two weeks.

All floors will be poured by September and the building completely closed in by the end of December, said Mr. Holmes. "Everything is on schedule."

The multi - million dollar project will house two ground floors of commercial space topped off with three floors of office area.

Building Starts Down But Year Still Looks Good

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Permits for new construction in Belleville so far this month total $360,000 — only a third of the value of permits issued in the same month last year when permits totalled $1.7 million.

Rollins Construction apartment commented Brian Pollard, assistant city building inspector.

Of the total, $400,000 is accounted for in a single most project at the corner of Greer and College Sts.

Mr. Pollard explained the gap between the totals for the two years is largely accountable from a single permit issued last July for a townhouse, condominium project. That permit was valued at $1.1 million.

On a year-to-date comparison, however, 1975 has been a year of increases. So far this year, value of building permits issued adds up to $9.3 million compared to $8.8 million during the corresponding period last year.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, in an interview Friday, said the total for the year to date is the important factor to consider.

"I'm happy that Belleville builders are not only holding their own, but have increased in building value over last year," said the mayor. "Mortgage money is scarce and costly but still there is a positive attitude I think."

"It looks like another good, positive year," she said.

Commenting on the number of single family units constructed, Mayor Jeffrey said mortgage money is playing an important part in holding down the numbers of units constructed.

"Buyers (buyers) are afraid of the high interest rates and I can understand that," said Mayor Jeffrey.

Cutting Up

Len Shanque, proprietor of White's Meat Market on Market Square, prepares a side of beef for his customers. White's, the oldest existing meat market in Belleville will close following a week-long sale on Saturday, July 2, after more than 50 years of community service.

Bata Plant Entered

It appeared to be thirsty work for unknown thieves who broke into the Norimco Division of Bata Industries Ltd. warehouse at 27 Albion St. here sometime Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

City police said today thieves stole several bottles of soft drinks from a refrigerator along with 120 in cash and a calculator.

They also removed three fire extinguishers — emptying their contents over papers on the inside — leaving two there and discarding one on the outside grounds.

Entry was gained by breaking a window.

White's Closing Doors After 43-year Operation

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Almost all the color has gone out of the Belleville butcher business.

Now that White's Meat Market, 18½ McAnnany St. on the Market Square has announced it will close at the end of the month, only Black's is left where once there was also Green's and Black's butcher shops.

White's Meat Market, the oldest existing butcher shop in Belleville will close its doors to the public Saturday, August 2, after a week long meat sale following more than 50 years of serving the public.

Len Shanque, proprietor of White's since he purchased it from Joe White in 1972, said he is just bowing to the inevitable.

"It didn't matter when I closed, now or a year from now," he said, "I can't afford to re-open the store so I decided to close it sooner."

The original store on the site was owned by William White and opened before 1919 according to local sources.

James White took over the operation and renamed it in 1931 and worked it until his sons Stan and Joe assumed control in 1945.

Slaughtering used to be done in the butcher shop but it was stopped out in 1955, said Joe White, because of the impositions of government regulations.

"We used to slaughter cattle for many of the area farmers," said Mr. White, "but it was made illegal."

The main change he remembers in the business is the switch from handwork to the use of electrical saws, making the work easier, Mr. White said.

Len Shanque said the main difference in the meat business is customers buy larger orders and freezer is where they used to come in daily to purchase the meats.

Mr. Shanque has been holding a liquidation sale for the last week, selling of all of his equipment.

Unemployed Can Now Have Witness During Interview with UIC Officer

The Unemployment Insurance Commission district office here has re-instituted a policy whereby a claimant may have a witness or representative accompany him to an interview with a benefit control officer, says Bill Hockley of the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre here.

Mr. Hockley said in an interview Thursday the centre learned the policy had been discontinued early this year. "I guess the benefit control officers must have kicked up a stink about it," he commented.

He said the centre complained about the action July 7 in a letter to Guy Coulstan, UIC chairman in Ottawa but whether a written or verbal answer has been received.

However, the centre was notified early Thursday by Vaughn Storey, district office manager here, that the policy now is back in force, Mr. Hockley said.

"Whether our letter was responsible or not, we don't know," he remarked. "It really is a big step."

Mr. Hockley emphasized the policy is not mandatory. "If a person doesn't want a representative present, he doesn't have to have one," he said.

Bert Gerling, another centre staff member, pointed out claimants without a good command of the English language, or who are easily intimidated, or who are not eloquent and might not discern a distorted statement written on his behalf on his claim by a benefit control officer, "are the ones who would benefit from having a representative present."

Mr. Hockley explained part of the centre's duties are "representing the cases of claimants before a board of referees for unemployment insurance." He added centre members have also acted as witnesses during benefit control officer interviews.

He said the centre feels many problems resulting from these interviews stem from some unethical officer or other who are ill-educated in their duties.

"They feel claimants are soft touches," he noted. "They ask leading questions."

Mr. Hockley commented, "it appears to us the benefit control officer is only concerned with finding a way to cut off benefit payments."

He said the centre's charges are substantiated by the fact that out of 35 appeals to the board of referees in which the centre has participated, 3 concerned lack of objectivity on the part of benefit control officers.

Mr. Hockley added that Mr Story informed the centre of another move (that the centre advocated) which will further safeguard the rights of claimants.

He said the new practice will mean benefit control and insurance officers can be brought before an appeal board hearing to back up their decisions if board chairman agrees.

Safety Study Underway

Work continues on schedule at the multi-million dollar Century Place project at the corner of Front and Bridge streets, while engineers determine the soundness of the wall of the Army, Navy, Air Force club next door. The wall apparently was damaged during project blasting operations. Since the blasting, a number of braces have been jammed against the wall. A spokesman for Century Place builders said "the wall is perfectly safe."

Students Say Exchange Program Great Experience

Preconceived ideas are not always accurate, said two participants in the Ontario-Quebec student exchange program, sponsored locally by the Rotary Club.

Beth Pollard, 14 of Belleville and Sonia Rioux, of Baie-Comeau Quebec said recently the program, which ended Thursday and was financed by the Canadian Council of Christian and Jews, was a valuable learning experience for them.

"I thought the people, their family life and customs would be different," Beth said in and interview, "but I discovered it was just the same as Belleville aside from the language."

"I also thought the town would be a small and dinghy place but I discovered it was as large in area as Belleville even though it had less people," said Beth.

Beth said she was surprised that everyone in the small French-Canadian town spoke a bit of English while Sonia was not worried about language difference in Belleville.

"I have met very few in Belleville who are bilingual" she said, "but this has not bothered me."

The girls were each impressed by the towns they visited but by different things.

"I really was pleased to find out they have a large recreation centre and program for teenagers in Baie-Comeau," said Beth "Belleville has nothing like it."

"They have dances every couple of days, movies and the games room is open every day so you can drop in when ever you want."

Sonia said she was astonished by how large and green vegetation Belleville was.

"I really liked the way the trees formed an arch over the streets (Bridge)," she said, "in Baie-Comeau the downtown area has no trees and is not as beautiful."

The girls plan to continue the exchange program through the mail and said they might exchange letters again next year, with their families.

Picking Porkers

More than 150 4-H members from Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland counties gathered Thursday at the Belleville Fairgrounds to compare their knowledge of animals and crops. Judging competitions were held for dairy cattle, swine, field crops, beef cattle and horses. Here a penfull of pigs, doing what comes naturally on a hot summer day, is assessed by, from the left: Dale Martin, Tweed; Kevin Sills, Roslin; Jack Gunning, Tweed; Stephen and Gerry Fox, Wooler.

New Process Restores Old Building Exterior

By RON HUUSER
Staff Reporter

A new method of cleaning masonry buildings is being used on the Belleville Club building on the corner of Bridge St. and Pinnacle St.

Westlake Pressure Cleaning Systems of Kingston is using a chemical system to avoid abrasion.

"It's not sandblasting. It is a combination of pressure and a chemical process," says Jack Stanton, one of the firm's employees.

"The system was developed about a year ago by a man in Cincinnati," he said.

"The chemical not only cleans the surface. It stays in the brick and acts to preserve," says Mr. Stanton.

Mr. Stanton's fellow workers Bernie Kehoe says sandblasting weakens the structures of the building by removing some of the mortar whereas the chemical cleaner does not.

"This method is also better for the worker's health," says Mr. Stanton.

The dust resulting from sandblasting sometimes is dangerous to the lungs, states Mr. Stanton.

OPP Close Carnival Game

BANCROFT — A carnival currently running in Bancroft under the auspices of the local Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion has had one of its games of chance boobie trap taken down by the Ontario Provincial Police.

Sgt. Dick Cooper of the Bancroft detachment said the OPP said a special police squad from Toronto closed down a "Pitch to Win" both on Thursday evening and has charged Walter Kopite of Brantford Ont., with cheating at play, under a provision in the Criminal Code of Canada.

George Walters, president of the branch 181 of the legion, the sponsors of the carnival said today he had checked into the matter with Bancroft Reeve Russell Hawley and that the carnival will be premitted to remain in the village until Saturday evening as previously planned.

A 17-year-old Belleville youth was treated, and released from hospital Thursday for cuts and bruises suffered in a car-bicycle collision at the intersection of North Front St. and Bell Blvd.

UIC May Increase Prosecution of Fraud

Vaughan Storey, manager of the Unemployment Insurance Commission district office here, confirmed today the UIC will allow claimants, if they so wish, to have representatives accompany them to interviews with benefit control officers.

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre here revealed Thursday the UIC has revoked the practice this week after discontinuing it early this year.

"It had never been a policy," Mr. Storey noted. "It was unwritten."

He said such representatives can only act as observer or witnesses. "They cannot intervene or interfere with an interview."

Mr. Storey also confirmed benefit control and insurance officers can be brought before a board of referees when a claimant's appeal is heard "but that would at the discretion of the board chairmen."

However, the UIC will embark on a program to cut down on fraud. "There's more concentration now in the area of seeking out fraud earnings," he commented.

"I think possibly our rate of prosecution will increase rather than penalizing claimants under the act," he said.

Cleaning It Up

Workers Jack Stanton, left, and Bernie Kehoe, are cleaning the sidewalk after finishing a morning's work cleaning the mortar on the building on the corner of Bridge Street and Pinnacle Street. The building is being cleaned by a new method using pressure and a chemical compound. The system was devised about a year ago in Cincinatti, and acts not only as a cleaner but as a preservative.

It Could Be Do Or Die Weekend for Alston's Dodgers

But he may be on the verge of losing his shot at home at a playoff team. In other words, it's a do-or-die weekend for the Dodgers.

And while a lot of people seem to feel the Dodgers already have one foot in the coffin and can only step out of it by sweeping four games from Cincinnati this weekend, Alston is an unflappable as ever.

"I feel that we have to win six of our remaining 11 games with the Reds to stand a chance," he blithely announced Thursday. "But no one game is any bigger than another."

"Until we can get it together against the rest of the teams, it looks like the only way we're going to get close again is in the head-to-head games with Cincinnati," said Dodger Steve Garvey. "We need to take this series and more than the obvious reason. Maybe it can help us get our adrenalin going again."

They got it going Thursday against St. Louis, routing the Cardinals 9-2 behind Tiant's victory. Los Angeles remained a whopping 13 games back of the Reds in the National League West going into this evening's doubleheader in Cincinnati.

The Reds retained their lead by beating New York 2-1. In the rest of the league, Atlanta beat Philadelphia 5-4, Houston edged Montreal 6-5 and Chicago defeated San Francisco 4-3.

Garvey drove in two runs while Steve Yeager homered and singled twice to back Burt Hooton, six-hitter that ended the Cardinals five-game winning streak.

The Reds beat Mets' ace reliever Tom Seaver for the 19th time in 25 career decisions and the third time in four decisions this year, all that despite the fact that Seaver surpassed the 2,000 strikeout mark in his career, only the 27th pitcher to do so in major league history.

Seaver gave up what proved to be his downfall in the proved to be his downfall in the proved to be his downfall in the Downtown Merchants Ready for Action

Belleville Downtown Merchants got themselves prepared for their upcoming tournament by defeating Springtrack 20-9.

The Bantam Club was strong Tuesday night in their exhibition match and will look for much the same results when they meet Scarborough Cedar Hill in the opening game of the McDonald's Bantam Softball Tournament Saturday.

Three Belleville pitchers combined in the win. Rick Tripp, Ward Morrison and Tim Sorke.The trio gave up 10 hits and five walks while striking out 13.

Bruce Myers took the lost.

Ward Morrison and Bob Hedge pounded homers for the locals.

The 2nd Annual McDonald's Tourney will be played at the Alemite, Queen Victoria diamonds and the GNR.

Teams will be participating from Port Perry, Park, Toronto and Willowdale, to mention a few.

Two of the strongest will be Scarborough and North Bendale, both are rated highly in the among OASA Clubs.

The Belleville team also has a strong lineup even though it consists mostly of first year players.

Leading the club in hitting is Ward Morrison, with an impressive .463 average. Andy Bennett is hitting .434 and Paul Marineau has a .413 batting average.

Doug Campbell is leading the team in homers with seven so far this year.

Rick Tripp has a pitching record of 10-4 while Tim Sonke is 6-3 and Ward Morrison is 1-0.

So far, the Belleville squad has impressed many as a first year Bantam team with a 17-7 record.

The tournament should be representative of talent to come as the Bantams are just at the age where they are considered legitimate prospects.

Riders Finish First In Giveaway Contest

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders emerged the victors Thursday night in an Eastern Football Conference season opener that featured a fourth-quarter contest in giving away the ball.

The Riders, who trailed 16-3 going into the fourth quarter, rallied with a touchdown by rookie quarterback Condredge Holloway and then the game away game began, with the Riders winning up 19-16 winners over Toronto Argonauts.

With about three minutes remaining in the game, Holloway threw his third interception of the night into the arms of Argo linebacker George Anderson.

But after returning the ball only about four yards, Anderson had it punched out of his hands and Ottawa's Tony Gabriel scooped it up, returning it to the Argo 15. Two plays later, John Bledsoe plunged over from the one-yard line to score the winning touchdown.

TONY GABRIEL

But the give-away game continued. With only about 1:45 seconds remaining, Ottawa's Dick Adams failed a punt on third down and ran the ball, gaining only six yards and the Argos took over on the Ottawa 50 with 11 seconds remaining.

"When the guy ran with the ball with 11 seconds to go, I almost died," said Ottawa general manager Frank Clair. Adams later explained that he thought he would be able to run out the clock.

The game breaks a flanker Mike Eben for a 13-yard gain and the Argos had time for Zenon Andrusyshyn to kick the winning field goal from 46 yards.

Ottawa's Ron Woodward sprinted in to block the field goal and end the suspense.

"Our guys overloaded on the other side and Al Marcelin took care of one of the blockers on my side and it left me a free lane," said Woodward. "It's a matter of timing, of getting off the ball and getting there at the right time."

Until the series of late mistakes, the Argos had controlled the game, led by the running of halfback Denny Ellis who picked up 99 yards on 11 carries.

Orange scored Toronto's touchdown on a 13-yard run in the third quarter. It was the Argos' first touchdown in 13 quarters of play, counting preseason exhibition games.

In the first half, Andrusyshyn kicked three field goals, including one from 54 yards, a club record. He added a convert on Orange's touchdown.

Gerry Organ kicked a field goal, two converts and a single for the Riders.

Holloway, the rookie from University of Tennessee showed promise when he took over the Riders offense from second and fourth quarters. His scrambling style particularly upset the Argo defenders and he was the Riders' leading ground gainer with 57 yards on five runs, including his 1-yard touchdown run early in the final quarter.

The game drew a Canadian Football League record crowd of 36,915.

Ealey Has Bombers Flying in 19-7 Victory

WINNIPEG (CP) — Chuck Ealey, a self-admitted slow starter, turned in a stellar performance Thursday to lead Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a 19-7 triumph over British Columbia Lions in the Western Football Conference opener for both clubs.

Ealey, who had been doubted "get his head together" until several weeks into the season, connected on 13 of 20 pass attempts.

Coach Pat Riley said Ealey's steady outing was a large factor in the Bomber victory.

"He called his own game," said Riley. "He read the defenses really well. He called a very diversified game."

Although Ealey's position as the Bombers first-string quarterback was never really in doubt through training camp and the pre-season schedule, coach Riley hinted several times that backup quarterback Ralph Brock would be inserted into the line-up if Ealey failed to move the club.

"I still don't feel up to par," said Ealey after the game. "And I won't be for a couple of weeks yet."

B.C. head coach Eagle Keys made no excuses for the Lions' lacklustre performance.

He singled out Bomber rookie linebacker Harry Walters as playing a particularly impressive game for the Lions defeat.

"Their pursuit was good. Walters played a good game in the middle but that didn't surprise me."

CHUCK EALEY

While Ealey was masterminding the Bomber attack, rookie Bob Mascotti and Richard Crump injected some badly needed potency into the Bomber offensive attack.

Crump, a 20-year-old bulldozing running back, accumulated 70 yards on 15 carries to energize the game's most effective runner. Mascotti, a former school teacher, booted three field goals, a convert and a single to account for all but six of the Bomber's 17 points.

Winnipeg's major score came in the second quarter when a defensive back Bob Poole intercepted a pass from B.C. quarterback Jim Spoorhard and ran 70 yards for a touchdown. Bombers marched another Mazzotti field goal and also made two fumble recoveries.

Moorhead, replaced in the fourth quarter by Peter Liske, completed 11 of 20 passes to contribute to the Lions' meagre passing yardage of 91 yards. Liske completed just one of four pass attempts.

Lou Harris, the hard-running B.C. fullback was the most effective runner for the Lions with 43 yards on 10 carries.

Veteran Jim Young, who scored the Lions' only major early in the third quarter after accepting a pass from Moorhead, gained 43 yards on five receptions as B.C. leading receiver.

The Bombers superiority in the field was reflected in the final team statistics. Winnipeg accumulated 227 yards in offence against 189 by Lions while rolling up 18 first downs to B.C.'s 11.

The victory moved Winnipeg into a first-place tie with Saskatchewan Roughriders, which Mazzotti's individual performance gave him the leagueleadership in the individual scoring statistics.

B.C. dropped into a last-place tie with Calgary Stampeders.

Athletes Test New Track

MONTREAL (CP) — Athletes competing in the weekend's International Competitions 1975 track and field meet will get a chance to test a new track at Kent Park.

The track, manufactured in Italy, is different from the tartan surfaces most of the athletes have become accustomed to. Many of the runners and jumpers were getting down on their hands and knees Thursday, pressing their thumbs against the track to test give and looking with puzzlement at their track shoes.

For physically big athletes the usual nine-millimetre spikes designed to penetrate right through the thin rubber compound and into the underlying concrete.

Some athletes were switching to six-millimetre spikes, others were trying "elements" which took like the heads of tiny screwdrivers.

"It feels like a very fast track," said Bob Martin of Toronto, Canada's top sprinter, who will be participating in the 100-metre heats tonight.

"The thing that makes it so fast is that it's so hard. For training, it would be hell on legs unless you just wore warmup shoes all the time."

Louise Hanna Walker, a Toronto medical student, gave the high-jump approach a practice run Thursday and she too was quick to note how fast the surface was on the approach.

"I like it, I think," she said. "But it's so much faster than where I've been training in Toronto I'm going to have to readjust."

Debbie Brill of Vancouver is expected to battle Ulrike Meyfarth of West Germany for the honors in the women's high jump tonight. Miss Meyfarth won the gold medal at the 1972 Summer Olympic Games in Munich.

Aside from the high jump, tonight's schedule includes the men's discus, women's javelin, men's long jump, 100-metre trials and semi-finals for men and women, women's shot put, men's 10,000 metres and semi-finals in both the men's and women's 800-metre race.

The competition concludes Sunday.

Set Royal Montreal Record

Nicklaus and Weiskopf Card 5 Under Par 65's

MONTREAL (CP) — In seven previous appearances in the Canadian Open golf championship, Jack Nicklaus has finished second twice, third once and fifth twice.

In 1965 and 1968, he lost by one stroke to Gene Littler of the United States and New Zealander Bob Charles.

But if Nicklaus, leading money-winner on the pro tour this year with $180,799, plays today's second round of the $200,000, 72-hole championship the way he played the opener, this could be his year.

Winner of the Masters for a record fifth time this year, Nicklaus had a five-under-par 65 in Thursday's storm-delayed first-round over the par-70, 6,829-yard Royal Montreal Golf Club course to set a competitive course record along with Tom Weiskopf.

But Weiskopf carded his record 65 in the calm early in the morning. Nicklaus fired his after an electrical storm and torrential rain caused a three-hour delay. When play was halted, he had played 12 holes and was six-under-par.

Almost one-half of the field of 155 golfers were still on the course when the storm struck. While many might have been happy to see high-scoring rounds washed out, officials ruled play could resume at 7 p.m. EDT.

All but three threesomes — who will finish this morning — did not complete their rounds before darkness fell.

South African Gary Player, who finished two strokes behind the leaders with a three-under-par 67, was caught on the course by the storm, but was not looking for a washout of the round.

"I've always believed there should be a round rained out. Once you tee it up, you should keep going—if you don't finish, you come back the next day and finish.

"I know there will be some guys who won't agree with me," he added.

Bunched with Player at 67 were Australian David Graham and U.S. pros John Schlee, Bob E. Smith, Mike McCullough and Pat Fitzsimons.

Going into today's second round, George Knudson of Toronto seemed to have the best chance of the Canadians to grab the title. Knudson, whose play has improved steadily in the last two months, had a two-under 68 to join former Open champion Gay Brewer and Arnold Palmer and 19 others.

TOM WEISKOPF

Two other Canadians remained in contention as amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., and Jim Pannasiu of Windsor, Ont., along with Littler, Tony Jacklin of Great Britain and 10 others registered 69s.

In all, 35 competitors bettered par, while another 18 were even.

Colorful Lee Trevino, who won the Canadian, the U.S. and British Opens in 1971, fired a 71, as did defending champion Bobby Nichols.

Trevino, who along with Nichols was struck by lightning during a tournament one month ago, was gone by the time Thursday's storm hit. But he when he left he was his usual outspoken self in describing his round.

"I played horrible. That's the headline.

"The way I played,I should have had 78," he said. "It probably was the most solid putting round I've had in a long time, but I'm just not hitting the ball consistently—I haven't all year."

RLike Trevino, Weiskopf wasn't entirely satisfied with his round, despite the record score.

"I have played better golf and not scored as well. It was fair-to-good golf and I guess I got the best of it."

Weiskopf started on the 10th tee, but had only one birdie—on the 12th when he chipped to within three feet of the pin on the par five, 535-yard hole.

But he had a string of five birdies on the front nine and ran into his only bogey on the par-three, 179-yard 16th. He wound up in a bunker to the left of the green. Blasted up to within 10 feet of the pin, but missed the putt.

Nicklaus said conditions were much worse after play resumed after the three-hour hold.

"I still think a five-under-par could be pretty good," he said, relating to the 72-hole score that will win.

Nicklaus said he based his prediction on the fact the unusually gusty winds that plague this course were not evident before the storm, but appeared after play resumed.

Sabetzki Replaces Ahearne

Jack Devine Elected To IIHF's Governing Council

GSTAAD, Switzerland (CP)—Bunny Ahearne has gone and Canada may be on its way back to the world hockey scene.

Thursday, Ahearne, 74, went through with his decision to retire after 22 years as president of the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF).

And Don Johnson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, has a mandate "strong desire" to return to the world championship in 1977.

Johnson, denying he said Canada would definitely return in 1977, said it would require cooperation by the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association owners and players and the federal government.

The new president of the IIHF, elected Thursday, is Guenther Sabetzki of West Germany. Ahearne favored Freddy Schwerz, president of the Dutch federation, but Sabetzki won 36 to 16 with backing from the Soviet federation.

Ahearne, the former travel agent who ran the IIHF with a tight rein, was made honorary president.

For Canada, the IIHF won't be the same with Ahearne gone. For years the CAHA blamed him for the federation's failure to open the world championship to professionals, which would allow Canada to use its best players.

But Canada got a new voice in the administrative levels of the IIHF when Jack Devine of Belleville, Ont., past-president of the CAHA, was elected to the world body's governing council Thursday.

The role takes on special importance because the IIHF last week voted to change its rules to allow professionals to compete in the world championship.

The federation agreed to allow professional leagues such as the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association join as associate members. But the pros have not been in a hurry to take up the offer.

Johnson, who attended the congress with Gordon Juckes, executive director of the CAHA, and Devine, said they would report to Hockey Canada chairman Douglas Fisher, and would discuss the situation with Alan Eagleson, managing director of the NHL Players' Association.

Then, if the owners in the two pro leagues decide to co-operate, they will be on the way to returning to the world championship for the first time since 1969.

That year, Canada withdrew in frustration. The IIHF, under Ahearne's presidency, had passed an amendment that would have allowed Canada to use nine professionals. It was discarded following objections from Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee.

Johnson said "we will make every effort possible to send a Canadian team" to the 1977 championships in Austria, but said it is much premature to make such an accommodation.

If the CAHA is looking for a bargaining weapon in its dealings with the pros, it may have got one in a motion passed by the IIHF congress Thursday.

It states that before any international tournament involving professionals may take place, they must be approved by the host nation's federation. The NHL has scheduled a series of exhibition games between Soviet and NHL teams for next winter. Before such a game can be played in Canada the CAHA would have to give its approval.

The congress also decided to increase the championship first division next year to eight teams from six, which saves the United States from relegation and brings in second-division runner-up West Germany.

CRYSTAL BALLS JUST DON'T SEEM TO GRAB US

We read a good deal about advertising research and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation—figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.

And it's just for that reason we have a no-nonsense, no-mystery ABC audit report of our circulation audience.

Lemon Juice Won't Cure Freckles

By C. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: I have a lot of freckles and they really bother me. I'm told that by rubbing lemon juice on the freckles each night they will disappear. If this is of no help, please advise me about what can be done to lighten them. Save me from another miserable summer.—Miss T.Y.

It is that season again, isn't it? While there is no medical answer to your "problem," there are a few thoughts I've gathered over the years to offer all the frustrated frecklers.

As you may know, freckles are harmless pigmentation as a result of activation of a tiny pigment granules located just under the outer layers of skin. Why they occur unevenly in the frecklers is not clear, but heredity is thought to play some role. That, and the fact that they occur among blonde or red-headed folks with fair skin, amounts to most of what we know about them. The fair skin, of course, makes them appear more prominent. Thus, the problem.

When the pigmentation occurs in a single large area of the skin, we call it a "beauty spot," but it won't do you any good to tell you that you are covered with beauty spots.

I doubt that lemon juice will help. None of the preparations have much effect. Some of the skin-bleaching lotions can create a skin reaction which, in fact, could leave you in worse shape.

Since freckles are promoted by the sun's rays and by heat, the melanin, the best and really only way to minimize them is to protect the skin from the sun as much as possible. Sunbathing can help screen the skin somewhat.

Freckles are a lifetime condition, occurring first at about the sixth or seventh year. They often tend to fade somewhat with age.

You can wear broad-brimmed hats in the sun, and there are some quite effective cosmetics to mask the freckles subtly.

Some women have turned their freckles to advantage by consulting a cosmetician, who can advise appropriate makeup combinations for pleasing results. Often the correct shade of a lipstick or a blush will make them most striking. I'm kind of keen on freckles myself.

If you don't like them they are there, take a positive approach, and don't let them get you down.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have calcified tendonitis. It's in my upper right arm. What can I do for that? I understand there is no permanent cure. In case the symptoms disappear, will I be able to work using my arm, or will that cause it to come back?—M.M.

The term is "calcific tendinitis."

Tendinitis is an inflammation of a tendon, and it occurs commonly in the shoulder. It is often accompanied by deposits of calcium, a part of the body's natural defence against the inflammation. This is where the term arises.

It can develop into bursitis if the bursa sac of the joint is affected. The usual treatment is hydrocortisone injection into the tendon to combat the inflammation. Application of heat and rest of the affected joint is the key to recovery.

If there is no improvement with conservative treatment, then surgery to remove the calcium deposit may be necessary.

It is likely that vigorous exercise would cause a recurrence, and for the sufferer this may be something he will have to live with.

Book Tells Story Of Arab Terrorist

TORONTO (CP) — A book about the Arab terrorist movement, said to have been withheld from United States and Canadian publication for two years, will be published here in September.

George Haggar, a Canadian citizen of Arab origin has announced that he has contracted NC Press, "Canadian liberation publishers," to print his book, Why People Shall Live: The Autobiography of a Revolutionary. It is the first-person story of terrorist Leila Khaled, as told to Dr. Haggar.

Nizar Khaled, a member of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, hijacked a TWA flight en route from Rome to Athens in 1969. She supervised the destruction at Damascus after the passengers and crew were released. In 1970 she led a multiple skyjacking but was captured after a shoot-out aboard an Israeli plane in London.

Dr. Haggar, a former teacher at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute here and at University of Waterloo, now teaches political science at University of Kuwait. He made contact with Khaled and other members of the Palestine Liberation movement during visits to the Middle East in 1970 and 1971.

He completed his manuscript in 1971 and began to show excerpts to about 30 Canadian publishers, none of whom expressed interest. When editors at Bantam Books in New York heard about the manuscript, they signed a contract to publish it.

Bantam sold foreign rights to the book. Editions appeared in Britain, Japan, West Germany and several other countries, and excerpts were extensively serialized in newspapers.

After two excerpts appeared in The Sunday Telegraph in London, the British Pilots' Association sought an injunction to prevent publication of the book. But British courts disagreed that the book "promoted terrorism and skyjacking," and it was' published in Britain.

Bantam scheduled publication for March, 1974, but after the October War of 1973, the date was moved ahead. Dr. Haggar proofread the final galleys and saw the cover proposed for the book. Allwas ready when publication was cancelled.

"We feel that this is not the appropriate moment for publishing book in the United States," Marc Jaffe, senior editor at Bantam, said in a letter to Dr. Haggar.

The letter said in a press statement that he had learned the book's publication was "cancelled under Zionist pressures."

However, Mr. Jaffe, in his letter to the author, wrote: "I don't feel that your remark about the Zionist lobby warrants any comment or argument."

Mr. Jaffe added: "We have published books by many authors whose political views we might not share as individuals. My own view, as an editor, is that we have a responsibility to channel a variety of political ideas to the reading audience."

After relinquishing publishing rights from Bantam, NC Press announced its publication date for the book. The company said it "aims to be a people's publisher dedicated to the struggle for national independence and socialism in Canada and throughout the world." Formed as a co-op in 1971, it has published mostly political and controversial books.

Now in Canada, Dr. Haggar is promoting his book and the cause of the Arab liberation movement.

He also spells his name with the Canadian Arabic version. Both spellings appear on his passport.

Opening lead—9 ♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Today's hand invented by Ernest Theiner, who first printed it in Modern Bridge in 1964. It is currently part of a story in "Grand Slam," a collection of stories about bridge.

Our hero a playing six no trump and has been informed in advance East has no clubs.

Without a diamond lead there would be no problem, but after the diamond lead dummy has no entry. The presence of all three clubs in the West hand means the suit will block unless South can find a way to get rid of one of his clubs.

He solves the problem by taking a heart finesse at trick two and leading the ace of hearts next. Then he enters dummy with the ace of clubs, leads the nine of hearts and discards a small club. It doesn't matter who wins the heart trick. The king and jack of hearts are in separate hands.

The play would also succeed against three hearts to the king-jack in the East hand or a five-two break with the king or jack falling doubleton.

Ask the Jacobys

A St. Paul reader wants to know something about the "Bath Coup". The coup is supposed to have prevailed in a whist game at the resort of Bath in England. It's rather simple play. As declarer you hold ace-king-queen and one more small cards in a suit. The king is led on your left and the coup consists of ducking. A rather obvious play that wasn't so obvious 20 years ago.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Has Dirty Windows

BELVEDERE, Calif. (AP) — George Gaudis is having problems getting his bay windows washed. It all began in 1973 when Gaudis put a permit in to build a home on a steep lot. First he had to narrow his home by 30 feet in width and then he discovered he had no place to stand to wash the windows. Recently he found it would cost him $200 to have window washers set up temporary scaffolding and decided he would live with dirty windows.

U.S. Bases Threatened

Turks Cancel Treaties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is withholding orders to 7,000 United States military men in Turkey while officials try to determine how far the Turks intend to go in limiting American use of bases there.

The Turkish cabinet said Friday defence treaties with Washington were "no longer valid", and activity at U.S. bases must cease beginning today.

An early reading of the Turkish statement appears to leave room for continued U.S. presence at some or all of two dozen installations, perhaps with more visible symbols of Turkish sovereignty.

It was considered significant that, while Turkey appeared to renounce Turkish-U.S. defence treaties, the Ankara government gave no indication of changing its relationship with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Numerous key installations used by the U.S. are designated officially as NATO bases.

A possible hint of Turkish intentions might be found in government statements that it will be called "critically important U.S. security interests."

Administration strategists apparently hope that enough votes might be switched to reverse Thursday's 222-206 vote, which kept the embargo in force and prompted the Turkish reaction.

With Greek forces already withdrawn from NATO in the aftermath of the Cyprus crisis last year, and with the U.S. under notice to close down and redeploy operations at some Greek bases, Pentagon officials have expressed fear that a U.S. ouster from Turkey might undermine the alliance's weakened southern flank of NATO.

Apart from the NATO aspect of the situation, certain bases in Turkey are of considerable direct military importance to the U.S.

Among the most important installations are several secret electronic listening posts near the Soviet border from which the U.S. monitors Soviet radio and other communications. These stations are able to keep track of military movements in the Soviet Union.

There are also key radar sites which are part of the early warning network designed to detect Soviet missile launches.

These stations are not part of the NATO structure, but the information they gather is shared with Turkey, officials say.

U.S. Air Force teams man a number of radio relay stations inside Turkey and these are important to the Turks as well.

Shares Offered To Canadians

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canada Development Corp. (CDC), 100-per-cent owned by the federal government, revealed Friday its plans for a public offering of shares that could be the largest in Canadian history.

H. Anthony Hampson, president and chief executive officer, told reporters the issue of convertible preferred shares with a par value of $100 was expected to exceed or at least match the record share issues of $125 million set by TransCanada Pipelines Ltd. and Bell Canada.

Mr. Hampson denied published reports the issue would reach $250 million.

The preferred shares issued will be convertible without any time limit into 10 common shares and have 10 votes a share, Mr. Hampson said.

The share will carry a cumulative cash dividend of seven per cent annually, payable quarterly, and a non-detachable right to receive two bonus common shares on Oct. 1, 1980 and Oct. 1, 1985.

The preferred shares, which may only be purchased by Canadian citizens and residents, will be redeemed by the CDC at the request of the holder at $109 per share at any time from Oct. 2, 1985 to Oct. 1, 1986.

They will also be redeemable at the option of the CDC from Oct. 2, 1980 at a price of $105 a share, reducing by $1 a year to Oct. 2, 1985, when they become redeemable at $100.

Mr. Hampson said an installment purchase plan would be made available to Canadians wishing to purchase up to $2,000 of the proposed CDC share issue.

"It is proposed the shares will be offered by all investment dealers and members of recognized stock exchanges across Canada."

He said small investors would be given priority, and no one person or company will be permitted to own more than three per cent of the corporation's shares, planned to go on sale by the end of August.

Trade Deficit Worst Ever

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's loss in foreign trade in merchandise during the first half of the year totalled $704 million, the worst deficit ever, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

The six-month period ended with the largest monthly deficit so far this year of $213 million in June. This is calculated on a balance of payments basis, which measures trade movements at the time payments are made or received.

Prisoners Ran for It

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — The prison riot was only a figment of their intestines.

Some called it a prison mutiny, but others termed it virulent diarrhea.

A case of collective diarrhea sent 700 prisoners rushing for the toilets in what wardens thought was an attempted mutiny.

As the prisoners stormed the toilets, which they outnumber 20 to 7 in Rio de Janeiro's Holy Water prison, wardens sent out urgent appeals to nearby police stations.

But they soon realized the apparent riot was only an intestinal revolution and changed the destinations of their appeals to the local hospital.

Extra guards were put on in case prisoners tried to escape in the confusion, but no one was in any condition to do so.

Conference Delay Sought

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Canadian government proposed Friday that the controversial United Nations conference on crime be held at "a suitable site in Canada" at "a mutually convenient date in 1976."

Canada announced Monday that it was asking the UN to postpone the conference, which had been scheduled for Toronto Sept. 1-12.

In a note to the UN on Friday, Canada said the conference should take place "under normal conditions for participation in United Nations conferences."

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said earlier in the week he feared that under present circumstances the presence of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), already invited by the UN General Assembly, would complicate proceedings and lead to public disturbances.

The Ontario government, Jewish groups and other agencies strongly objected to the admission of PLO delegates to Canada for the conference.

U.S. Not Wanted In Peace Parley

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin says Egypt's latest proposals for a new disengagement agreement in the Sinai desert are "substantially not acceptable."

However, Rabin said in an interview on Israeli television Friday that peace talks should continue and repeated his insistence that they be concluded on a face-to-face basis rather than through American shuttle diplomacy. Egypt is opposed to any such direct talks.

"Israel does not simply reject, but puts forth its own position," Rabin said in the interview after meeting with Defence Minister Shimon Peres and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon to discuss the proposals from Cairo presented via Washington.

The areas of dispute are said to include the precise line to which Israeli forces would withdraw from the Gidi and Mitla passes, and the numbers of American, Israeli and Egyptian technicians who would man listening posts in the area to provide early warning of troop movements.

Rabin said an agreement must be based on "an actual change of relationship between Egypt and Israel."

"I believe an interim agreement can only be based on a public Egyptian statement to the effect that the use of force, or the support of its use, no longer plays a part in the future of relations between Egypt and Israel, and that all future differences of opinion would be solved peacefully through negotiations."

In Cairo, President Anwar Sadat told a conference of the Arab Socialist Union—Egypt's only legal political organization—that he is not concerned about the peace talks "because our armed forces are ready."

Sadat held a 30-minute meeting with United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, and spokesman said Sadat "expressed hope that progress for a second troop disengagement agreement in the Sinai Desert" would be made "without further delay."

Goncalves Supported

LISBON (AP) — The creation of a powerful triumvirate of generals to govern Portugal was seen today as a victory for the Communist-backed Premier, Gen. Vasco Goncalves.

The German Revolutionary Council designated Goncalves and two other officers Friday to "centralize" authority and create "a strong political direction."

The leftist military is wrecked by the worst political crisis since the officers ousted the old fascist regime 15 months ago.

Army on Way

LU'ANDA (Reuter) — Holden Roberto, president of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) has returned to Angola for the first time in 14 years and is personally leading an army toward Luanda, it was announced here today.

The FNLA's interior minister, N'zola Kabangi, told a news conference the FNLA forces were advancing on the capital to liberate it from Soviet-backed Communist forces.

Alleged Budget Leak Subject of Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — A parliamentary inquiry, with all the power of a formal court, has been ordered into allegations Parliamentary Secretary John Reid leaked a proposed tax change to companies which stood to benefit.

Mr. Reid has denied the allegations made in a story in the Montreal Gazette, and the Commons privileges and elections committee was scheduled this day to investigate them.

The Gazette in a front-page story, said Mr. Reid was "forewarned of last June's Finance Minister's federal budget and shared details with manufacturers."

The allegation is that Mr. Reid, parliamentary assistant to Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, leaked information concerning a proposed 10-per-cent tax on certain boats and motors to a boat manufacturer in his northwestern Ontario riding of Kenora-Rainy River.

Guns Mixed Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice John Farris, heading an inquiry into last month's siege at the British Columbia Penitentiary in which a penitentiary employee was killed, said Friday he does not believe testimony given by Albert Hollinger, a senior guard.

Describing the guard's in-camera testimony as "an insult to the commissioners' intelligence," he accused him of mixing up guns used by a special tactical squad so it would be impossible to determine who fired the shot that killed Mary Steinhauser, 27.

Miss Steinhauser was a prison classification officer and one of 15 hostages held by three prisoners in the siege, which ended June 11.

Mr. Justice Farris, chief justice of the B.C. Appeal Court, told the inquiry his judgment was shared by the other commission members, Gordon Dixon and Jack Lynch.

The inquiry was told the guns were issued in a dark room and collected after the shooting without record of who had each gun.

Mr. Hollinger testified he felt it necessary to collect the guns quickly to ensure no prisoners would "get hold of one."

Mr. Justice Farris said that after collecting the guns, Mr. Hollinger took them to another room "and left them on a table, mixed up so that it is impossible to say who fired the fatal bullet."

He said the guard's explanation was not believable because one of the prisoners, Andy Bruce, was unconscious and "bleeding near to death" in the room where Miss Steinhauser was held; another prisoner, Dwight Lucas, was manacled and held by 10 to 12 guards; and a third prisoner, Claire Wilson, was unconscious and tied up in a vault adjoining the room.

Mr. Hollinger, described by commission counsel John Rowan as "well up in the rank structure at the B.C. penitentiary" in nearby New Westminster, has worked there for 10 years. He previously served five years as a Montreal policeman.

Mr. Farris said Mr. Hollinger's experience "implies he knew the proper police procedure for handling gun use."

Walley Lightbody, a lawyer representing prison staff at the inquiry, said it was "not unreasonable the officer in question should have gathered up the guns in such a way."

He said at least 40 individuals were in the area concerned and there was the possibility of an accident.

Mr. Rowan later said the commission could not say whether Mr. Hollinger was a member of the tactical squad.

Mr. Hollinger's testimony was made in camera and for that reason information about his exact job that might still probably never be disclosed—at least not during this inquiry. That subject will remain up in the air until you'll have to draw your own conclusions."

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Higher gasoline prices are discouraging United States tourists from entering Canada, a survey at this border town has determined. Allison Hunter, one of three students hired by the Algoma Kinniwabi Travel Association to question tourists at Sault Ste. Worms Threat To Corn

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Farmers throughout this area of the province are advised to be on the lookout for an army — an army that can "eat waste their grain and corn fields in a matter of days.

Doug Young, agricultural representative for the province in Brighton, says worms have been seen outbreaks of army worms in haphazard locations in the district — Codrington, Campbellford, Marmora, Madoc and North Hastings and other isolated locations. Hastings County ag rep Doug Tipper confirms this is the worst outbreak since the moved to the Stirling office in 1964. Neither ag rep can account for the increased activity of the worms, but both feel it can be attributed to the weather and maybe a lack of predators that normally feed on them.

Army worms are the caterpillar stage of the owlet moth and they're named for their practice of moving in large numbers in search of food. Their favorite diet is the foliage of spring-sown grains and corn, but they will eat whatever the mother moth laid her eggs on and then keep going. In a matter of days than can turn a field into a disaster area." Mr. Young said.

There is little farmers can do to control the worms other than keep a continual check on their fields. Mr. Young said. There is no advantage in preventive spraying. "But once a farmer finds five or six worms in a square foot of crop, he has a problem."

Then the farmer must decide whether spraying would be economical. "If the worms are full grown — about 1½ inches long — they're probably just about finished eating and the effort and expense would be wasted." Mr. Young said. "If they're smaller, it would probably be worthwhile to spray."

Biggest worry in the Quinte area is the corn crop, already under attack in some areas. The problem here, Doug Tipper said, is spraying the maturing plants. "There are very few hi-boy sprayers in the county. Farmers can't cover the highest foliage with normal spray equipment. spraying, at a cost of $8 or $10 an acre."

Some fields in the Madoc-Marmora area have already been sprayed by Sandham Air Services, operating out of Fort Hope.

Hullmaster Introduces New Mid-size Boat

PICTON — The Hullmaster 27, new member in the Hullmaster line of family cruising boats, was christened Friday at the Prince Edward Yacht Club dock by Gordon Taylor, MPP Prince Edward — Lennox.

Designed by Edward S. Brewer of Brewerton, Brooks and Associates the Hullmaster 27 is described as the "in-between" boat permitting sailors to step up from a 27 model for approximately $7,000 less than the cost of a 31' sail boat.

"The Hullmaster 27 initially was conceived as a mid-range boat. We specialize in cruising, not racing boats," explained Ron Brooks, of Hullmaster Boats Ltd., Loch Sloy Industrial Park.

At a press conference Friday, Mr. Brooks said the new boat is designed for family comfort and was about two years in the planning stages.

"To date it has more than met our expectations," he commented.

He said the sail boat sleeps four persons and can be handled easily by one man.

"The emphasis with our product is on couples and small families" added Mr. Brooks.

The Hullmaster 27 and the larger Hullmaster 31 are open water boats suitable for off-shore cruising.

A diesel engine is standard equipment in the Hullmaster 27 and the price of the boat under $25,000 includes the price of the sails.

The boat of fiberglass construction and self-righting under any conditions if closed has an expected cruising speed under sail of about six knots.

Mr. Brooks said Hullmaster Boats Ltd. manufactures their models at Loch Sloy Industrial Park.

"Three lines is just about as large as we want to get. By not being big volumes we can provide the people with a bit more personalized service," he explained.

He said that Hullmaster is just beginning to market in United States market with its boats and in 1976 it is expected from 30 to 35 Hullmaster 27 sailboats will be built.

"The stress is on the local market," said Mr. Brooks.

At Friday's press conference Ronald McAdam and Norman Christie of Kingston, owners of the controlling interest in Hullmaster Boats Ltd. were introduced.

Commenting on the commission, Mr. Sword said the commission might need to be enlarged . . . "possibly five members or more who would provide more input into the decision making process"

Ear Operation Has Chance of Success

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told by my ear specialist that I have otosclerosis, which will require surgery. A hearing aid will not help me. I am unable to hear quite well enough to understand fully what the doctor was telling me about this.

What procedures would I undergo in the operation, and how successful is this surgery?—M.L.S.

Otosclerosis is a deterioration of the substance of tiny bones that lie just inside the ear drum. This interferes with the vibrations that produce normal sound, and it leads to a gradual loss of hearing. A ringing in the ears usually accompanies the hearing loss.

Now, as to the operation suggested by your doctor: The modern ear surgery has been a boon to patients with problems of such as yours. The most likely operation is what is called a stapedectomy. The stapes, the first of three small bones mentioned above, is adjusted in relation to its position with the ear drum. About 90 per cent of such patients have hearing restored to acceptable levels for additional years. This depends upon the individual case, however.

The operation itself takes less than an hour, usually, and confinement is normally for only a few days, with the patient ready to return to work about a week later.

True, some persons with otosclerosis may be helped by hearing aids, and one can always wave be used if the operation doesn't produce the expected results. Another innovation for otosclerosis patients is the early use of sodium fluoride, taken orally. The drug can arrest the sclerotic development, but does not cure it.

Kitty Hawk Of Wright Sails Again

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — A town businessman who saved and restored a mahogany cruiser that once belonged to aviation pioneer Orville Wright watched its launching this summer.

Guy Johnstone said his main interest in saving the 35-foot cruiser is its historical connection with Orville Wright.

The boat is Wright's Kitty Hawk which he once piloted on the waters of Georgian Bay on summer visits to his island home of Honey Harbor, about 40 miles north of Barrie.

The late A. V. Jackson, one of the Group of Seven artists, once suggested that Wright name the boat after the site in North Carolina where Orville and his brother, Wilbur, flew the first airplane.

Wilbur died in 1912, nine years after the historic flight, but Orville began a long but little known connection with Georgian Bay until a few years before his death in 1948.

Bought by the inventor in 1931, the cruiser was acquired by the father-in-law of the present owner.

The first engine in the boat was one of Wright's aircraft engines but Mr. Johnstone said it never worked properly despite Wright's tinkering.

Mr. Johnstone got the boat from his wife as a Christmas present in 1971. After years of neglect and damage during a storm while tied to a wharf, the cruiser hung in a boathouse and gradually rotted and collapsed.

Then, the 37-year old businessman hired a boat company to restore it.

Car Sales Still Strong Despite Economic Slump

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Size and gas economy are apparently no real consideration for Belleville and area car buyers this year. They are buying everything.

Sales managers unanimously report record-breaking or at least record-equalling new and used car sales for the first half of this year.

At Auto Haus Bell-Ton sales manager John Bryden reported sales are so good, stocks are "almost nil". American Motors' Pacers, Gremlins and Hornets and Rabbits are the biggest sellers. Mr. Bryden said, "because people are getting more economy minded".

At Elliott Motors, sales manager Bill Sorg said sales were "A-1. Everything is going well, big and small." Mr. Sorg said cancellation of the Ontario sales tax on Canadian-made cars has helped create a bit of traffic.

Sales manager John Royer, at Belleville Toyota said the liberta-a-gallon price increase in gasoline has helped his sales.

Fy Ford salesman in charge of sales, Dante Pace, said June and July were the biggest months in his experience for a long time: "Record-breaking."

Dale Vader, general manager of Vader's Car Sales which sells Datsun, said sales "should be about double since the first of the year".

At Motorland Chrysler, president Al Lyons said there was no problem selling Imperial models, regardless of the increase in gasoline prices.

Sales at Trudeau Motors are "very good — booming" according to sales manager Glen Cowieson. "We might even have a little shortage of the product."

Al Banga, sales manager at Al Waterson Ltd., terms sales simply "fantastic". Sales, he said, broke records even between larger and smaller vehicles.

Education Beat

Rewards Not Worth Price

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Next to the North American dream, education may turn out to be the 20th century's greatest myth — mainly because like any other commodity in our society its philosophical outlook follows the path of a pendulum.

Whether or not students can read or write better now than they could 10, 20 or even 50 years ago is not of major importance. The real question that confronts our society is how well the educational system can help young people adapt and survive in an ever-changing world. This goes far beyond the ability to read and write well.

There are also financial limits to which a society can support an educational system and Ontario is quickly approaching its limits. In fact, it can be argued that in Ontario 20 per cent of the provincial budget is far too much to be spending on an educational system.

The rewards are not worth it. It is evident that many of the great advances in education have been nutty and have not yet proved their value to society. Too often education has been used as a political tool with little or no consideration for students or teachers.

In this decade graduates of the school system now find they have been cheated. Higher education does not lead to a richer life. It does not guarantee a better income and it apparently does not have any correlation to happiness.

Since the Robart's streaming plan was introduced in the early 60s education has continually undergone change. And within each school system and within each school itself change has occurred.

Parents have been confused due to the rapid change and in most cases school authorities have done a poor job of explaining the changes to the public. The myth — the large country boards swung education into the realm of centralization and that has caused even further confusion.

In the last year the emphasis has switched to teachers' rights and now a great deal of teacher-student and teacher-board relationships has become hard and fast legislation.

No doubt within the next few years students rights will become the subject of much controversy — and possibly at that point we may get down to the root of educational problems and the purpose of the entire system.

Bring Back Herb Gardens

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

If the word "herb" was used in a word association test, the response would likely be one of the following: basil, chives, mint, oregano, parsley, sage, tarragon or thyme. It would not likely be lavender or lemon balm. And probably never be marigolds, nasturtium, foxglove or bee balm.

And yet it could be any of these. For herbs are not defined by plant genus, family or species, but rather by characteristics. By definition, an herb is any herbaceous plant valued as being useful for its flavoring, scent or medicinal properties.

There was a time when the herb garden was an indispensable part of every gardening plan. But modern hygiene practices and food preservation techniques have made the herb garden a thing of the past, which is really too bad. Fresh fresh herbs, like fresh vegetables, just can't be matched. And in addition are one of the most you can be involved in.

In medieval times, no home was without its herb garden. Not because they liked it that day were such great cooks. Rather they grew science herbs in great quantity. And for good reasons.

In these times, bathing and such are very fashionable and healthy. And so, at gala events, when the ladies were ridden only horseback through a hot day, and all the windows and doors of the festive room were kept tightly shut, fresh aromatic herbs were strewn on the floor where they would be crushed underfoot and spread their fragrance throughout the room. In addition, they were scattered under the sheets of bedding guests as sort of an early-day "roll-on deodorant." Of course in today's society, with hundreds of millions of dollars are spent each year on deodorants, the aromatic herb has fallen into disuse.

And with the change to the informal life style, the disintegration of the formal family meal and the emergence of the convenience foods, so have the flavor herbs.

All of which is really too bad. A meal without herbs is something warm and romantic about the aroma from an opened clover scented with lavender and roses. And some mighty fine eating when new potatoes are drenched with butter and freshly chopped chives. And something very tasty about a pitcher of lemonade made with lemon balm. And something ruggedly attractive about a piece of hairy-leaved, pink and blue borage in a tankard of stoneware crock.

And all of these old-fashioned enjoyments can easily be yours in a few weeks time. Because one of the beauties of herbs is they don't require a long-range plan. You can start the seeds now in a garden of their own or in individual pots and in five to seven weeks time you'll be taking fresh herbs.

Now not all herbs will produce prolifically this year. The annuals such as Coat basil, cherry dill, sweet marjoram and summer savory will produce if you need for immediate use or drying by late summer or fall; but the perennials such as lemon balm, sage, chives, rosemary, lavender or thyme will need a year or two to really produce in quantity, which is all the more reason to start now.

If you are interested, the seeds for all of the above herbs are available in Belleville. If you phone around, you'll be sure to find them.

House Sharing Poor Idea

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Over a year of haggling and bad feelings may have come to an end this week with the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority's decision to wash its hands of the Proctor House in Brighton.

It will not use the century-old house as offices. Rather, it will give the house to Save Our Heritage Organization, a citizen's group formed several years ago to restore and preserve the building.

As one authority executive member put it this week: give it to SOHO and let them "sink or swim." Good idea, gentlemen, you've wasted enough time discussing a way to share the Proctor House with SOHO.

It seems apparent such an arrangement simply isn't possible.

For now and the immediate future, it might be workable, but over a longer period, given present trends, it's likely the building would burst with the number of activities and goods that it would be required to house.

The authority, which shares the Frankford municipal building, complains now about overcrowding. And it's still just a baby, not quite eight years old.

It has four inside workers and, for certain, that number will grow. Where would they be put in the Proctor House? They cannot be squeezed between antique chairs, tables and china cabinets that surely will be found in the museum planned by SOHO.

Under the SOHO joint-use proposal, the authority would simply not have been given enough actual space to operate without the feeling that someone was looking over its shoulder.

And on the other side of the door jamb, surely SOHO doesn't expect its collection, once begun, to remain limited, without one stick of furniture added. A museum is, by nature, an acquisitive beast. Curators, even volunteer curators, are packrats, obsessed with picking history's bones.

As a cultural centre for Brighton, another planned use by SOHO, it will not function without room enough to grow. Cultural activity, a dreadful phrase so ambiguous as to mean close to nothing, must have elbow room to display art, present a stable and spacious forum for music, skit theatre, whatever.

Although it may now become difficult for SOHO to come up with the money to completely restore the house quickly, it still seems a better deal to have the entire building than only a part, that would have been spent on installing mechanical services can now go toward buying their own main office.

For the authority, that is a better arrangement, and a better investment.

Weed Control Sadly Lacking

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — If conversation with plants can stimulate their growth Picton must be infiltrated with green thumb tritors who are spilling secrets to the weeds.

At the July meeting of town council a main Street West resident protested that a vacant house next door was surrounded by a "hayfield" and represented a breeding ground for insects. Complaints of Weeds at the Elks' Hall also were reported during the session.

Summer's side effects this year are obvious in many areas of town. On Main Street East a bumper crop of weeds is growing along a chain link fence between Picton fairgrounds and the sidewalk.

At Benson Park weeds line a fence running along Ross Street and choke the flowers and shrubs there.

Behind the old Prince Edward County court house and goal a weed-covered slope screams neglect.

The boulevard in front of several Main Street East homes this summer has grown tall with weeds, spoiling the well-kept dooryards.

Its time town council took action to eliminate weed growth in Picton. If boulevards on Main Street East are town property then town work forces should be sent to mow the undergrowth or tackle it with a machete.

It was noted at council this month that when grass is permitted to grow up on a vacant lot until the property resembles a hay field a fire hazard exists. Surely, Council through its fire chief can take action to see that all empty lots overgrown with weeds are mowed periodically by owners during the summer.

At Picton fair grounds the grass is mowed regularly but little attention is given to the removal of tall weeds growing close to the buildings and along the fences.

About ten days before the county fair the Prince Edward Agricultural Society steps in and tackles the unsightly weed growths then refers to grounds maintenance's for the remainder of the year.

Possibly a regular weeding out throughout the summer months would beat the fair board's last minute surprise attack on pig weed and plantain and make the fairgrounds an attractive park area all season long, not just for three days in September.

Picton residents who live near vacant lots covered with weeds should complain to council in an effort to eliminate such eyesores.

First impression can be lasting and tourists who visit Picton may question the overgrown boulevards, vacant lots and public park areas in the town.

Before and After

A test strip of a mixed variety of weeds (top) was sprayed with a new herbicide called Round-Up, produced by Monsanto. The result (below) is the tangled mass of dead weeds. The main significance of the new herbicide is it does not leave residual or pre-emergence effects.

New Herbicide Has No Residual Action

A new herbicide has been proven to leave no residual of pre-emergence effects once the weeds have been killed.

At Venture Farms near Stirling, operated by Ross Hawthorne who writes the gardening column for this newspaper, a test strip of a variety of weeds 15 by 200 feet was treated.

The result, said Mr. Hawthorne "is a tangled mass of brown leaves and stems, ready for burning."

Under the trade name of Round-Up by Monsanto, the herbicide has little or no effect on fish or wild-life.

"The farmer will welcome it as a weed control weapon," stated Mr. Hawthorne.

Trees and shrubs are also tolerant to the product if they are in the brown bark stage.

Mr. Hawthorne said, "I can use it to scarify the ground without dunger, but what will be a real boom — we can use the product and set out transplants immediately."

"Round-Up" is currently being tested by government agencies in Ontario and Quebec and is available on a limited basis.

"Until they start mass producing it, the price would a little high, around $5,000 a gallon," said Mr. Hawthorne.

Market Advance or Full-scale Slump is the Key Question Facing Economists

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Today, as at any other time, stock-market opinion is divided. As the saying goes, that's what makes horse races.

But seldom is expert opinion so sharply divided. There are money managers, with a record of successful investment, who believe that the stock market is getting ready to enter a period of prolonged advance.

And then there are those who are warning their clients to sell any equities they hold, because the biggest slump of the past 40 years is just around the corner.

In between the two camps are the less dogmatic analysts and, of course, the typical individual investor, probably in a state of confusion.

This year started out well for most investors, with an unspectacular but fairly steady upturn in stock prices.

The optimists of the financial community consider this to be the beginning of a major bull market.

But to the pessimists, this is a deceptive counter-move in a bear market that is the forerunner of widespread economic recession.

Let's take a look at the two opposing positions.

The stock market's bulls base their opinion on both technical and fundamental factors:

—From a technical viewpoint, the movement of the Dow Jones averages of 30 blue chip New York industrials established a recovery pattern in the first half of 1975, breaking the long-term downtrend that had begun in early 1972.

That doesn't rule out some declines this summer in the face of "overhead supply" of stocks, the willingness of more investors to take profits at current and slightly higher prices of stocks.

—On the fundamental side, there is a steadily increasing conviction that the U.S. recession has bottomed out and that the economy is improving.

History shows that the state of the U.S. economy affects Canadian stocks almost as directly as it influences the U.S. market.

Inflation in the United States seems to be fairly well under control for the time being. Once that fact is more widely accepted, interest rates will probably decline and business spending will recover already.

But suppose interest rates don't fall? Monetary authorities could keep the money supply from growing, and lenders could continue to insist on interest rates high enough to offset possible future inflation.

In that case, recovery of the economy from the slump in the stock market would be problematical.

Now let's consider the case for a renewed decline in stock prices. It, too, is based on both technical and fundamental influences:

—One favorite technical tool, the Dow-of-funds analysis, measures the volume of money moving into and out of the stock market. If the net figure is on the rising side, stock prices tend to; if it's on the selling side, they decline.

Money was being put into the market earlier this year, to buy depressed stocks, by investment institutions (insurance companies and the like) seeking to "average down" the cost of the stocks they had bought at earlier peaks.

If the flow of funds goes into reverse, as the bears expect, those institutions could well rush to sell and thus push prices down still more.

—In fundamental terms, the bears say, the U.S. economy probably won't stage the major recovery that is so widely expected.

For one thing, a period of credit contraction could be starting, marked by a cut-back in consumer debt and business loans, and a rise in mortgage foreclosures.

Housing is not leading the U.S. economy upward, because builders are deep in debt and high mortgage rates are scaring buyers away. Business inventories are in good hands, may not be whittled down to normal until well into 1977.

What then, should the investor do?

The bearish investment managers advise that this is a good time to be out of stocks, to hold cash or possibly gold and silver.

Gold has gone through a speculative binge, and appears to have cooled off in good hands.

To the bulls, gold bullion is a sterile investment with no yield—in fact, a negative yield when storage costs are added.

The most positive factor for the stock market this summer, in the bull's view, seems to be the widespread expectation of economic improvement in the months ahead.

This expectation, whether it materializes or not, could touch off a broad advance that would make today's stock prices look like bargains.

This would be all the more likely if there were a political decision in favor of expanding the money supply and ceiling interest rates.

The longer the authorities maintain their hard line in favor of tight money, the greater the prospects of a market rally become dimmer.

Tourist Traffic Spotty

"Friendly, Familiar, Foreign and Near."

That, just a few short years ago, was one of the advertising pitches made to attract United States tourists to these parts.

It was before the energy crisis and the recessionary influences that ensued.

There are conflicting reports though as to how hard tourism has been hurt. Tourist operators in Hastings and Prince Edward say business is down, that they are not handling as much American money for instance. On the other hand the nearly 600 tourist inquiries handled by Belleville Chamber of Commerce in the past month is up considerably from the 513 in the same period last year.

In addition to Canadians and Americans, there have been inquiries from British, West German and New Zealand visitors. Some resort areas report Australian visitors as well. U.S. sailing visitors to Belleville harbor have been quite numerous too.

If tourist trade is down at all in this area, there is no doubt of the big city popularity of Toronto for instance. Before us is a news release pointing out that the Toronto area last year experienced a 12 per cent increase with some 18 million people spending at least two days there, and adding that Toronto expects close to 20 million people this year.

This is quite an astonishing figure, and, incidentally, tourism there will be given a further boost by the article on Toronto in the current issue of the National Geographic magazine.

What a difference is seen in Toronto today, as reflected by this article, compared with life there in 1898 when C. S. Clark's study, "Of Toronto The Good — The Queen City of Canada as it was," was published. Even then, writer Clark saw "Toronto The Good — and beautiful" as "one of the finest cities on the continent."

Those statistics about Toronto, by the way, come in a news release from Harold B. Allen, Information officer of the Ontario Human Rights Association, pointing out that the Human Rights code applies to visitors and residents alike, and that in this context, there is more in a vacation than just value for money.

"It also includes human value," he says — "meaning the human rapport tourists experience when they are in Ontario." Certainly, boorish behavior at any level in the host country can ruin any visitor's vacation. Let's see that there is none here.

The Many Responsibilities Of Teachers in the 70s

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In reply to "A Tired Cog in the Wheel" who seems to dislike or in any case is dissatisfied with his or her job. I am one too, who is very fed up listening to people, in all walks of life who are crying for "More".

It doesn't matter what "More" might be but they want it! It just is plain the cry of complainers. I don't suppose Greed, jealoky or the proverbial rooster known as Envy could have anything to do with it. It seems to be the trend today to keep up with the Joneses whatever you have, I can match it or better still, beat it.

I note a tone of sarcasm when you write "people nothing against so-called professionals". Surely you don't think anyone can walk into a classroom, declare he's a teacher and start hauling in that big salary. You know very well it took years of training plus summer courses and winter night courses plus exams which have to be passed or we too, could be out of a job.

Teachers have been taking sarcasm for many years concerning salaries and short hours. Our salaries, don't forget, have as many pension funds and insurances sliced from them as yours. Our superannuation is locked in too and many of us, like theirs, may not live to enjoy it.

How many complacent parents cry "My gosh, another P.D. day! How am I going to handle my kids?" You have no idea how many roles a teacher plays from baby-sitter, friend, nurse, adviser and even parent to the less fortunate. I might add also that our Professional Development days drain just as much from us as a day in the classroom for we are usually attending a workshop. It doesn't shut down at 3:30 or 4 o'clock either. The extra hours spent in planning these days of learning don't bring in any overtime pay either.

You brag that you handle such expensive equipment. Can you match the value of any machine to that of a child — a human being — God's masterpiece? A child needs nurturing and moulding while he's learning. Most of all he requires love but then I suppose teachers eager to give unselfishly of time, love and kindness. A child is not a mechanism that one careless word should wound his pride or break his heart. What would you do if the machine you are operating doesn't want to perform? Suppose it didn't get a good night's rest or because of a disturbing situation it's angry at the whole world. Well, we have some pupils like this. Mind you, it's not their fault that this aggressiveness holds up. They haven't lived long enough to cope with such circumstances. Then again there are little folk who have lived a lifetime in their short life of seven years of Primary grades. They know more of the cruel ways of life than you or I.

Teachers have feelings as well as other individuals. Have you any idea in a classroom of small children, where the respect for an adult is, when a young rooster stands up and tells you where to go plus all the adjectives and adverbs from his dirty vocabulary as to the direction you have to go? It takes patience and perseverance.

Just as in our own families — if we don't have the cries we don't have the joy. For as many who try to make a teacher's day reach there are twice as many trying to please. Even the difficult can be won and corrected. This is the challenge, the joy that makes teaching a worthwhile career. We love our job not just the money.

No, we're not that badly off and neither are you. Be grateful you have a job. Be grateful you have the capabilities for handling such expensive machines.

To do any job, however small, it takes know-how and we all need each other. We are dependent on one another from the garage-attendant who gases up the car of the Big Wheel executive. Who knows, someday, circumstances could switch their positions.

We all live in a great country by any thing resembling tongues and "Live and let live."

Picton's Image: Visitor Envisages A Brighter, Cared-for Country

Picton Gazette

A recent visitor to Picton looked at the town for the first time and expressed the opinion that the town could be a most beautiful one if only the citizens cared enough to rehabilitate it.

He said Picton could be as attractive as Port Hope or Cobourg, two towns he referred to as having carried out an extensive and successful clean-up and restoration program in recent years.

If the downtown area was spruced up, buildings painted, ugly overhanging signs removed and the streets kept clean, Picton could be a much more attractive town than it is now.

The visitor commented on the fine Picton Bay area and pointed out that this would have been a wonderful park area had it been developed as a park.

The city of St. Augustine in Florida is the oldest city in the United States, and, it too, at one time had run-down areas.

A program of restoration was carried out there and historical areas were rehabilitated and a most attractive colony of artists has been established in the stores in one area. Here, in addition to small buildings turned into specialty museums, are artists making jewellery, craftsmen making leather shoes and sandals, hand-made candy boiled and a number of potters and painters.

It is likely that such an area receives some assistance from the participants as undoubtedly some would have difficulty in making a full living. The area is co-ordinated by a historical group.

Whether Picton could, or should look into additional attractions in the town is one thing, but certainly an improvement in the physical appearance of the town through organized clean-up and paint-up campaign would be well worthwhile.

A Showbiz Legend

How to succeed in show business without really trying.

That could be the watchword of Roger Whittaker whom Vernon Scott of United Press International describes as "the musical oddity of a decade . . . a bespectacled, rumpled English chemist who has defied the pop music world by standing straight and singing like a man."

Scott writes from Hollywood, but fans in these parts may well remember Whittaker on the Tommy Hunter show a couple of years ago. He made an immediate impression then. His records sell here too.

As Scott describes him further: "... fortlesh, with thinning hair, a neatly-trimmed goatee and a mellow baritone."

His voice is resonant — a cross between a Richard Burton and a Theodore Bikel — masculine, and any number of images come to mind: the Englishman who smokes a pipe, a yachtsman, mountaineer, man of adventure.

He sings some of the popular ballads of the day, or recent past, such as By The Time I get to Phoenix, and the strong compelling voice comes across well with inspirational numbers such as an adaption of Kipling's If.

And now, his "passport to fame," as Scott puts it, is The Last Farewell, the ballad of an English sailor embarking for war. A song Whittaker says he recorded all of five years ago, and has taken all this time to find an audience. It's close to the million sales mark.

Whittaker as a performer has been around for some time, as a discriminating audience knows. When he is not on the road, he is with his wife and children in their 16th century English home. He was born in Kenya, and, oh yes, he is a zoologist as well.

Council Caucus Sessions

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Belleville city council met last Monday for caucus session and today, three hours of this time were spent in caucus.

Under Mayor Robin Jeffrey the time spent in caucus sessions seems to be escalating. What is it that takes so much of council's time in these secret sessions? We are led to believe it is these matters that are of a sensitive nature such as land negotiations and so on. All I can say is that if the amount of time spent in secret session is anything to go by there must be a lot of property and land purchase matters discussed in these days.

Perhaps the real reason for the last secret session was to decide who is to be appointed mayor while Mayor Jeffrey makes a play for Dr. Potter's old seat.

Let's hope we will be Alderman Ben Corke — after all, he's Belleville's man to keep such things as the mayor's seat in the hands of the Tory establishment.

Arabs and Israelis Are Still Sitting on a Middle Eastern Powder Keg

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Israel breathed a sigh of relief over the Canadian government decision to postpone the United Nations conference on criminology to be held in Toronto with Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) delegates in attendance.

But it will be only a pause in the determined program of the PLO to seek full identity in the UN and take part one suspects, in the Arab bloc plans to oust Israel from the world body.

The danger in the Canadian decision is that it will encourage the Arab bloc and their many allies among the African and Latin American bloc of member nations to make Israel's existence in the UN very difficult.

The test for this will come at the major political meetings of the UN General Assembly. The issue in effect could determine whether that body will operate mainly on confrontation or on consensus in the years ahead.

Meantime the Israelis are still deeply involved in the disengagement proposals with Egypt in the Sinai, while watching the warlike Syrians along the Golan Heights.

Domestically the Israeli economy is still in bad shape, as a result of world recession and difficulty in selling traditional exports, as well as the very high cost for armaments she must pay.

A further hitch of new weapons is coming from the United States in the form of 82 billions in new F-15 jet fighters and Lance surface-to-surface missiles.

This is not as much as Israel requested, the original amount being 2.5 billions for a big jet batch of new aircraft and missiles which President Ford held up last spring along with continued U.S. military aid to the Turks.

Yet in spite of her many troubles, the Israelis are prepared to make, what is for them, major concessions to bring lasting peace with Egypt.

These would include return of the Abu Rudeis oil fields to Egypt. These are in the Sinai Peninsula, and are presently able to meet about 40 per cent of Israel's oil requirements.

Egypt is the only major Arab nation which is not a substantial oil producer and had begun to develop the oil fields when they were captured by Israel during the 1967 Six Day War.

The two mountain passes of Giddi and Mitla which are the keys to the Sinai and have been under Israeli military occupation since 1967, could be returned to Egypt.

The quid pro quo agreed to at present by both sides would be electronic surveillance of both Israeli and Egyptian military activity in the Sinai Desert at various sites.

The Golan Heights to the north, still under a United Nations peacekeeping force, is a more difficult problem.

If the peace is broken anywhere in the Middle East, it could very easily be with Syria over the future of these strategic areas.

But Israel is not free of fighting in spite of all these negotiations carried on one way or another since the end of the last Middle East war in October, 1973.

Israeli lightning air and land strikes into next door Lebanon are made each time Palestinian terrorists strike inside Israel.

The Middle East remains the constantly smouldering tinder box with the many prophesying war again before the end of the '70s.

Congregation Repairs Organ

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — What began as an impossible dream now is gradually becoming a reality.

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church here is engaged in dismantling and repairing its 50-year-old pipe organ themselves at a saving of about $25,000.

Although there are about 300 in the congregation, about 15 people are doing the repairs, organized by Ian MacPhail, chairman of the property committee.

What's more, there is not an organ builder in the entire congregation.

The project began in mid-February. So far, a little more than one-fifth of the organ has been repaired and the expense to date is about $1,200. The total cost is estimated between $2,500 and $3,500.

"It is our intense desire to finish the whole organ by midnight, Dec. 31 because not only is 1975 the 50th anniversary of the organ, but also the 100th anniversary celebration of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. But I doubt if we will be finished this year," Mr. MacPhail said.

"I am glad we did not know the amount of work involved when we first started because we never would have begun," Mr. MacPhail said.

It is impossible to guess how many hundreds, if not thousands, of man-hours the volunteers have collectively spent on the repairs.

"Very few people have time to work on it, but they do it because the organ is high on their priorities."

Donated in 1923 by the Innes family in Simcoe, the organ was designed by T. J. Palmer and was constructed in the years by Woodstock Pipe Organ Builders Ltd. It took over six months to install it in the church in 1925. Then it cost $25,000 and today appraisers have estimated its value at $180,000.

The organ, designed in the Romantic style, is like a one-man band because it plays transcribed orchestra music. The organist, Lou Gibson, plays a four-manual console which operates the five organ sections: the orchestral, great, swell, pedal, and tuba.

Gradually throughout the years the organ contracted emphysema, as Rev. Ferguson Barr described it, he leathers in the bellows and pouch boards rotted and parts of the organ sections were disconnected rather than repaired.

The choices were clear.

The congregation was faced with a repair bill of about $25,000, which it could not afford, or eventual replacement with either another pipe organ or an electric one, or doing the job itself.

About two years ago, when Mel Willits of Woodstock was in Simcoe for maintenance on the organ, Mr. Barr asked what should be done.

Mr. Willits recalled that some members of Wesley United Church in what then was Port William had released their pouch boards under his company's supervision. Members could do the same for the St. Paul's organ.

Mr. Barr then dropped the idea to some members of the board of managers who took it from there. Last January the board decided to go ahead with the project this year and Mr. MacPhail was to organize it.

During January Mr. MacPhail canvassed the congregation for volunteers. He and Tom Post studied books and articles to understand the basic principles of a pipe organ.

When the volunteers gathered in late January, Mr. MacPhail telephoned Mr. Willits and asked him to come to Simcoe one Saturday to show the members how to take out the pouch boards and releather them.

"I was dumbfounded," Mr. Willits said. "That Saturday I expected to see about three or four people. Instead I was faced with a room full. It's ridiculous I thought.

"I warned them there are a lot of sweat and tears involved in a project like this and all I asked was that they do a better job than I could do. I did them they had to be really dedicated," he said.

He showed them what to do.

Now the project has escalated into completely repairing the organ.

At first he was periodically phoned when technical problems arose, but now that the volunteers are more technically proficient, the phone calls are less frequent. About once a month he comes to Simcoe to look at their progress and offer suggestions.

Despondency Is Part Of Life's Discipline

By
Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

It is said when a person, bright with promise, ends up in needless tragedy. A careful gleaning of chapters 13-31 in the First Book of Samuel would reveal just such a biblical case in point.

For all his dynamic personality and military genius, the first king of Israel allowed moods of melancholy to get the better of him. He grew sullen and unpredictable. What happened at the hands of the Philistine on Mount Gilboa was the outcome.

When we are inclined to despair, let us remember that we are not unique. Nobody is indefinitely exempt from this "evil spirit". It is part of the discipline of life. Regard it as a challenge. You are not alone.

Moreover, we do well to note that a tendency to be despondent is often the mark of a sensitive, thoughtful nature. For instance, will the young people we love be strong enough to resist the inroads of permissiveness in society? Distinguish between a lively concern and futile anxiety over that question.

Further, a number of facts of history could keep us from despairing over the prospects for Christian unity. Here are two.

(1) Walter Rauschenbusch, professor of theology and social reformer, was once asked, "What do you think is the greatest hope for the work of the Church?" He answered in one word: "Death." He meant the beneficient ongoing of the years, i n which the saints with warm hearts and cast-iron minds are removed as obstacles and gathered to their reward.

(2) This hope is as old as the Resurrection morning. The greatest force for Christian unity is Mission. There is the unity we seek.

History is therapy. It was the passion of mission that brought strength through unity to the infant Church, which in its earliest years had to bridge the worst schism the Church ever met — the chasm between Jew and Gentile.

Like Hercules strangling serpents in his cradle, the infant Church had to strangle the venomous snakes of factionalism. The only force that could do it was the wedding power of the Great Commission: "Go and make disciples of all nations."

As it was in the beginning, it is now and ever shall be. Fling out the banner, let it float, and move in behind it!

Information For Home Canners

There were more recorded outbreaks of botulism last year than in any year since 1955.

he most deadly toxin known, it is produced by a bacterium called clostridium botulinm.

And you are most likely to get it by eating home canned food which have not been properly processed.

More home canning took place last year than in any year since the Depression, hence the rapid rise in botulism cases.

Often fatal, the condition is characterized by double vision, difficulty in breathing and swallowing, impaired speech and paralysis.

All of that is very frightening but home canners who follow instructions carefully worked out by Ministry of Agriculture and Food home economists have little to worry about.

Be sure, however, that your information comes from a responsible source like the provincial government, the federal government, a canning jar manufacturing company or a public utility like the consumers' gas system.

Forget about asking your neighbour or aunt.

One way to acquire canning knowledge and be entertained is to borrow a slide kit from the Film Library, Information Branch, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, University of Guelph, Guelph, Ontario.

The presentation includes 78 color slides which outline the stages of the canning process. A reel-to-reel tape or cassette comes with it along with a copy of a narrative guide.

For information about a loan or prendals, contact the film library.

Great Grandmother's House

This replica of a prairie home at the turn of the century, displayed at the Fort Edmonton Museum in Edmonton, shows the spinning wheel, wood stove and treadle sewing machine that were considered "labor saving devices" at the time. Two Edmonton women, Anne Wheeler and Lorna Rasmussen, recently documented the day-to-day existence of pioneer women on the prairie in a National Film Board production entitled Great Grandmothers, to be released in a few weeks.

'Great Grandmothers'

Film Pays Tribute to Pioneer Women

Total Recall Haunts Camp Victim

EDMONTON (CP) — When two local film-makers set out to make a film on the history of prairie women, they wanted to pay homage to the "thousands of nameless women" who helped settle the west.

"We wanted to focus on the unknowns," said Anne Wheeler, co-producer of Great Grand Mothers.

The film, to be released shortly by the National Film Board (NFB), illuminates a hitherto-neglected area of Canadian history—the contribution of women to western settlement.

"Most of what has been documented so far has been male-oriented," said Miss Wheeler, who produced the film with associate Lorna Rasmussen.

"As a result, little is known about the day-to-day lives of pioneer women, who often faced incredible hardships and deprivation."

The 28-minute film, under executive producer Kathleen Shannon of the NFB, begins at the dawn of settlement on the prairies and ends when women achieved the vote.

It uses still photographs, interspersed with re-enactments of pioneer life and interviews with old timers to present what Miss Wheeler terms a "sociological history," rather than a history of chronological events.

The film-makers said unearthing research material for the film was a "frustrating" experience. Few archives contained material about women pioneers, and women themselves left few records because "they did not conceive of themselves as doing anything of historical importance."

Turning instead to personal records, the film-makers spent 1½ years painstakingly uncovering several hundred photographs, diaries, letters and out-of-print books.

In the end, they gathered so much information that the overflow is to be published in book form later this year.

"We discovered a lot of women whose lives should be documented," Miss Wheeler said. "The unknown in the film include a Ukrainian woman forced to emigrate to Canada to marry a man she had only met once, a fairly common practice then.

"And then there were the frail English women who suddenly found themselves dumped in a sod house on a bald prairie, often left alone for months and months."

Often, women were left to face child-birth totally unattended, Miss Rasmussen said, recalling the story of one having her first child.

"She was from England and living on a ranch in southern Alberta. They day her child was born, her husband left the house at eight o'clock and didn't return for another 12 hours.

"His concept was that if cows have calves by themselves, his wife could have a baby alone."

So isolated were settlement wives that months would often pass by before they saw another female other than their immediate families.

"In one diary, a pioneer woman wrote that she had just seen another woman for the first time that year. She said she was so she she ran to a bush and hid."

Miss Wheeler said such hardships either destroyed these women or made them very strong.

"There seems to be a sense of pride in having survived it all. I think it created a special breed of women."

Miss Wheeler, who got into films "completely by accident" after studying mathematics at university, has produced 12 films as a shareholder in Ultramedia, a co-operative established here in 1971.

Miss Rasmussen, who has been associated with Film-west for two years, had experience as a camerawoman before beginning research on Great Grand Mothers.

The film-makers, who spent 1½ years trying to raise money for the film, finally obtained NFB funding for the $42,000 production.

Fyke — Smith

Mr. and Mrs. William Fyke

Christina Jane Smith and William Alexander Fyke were married recently at Church of St. Michael the Archangel.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Smith, the groom is the son of Francis A Fyke, Bridgeway, Ont., and the late Doreen Agnew Fyke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of nylon sheer over sharkskin, trimmed with lace and seed pearls. A two-tier waist length nylon veil with lace edge trim was caught in a headpiece of lace and seed pearls. She carried yellow sweetheart roses, mums and carnations.

Debra O'Shaughnessy was maid of honor. She wore a yellow floweed gown and carried mums and carnations. Pamela Smith, the bride's sister, attended. Flyer the groom's sister, attended the bride in blue floweed gowns. Tammie Koradi was flower girl as was Brenda Lee — Flowers. They carried baskets of roses, mums and carnations.

Bradley Lestini was ring-bearer.

A dinner and dance was held at the Royal Canadian Legion followed by a wedding trip to an island near Bancroft, Ont.

The couple resides in Belleville.

Severs Single Parents

VANCOUVER (CP) — Project Parent is a program designed to rescue single parents and their children from real or potential crises. The home of the service is a corner of a converted warehouse here. Co-ordinator Pat Skolseg, mother of three, said: "We are trying to do two things for single parents. Improve their self-image, and mothering skills and book them into other community services, so they no longer depend on being spoon-fed by a racial worker."

Fresh Fish — In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — An enterprising ex-policeman and his fisherman brother drive nearly two tons of fresh seafood to Ottawa each week from Lunenburg in Nova Scotia and report their sales are booming.

During their stay in the capital's Byward Market, from Thursdays through Saturdays, the Pittman brothers sell 3,000 lbs to 4,000 pounds of seafood from the back of their big refrigerated truck.

"From Canada's fishing capital to Canada's national capital" is the motto on the side of their truck and from it they sell some of the freshest scallops, haddock, salmon, halibut, clams and live lobsters available here.

"I've fed for a long time that fish could be sold in Ottawa more than I, it," said Jim Pitman, a native Nova Scotian who returned to Lunenburg last year after 17 years with the Ottawa police force.

He and his brother Mike, a fisherman for 10 years who then cutrelit rejoined for the fisheries department, felt they could bring fresh, high-quality, reasonably priced seafood to the Ottawa area by cutting out middle-men.

This means that early Wednesday morning they buy a thousand-mile drive.

"We were delayed one week because we had to wait for the boats to bring the scallops in," explained Mike.

"We were selling the scallops to customers 24 hours later. Our fish are a maximum of four days old by the time they go on sale."

The brothers distribute recipes prepared by the Ladies' Hospital Auxiliary of Lunenburg, because they feel Ottawans would buy more fresh fish if they knew how to cook it.

"Ottawans have expensive tastes," he said. "Every first week, we brought whole haddock for 29 cents a pound, and we couldn't sell it. People around here don't know how to prepare anything except fillets."

The first week of July the Pittmans were selling haddock fillets at $1.85 a pound, scallops at $2.85 a pound, salmon at $1.10 a pound and live lobsters at $3.15 a pound.

They don't encourage freezing it because fresh fish, they say, tastes much better.

"But if you do decide to freeze fish, cut it in a plastic bag with a little water—not too much—and keep the water for basting when you thaw it out. That way, you don't lose much flavor."

Books By And About Women

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is one of the most pursued and publicized women in the world today. There is tremendous curiosity about "Jackie". Everyone wants to know what she is doing, what she is wearing, and what she is buying.

The author of this book is a freelance photographer and he travelled across Europe in the Greek isles to get these pictures of Mr. Onassis, her children, and the Kennedy family.

After prolonged litigation, Galella has produced the best of his exclusive photos, supplemented with his own story of why he felt compelled to photograph Jacqueline. His pictures show a beauty and dignity but one is shocked by the tragedy and sadness occasionally caught by Galella on film in his pursuit of the glamorous woman.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

Vasectomy may have damaging effects on the health and masculinity of men, says Dr. Gordon Kinson, an endocrinologist at the University of Ottawa medical school. Vasectomies Could Do More Harm than Good

OTTAWA (CP) — Vasectomy may have damaging effects on the health and masculinity of men, says a researcher at University of Ottawa medical school.

Dr. Gordon Kinson, an endocrinologist, says his studies on laboratory rats show the operation has harmful effects on the male hormones of the animals.

Vasectomy is an operation on men which involves cutting tubes so as to impede the flow of sperm and male hormones.

The operation was first developed in the 1930s but only became prevalent in countries such as India and South Korea about 15 years ago, said Dr. Kinson.

In Canada it has come into increased use in the last few years as a means of male contraception.

Because of its recent use, most studies have looked only at the short-term effects of vasectomy on men, said Dr. Kinson, an associate professor of physiology, in an interview.

"In 15, or 20 years there may be dramatic changes which may not be conclusive to the health and longevity of individuals."

For that reason, Dr. Kinson decided to carry out research into the effects of the operation on rats, whose reproductive characteristics closely resemble the human system. In addition, rats have a short lifespan and results over a year or two can be equivalent to studies on men 20 years after the operation, he said.

After 18 months of tests on a group of experimental rats, Dr. Kinson said, the output of the male hormone testosterone from rats with vasectomies was only 10 per cent of the normal amount.

"This reduction in testosterone output could mean an earlier decline in male behavior, in male appearance and male attitudes in sex."

"These findings are confirmed by similar studies in Great Britain and the United States, he said.

The ability to produce these hormones declines after reaching its peak production in the late teens and early 20s.

"It appears vasectomy exaggerates this decline . . . . It appears to amount to a premature aging of the testes."

Other results of the study show the vasectomized rats had kidneys that were reduced in weight and an increase in fatty tissue in the abdominal regions. One test rat had an unusually enlarged pituitary gland.

In an article in the medical journal Contraception, Dr. Kinson says the results concerning the kidneys and pituitary glands of rats should be viewed with reserve but they deserve further study.

"If isolated catastrophes of this nature, however, prove to be solely or partly a chronic consequence of vasectomy then the occurrence of similar phenomena in vasectomized men, even at a much lower level of incidence, would surely warrant considerable clinical concern," his article concludes.

Dr. Kinson cautions that the test results are preliminary and deal with laboratory animals, but he says that more research is needed into the effects of the operation.

"Vasectomy is in full swing now and research is a lot further behind it. . . . It happened with the pill. The serious side-effects of the pill weren't found until it was in widespread use."

A major problem with the vasectomy operation is its irreversible effects caused by what Dr. Kinson calls "the clamming of the testes."

"This is a sterilization technique . . . for all intents and purposes the guy is finished for life as far as reproduction is concerned."

From a human point of view, it is better that such an operation be reversible. A man who becomes divorced and decides he wants to have children again should be able to, he said.

New techniques involving the insertion of a valve into the tubes from the testicles may prove to be a more acceptable method of male contraception, he suggested.

"I'm may yet see the day when male contraception can be applied simply by the turning on and off of a couple of taps."

Another aspect of current vasectomy technique which worries Dr. Kinson is the fact that production of sperm continues after the tubes are cut. This sperm goes into the bloodstream and the body then tries to produce antibodies which might render the sperm ineffective in reproduction if ever the tubes are reconnected.

What attracts the 39-year-old researcher is the possibility that a male contraceptive pill may some day be produced. He had "one work in the area in relations to the pineal gland, a gland in the brain that affects sexual activity in males.

Dr. Kinson says that as a basic scientist he hesitates to give medical advice but adds that he would "definitely not have a vasectomy himself.

"I'm trying to pop in a note of caution based on past experience and evidence coming out of animal studies,"

Alberta Women — 'Untapped Resource'

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Women are the greatest unused resource in economic planning for southern Alberta, says an economics professor who recently completed a study of southern towns.

Bahir Bilgin, economics chairman at University of Lethbridge, said women must become involved in community decision-making.

"Some ways must be devised to get women to overcome their traditional and largely cultural imposed timidity about taking an active part in the decision-making process of their communities.

There should be a larger proportion of women on village, town and county councils, but the main deterrent to active participation of women is probably a lack of interest resulting from poor or inadequate information."

Dr. Bilgin recommended that the provincial government should appoint a woman as a social and cultural development officer to work with the recently-appointed economic development officer in southern Alberta.

Her primary objective would be to "raise awareness of everyone, but particularly women, as to the potential for social and cultural development in the area."

The officer would distribute information about women and their role in the community.

Ann Landers

Stepfather Hard on Son

Dear Ann: This is a second marriage for me. My husband was wonderful to have taken on two sons—one who is autistic.

The problem is Tom's attitude toward the disturbed child. He insists on treating Barry as if he were perfectly normal. Tom claims this is the best way to MAKE him normal.

All the doctors who have seen Barry agree on the severity of his handicap. He is unable to pronounce many words and is not sufficiently coordinated to feed or dress himself. Yet, Tom refuses to allow anyone to assist the child. While I'm sure he believes he is being helpful, I'm afraid he is being cruel.

Since no one is permitted to help Barry dress he often appears at the breakfast table with a bedsheet wrapped around him. Then he suffers further because he is unable to handle more than a few mouthfuls of cereal. He can't handle a spoon very well and Tom refuses to let him use a straw.

I have spoken to my husband about his stern approach to this handicapped child but he insists his way is right. I'm worried sick the child might be damaged further. Can you advise?—M.J.

Dear M.J.: Arrange an appointment with the child's doctor so both you and Tom can discuss this matter. Perhaps Tom is wrong but the physician is the one who should instruct him—not you.

Dear Ann Landers: I was amazed by the letter from the lady who was insulted when a friend offered her left hand.

When I had the opportunity to work with the Boy Scouts I learned that all Scouts use the left-handed handshake. There's a good reason for this.

In the olden days a man carried his shield in his left hand and his weapon in his right. If he was willing to put down his shield to greet a friend, it meant he was unprotected—a sign that he trusted you. This was the true symbol of friendship.

So tell all those folks who resent a left-handed 'shake" that it might be the greatest compliment of all.—St. George, Utah

Dear George: Thank you for a bit of ancient lore. You taught me something today—and millions of others, as well.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing because I am burned up. You printed a letter recently about an old patient in a nursing home who had a new nightgown stolen. She was also missing a bottle of cologne. From the way you answered that woman's letter it sounded as if you, too, were sure the employees in the home were stealing from the patients.

I have worked in institutions where there was a good bit of "stealing" and it was always the employees who were blamed. But I can't tell you how many times it was discovered that a senile patient had walked into someone else's room and helped himself to fresh flowers, candy, robes and even greeting cards that caught his eye.

If the families of patients would label everything, there would be little question as to where it belonged.—Insulted

Dear Ins: Thank you for the clue-in. Your letter makes sense and I thank you for presenting "the other side."

Minister May Get NDP Nod

Unless a last-minute hopeful comes forward at Wednesday's New Democratic Party nominating convention for Peterborough — Hastings riding, a United Church clergyman will be acclaimed the NDP candidate, says Elmer Buchanan of Tweed, association president.

Mr. Buchanan said in an interview Friday that Bob Thompson, the 24-year-old student minister for the United Churches of Deseronto and Melrose, is so far the only declared candidate.

The convention will be held in Madoc at Centre Hastings Secondary School, at 8:30 p.m. George Samis, MPP Stormont, will be guest speaker.

Mr. Buchanan said the NDP will begin campaigning almost immediately following the convention.

Arsonist Still Sought

Fire and police officials here are still stymied in their efforts to solve the break-in and deliberate fire at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, April 20.

Det. Sam Morgan of city police said Friday no new leads have been communicated to investigators recently. "We're not getting too much information," he remarked.

"We chased down everything we had, but it turned into thin air," he commented.

Det. Morgan said no trace of several pieces of consecrated silverware stolen by unknown thieves shortly before the blaze has been discovered.

"We've circulated pictures of all the items all around the province and none have shown up," he said.

Officials have determined that arson involved in the fire which gutted the 126-year-old sanctuary.

Planning New Industrial Park

City economic development commissioner Fred Bemis surveys 180 acres in the city's north east sector which is being opened up for use as an industrial park. Mr. Bemis said this parcel constitutes the largest, single parcel of land ever opened at one time by his commission.

Mortgage Rates Down from Last Year

A survey of the mortgage market in the Quinte-area shows funds in most categories is limited to good supply with money selling for about 11.5 per cent.

The survey conducted by A. E. LePage Real Estate shows mortgage rates on pre-sold and resale homes at 11 to 11½ percent, — about the same as in June. These funds are in limited to plentiful supply.

Industrial and commercial mortgage money shows as the most costly in the July survey, available at 12 per cent. These funds are in 'adequate supply,' the survey reports.

Cecil Brown, manager of Victoria and Grey Trust Co., said during an interview Friday it's been a good year "and right now the market looks reasonably healthy".

Mr. Brown pointed out mortgage money this year for resale homes is approximately a full percentage point lower this summer compared to 12.5 per cent mortgage rates in July last year.

"This year, because banks and lending institutions "held the line" on what they paid for money, mortgage money interest rates were also held down (with the savings passed on to the home buyer" said Mr. Brown.

Mr. Brown pointed to builder loans or "spec money" as an optimistic sign in the mortgage market.

"These spec loans is available it shows both that the builder is willing to speculate on selling a home, and that the lender shares the builder's optimism," said Mr. Brown.

"We're lending on speculation this summer . . . something we weren't doing last year at this time," he said.

City Begins Opening Major Industrial Park

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Work now is in progress to open up 180 acres of industrial land in the north east portion of Belleville — the end result of the largest, single land banking program undertaken by the city's Economic Development Commission.

Already, before roads, rail or services are complete, Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. has laid out its 30-acre portion of the property as the industrial park's first resident. That plant is expected to employ some 200 workers in the manufacture of cable products.

This week Canadian National Railway crews are busy laying a spur line through the heart of the property — a project undertaken at no cost to the city, said commissioner Fred Bemis.

At the same time other work crews are continuing the sewer servicing of Hillcrest which will serve as feeder lines for industrial park services.

The chore of assembling the three properties which make up the park began in 1971 and was complete by 1972. Mr. Bemis explained the property was not opened until this summer because "we didn't have the immediate requirement for land and that city services had not yet been extended into the Hillcrest area".

Bounded on the south by CN yards and to the east, by Hillcrest, the parcel of land is "ideally suited for industrial use — particularly because it is close to the rail lines," said Mr. Bemis.

The new spur line is being constructed for the Proctor and Gamble plant just to the north of the new development but "is located on the property in such a way that most industrial sites will be able to use rail transport".

"Having a rail through the property is a decided asset when it comes to selling the land," said Mr. Bemis.

As for more industry, Mr. Bemis remained non-committal.

"We have several very good prospects but nothing for sure," he said. "Several are showing rather good chances of locating here."

All costs of the park — including servicing and land acquisition — will be recovered "through the sale of the land to individual industries," said the commissioner. "We are not putting a burden on the city taxpayer by building this park."

Tru-Glass Set to Join Industrial Community

Construction will begin within a week on Belleville's newest industry, Tru-Glass Ltd. a city businessman said Friday.

Last November, word of the firm came from Gananoque when the firm announced that community could not provide sufficient land and named Belleville as its intended location.

Since then, the company has been dealing with Belleville's Economic Development Commission to acquire appropriate lands.

Commissioner Fred Bemis said during an interview Friday the paperwork has been settled between the company and the city and that Tru-Glass will be locating in the north west industrial park.

Tru-Glass is a subsidiary of Beclawat Ltd. and will build the Belleville plant as a head office, according to earlier information.

The plant is expected to over some 40,000 square feet including production and office areas and is expected to employ approximately 40 people. The firm will produce heavy-duty glass products for the transportation industry.

Tru-Glass Ltd. will be the first plant to locate on the north side of Bell Blvd. in a new industrial cul de sac being opened by the development commission.

The cul de sac is fashioned after a similar scheme on the north side of the road and is aimed at providing smaller tracts of land in a subdivision — like setting for small to medium scale industries.

SOHO Official Denies $90,000 Repair Estimate

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Save Our Heritage Organization (SOHO) chairman Gordon Tobey disputed Friday claims by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority that the group did about $60,000 of restoration work on the Proctor House and only a third was well done.

The chairman said an ad hoc authority committee was "irresponsible" in making the assessment of restoration work.

He said the committee people, did not have the qualifications to judge over $60,000 in Local Initiative Program (LIP) money spent in the century - old home.

"If they had gotten consultants to assist them in their report, it would have held a great deal more authority," he claimed.

The report, presented to the conservation authority executive this week, criticized work already done and said up to $90,000 would be needed to make the house usable as office space.

SOHO and the authority have been negotiating to share the building's structure as an office and museum cum cultural centre. Tuesday, the authority indicated it was no longer interested.

Mr. Tobey said it was irresponsible to make a judgement that restoration was not adequate. He said Art Wartman, who presented the report "is not an authority on historical restoration".

Mr. Tobey said the $90,000 repair bill was incorrect. Several years ago, consultants hired by the authority estimated restoration would cost between $80,000 and $100,000 and the major portion has already been done.

Only $20,00 to $30,000 in the installation of wiring, plumbing and heating remains, he said.

Restoration was done under supervision of the authority, said Mr. Tobey: "They're saying, in a sense, that their work is inadequate."

SOHO disagreement over the authority's comments come on top of a fear Mr. Tobey said SOHO has had in the past: "There was always a fear that they would kick us out."

Now, the group of about 200 members will have full use of the house, a prospect Mr. Tobey said SOHO has had in the opportunity to present a broader spectrum of events without the limitation of little space.

SOHO is considering a live-in curator or caretaker in an apartment in the two-storey building. Mr. Tobey did not say when the group plans to open the house to the public.

Ice Cream Still Popular Fare

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

Sales are hot for a cold Bern.

The owner of Ed Thomas Cigar Store on Front St., Emmanuel Georgiou says he sells most of his ice cream during the summer.

"We go through 100 gallons of ice cream a week," says Mr. Georgiou.

The most popular flavor is maple walnut, says the owner.

One of the strangest flavor combinations, Mr. Georgiou says he served was "one scoop chocolate and topped with butter pecan".

Mr. Georgiou says he stocks 16 different flavors and one flavor of sherbert, orange.

"During the summer, people are sometimes lined-up in the door wanting ice cream cones."

Another popular spot for buying ice cream is at Sneaky Pete's, at Quinte Mall.

"We have the most sales of vanilla, chocolate and then butter pecan and walnut," says Fred Fetish, manager of Sneaky Pete's.

In an average week, Mr. Fetish says they sell about 40 gallons.

"Our best selling flavors," says David Pope, at Laura Secord, "are maple walnut and butter pecan."

Averaging about 35 gallons a week in sales, Mr. Pepe says they get more business during the winter months.

"During the winter, more people come to the mall and when they get hot wearing their coats, they buy an ice cream cone," Mr. Pope states.

Rape Suspect Held by OPP

MILLBRIDGE — Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc arrested a 26-year-old Toronto man here Thursday on an outstanding warrant on a charge of rape.

Police said Friday the man is identified as Rudolph Edward Simon. He was wanted in connection with a rape incident in Toronto. Police said they did not know when the incident occurred.

Officers were investigating another matter at a camping site at this hamlet located about 15 miles north of Madoc just west of Highway 62. After questioning the man, they ran an identification check and arrested him at 8 p.m.

Car Clips Pedestrian

KALADAR — Two women were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital Friday for injuries suffered in a car-pedestrian accident on Highway 7, about 12 miles east of here and about a half mile east of the turn to Arden.

A hospital spokesman said Marcelle Collins (age unavailable) of 256, King George St., Peterborough, a passenger in the car, suffered bruises, while Bessie Salt, 74, of St. Thomas, Ont. received a fractured left fibula and left ankle.

OPP at Sharbot Lake said Mrs. Salt had just purchased berries at a roadside stand at about 10 a.m. and was walking to the north side of the highway when she was struck by a compact car driven by Lawrence Collins, 54, husband of Marcelle.

Saying Goodbye

Ash Hornell, chairman of the Ontario committee of the Air Cadet League of Canada, inspects the ranks of graduating air cadets in a parade square near Tent City at CFB Trenton Friday. In the inspection party are, to his right Cpl. Dave Rowan and in the rear, Sgt. Peter Renaud and summer camp commander Lt.-Col. Robert Massier. About 150 cadets said goodbye to Tent City Friday, each having graduated from three-week training course.

Residents Divided on Selection Method for New Mayor

On Tuesday, Dr. Richard Potter Conservative Quinte MPP, announced he would not seek re-election to the Legislature. As a result the president of the local Progressive Conservative riding association, Gerry Brennan has called a nomination convention between August 11 - 14.

Some people have already announced their candidacy for the position.

One of the candidates is Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

If the Mayor is successful in her attempt in winning the nomination and then also wins the provincial election rumored to be this fall; the Mayor's chair will be up for grabs.

City council is then faced with replacing the vacancy by either one of two options: By appointment or by holding another election.

In a recent survey, taken in a local shopping centre, the following people were asked the question: In the event Mayor Jeffrey succeeds in her bid to be nominated and then elected to Queen's Park, how do you think her successor should be chosen? Here are some of their responses:

KAY DOBEC

A real-estate salesperson, 20-year-old Kay Dobec said she is in favor of appointment.

"The price of the election would not be justified at this time for just a short period," said Mrs. Dobec.

"The people already elected have the ability to do the job. Why should they have an election?" Mrs. Dobec said.

STANLEY WOOD

Stanley Wood, a 57 year-old employee with Bell Canada, said he is in favor of a by-election.

"I can't see who would be appointed in the present council," said Mr. Wood.

"Some people in council don't want the job, and the people who do, may not be right for the job," said Mr. Wood.

"The whole community may not approve the appointment."

PAUL GARDENER

A 29-year-old free-lance artist, Paul Gardener said he is in favor of appointment.

Mr. Gardener said: "Personally I don't like voting."

"It is a waste of time and waste of money."

"Things don't seem to change regardless who is in office," Mr. Gardener said.

"Voting to me, is a dying art," said Mr. Gardener.

BETTY-ANN VANCE

Betty-Ann Vance, a 20-year-old Belleville secretary, said a by-election would be her choice.

"It is the fairest method," said Mrs. Vance.

An election would give everyone a "chance" said Mrs. Vance.

The election would not put "anyone in a particular spot." To fulfill a role not originally elected to, said Mrs. Vance.

CLARENCE BIRD

"I think the mayor should be chosen from the present council," said Clarence Bird, a 58-year-old employee with the Ministry of Revenue.

"There are enough well-qualified people in council," said Mr. Bird.

Mr. Bird said there is the "cost involved" having an election.

"The present council is doing a good job," said Mr. Bird.

KIM STUART

An 18-year-old Belleville student, Kim Stuart said she would be, in favor of a by-election.

"It would be unfair if there was just a person appointed," said Miss Stuart.

"By appointing someone, it would be a disadvantage to some who may be qualified for the position of mayor," said Miss Stuart.

Lucchesi Gets Indoctrination

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was an evening of firsts at Kansas City Friday night. Whitey Herzog, Kansas City Royals' new manager, waited to quit while he had cause and Frank Lucchesi, new manager of Texas Rangers, should have got before he got further behind.

Herzog's Royals swept a twi-night doubleheader from Lou-chesi's Rangers for the initial victories in Herzog's regime and the first defeats for Texas under Lucchesi.

"I know all of the days aren't like this—it's not that easy," said Herzog, who made his debut at the Royals' helm Friday night after replacing Jack McKeon.

He said that after beating Texas 6-3 in the first game, he wanted to go home and think about it. Then the Royals won the second game 8-1.

"Now I'm glad we played the second game," beamed Herzog, who decided to enjoy things while he can.

Lucchesi, who replaced fiery Billy Martin on Monday, had won his first three games. "My over bubble busted," he said. "The Royals baptized me real good."

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees beat Boston Red Sox 6-4, Oakland A's beat Chicago White Sox 8-4 in 13 innings, Minnesota Twins defeated California Angels 12-1, Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 4-3, and Milwaukee Brewers beat Baltimore Orioles 5-2.

Cookie Rojas put Kansas City ahead in the first game with a two-run triple in the second inning. Al Cowens then drove in four runs with a triple and a homer and rookie Dennis Leonard scattered five hits as the Royals took the nightcap.

Lou Piniella drove in four runs with a triple and a single while Chris Chambliss sent in two others to help the Yankees beat Boston only in third loss in 17 games and pull within seven games of the AL East front-runner before a Shea Stadium crowd of 40,105.

Reggie Jackson's 13th-inning home run capped what he called his best game of the season and lifted Oakland past Chicago in the see-saw contest. Jackson also hit two doubles, cut off a Chicago run with a fine throw to the plate, and stole third base on the front of a double steal with Sal Bando when the A's trailed by two runs in the bottom of the 13th.

Billy North also starred for the A's with four hits, including two that brought the A's even.

Rod Carew named Minnesota team captain before the game against California, responded with four hits to raise his batting average to .385 and led the 13-hit Twins attack.

Mickey Stanley's two-run triple led a Detroit rally in the ninth and helped Detroit past Cleveland. The Tigers trailed in the big inning by one run.

Hank Aaron's three-run homer off Jim Colborn's four-hit pitching lifted Milwaukee over Baltimore.

Rose Doesn't Play the Foul Twice—Not Even for Marshall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers, who went into Cincinnati Friday trailing the Reds by a manth-12½ games ahead in the national League East Division, looked as if they might make a nice dent in that lead.

They'd beaten Cincinnati 4-3 in the first game of the two-game series, but Houston Astros 8-1, and, in the second game, San Diego Padres swept Atlanta Braves 7-1 and 8-1 while St. Louis Cardinals edged off with Philadelphia Phillies, winning 4-3 and losing 5-2.

"It was my turn to win this time," Rose said of Marshall. "He won the battle in the first game."

With the Reds trailing 3-1 going into the bottom of the seventh, Merv Rettenmund singled and Bill Plummer walked, then Marshall relieved Al Downing. He gave up Ken Griffey's bunt single and his wild throw to first on the play allowed Rettenmund to score. Rose followed with his fifth homer of the year. George Foster's 16th homer in the eighth inning wrapped up the scoring.

In the opener, the Dodgers trailed 3-2 going into the eighth but Steve Garvey singled and John Hale doubled to tie it. Garvey moved to third on Rose Cey's grounder and after Leron Lee walked, raced home on a Manny Mota hit.

Dave Kingman had four hits, including his 20th homer, to carry the Mets past Chicago. He singled for a run in the first inning, hit a two-run homer in the third, singled and scored in the fifth and singled to put the final run in scoring position in the ninth.

The Giants put their game away with a five-run first inning, Willie Montanez and Chris Speier each knocking in two of them and knocking out Dave Roberts, who couldn't get a man out. Speier also hit a home in the eighth.

Mike Ivie and Dick Sharon led San Diego's 13-hit attack in the opener, each hitting two-run doubles in the first inning. The Padres also got 13 hits in the nightcap, highlighted by Willie McCovey's homer and two more RBI for Ivie.

Ted Sizemore's tie-breaking double in the eighth inning gave the Cardinals their first-game triumph. Greg Luzinski's tie-breaking homer, his 20th of the year, in the sixth inning led the Phillies to the second game victory.

Mann, Caponi Take Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Carol Mann, who failed to make the cut in last year's U.S. Women's Open, and Donna Caponi Young, finally regaining her form after being slowed by a hip injury, shot five-under-par 68s Friday to lead the first round of the $40,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament by one stroke.

Mann had 34's, with seven birdies and two bogeys. She had disintegrated in the Open with 84-78 the last two rounds.

Young, who won two tournaments and was at the top of her game when she lost her hip practicing before the third round of the LPGA championship at Baltimore, fired in five birdies and played the other 13 holes in par for 35-33—68.

One stroke behind the leaders were Joanne Carner, a three-time tour winner, and Mary Canney.

Warriors Nip McDonald's 6-5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Burlington Arcaster Provincers beat Kitchener Evergreens 9-6 Friday to strengthen their hold on second place in the east division of the Ontario Fastball League.

Meanwhile in Woodstock, Bellesville MacDonalds lost 6-5 to Woodstock Warriors by walking in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Provincers opened with four runs in the first inning of the game played in Kitchener and scored three more in the fourth.

Pitcher Al Pew picked up his 16th win in 18 decisions despite needing four innings of relief help from Bill Dressman. Losing pitcher Terry Gallamore gave up 13 hits as he went the distance for his 10th loss in 16 decisions.

Catcher Dan Denallick had only one hit for the winners, but it was a three-run homer in the first inning.

Burlington's Vern Agnew had three singles and drove in three runs. Dave Bourne also had three singles, while Hal Kemp and Pete Giacioti had two each.

John Hagey and Gallamore led the Evergreens with two hits each, both good for two runs batted in. Ab Henshaw and Russ Wolohan also had two hits for the losers, who collected 11 in all.

Bellesville's Scott Reid went the distance for the pitching loss. He gave up 13 hits, struck out five and walked six.

Bob Prorascki took the Woodstock win after relieving Don Meeder in the ninth. Meeder gave up eight hits and struck out 11, while Prorascki gave up one hit.

Jim Rackner broke up a 5-5 tie in the bottom of the ninth after reaching first on a bunt single and eventually scoring on a bases-loaded walk.

Action continues today with Bellesville at Hamilton, Newmarket at Burlington and St. Catharines at Toronto. Two doubleheaders are scheduled Sunday—Bellesville at St. Catharines and Kitchener at Oshawa.

Green Giants Help Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jerry Reuss and Dave Parker both stand 6-feet-5, but they lead the Pittsburgh Pirates in more than inches.

Reuss gained his 11th pitching victory this season—a 10-hit, 6-2 triumph Friday over Montreal Expos. Parker had three hits, including the 18th homer, to share the Pirate home-run lead with Willie Stargell.

Reuss is 11-6 over-all, and a

strong finish like he had a year ago could make him Pittsburgh's first 20-game winner since Vernon Law in 1960.

"It enters my thoughts, but I don't try to take them one at a time," said the 26-year-old lefty, who yielded the only Expos run on a solo homer by Barry Foote in the seventh.

Reuss, 16-11 a year ago, is enjoying the finest of his six major league baseball seasons. His 2.31 earned-run average ranks fourth among National League starters.

"If I stay healthy, I like my chances of bettering last year's record and helping the team win."

Reuss went into the game with an 8-2 record this season against Montreal. The Expos countered with Woody Fryman, who shut out the Pirates twice in April.

Fryman left the game in the third inning with a pulled muscle in his ribcage, and Dick Pole, a reliever, gave up a single in the fifth with a solo homer off reliever Dave Pemola.

Parker showed his speed as he beat out an infield single and scored a run in the Pittsburgh four-run seventh, which also included Richie Zisk's tie-breaking double.

The Pirates, who lead the National League with 91 homers, added an insurance run in the eighth with Ed Kirkpatrick's solo homer off Pemola.

In the Expos ninth, the scoreboard flashed word that the Philadelphia Phillies, chasing Pittsburgh in the National League header, had lost the first game of a doubleheader in St. Louis.

"I heard the people cheering, but I wasn't concerned with the Phillies tonight," said Reuss.

The Phillies won the second game of the doubleheader. They trail by five games, and will meet the Pirates here next week.

"I hope we have sellout crowds and play some good games," said Reuss. "But to me it's just about more games. It won't decide a thing, and right now our only concern is Montreal."

Jones Wants Out?

CHICAGO (AP) New York Mets continued their suspension Friday night and said they believe he wants his unconditional release.

Observers of the week-long battle involving Jones, the National League club and manager Yogi Berra, feel the Mets are not fully backing Berra in his dispute with the former all-star outfielder.

"We now feel that Clem wants his unconditional release and that Yogi does not want Clem Jones back on the club, so we have reached an impasse," said Mets general manager Joe McDonald.

A week ago, in a game against Atlanta Braves in New York, Berra used Jones as a seventh-inning pinch-hitter. Jones told him to play left field in the eighth. Jones refuses and left the dugout.

The Mets advised him of his suspension the next day and announced it publicly on Thursday.

At one point during the week Berra issued an ultimatum, telling the club, in effect: "It's him or me." Twice the Mets worked out trades for Jones but each time Jones, using his prerogative as a 10-year player, rejected the deals.

"A week ago," McDonald said, "we had four alternatives—suspend him, bring him back, trade him or release him. Now we're down to two—suspend or release him."

On top of it all, the major league baseball players' association, reacting to the suspension, filed a grievance on Jones' behalf.

Berra said he can't restore Jones to the roster.

"If I accepted Clem back, I'd have to change all my rules. I couldn't look a player in the face.

Aluminum Bats May Be Deadly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission warned Friday that more than 20 million aluminum baseball and softball bats used in the last seven years may be dangerous if their hollow grips are loose.

One death and at least two serious injuries have been associated with the problem, the agency said.

Consumers were urged to check the rubber grips on aluminum bats immediately and not to use them if the grips are loose, worn, torn or deteriorated.

In such event, the aluminum bat could come loose from the grip or the knob at the end of the grip could tear off when the bat is swung, the commission said.

The death and injuries involved youngsters who were using the bats with when the bats and grips separated.

The commission said Easton Corp. of Cleveland was one battery manufacturer involved. Other manufacturers which have used rubber grips are Alco Sports Products Co., Santa Fe Springs, Calif.; Easton Aluminum Inc., Van Nuys, Calif.; Hillrich and Bradsby, Louisville, Ky.; Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, Va.; Wilson Sporting Goods Co., River Grove, Ill.; Worth Manufacturing Co., Tullahoma, Tenn.; and Airflite Aluminum Corp., Carney, N.J.

The bats were sold under the trade names "Easton," and "Adirondack," "Wilson," "H. and B. Louisville Slugger," "Reynolds" and "Worth."

Johns Wins Match Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Pam Johns of Toronto beat Shirley Wildi of Toronto one up to win the championship section of the Ontario Ladies Association match-play tournament at St. Georges Golf and Country Club.

Liz Hoffman of Toronto beat Linda Barfoot of Kitchener on the 20th hole to take the consolation final.

Hiller Hits Arm Trouble

DETROIT (AP) — John Hiller suffered an arm injury in Friday night's 4-3 Detroit Tiger victory over Cleveland Indians.

Hiller appeared headed towards a league-leading 15th save when disaster struck in the ninth inning.

The Toronto-born left-hander suddenly felt a twinge when he let go a 2-2 fastball to Charlie Spikes.

"My whole arm down to my elbow felt dead. My head got dizzy. I had to put my arm down to my side and it didn't hurt anymore."

Hiller believes he may have torn or pulled a tendon on the underside of his biceps. He doesn't think it's a muscle pull. A tendon injury is usually serious, much more so than a muscle injury.

The team physician said he couldn't say what is wrong until Hiller's examination today.

Bobcat System Must Be Due For a Change Anyway

It's not exactly time to start laying up the ol' skates or sharpening the sticks — or is that sharpening the skates? — I guess it depends on how you play the game. Anyway, hockey season is still a few months off, but for the Belleville Bobcats things are getting close.

The Cats have had an invitation-only practice and will continue to hold them until the official season opens sometime in September.

However, that's not what's making things close. It's a time of reckoning for Cat's management.

Jim "Snipe" Matthews has found himself in the touchy situation of having to deal with the wants of others. Something that really hasn't been that vital to the Bobcat organization until right now.

It's nothing against the Snipe. He's run the Bobcats the same way for many years. However, autocracies just established system growing for the better.

It is Snipe's insinuation — though not really defined — that Snipe's method of running the local Junior B is old-fashioned. That if Matthews expects to keep his cop running over — as it has in recent years — then the owner must begin to dish out a little; come across with a little more than a pat on the back and a smile.

Among Boyle's plans is to begin a two-man coaching system. One that includes himself and Ron Lalonde, a former Quebec Junior A player.

Bob says that last year's team suffered from a lot of deadweights. There were too many guys who didn't give a damn for one reason or another. Boyle also suggests that last year's club also suffered from too many cooks — and as we all know too many cooks spoil the broth.

Matthews is confident that he and Boyle will be able to work things out. "There's no reason why we can't," said the GM.

Let's hope things do work out. Boyle has extended some very legitimate reasons, to me anyway, for the Bobcats's laps by the Cats. He has also suggested some very real ways to avoid a similar situation, this season and in the future. It's time the Bobcat organization came to few moths out of the curtain.

This city can't afford another Junior B club like the one last season. And I'm sure Mr. Matthews will agree that he can't either.

SLICES — While on the subject of hockey. The Top O'Shanter Hockey Symposium gets under way tomorrow at Four Seasons Hotel.

Though lectures and classes don't officially begin until Monday, the participating group will be registering Sunday. Included, of course, in the participating members are various European and Russian coaches and personalities including the coach of the Soviet's National squad — Boris Kulagin.

Those participating from North America include the coach of the Houston Aeros, Billy Dineen, while lecturers include Harry Harris and Ian Sheru.

This puts Belleville back on the international hockey scene for the first time since the — except for various appearances by Jack Devine, former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

By the way, congratulations to Jack on his newly elected position with international ice hockey federation. He only recently retired as president of the CAHA and now he has taken a seat on Canada's representative on the governing council of the IIHF.

Thnaks to Jack, our nation now has a powerful voice back in the international hockey door.

Holoway Sets Trend In West All-Star Win

Sonny Holoway, pitching ace for Metal Alloys, threw one hit ball for four innings Friday night to carve the road in a 4-1 victory for the underdog West Division All-Stars in the second annual Belleville Industrial Softball League's East-West All-star game.

The cold was no barrier to Holoway as he fired third strikes past six East players in the first four frames. He was relieved in the fifth by Norm Lockhart and UIC's Rick Sullivan took over in the ninth.

Though the East boasts a stronger overall season record, better hitters and more consistent pitching, the Haverlite keepers played against determined front posed by the West.

The West struck the scoreboard first with a run on some heads-up base running by UIC's Ron Jury and Clint Halliday in the fourth inning. The East came back with a single in the top of the sixth after an error, but the West's infield made up for the miscue in short order when Jury pulled down a line drive from his shortstop position and doubled up the one out runner. A quick throw at Fred Stickle to third base where an East runner was caught off the bag. That finished the East's rally.

FRED STICKLE

CLINT HALLIDAY

Stickle from The Intelligencer, not only played well defensively but came up with a solid effort at the plate with a pair of singles.

He, and Clint Halliday, UIC catcher, with a triple and a single, took care of most of the winners eight safeties. The others went to Joe Clark, UIC second baseman, Bob Robb, UIC left-fielder, Jury, and Mark Reid, Mead Johnson outfielder.

The West took advantage of a pair of glaring errors in the seventh inning to score two more times and added their fourth run in the bottom of the eighth to put the game away.

Gene Francis, Black Diamond's catcher, punched a pair of singles for the East. Constellation's left fielder Ron Mitchell had a double and a single each went to Black Diamond centre fielder Terry Hiddleston and Doug McKay, shortstop from the Independents.

CUE's Brian Plumbe started the game for the East and Black Diamond's Ron Bateman and Ron Andrews completed the contest.

BISL Quarter-finals

Anyone's Guess

After one of the closest races in Belleville Industrial Softball League history, the playoffs are finally ready to begin.

In the West Division one point edged UIC over Post Office for the first place. Things were much the same in the East, as a sudden death game was necessary to decide the champ. The game went to Black Diamond, 9-6 over Constellation and with it the pennant.

Things don't look to let up in the playoffs either, as the quarter-finals begin on Monday with four best-three-of-five series to be played.

The "A" series will be between Black Diamond and Independents, with the first game of that series Monday night. Black Diamond has to be favored to win that one, with the power hitting of Gene Francis, Terry Hiddleston and Ralph Pravnic. They also have a dependable mound staff in Ron Andrews and Ron Bateman.

Earl Collon is the top hurler for the Independents with George Foote is a solid hitter and plays an outstanding first base.

In the "B" series it'll be UIC and The Intelligencer.

UIC came up on top of the West Division, and is favored in this series, although The Intel did beat-up on them a couple of times this year and hung in when the going got tough.

The "C" series will have Constellation and Brooke Bond going head-to-head. Bond's pitching of Ken Kerth and the strong hitting of the entire team.

Brooke Bond's strong point is also pitching, with all-star Tom St. John on their staff. Ross Geen also throws and is a good hitter. This should be one of the more contested series.

Strips "D" will pit Post Office and Mead Johnson against each other and it should be another close one.

Post Office led the league for much of the year and will be favored. Mead Meads is hot off a quick, late season surge which gave them third place.

RETAINS CROWN
CAGLIARI, Sardinia (AP) — Scotland's Ken Buchanan retained the European lightweight boxing crown Friday night after hotly declaring up Italian challenger Giancarlo Usai. Usai's manager threw the towel in the 12th of the scheduled 15-round bout when the Italian was wavering under a barrage of blows by Buchanan. Usai hardly managed to reach his corner where he crumpled on the stool and fainted. He was rushed to hospital, where doctors said he apparently suffered a brain concussion.

Accident Overshadows Black Hawk Feature

Well-known area harness race driver Al Vance was sent to hospital for X-rays and abrasions Friday night after an accident in the sixth race of the nine-race card at Quinte Exhibition and Raceway. Two horses were involved in the accident, which completed the race.

Vance was driving Prima Kitty, a three-year-old filly in the race for non-winners in 1975. He was moving the horse out from the pack when she caught a leg and fell, sending her about 10 feet in the air, landing on Vance's feet.

The result, fortunately, only a badly sprained left ankle for Vance, and-a-bad skinning for the horse.

The other horse involved in the accident, Native Gratian, driven by Ian Mulholland, went into the fence while trying to avoid the accident victim, and him, with Mulholland thrown from the sulky.

Trent Valley Lad won the race, the first of his career, in a time of 2:16.2. The four-year-old gelding was driven to victory by Gord Whyte, with Sandy Oak, guided by Al Smith, second. The pair combined for an exacta payoff of $100.80.

Been a Rough Week at CORK

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Only about half the number of sailors who started the week of racing at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK) are on hand today for the final race, proposed from Friday due to bad weather.

Friday, the exodus from the site swelled as sailors packed up their boats, loaded them on the trailers and left—some because they are so far down in the standings they have no chance of a significant finish, others because of smashed boats.

During the week, heavy winds and seas have wrecked havoc on the finely-tuned racing yachts and the scything arrows are strewn with broken gear and snapped or twisted masts and booms.

The Tornado catamarans and the heavy Tempest keelboats bore the brunt of the damage with most of it coming in Thursday's race, when gusting winds and high waves battered the fleet.

Friday, with seas running up to 10 feet and winds gusting to 35 knots, the race committee cancelled all racing.

Sailors stood Friday, three of the class leaders already had seen up their seasons.

Paul Allen of the United States had clinched the Tornado class after winning four of the races. Rob Smyth of the U.S. was second and Jorg Spengler of Germany was third.

Hans Van Pajet was unbeatable in the Flying Dutchman Class, ahead of Jochen Schumann of Germany and Rod Pattison of Britain.

Australia's Dave Forbes had won the Soling series, William Buchan and Rob Haines of the U.S. were second and third.

However, John Albrechtson of Sweden still could lose in the Tempest class, despite five wins. Uwe Mares of Germany is close behind and a bad finish for the Swede could give the German first place.

There is another battle for first place in the Finn class — Britain's Dave Howlett holding on ahead of Magnus Olin of Sweden.

Francois Fountaine of France led Garry Goltz of Australia in the 470 class, with Marc Guyader of France in third. That class is very close, with the final result riding on today's race.

Canadians have done poorly the week's racing. Hans Fogh of Toronto turned in Canada's only win so far, taking place in the Flying Dutchman class Thursday. He is in sixth place overall in the class, the only Canadian in the top 10 in any standings.

Records Fall At Track Meet

MONTREAL (CP) — Five Canadian open records fell Friday night in the opening events of the International Competitions 1975 track and field meet, with one also establishing a European mark.

Nenad Stekic of Yugoslavia leaped 8.45 metres in the mens long jump to set the European standard and a Canadian open record. His effort is surpassed only by 8.50 and 8.46 jumps by Bob Beamon and Randy Williams respectively, both of the United States.

Lynn Davies of Great Britain, winner of the 1964 Olympic gold medal in the event, questioned the validity of Stekics jump, but upheld after officials ruled a tailwind registered 1.30 metres per second, just more than four miles an hour.

"To me that wind felt more like 6.00 than 1.30," Davies said. "If I'd ever had a wind like that I'd have done 28 feet.

The previous Canadian open mark was set by Ralph Baxter of the U.S. at 8.29 metres—equivalent to 27 feet, 2½ inches.

Ulrike Meyfarth of West Germany set an open mark in the womens high jump with a leap of 1.89 metres. Louise Walker of Toronto had her best performance—1.87—to win the silver, ahead of Sarah Simeoni of Italy.

"I knew that I had it in me, said Mrs. Walker, "because I've really been jumping well in practice. If not in meets. It was just a question of getting it together.

Kathy Schmidt of the U.S. threw the javelin 62.58 metres for an open record and the gold, ahead of Bulgarian Lutvian Molova at 61.18.

Helena Fibingerova of Czechoslovakia was the third woman setting a Canadian open mark with a 20.75-metre performance in the shot put. The next eight finishers—Ivanka Hristova, Ilona Slupianek of Bulgaria and Ludwika Chewinska of Poland—all bettered the previous mark of 17.27 held since 1967 by Brigitta Gummel.

Velko Velev burled the discus 65.18 metres for a men's open record. Heinfrik Neu of West Germany was second at 62.42 and Bishop Dolegiewicz of Laval, Que., took the bronze at 61.48.

Patty Loverock of Vancouver was the lady Canadian gold medalist, winning the women's 100 metres in 11.62 seconds and upsetting Alice Annum of Ghana, second in 11.71.

Robert Martin of Paris, Ont., was Canada's second silver medal in the men's 100 metres behind Albert Lamoyi of Ghana, who won by an eyelash in 10.62 seconds to Martin's 10.63.

Jerzy Hewelt of Poland won the men's 400-metre hurdles and became the first gold medalist of the competition, edging Silver Ayso of Uganda. Hewelt inured the track in 50.25 seconds and Ayso in 50.52. Dave Jarvis of Grimsby, Ont., was the bronze in 51.29.

In the men's 800 metres, Ethiopian star Mirutta Yifter took the gold in 20 minutes, 8.14 seconds just ahead of silver medallist Bulatu Gomez of Mexico in 20:10.36 and Ilie Floroiu of Romania in 2:10.65.

Chris McMahon of Winnipeg, an American-born member of the Canadian team who becomes eligible for Canadian citizenship in December, ended with less than two laps to go before coming up short in the stretch. He finished in 2:16.51 and was sixth in a field of 15.

Rossita Pekkivanova of Bulgaria was the first qualifying heat for today's women's 800-metre final in 2:02.20, and Glaiela Kaloha of Poland won the second heat in 2:02.66.

Other qualifiers were Jean Wenzel of Waterloo, Ont., Joanna Carabanova of Czechoslovakia, Vassilena Anzina of Bulgaria and Marie-Francoise Dubois of France.

Janos Szmrecsanyi of Hungary took one men's 800-metre semi-final in 1:51.85.

Canadians Earn Challenge Cup

BISLEY, England (CP) — Shooting under poor conditions of high winds and blowing sand, Canada won the overseas Challenge Cup at the Bisley Rifle Association annual shoot Friday.

Canada, with 1,170 points, edged Guernsey by 15 points in the team match over 200, 500 and 600 yards. Jersey scored 1,146 and Zambia 1,095 points.

Top man on the Canadian team was Ron Clark of Burlington, Ont., who scored 100 out of a possible 105.

In the short-range aggregate, Ralph Lapenye of North Vancouver was third, one point behind the winner. Peter Jemeson of Regina scored 72 out of 75 at 600 yards to take third place in the Duke of Gloucester event.

The Canadian Army cadet team was outpointed by a strong British team which won the Alexander Graham Bell trophy at 200, 500 and 600 yards. The British boys got 774 out of a possible 840 and the Canadians 765.

Nova Scotian Advances to Final

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (CP-AP) — Ann Dodge of Westerley, N.S., advanced to the semi-finals during the opening program of the European junior canoeing championships Friday.

Dodge, representing the Cheema Canoe Club in Waterley, finished second in the second heat of the K-1 competition. She had a time of 2:1.8 to finish slightly behind Brigitte Vervoort of Belgium who finished in 2:1.7.

However, in K-2 heats, Dodge and Madelaine Montreuil of the Carleton Place Canoe Club, Carleton Place, Ont., were eighth in 2:07.7.

The top three finishers in each heat advanced to today's semi-finals. Others will have a chance to make it in repechages. The finals in what is considered the junior world championships will be held Sunday on the 1960 Olympic course here. 40 miles from Rome.

In the K-1 men's heats, Carl Bernazki of the Mississauga Canoe Club in Port Credit, Ont., wound up sixth in 1:39.8 in the first heat.

Later, Bernazki and Ivan Ramsay of Port Credit, placed seventh in the second heat of the K-2 competition in 1:51.4.

Jeremy Gabriel of Port Credit placed sixth in the first heat of the K-1 at 1:56.1.

In the C-2 men's heats, Steve Wilson and Martin Fraser, both of the Mississauga Canoe Club in Credit, finished eighth in 2:09.6.

KC TRADES QB

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Chiefs announced Friday they have traded quarterback Dave Jaynes, among their round draft choice from Kansas in 1974, to Atlanta Falcons for wide receiver Tom Geredine.

Brewer Makes Move in Open

MONTREAL (CP) — When tour veteran Gary Brewer won the Canadian Open golf championship in 1973 he was the grateful recipient of some putting tips from well-known Ontario amateur Nick Weslock of Burlington.

And Brewer once again has received some putting advice from Weslock, this time from a younger tour pro, advice he claims stood him in good stead as he moved into today's third round of the Canadian championship tied with the tour money winner Jack Nicklaus.

At the 1973 event at the Cherry Hill club in Ridgeway, Weslock consulted his now-famous black book to straighten out Brewer's stroke on the greens.

Friday, Brewer admitted that a lesson by Bob Rosburg had once again set the wheels turning of his game back on the rails.

Brewer finished his second two-under-par 68 over the windruffled Islands course in Montreal Golf Club layout to pull into a tie with the formidable Nicklaus. The latter had carried the second round of the 72-hole, $200,000 tournament five strokes under par. But he fired a one-over 71 Friday for a 36-hole total and a share of the lead.

"I did putt well today," Brewer admitted. "Rosburg has been the weak part of my game the last 1-1-2 years.

"Bob Rosburg helped me with my stroke this week and I'm stroking the ball better now than I have in three years."

Brosksmith, Rosburg's son not among the 71 golfers to avoid the cut by scoring 144 or better in the first two rounds here. He missed the cut-off figure by five strokes.

He all, 71 players who recorded 36-hole totals of 144 or better survived the cut and advanced to the two final rounds and a share of the $40,000 first prize.

It had been originally announced by tournament officials that only 70 players would qualify. But a mistake was made in the 145 group before a hastily-convened meeting of Professional Golfers Association officials, the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the sponsors discovered that the error had been made.

A spokesman for the sponsors said PGA tournament director Jack Cuthill confirmed that the extra 70 players will not play Friday.

If Brewer continues to scramble as he did during his sometimes sensational second round and at the same time maintain his consistency on the greens, he could offer a strong challenge to the supermarket Nicklaus has displayed here in his search for his first Canadian title in eight tries.

Brewer converted two sensational bunker shots into birdies between holes 10 and 18 and then by blasting directly out of the bunker and into the hole in each instance.

But at the same time he admitted he missed an opportunity to hold down his lead when he "rushed" a 10-inch putt and ended up with a bogey-five on the 373-yard second hole.

In contrast by carded an eagle three on the par-five, 522-yard 12th when he sank a 40-foot iron shot.

Brewer insisted the wind had a lot to do with his somewhat inconsistent second round. Some golfers played under less ideal conditions for the second straight day, faced by winds that officials estimated produced gusts of 45 miles an hour.

"In this kind of weather, you have a good round you have to scramble," Brewer said.

Another tour veteran, Ken Still, stood one stroke behind meeting the cut but searched for his first victory since the autumn of 1970.

GAY BREWER

Still emerged as the best golfer in the second round when he fired a three-under-par 67 to go with the 70 he carded for his first round.

"I really played a good, solid round of golf today," he said. "I figure if I shoot around par in the wind, I won't lose any spots."

He said that like most others on the tour, "I definitely try to keep the ball down in the wind."

Dave Graham, a pleasant Australian who hasn't had a win on the tour since the Cleveland Open in 1973, was all alone at 138. He was one over Friday after enjoying a three-under round on his initial 18.

"Today was the kind of a day when you had to expect to hit good shots and get no rewards," he said.

Tom Weiskopf, who won the Open at Montreal's Richelieu Valley two years ago and was a wonder after the first round with Nicklaus, was grouped with Mike McCullough and Hubert Green at 139.

Weiskopf admitted to having gone second guesser and changed his putter for most of the problems that saw him soon in a four-over 74 Friday.

"The reason for my poor score isn't my putter and my inability to save par when I was in trouble," Weiskopf said. "I three-putted twice, once for a double bogey."

Only five of the 19 Canadians who started the tournament survived the cut. They were led by George Knudson at 142. Amateur Gary Cowan, the former U.S. champion was at 143. He was one of two amateurs entered. The other, Robbie Jacksonof the host club fired, an 80 Friday for a two-round 155.

Bob Panasik of Windsor, Bob Rose of Copetown, Ont., and Don Halldorson of Brandon, Ont., were the other Canadian survivors, all at 144.

Other notable survivors were Gary Player at 140 along with veterans Julius Boros, Miller Barber, Gibby Gilbert, Charles Coody, Fred Marti and Pat Fitzsimons.

Final Friday pairings was a group of six golfers listed at champion Bobby Nichols was bunched with Jim Colbert at 142. Lee Trevino, Tony Jacklin of Britain, Bruce Crampton of Great Britain, and Lou Graham were the prominents at 143.

Canada Gets Double Silver

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Friday was a silver medal day for Canadian weightlifters Guy Carapick and Sylvie Fortier at the world aquatic championships. Bob Treiber, of Halifax, pushed East. Germany's Birgit Treiber to a world record in the 200-metre backstroke as she herself improved the previous mark. Treiber won in 2:15.46 and Carapick was hurled at 2:16.09.

Fortier, 19, of Quebec City, finished half a point behind Gail Bunnan of the United States in the 100 metre breaststroke for second place over-all in the solo event of synchronized swimming.

The Carapick-Treiber match in the 200 metres in the men's swimming people have awaited since Carapick's arrival in prominence early this year by breaking the world record with a time of 2:18.30 and Treiber bettering that time in June to 2:18.10.

The two girls gave cheering spectators sweat long and come to see, running two-three after the first 50 metres but one-two the rest of the way.

Carapick led until the final five metres when Treiber, one of the fastest finishers in the 1974 swimmers, edged slowly ahead.

"I thought I had a touch race in the East German champion, Frank Wiegand, but he was my toughest race ever."

Carapick said he knew they were going at a record clip and also knew the final 50 metres would be fast.

"My last turn wasn't as good as it should been," he said. "I said as tears began to roll down her cheek. "I saw Bob coming up and I tried as hard as could but she has a pretty fast last 50."

It was the only medal Canadians managed in the speed swimming Friday. Gail Amundsen and Shannon Smith, both of Vancouver, finished sixth and 10th in the 400-metre freestyle.

Kathy Cook of Vancouver was eighth in the backstroke, Gail Amundsen 10th in the 200 metre breastroke and the men's team finished sixth.

Shirley Babashoff of the U.S. was the women's winner in 4:16.87; Andreas Hargitay, won the men's 200-metre individual medley in 2:07.75. Christine Linke of East Germany won the women's 200-metre breaststroke in 2:37.25 and West Germany was the relay in 7:39.44 after the United States was disqualified.

With a world record well within their grasp, the American men lost the gold medal when Bruce Furniss left the water for the final in a split second before Tim Shaw touched.

The results left the U.S. alop the medal standings with 10 golds, six silver and three bronze. East Germany is second with 18 overall, including eight golds. Canada has two silver and one bronze for seventh place.

In points standings, the U.S. has 256, East Germany 230, the Soviet Union 99 and Canada 85.

Swimming is a heavy rain-storm. Fortier put on a dazzling performance that fell just short of victory. She was awarded 46.2 points, Bunnan 46.7.

The capacity crowd booed the seven judges when Fortier's score was announced slightly lower than the American girl's.

"I think I give more of myself to my routine than Gail and I think the people appreciated it," Fortier said of the response.

"This was my first big competition, my first placing and my best ever score, so I'm very pleased."

The women's platform diving, Teri York, 19, of Vancouver missed by one point an easy forward 1½ somersault and was mistaken to regain her form in time.

"It was stupid," she said. "The dive was no sinnier but I blew it. I couldn't pick it up and I couldn't do it. I've done that days when you just wake up shaking your head in wonder."

She finished sixth with 347.46 points.

Janet Ely of the U.S. won the gold with 401.89 points followed by Karin Kallmen of the Soviet Union with 387.99 and Ulrika Knape of Sweden with 387.60. Bev Boys of Pickering, Ont., failed to qualify for the final.

Canada's water polo team lost its second game 7 over Iran and today plays Yugoslavia in its final contest.

Tooktim Wins Feature

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Tooktim won the $7,000 featured seventh race at Fort Erie race track Friday and combined with Amber Herod for an exacta worth $12.20.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Rommie Loudd, former boss of the now-defunct Atlanta Blazers team of the World Football League, entered jail Friday on charges of and embezzlement charges.

"It's fourth down on the one-yard line for me and I'm ready to play ball," Loudd said after he stepped off a government jet Friday night and was escorted by sheriff's deputies to the Orange County jail after finally losing an eight-month civil battle to avoid extradition to Georgia.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a bit too anxious today to finalize issues. For the sake of expediency you could make some bad moves. Be patient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You have good ideas today but you're not likely to implement them properly. Don't let others get you sidetracked.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are several ways to economize now if you give the matter a little more thought. Be as prudent as your friendly banker.

LACK OF TIME

Jews, during the Passover festival in memory of the flight of ancient Hebrews from Egypt, eat matzos, unleavened bread. The Bible says they baked matzos because they had no time to bake leavened breads.

South bid his hand with all the delicacy of a bull in a china shop. It didn't really matter this time since three notrump was the correct final contract. What did matter was that he played the hand with almost the same technique.

West won the first trick with the king of spades and knocked dummy's ace. South cashed dummy's ace of diamonds and led a second diamond to his eight. West let that eight spot ride, so that South would only be able to take three diamond tricks.

This didn't worry South at all. East had overcalled. East needed the king of diamonds for his overcall. Therefore, South felt entirely secure with the lack of diamonds. He had a heart, fortessed his queen and would up his trick when after West produced the king.

We don't sympathize with South at all. True, East had made a horrible overcall. But when you have a sure thing why not take advantage of it?

South could have cashed his queen of spades in case East had overcalled on a three-card suit. Then he could have led the third diamond to dummy, thrown West in with the fourth one and made West lead a heart or a club to give South his all-important ninth trick.

Ask the Jacobys

A Toronto letter reads in part: "My right hand opponent opens one notrump and is raised to game. What should I lead from?" His hand is:

♠ Q 8 ♥ 7 5 4 ♦ 3 2 ♣ 10 7 5 4

The answer is the deuce of spades. His partner has cards. He has nothing and his best chance to beat this contract is to find his partner with five cards in the spade suit.

New Immigrants

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Fresno County, already an area flourishing in the languages, customs and cultures of many nations, is getting a minor wave of new immigrants from the Punjab region of India. An estimated 300 Punjabs, followers of the Sikh religion, have arrived in the last three or four years.

Treat Allergy

CHICAGO (AP) — If you suffer every spring from allergies from pollen, ragweed or grass, the message from University of Chicago physicians is to see your doctor early. The physicians report that each allergy attack can damage tissue, reduce airflow through the nasal passageways and even increase sensitivity to further attacks.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

Goes Public

BY ALLEN SPRAGGETT

The Centre for UFO Studies — the world's only scientific body studying the UFO mystery — is going public, you might say.

The centre, headed by Dr. J. Allen Hynek, astronomy professor at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., came into existence about two years ago and has been busily investigating UFO cases since then. However, Dr. Hynek says that the centre "has developed more rapidly than originally scheduled" and has gained a recognition both from the public and the scientific community which is causing it to dramatically expand its scope and activities.

The Centre for UFO Studies (address: Post Office Box 11, Northfield, Ill.) exists because, as Dr. Hynek, puts it, "the unexplained content of many UFO reports from many credible witnesses in many parts of the world defines a problem and presents a significant mystery. Any phenomenon which has occupied the thought of so many people for so many years is surely a subject worthy of scientific study".

How vast is the UFO mystery?

Well, here are some items from ufologist Hynek's latest report.

ITEM: There are approximately 600 cases catalogued by the centre of "physical traces" — burned areas, broken tree branches, indentations in the soil, chemical changes in the soil, etc. — associated with UFO sightings. In one such case, a 40-foot "burned ring" was found in a soybean field in Iowa after a farmer and two other witnesses reported seeing a UFO hover over the apot. Vegetation in the burned area was "desiccated" in Dr. Hynek's words, "as though by some sort of death-ray effect".

ITEM: In the fall of 1973 alone, 41 documented cases occurred in the United States in which "humanoids" (human-like creatures) were reported associated with UFOs. The Centre has prepared a scientific study of these cases titled, "1973 — Year of the Humanoids".

ITEM: The Centre for UFO Studies is now investigating numerous cases in which UFOs have affected people, machinery and the surrounding environment. There is lab analysis of "plants, trees and soil which appear to have been affected by the presence of the reported UFO; with the reported effect on radios, television receivers and electrical systems; and with medical studies of witnesses who have been reportedly blinded, paralyzed and subject to headaches, nausea, etc.

ITEM: The Centre, besides having the active co-operation of police forces across the United States, including the FBI, recently received an expression of interest in such co-operation from the Civil Defence Preparedness Agency, Department of Defence. Never before has the investigation of UFOs received such impressive official sanction and support.

The main functions of the Centre for UFO Studies remain:

1. To provide a clearinghouse for UFO reports from police forces and other official agencies as well as the general public; and 2. to bring together a team of respected scientists from more than a dozen universities — astronomers, physicists, chemists, psychologists and sociologists — who seriously seek to crack the mystery of what UFOs are and where they come from.

The Centre is financed largely by tax-deductible donations from individuals.

In his more than 25 years studying UFOs — most of them as official scientific consultant to the U.S. Air Ro-ce — Dr. Hynek says his attitude has shifted from initial disbelief and even mockery of the subject to the conviction that the UFO enigma is the key to a vast leap forward in man's understanding of the universe and himself. This is why he has dedicated himself to the pursuit of the UFO enigma.

"When the long awaited solution to the UFO problem comes," says this veteran biologist, "I believe that it will be not merely the next small step in the march of science but a mighty and totally unexpected quantum jump."

And who knows how suddenly, or unexpectedly, the solution may come?

Latest Israeli Bid Called Final Offer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel's latest proposals to Egypt for an interim agreement in the Sinai Desert are Jerusalem's final offer, Defence Minister Shimon Peres said today.

In an interview with the Tel Aviv newspaper Haaretz, Peres said Israel had gone "a long, long way" and he could not envisage any more Israeli concessions to Egypt.

If Cairo's latest proposals are final, Peres said, then "Israel has nothing more to offer."

Israeli sources said Sunday that Egypt had rebuilt its war capability following the 1973 fighting and Israel now feels the chances of another war are much higher than a year ago.

Peres said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "perhaps believes he can further harm American-Israeli relations by trying to force Washington to squeeze a bit more out of Israel."

The strategic Mitla and Gidi passes in the Sinai Desert would not be surrendered so that Egypt could turn them to its advantage against Israel, the defence minister added.

Peres said the Israeli offer included alternative deployments at the passes but did not concede their strategic value.

He said the latest Egyptian proposal showed Sadat wasted "a great deal from Israel in exchange for nothing."

Prime Minister Rabin told Israeli state television Friday that Israel had turned down Cairo's offers "in their main parts," and predicted the negotiations would be prolonged.

U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger met Sunday with Herman Eilts, the U.S. ambassador to Egypt, and sent him back to Cairo with Israel's latest reply to the Egyptians.

Kissinger directed Eilts to meet him in Yugoslavia next Sunday with the Egyptian response.

U.S. officials would not discuss the offer, but it was said Israel was outlining new thinking on further withdrawals of their troops in the Sinai and on the role to be played by U.S. personnel in monitoring any new settlement.

Diplomatic sources in Jerusalem said Israel still was waiting for an Egyptian offer that would ensure Israel's presence at the eastern approaches to the passes and on an early warning electronic radar station, plus control of a strategic road to southern Sinai east of the proposed Egyptian land corridor leading to the Abu Rudeis oil fields.

President Sadat said during a visit to Khartoum, Sudan, that Egypt's army is in a state of full mobilization and on 24-hour alert.

He also said that Egypt will adopt "a new situation" when the latest UN mandate for a Sinai peace force expires in October.

Sadat was in Khartoum for talks with Sudanese President Gaafar Numeiry on economic integration and regional issues.

Syrian Prime Minister Mahmoud Ayyoubi went to Amman today to work out details with Jordan on joint military effort against Israel on the Syrian and Jordanian fronts.

Guns Easy to Get

TORONTO (CP) — Almost anyone who knows how to go about it can get a permit to own a restricted firearm, says John Millard, head of the Metropolitan Toronto police department's firearms registration unit. He says that if a person asks for a gun permit for home protection, police will usually refuse his request. But if he asks for the permit for collection purposes, he likely will have the permit within three or four days. African Nations Want UN to Expel Israel

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — African foreign ministers called today for the suspension of Israel from the UN until the country withdraws from occupied Arab territories and recognizes the national rights of Palestinians.

Organization of African Unity (OAU) delegates also said South Africa should be expelled from the UN, and urged stepped-up economic, political and military measures against ruling white minorities in South Africa and Rhodesia.

The OAU conference condemned the United States and other unnamed countries for supplying arms to Israel, and denounced the U.S., Britain, France and West Germany as military suppliers "to South Africa. It urged these countries, Japan and Switzerland to stop cooperating economically with South Africa.

Assistant Secretary-General Peter Onu of Nigeria announced details of OAU resolutions as the foreign ministers continued their fourth successive plenary session. The ministers were three days behind schedule in completing recommendations for approval by a summit scheduled for later today.

Turks Taking Over U.S. Military Bases

ANKARA (AP) — Turkish units began moving today into U.S. military installations scattered around Turkey, officials here said.

They said the troops were acting to take control of the bases but declined to give further details. No reports were available from the sites to confirm the official announcement.

Officials denied press reports that the United States already had closed some of the key bases.

"But operations are being suspend gradually since Saturday in accordance with the Turkish government's decision," the officials said.

"It will take some time. Some of the sensitive equipment cannot just be switched off at a moment's notice without being damaged."

Meanwhile, Premier Suleyman Demirel scheduled a cabinet meeting Tuesday to study the progress so far towards the implementation of his government's decision to suspend all operations on the U.S. installations and give control of them to Turkish armed forces.

The decision was in reprisal against the U.S. House of Representatives vote to continue a U.S. arms embargo against Turkey imposed last February because of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus.

International Hardware Strike Mediation Proceedings Start

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Mediation proceedings began today in an attempt to end a six-week strike of 200 International Hardware employees — members of the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers.

Employees walked off their jobs June 12 when contract negotiations with the company broke down. Workers took to the picket lines in support of demands which include wage increases of 75 per cent and unlimited cost of living benefits in both years of a two-year contract.

There have been no new developments at the plant since the strike began, with today's mediation proceedings marking the first time both sides have met at the bargaining table since early June.

Ontario Labor Relations Board mediator Gordon McGuire is to feel out both sides of the deadlocked dispute at the Four Seasons Hotel before making his report. The meeting of the negotiating committees for both sides began at 10 a.m.

The company's last offer would have given workers a total package of pay and benefits amounting to approximately a 36 per cent increase.

Union negotiating committee chairman Ray Ryan said during an interview Sunday the major goal of the workers is the unlimited cost of living clause.

The company had offered a capped cost of living in the first year and unlimited in the second year of the contract.

"We're not that far apart on wages but cost of living is the bit thing," said Mr. Ryan.

He said "providing the mediator comes up with a reasonable solution, we will be negotiating committee will call an immediate meeting with the union members to put the issue to a vote."

Peaceful Picketing

Some 220 members of the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers have been on strike at Belleville's International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd. for more than six weeks — a strike that could come to a close this week. Today, union and company officials sat down at the negotiating table for the first time since the strike began. A provincial mediator began talks with the two sides in the Four Seasons Hotel this morning. Discussing developments with the workers' negotiating committee chairman Ray Ryan (centre.)

Rival Angolan Armies Contending for Control

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Americans and Europeans continued to flee from embattled Angola today as rival nationalist armies vied for control of the southwest African territory.

No immediate plans to close the U.S. consulate were announced, but the British consulate was shut down Sunday and the staff flew to London today.

Stanley Croft, the British consul general in Luanda, said in London there were reports of "massacres and blacks by blacks" and, although there had been no moves against whites, the situation in Luanda was becoming increasingly dangerous.

Croft said he had heard reports that up to 14,000 troops of the Peking-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) were marching on Luanda from the north to try to take control from the rival MPLA.

Croft said some Britons, mainly directors of large business concerns, chose not to evacuate because they had no time to make arrangements for their businesses to continue.

"They have taken a calculated risk but individuals can look after themselves," he said.

About 20 Americans and 85 Britons and other Europeans left Luanda on Sunday as mortar rounds exploded in Luanda's surrounding shantytowns and the sky was marked by smoke from blazing oil tanks on Luanda Bay.

About 120 Americans were reported to be living in the territory before the evacuation from Angola, which is to become independent from Portugal in November.

Angry Portuguese troops attacked a crowd of Africans on Sunday outside the authorities headquarters of the Moscow-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), which currently controls the city.

Witnesses said at least 20 persons were killed and another 20 were wounded by the Portuguese troops.

The witnesses said the Portuguese apparently had been angered by the wounding of a Portuguese lieutenant Saturday night and by the resistance they encountered in trying to arrest the alleged assailants.

The Portuguese troops are under orders to remain strictly neutral in the power struggle between the rival Angolan forces.

Greek Treason Trial Is Termed Illegal

ATHENS (Reuter) — Defence lawyers for 16 of the 20 ringleaders of the former military junta walked out of a court today, claiming the trial was illegal.

The accused, including former president and prime minister George Papadopoulos, have pleaded not guilty to charges of high treason and insurrection which could carry the death penalty.

Their lawyers maintain that justice had recognized the revolution by a series of decisions during the seven years of military rule.

They said the present prime minister, Constantine Karamanlis, took over power from the armed forces and was appointed premier by the president of the republic, which was created by the revolution.

"The prosecution and the trial were fabricated by the political authority for political reasons and revenge," the lawyers said in a statement.

"In view that the case has been decided by the political authority alone and the court's only task is to pass sentence, our presence here is needless and unnecessary. We will withdraw from the trial because we are unable to offer any positive help."

The court then appointed new defence counsel, but Papadopoulos said:

"I have been the leader of the revolution. Whatever the others did they obeyed orders. They have no responsibility whatsoever. From now on I will not talk. I forbid the ex-officio defence counsel to ask any question or to plead on my behalf."

Pipeline Contracts Are Let

EDMONTON (CP) — Awarding of contracts for a 328-mile pipeline extension from Sarnia, Ont., to Montreal was announced today by R. K. Hyde, vice-president and general manager of Interprovincial Pipe Line Limited.

The company said in a news release that Banister Pipelines Ltd. has been awarded work on 76 miles between Sarnia and Ingersoll, Ont., and 86 miles between Pickering and Trenton, Ont.

Marine-Somerville, a joint venture of Marine Pipeline Constructors of Canada Limited and Robert B. Somerville Co. Ltd., will handle 20 miles from Ingersoll to Mississauga, Ont., and Banister-General, a joint venture of Banister Pipelines and General Pipeline Contractors Ltd., 26 miles between Mississauga and Pickering.

H.C. Price Canada Ltd., will handle 80 miles from Trenton to Brockville, Ont., and Lerann International Limited 90 miles from Brockville to the Quebec border. Universal Pipe Line Enterprises Ltd. will construct 48 miles of the 36-inch line from the Quebec border to Montreal, excluding a crossing over the Ottawa River.

All contractors expect to begin construction by Sept. 1, the company said.

Want Alimony Awards Not Related to Guilt

OTTAWA (CP) — Maintenance awards on divorce should no longer be based on the innocence or guilt of either spouse, the federal law reform commission says in a working paper released today.

The commission is awaiting public comment on its report before reviewing the issue more and presenting it to Parliament, probably sometime next year.

"It is an unfortunate part of the folklore of marriage that the 'innocent' husband should be able to put the 'guilty' wife out on the street without a penny, and where the situation is reversed, the wife should be able to 'take him for every cent he's got,'" the report says.

This is "legally-enforceable vengeance" and it has nothing to do with the financial needs of those being divorced.

The commission says that maintenance payments should be awarded only where required by custodial arrangements for children, the physical or mental condition of either husband or wife or the inability either one to get a job after divorce.

These payments would continue as long as a reasonable need existed "and no longer." The amount of payments would depend on reasonable need, property ownership, ability to pay and obligations to children.

The recipient would be expected to assume personal responsibility for maintenance within a reasonable time.

Crowe Lake Property Owners Want Action On Septic Problems

By RUBY McCoy
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — Ray Black has been selected as the new president of the Crowe Lake Property Owners Association. The annual meeting was held here Saturday.

Other new officers include Eldon Killian and Don Ross as first and second vice president, Jeanette Campbell as treasurer and Amy Thomson as secretary. A working committee, to be made up of area representatives, will be named later by the executive.

T. B. Moore, senior environmentalist, with the ministry of environment at Kingston, addressed the members.

Beltrice president Kathleen Engs told the ministry representative that the executive is unable to get action from the Hastings — Prince Edward County Health Unit when they reported septic tank failures.

Mr. Moore assured members that if they had any problems in the future he would do everything in his power to help the association.

He said the ministry is trying to catch up on a backlog of requests for studies on many different lakes, said Mr. Moore. He also said the ministry will not undertake any new studies this year. He noted that the Crowe Lake Association has already made a study request.

He gave no indication however, when the study would take place. He recommended the association for its fight against pollution.

When the topic of fluctuating water levels was brought up by Donald Marmora's representative on the Crowe Conservation Authority explained that up until now the authority has not had control of all dams.

He said he hopes this situation will soon be corrected with control of the entire water system under the authority's engineer.

Trucker Pinned As Unit Rolls

TRENTON — An Oakville man was trapped for more than an hour in the wreckage of a transport trailer early today after it rolled while rounding a curve on Highway 401 north of Trenton.

Hit two, pre-teenage daughters escaped the accident with bruises and bruises.

Brighton OPP said the arm of Francis Wheeler, 28, was board and the ground after pinned between the dashes he was flung partway through the windshield of his truck.

"If he had gone through further, he would have pinned his head," police say. "They were pretty lucky to get out of it."

Police saw the man's arm was saved from being crushed because the soft ground gave under him.

His daughters, six-year-old Janet and Mrs. 12, were treated for cuts and bruises at Trenton hospital. Wheeler was also treated and released.

Wheeler—was cut out of the wreckage by the Thurlow Township rescue unit.

Minister Says Career Asset Not Handicap in Election Race

United Church lay minister Bob Thompson is the only declared nominee for Wednesday's New Democratic Party nominating convention in Madoc but already he and the riding association are talking as if he is now a seasoned candidate.

Elmer Buchanan, association president, said recently, "it looks like Bob will be acclaimed" and will face the Liberal, David Hobson of Apsley and the incumbent Conservative, Clarke Rollins.

Both the 34-year-old Mr. Thompson and his wife, Bev, are student ministers for the United Church charge of Deseronto and Melrose.

Mr. Thompson said his only background in politics is academic with a minor in political science at Queen's University in Kingston. Trent University in Peterborough and Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto but added, "I think that's to my advantage."

"You don't go in with the same preconceptions," he commented. "You go in with a fresh approach and more enthusiasm."

Mr. Thompson, a native of Belleville, pointed out his church—work will also aid in his possible campaign among riding residents.

"I'm probably more aware of the kind of problems and situations everyone is involved in because I face them every day in the parish," he commented.

Mr. Thompson said he would hold his own in the campaign if it turned into a bitter, backbiting fight and that his reputation would not deter him from fighting back. "I don't expect that kind of campaign here," he said.

Reseached Job

QUEBEC CITY (CP) — Marthe Bouchard-Hatch said if she knew how to type, she would not have risen to the top of the management ladder of the Molson's Brewery Co. here. As director of marketing research since 1974, she said some men still are surprised to see a woman in the business.

Mr. Buchanan said the NDP should fare well in the new riding. He noted it finished a previous close second in the former Peterborough riding and said he is not concerned with the last distant third-place finish in Hastings.

"I see Rollins as being vulnerable if we can point out some of his failings as well as those of the Conservative party," he remarked. He said the NDP would go to the root of people problems — not just solve them as they happen.

Cyclist, Car Collide

TRENTON — A 12-year-old cyclist was treated for minor injuries and released from Trenton hospital after a collision with a car here Saturday.

Injured was Brian Snider, 12, of 29 Elizabeth St. He was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Town police say the bicyclist collided on Byron St. with a vehicle driven by Carl Van Schaik, 56, of RR5, Trenton. Car damage was estimated at $250.

Way Now Clear for Start On 70-unit Sidney Subdivision

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter
A 70-home subdivision slated for the Harder Dr. area should receive Sidney Township council approval in time for work to begin this summer, township Reeve Gord Wilman said Saturday.

The subdivision has been tied up in municipal channels for the past several weeks while an agreement was worked out between Belleville and the township for the provision of water and sewer services.

City council last Monday approved in principal the agreement drafted by municipal staff. Council asked only that the subdivision be built to city standards. In the agreement approved by the township, city standards were not included. Rather, that the subdivision be built to accepted engineering practices.

Reeve Wilman said it should be a fairly quick procedure now to give approval to the agreement and get all the documents off to the provincial government for its approval. "We've filled all the provincial requirements and now it should be nothing more than rubber stamp acceptance," said the reeve.

Reg Brenall, developer of the subdivision, said Belleville has the "whip hand and if we want the services we'll have to build the subdivision your way."

Commenting on city standards, Mr. Brenall said he is prepared to go ahead and that "my engineer doesn't seem to think there will be any problems."

Mr Brenall said, "If I don't get going soon on this subdivision I might as well wait until next summer."

Summer Music Program Excites Brighton Youth

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Imagine the brassy tone of a trumpet echoing in the long hallways of East Northumberland Secondary School in Brighton.

You can hear it? So can six teen-agers who conduct a summer music appreciation and instruction course under a $6,550 Opportunity For Youth (OFY) grant.

Instructor David Trueman, although he doesn't say the children are brilliant, does admit that when he started the job four weeks ago, he was "scared of them". But now, weeks later, he has learned to handle them.

Students, 47 of them in the first session, have been taught music theory, one of six instruments, and some appreciation of composers. Instruction over the four weeks is equivalent to that received in the first six months of a Grade 9 music education.

Classes, both morning and afternoon sessions, are held in the high school music room. At least, most are. In afternoons, some students are taken into the halls for lessons.

"We spread out into the halls," says Mr. Trueman. "It gets really loud when you have six different groups playing."

Students are divided, according to preference, into groups studying trumpet, trumpet, baritone, saxophone, flute and clarinet. Large styrofoam sheets suspended from the room ceiling act as baffles but the noise is still overwhelming.

Response to the program has been good, says Mr. Trueman. He said he doesn't feel the children come because there is little to do in Brighton.

"One kid came in just to watch," he said, "and he ended up taking the whole course. He's one of the best baritone players. We have quite a few kids bring in friends."

One youngster brought a friend who lives in Hamilton but was vacationing in the area for several weeks. The Hamilton youngster took the course, for $5, the amount needed to cover bus fares for the four weeks.

Jeffrey Remains Silent On Possible Successor

Mayor Robin Jeffrey says she will make an announcement concerning her form of office immediately after the Progressive Conservative nomination meeting Aug. 11 for the Quinte riding.

Quinte MPP Dr. R. T. Potter announced July 22 he would not be seeking renomination. The following day Mayor Jeffrey announced she will run for the nomination.

The mayor's announcement touched off a wave of speculation as to who would take over the mayor's office if she is successful in the provincial contest.

"If I succeed, at the nomination, I'll have to make an immediate announcement of what I intend to do," said the mayor during a weekend interview.

In the meantime, four aldermen, Paul Rose, George Ferguson and Art Keegan, have said they are interested in the mayor's chair.

"I am supporting no one . . . though I've heard a lot of rumors and street talk of who I am supposed to be supporting," said Mayor Jeffrey.

"It's premature to take about any of this."

Tweed Child Killed In Two-car Mishap

TWEED — A four-year-old Tweed area boy died today following a two-car crash on Highway 37 one mile north of here Saturday at 4:30 p.m.

Dead is Edward Erwin. The youngster was a passenger in a vehicle which was being driven by his father Kenneth Erwin, 43. Also in the vehicle were his mother Evelyn and brother Paul, 12. The family resides at RR3, Tweed.

Mr. Erwin remains in Hotel Dieu hospital, Kingston with head injuries. Mrs. Erwin and Paul were both released following treatment at Belleville General Hospital.

Manfred Thomas and his daughter Judy both of St. Cammon St., Tweed, were riding in the second vehicle and both were treated and released.

A spokesman for the Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said damage to the Erwin car is estimated at $700 and damage to the Thomas car estimated at $1,500.

Mishap Costly

MARMORA — A two-car accident resulted with a total $1,000 damage Saturday, July 26, 3.8 miles north of here on County road 3 (Cordova Road).

Police said the driver of the northbound car was Stanley Floyd Gray, 47, of London, and the drivers of the southbound car was Paul William Defer, 23, of Michigan.

The damage to the Gray car was estimated by police was $300; and to the Defer car at $800. There were no injuries.

Ready to Sail

Foxboro Resident Builds 20-foot Boat from Scratch

It has taken more than a year to build, but the Poseidon will be ready to sail sometime this week.

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

The Poseidon will sail again. Poseidon is the name of the boat Gus and Bill Condos of Foxboro have been building in their shop, Condos Windows, since March, 1974.

A woodworker by trade, Gus says he first got the idea while reading a magazine detailing the construction of a boat.

The owner of the 20-foot craft says "It is just a hobby," and because of that only a couple of hours each day was spent on the boat.

Starting from scratch, the hull of the boat was made of two layers of plywood, covered with two layers of fiberglas. The deck was made from mahogany.

It also has a glassed in cabin and will have a canopy over the back section made by Keeble Sails.

The Poseidon will have a 140 horsepower engine and will carry 10 people when complete, hopefully by next week, says Gus.

"I never thought it would be as much work," Gus says.

Several friends helped Gus with the project, One was Gus' brother, Bill.

"Without help, there would be no way the boat could have been finished," says Bill.

A former employee at Morris Manufacturing, Gus says "They don't make boats like this anymore."

The cost was about $6,000 says Gus, but that is without, like working hours added on.

Gus says he is going to have a problem with the new boat — learning how to drive it.

This summer, he says he will stay on the Bay of Quinte and maybe learn how to water-ski.

The boat was the project of Gus Condos, right, of Foxboro, and his brother Bill. Bill, right, is shown with the boat he and Gus built in their shop in Foxboro. Bill has helped Gus with the project, which was a 20-foot boat from scratch. The boat will be ready to sail sometime this week.

Fisherman Drowns Untangling Line

SHARBOT LAKE — A 27-year-old Crobyville man died late Saturday when he fell overboard while fishing on Govan Lake near here.

Ontario Provincial Police at Sharbot Lake said Sunday Murray Seymour was in an aluminum boat with two friends — Donald Freeburn of Flinton and Mervil Lees of Madoc — when his fishing line became snagged on the bottom of the lake.

Police said Seymour stood up to untangle his line, set his balance and fell overboard. Provincial police divers, including Constable Garnet Brown of the Belleville detachment, recovered his body at 4:25 p.m. Sunday.

Constable Larry McMaster is investigating the 6:45 p.m. accident.

Mainly Because Of the Meat

Clark and Miles Butcher Shop at 184 Front St. must have some dedicated customers, according to a shop spokesman.

Robert Cole, son of owner Richard Cole, said today the shop has been beseiged by worried patrons who feared the lack of mention about the shop in an Intelligencer story last week meant it might close.

The newspaper article reported on the closing of White's Meat Market at 184 McAnnany St. and also noted the market is the oldest existing butcher shop in Belleville.

Mr. Cole explained Clark and Mile was originally located a few doors north on Front St. under the name of Clark's Butcher Shop and owned by the father of Jack Clark, one of the second-last owners. It started operation in about 1878.

Bob Miles entered the business in 1931 in partnership with Jack Clark and it was renamed to its current form and located two doors south of the present location, said Mr. Cole. His father purchased the business from Mr. Miles in 1972.

Sunday, July 27, 8:38 p.m.— roof leaking at 170 William St., Apt. 16; water seeping onto wiring caused a short; no fire.

Dr. Potter announced July 22 he would not be seeking re-nomination setting off a flurry of activity among party hopefuls.

So far, two have announced they will seek the party nod. Belleville mayor Robin Jeffrey and Trenton insurance agent Doug Whitley.

Guest speaker at the convention will be Donald Irvine, minister of housing.

Mr. Brennan said the convention will be held in Trenton High School beginning at 8 p.m.

Approximately 600 delegates and alternate delegates will attend the convention, said Mr. Brennan.

Bancroft Museum: Hastings Heritage

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — One of the delights awaiting tourists who visit the North Hastings area is a visit to the Bancroft Historical Museum.

The museum, a reconstructed log building was originally the headquarters for the Dawson-Weston Lumber Co. and now sits in a park near the Bancroft post office.

The building was moved from its original location, about 10 miles east of Bancroft, as part of the village's centennial project.

The original building dates from the late 1800s and has been refurbished by the local historical society to represent a family home from the pioneer days of Bancroft.

In the main room, the kitchen, antique tools for everything from churning butter to making pastry are on display.

The upstairs bedrooms exhibit furniture and clothing of the period.

Gordon Flagler, curator for the museum, during the summer said, between 30 and 60 people visit the museum daily.

The museum is open daily from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and costs 50 cents for the trip into the past.

Gold Dips as Speculative Commodity as Soviets Sell for Our Wheat

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Excitement has been generated this month by new Soviet contracts to buy Canadian and U.S. wheat.

The Soviet purchases bring back memories of the bumper deal of 1972, when huge orders placed by the U.S.S.R. led to widespread grain shortages on this continent and rapidly rising food prices.

Conditions are distinctly different this time. Nevertheless, the new contracts are having an impact not only on agriculture but even on gold prices and the shipping trade.

Canada's contract is to sell 75-million bushels of No. 1 and No. 2 Canada Western red spring wheat to the Soviets for $300-million, with deliveries starting this fall.

That's not the biggest contract in history, but it is big enough to guarantee a market for all the wheat that Canada can spare.

Two major U.S. grain brokers have also accepted big wheat orders from the Soviet Union, for 75-million and 44-million bushels.

In contrast with the 1972 wheat deal, these sales were arranged more or less openly, with an eye on the capacity of Canadian and U.S. farms to supply the needed production without short-changing the domestic and traditional export markets.

The Soviet Union is normally a big producer of wheat. But there has been a lack of rain this year in the spring wheat areas, and high temperatures at harvest time in the Kuban areas of the northern Caucasus. One result of the 1972-73 wheat shortage has been an increase in U.S. grain production, which has put the United States in a fairly strong position to meet this year's Soviet demand.

Even so, the latest Soviet wheat deal will almost certainly leave international wheat prices on a higher plateau than they would otherwise have reached.

Just how high prices will go will depend largely on whether or not there are further Soviet purchases in the coming year.

As a direct result, other prices will be jacked up as soybeans, feed barley, feed grains, beef, poultry and so on.

Even the cost of chartering cargo ships is rising. The Soviets have been signing up a great many vessels, through London & others, to carry their Canadian and U.S. wheat purchases home.

Dealers in gold bullion say that the U.S.S.R. has been selling substantial amounts of gold on the London and Zurich markets this summer, evidently to accumulate the millions of dollars it will need to pay for Canadian and U.S. wheat, and for shipping.

According to the Swiss-based Bank for International Settlements, the Soviet Union sold 330 tons of gold in 1973, to pay for its huge purchases of U.S. wheat and corn. Last year's sales, BIS says, fell to 200 tons).

Such heavy selling is bad news for producers and holders of gold—specially because the Soviet unloading comes at a time when gold is already losing some of its investment sparkle.

With the return of a certain amount of monetary stability worldwide, the speculative premium in gold had been shrinking even before the Soviet offerings in London and Zurich.

It's a long way from the wheat deal of Tsar Nicholas to the gold mines of Canada—but this tough Russian wheat deal, drought half a world away can undercut the demand for our precious metals.

Quinte Riding Interest

It matters little whether the candidate chosen to succeed Correctional Services Minister Dr. Richard Potter comes from Belleville or Trenton, or some other part of the Quinte riding.

What matters, from the Progressive Conservative party's standpoint, is the need to find someone with sufficient experience and authority to carry them through to victory in the next election.

Thus far the names of Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Trenton's Douglas Whitley have been submitted and doubtless others will submit their names in due course.

Dr. Potter has displayed his own considerable charisma and influence on provincial politics. His is a hard enough act to follow, although it is doubtful if plagiarism is what any candidate, already announced, or to follow, would have in mind.

In any event, the vacancy left by Dr. Potter's resignation introduces a fresh element into these pre-hustings days. As it is, the election has not even been called as yet, although it is thought to be not far off.

Summer's Parched Touch

There is a monotony to the endlessly sun-drenched summer of 1973 that in its own enervating way makes the long night of winter almost inviting, and fall certainly more palatable.

Thankful for small mercies would have been the reaction of many to the rain that has relieved somewhat the parched earth.

As Hastings county agricultural representative Doug Tripper remarked, the rain "helped."

Rural dwellers are experiencing a water shortage as well as dry, a situation which one observer in the business of supplying and servicing pumps describes as "really serious."

The atmospheric disturbances that did bring some rain had a serious impact in a number of areas, notably St. Bonaventure which was struck by a tornado causing a number of deaths, Rochester, N.Y., where a dozen youngsters were hit by a lightning bolt at a park outing, and similar conditions in the Montreal area which forced postponement of play in the Canadian open golf tournament.

It's the kind of weather we can do without — even if spectacular to watch from the relative safety of indoors. For a variety of reasons though there is a need for more rain. The more the better.

Interest in the Past

Nostalgia is a feeling for the past which has always been strong in the human psyche.

And no more so than today and in this area when it is combined with a growing interest in the history of the region and country at large.

The following of the Looking Backward column, for one, on this page, is proof. For instance in recent days a reader called expressing her displeasure that some lines of the July 24 column were illegible. The imprint was weak.

Some people keep files of this column, she said, and with Belleville's centennial only a couple of years ago interest was nigh.

The lines in question are as follows: A reference in the 20 Years Ago section to the one-room schoolhouse S.S. No.—9 Thurlow which was to celebrate its 100th anniversary August 1; a reference in the 30 Years Ago section to Trenton Air Station being one of the stops for a battle-scarred Lancaster of the famed No. 6 RCAF bomber group; and in 50 Years Ago to Tom Mason, Belleville's Reunion and Peace Celebration hiking herald reaching Chicago July 15.

In this month's Looking Backward, it will be noticed there is no material from 40 Years Ago, the reason being issues from that period are being micro-filmed.

This same reader indicated she is not just a history buff, but is interested in the contemporary scene too, locally and farther afield. "I can tell you everything that is on that page," she said.

And how many can claim that after reading their newspaper?

Strike Loss is Twice That of U.S.

Calgary Herald

The strike discord threatens to replace the beaver as Canada's national symbol.

On a comparative basis, this country is the first-starter of this year, just more than twice as many man-days lost to strikes as the U.S. The ratio is worse than it was in 1974.

This isn't the only storm cloud on Canada's troubled economic horizon. A Washington report by Bogdan Kipling of the Financial Times News Service notes that wage hikes in Canada are running about twice as high as south of the border and that the gap threatens to grow wider.

The wage gains certainly aren't coming from jumps in productivity. Canada is suffering a balance of payments problem as this country continues to price itself out of world markets. Statistics Canada has announced prices for manufactured goods have risen nearly 12 per cent in the past year.

Other statistics show the wage spiral is spinning faster while productivity dips deeper.

U.S. unions are facing economic reality. They have taken a moderate stance. There's a mood of cooperation between business and labor. In contrast, Canadian labor continues to practise myopic militancy.

What is claimed to be the largest show of mice unearthed in Ontario has been discovered in the Mook Road, a short distance from Tweed. The collection of three cars, 120 tons, have come to the American market. Crystals weighing as much as two tons had been taken from the show. It is expected a factory will be started in the area for the purpose of cutting the mica to size.

Jobs, Skills, Rewards

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Nations have fallen and empires have crumbled because societies have exploited the labor of minorities and failed to set priorities in their spending.

There should be equal pay for equal work. Essential services and professions should receive greater rewards from society than non-essential labor.

National calamity results when these implicit laws are violated.

Examples of this are Britain and Argentina.

Recently I took my car to the garage to have the muffler replaced. The bill listed a charge of $18.40 for labor. This interested me since I had timed the muffler-jockey and noted his efficiency which included two cigarettes and a prolonged laugh-fest with the boys in the garage.

It took 40 minutes from the time my car entered the garage until I was paying the bill at the office. I paid $18.40 for 40 minutes labor. At this rate I was paying $23.40 an hour, $936.00 for a 40-hour week, and $46,872 for a 53-week year. How many types of labor are considered by our society to be worth $46,872 a year?

I am not saying that the muffler-jockey was worth anything like $46,872 for his labor, but I am saying that society has an implicit rule which says in effect that the job done by my muffler-jockey was worth the equivalent of $46,872.

Teachers are constantly under fire because people say teachers are being paid too much for their job. What single educational employee does a job worth $46,872 — not even the Director of Education. Certainly no teacher receives anything like the amount society is willing to give the muffler-jock for his service of installing a muffler. What has happened to our societal values?

Teachers are better educated by far, have better intellectual and social abilities, and are in charge of our most valuable resource — our children. The value our society is in the hands of teachers to be preserved or destroyed as they will, I am sure that you agree with me that the job of teaching is worth more to society than muffler-installation but the monetary value placed on the service of teachers is small compared to the (implicit ?) value placed on muffler-installation.

Interesting support for the essential service provided by teachers for society has recently come to light. United Nations studies on developing nations and highly industrialized nations clearly indicates that there is a high correlation between the number of teachers per 100 citizens and the nations' standard of living and gross national product (GNP). It seems that a significant investment on an on-going basis in education is the best way for underdeveloped countries to raise their standard of living and national productivity.

Let's start putting our money in the bug rug — in the salaries where it does the most good to act as an incentive to intelligent and well-educated teachers. Teachers are our best educational buy.

India Impresses Visitors

Letter to The Montreal Gazette

Having recently travelled throughout India, I read the comments of the recent cholera outbreak in Calcutta (July 14) & Gazette with a great deal of scepticism.

My wife and I were travelling on an extremely tight budget averaging $2.50 each per day, staying in the most expensive hotels and eating in inexpensive restaurants.

In three months of travel we saw nothing remotely resembling the conditions described by Ms. Laurin, and never suffered from even a mild case of dysentery. In fact, we found both hygienic conditions and the quality and variety of food quite satisfactory in all parts of India.

If students on the Dawson College tour did encounter the conditions described by Ms. Laurin it comes as no surprise to me. I know of some schemes. However, comfortable, sanitary accommodations and good food are available on a student budget.

Trade Deal with Iran Channels Oil Revenue to Canada

Brockville Recorder and Times

That the billion trade deal that Iran has made with Canada possibly the biggest in this country's history, is one of many deals, all smaller of course, that have been made between the two countries. Of all the Arab-oil-rich countries, Iran appears to be the only one making a gigantic effort to pull its people out of the middle ages into the future. And while doing so, it is returning oil money to the world market at a faster clip than other Arab nations.

The emergence of Iran as an important trading partner of Canada is of more than passing interest to Brockville and its economy. Just prior to the strike at Automatic Electric it was announced that the company had signed an agreement with the Iranian government for telephone installations worth $15 million. An initial installation, it could spell the start of a long-term project for the local plant in years to come as Iran develops its telephone system. How the strike is affecting that contract is public knowledge. If it is a long strike, it is obvious the work stoppage could harm relations between Iranian authorities and the local industry.

The Shah of Iran is interested in making his country an industrial nation with a high living standard. His trade deals with Great Britain earlier and with Canada again recently, make it evident he is determined to meet his objective as soon as possible. In the big trade deal announced last week, it was disclosed that, among other things, Canada Wire and Cable Co., is involved in a joint 420 million venture to set up a wire and cable plant in Iran. There's a pulp and paper deal in the offing as well, as an aluminum smelter and a cement plant.

It is evident the Shah has a special interest in Canada. He efforts to raise the living standards of his people. That interest is paying off for a wide segment of Canadian industry. One home-building industry in Toronto, for instance, is now in the process of shipping 100 prefabricated brick homes to Iran. The homes will be complete with air conditioning, plumbing and electrical fixtures and the floors covered with hardwood and broadloom. The initial contract was for 20 million dollars, and another 100 homes have been ordered. And an indication of the frantic pace of development in Iran is the information that Canadian bricks are going to Iran. It isn't because Iran hasn't any brick industry. It has, but in addition to Canadian bricks being of better quality, the Iranian brick plants are so busy it could take up to three years to get an order filled.

It seems that while the oil price increases have produced hardship in some countries, Canada included, at least Canadians are getting the chance to get some of it back with a bonus: our ability to improve their status in life. No doubt the Shah is anxious to eventually reduce imports of a manufactured product, and become a net exporter of them. So what is happening now could be a short term business deal, except for telephone development. In the part of the world in which Iran is located, this could make Iran the business hub of a rebirth of the glory of old Persia. And if that example is followed by other countries in the area it will be assisting in a development that will change the face of all the emerging nations.

Iran is showing the way. Let's hope others, in Canadian industry, now so widespread, will be bolstered by Iran's determination to improve their status in life. No

Russia Taxes Gift Money

Sudbury Star

It is a matter of importance to many families in the Sudbury area that the Soviet government has just announced a new tax of 30 per cent on money sent to Soviet citizens from abroad. Already, the recipients of this largesse are paying a 30 per cent "handling charge" and the news report from Moscow is silent on whether the new tax is an additional levy — making a 60 per cent levy in all — or a substitution of the kind of duty.

Undoubtedly there are substantial sums of money between the Sudbury area and the Soviet Union in gifts to relatives in the Ukraine and other areas under Moscow's control, money sent on an occasional basis or subject to the tax.

In no free society it is impossible to understand how cash birthday gifts and such can be a concern of government in this manner. But the rulers of the Soviet Union clearly intend to hamper the support sent from abroad to "dissidents" and those who want to emigrate from their people's paradise.

Clearly, to make the new tax work, there must be some assistance to Soviet citizens in Moscow in a place where government is growing. Organized support groups will be needed, and groups to would-be emigrants who often have to pay hefty fees before gaining visas, is attracting attention in the press.

It is one more demonstration of the heavy hand necessary to control an authoritarian system. It is a tax levied which in one, least of all the intended beneficiary, receives service. It is part of the way of life in the Soviet Union.

Residents Plan Protest Over Home Construction

TRENTON — Half of the householders in the 75-home Burtdale subdivision in northeast Trenton want builder Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. of Belleville to correct what they claim are major structural defects in their homes.

John Rittenage, spokesman for the homeowners, said during the weekend, the builder has not kept promises he made to right defects. Mr. Rittenage said he plans to file a petition calling for repairs with the Rollins firm and provincial government housing and mortgage officials.

Mr. Rittenage of 15 Cory Cres. said that as of Saturday, petitioners represented 38 homes, built under the Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) plan.

His wife, Joanne Rittenage, said the company is using "delay tactics".

"We're not out for revenge," she said. "We just want what we paid for and we feel it's

She claimed houses contained numerous defects. In her own house, Mrs. Rittenage said the kitchen floor has not been secured properly and the floor and tiles are coming up, more than we got. We bought cheap houses, but this is ridiculous."

A neighbor's roof, she said is sagging near the peak.

Her husband said he originally planned as individual protest against the builder.

The petition grew "surprisingly" he said. People in the subdivision "just volunteered".

Mr. Rittenage now is collecting additional names for the petition and said he plans to hold a residents' meeting this week: "We want action and not promises like we've been getting," he said.

He said few subdivision homes were inspected by Ontario Housing Corp., which he said, has sided with the builder over residents' complaints. He criticized OHC for not doing their job — inspection of homes for structural soundness — properly.

Mrs. Rittenage said, on many houses, the one-year warranties has expired.

"We're all lower and middle income people and we can't afford to make major architectural repairs," she said.

Mr. Pile emphasized that although no-one from the Picton area will be participating in the competition, the Prince Edward Flying Club is one of few clubs in the province which offers aerobatic instruction. In addition to Mr. Pile there is one other qualified instructor, Peter Wilson.

Mrs. Greetham stated the manual will be printed in limited quantities and will be distributed primarily to service clubs, schools and other organizations.

County Farm House Once Quaker Meeting Spot

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

NORTH PORT — On the exterior, the house looks like any other average farm home along County Road 5, two miles east of here.

Backed by an attractive cove off the Bay of Quinte, the lawn boasts a number of shrubs and tree and a bigger than usual television tower.

But, say it's current owners Ken and Florence Needham, the house is an early Quaker meeting place and is believed to be the only early meeting house left in Prince Edward County. President of the Prince Edward Historical Society, Jack Welsman, says the house is unique in that it has been "neither destroyed nor restored."

The house still contains much of the original woodwork and is believed to have been built in the early 1800s, says Mr. Needham. Of particular interest are the original window panes, one of which has the name of Anna Crook scrawled upon it. The Crooks, Jacob and Anna, occupied the home during the early 1800s.

The upstairs section of the home has never been restored, and today is used only for storage. The Quakers, said Mr. Needham, worshipped upstairs, gaining access by an outside entrance. The room is divided by a partition which still contains the opening for use of a stove to heat both sections.

Much of the original wallpaper is still intact, as is the paint, hand-planed and hand-tongue and grooved boards, square-headed nails, doors, latches and hinges. A black border around the base of the walls and doors, called a "rub line" is still visible, its purpose to protect the walls from the footwear.

Careful examination of the woodwork attests to the fact that the Quakers "never wasted anything". The stairwell is steep, narrow and a challenge to ascend.

"With the exception of electric lights, the upstairs has remained almost virtually untouched since it was used in the early 1800s as a meeting place for Quakers," stressed the Needhams.

Cairn Tribute To Rural Schools

HILLIER — The little red school house that once dotted the Hillier Township landscape are gone but they will live in memories evoked by a cairn containing an old school bell unveiled here Saturday.

That was the essence of messages delivered at the unveiling ceremony by James Taylor (PC-Prince Edward — Lennox), Clifford Walker, warden of Prince Edward County and John McNeil, director of education f the county school board.

The bell was saved from SS-Six Hillier, one of the last rural schools used in the township before it closed in the late 1960s. The cairn containing the bell was unveiled by former student Ford Rupert of Kapuskasing.

A teacher, Mr. Rupert donated the cairn to the township.

Over 60 people were present Saturday, among them, 18 former township rural school teachers.

Good Old Bread and Milk: They're Still Best Buy Staples

Canada's Food Prices Review Board has learned that no matter what your income, you spend the same amount of money on bread and on milk as everyone else.

Comparing across families at differing income levels, it is clear that the absolute amounts spent on bread and milk varied little," says the Board's latest study, The Consumption of Bread and Fluid Milk in Canada.

"For example, a two-adult two-child family had roughly the same expenditure on bread and milk whether the family had an income in the $2,000 to $3,999 range or in the $10,000 to $14,999 range.

As a consequence, the Board points out, the relative share of income spent on bread and milk is greater the lower is average family income. In other words, the financial impact of rising bread and milk prices has hardened at those on low income.

Do people try to hold the line on bread prices by shopping at one of two local surplus stores?

Jack O'Neil, of Wonder Bakeries on College Street West, says that day-old bread is not as popular as it was in recent years in spite of inflation.

More popular is fresh bread which the outlet sells at prices 10 to 20 cents a loaf below most retailers.

Yet bread, which increased in price 41 per cent in the 12 years from 1961 to 1972, has gone up 51 per cent in the last two years.

Milk has shown an even greater percentage increase: 54 per cent in the last two years compared with 37 per cent for the last 12 years.

All food for home consumption rose in price 35 per cent over the last two years compared with 46 per cent in the previous 12 years.

Since the early 60s, bread consumption per capita has been on the decline. The Food Prices Review Board links that decline with a change in eating habits attributed to the rise in fast food industry business. Fluid milk consumption had been on the decline but has levelled off in the last five years.

Despite these trends, the consumption of milk and bread still accounts for a substantial proportion of the total recommended levels of nutrition.

The Review Board report adds that "for almost every type of nutrient, the proportion of the total recommended intake obtained from bread and milk together is far more than the fraction of the total food budget spent on these commodities by the lowest income families.

"This confirms the casual observation that bread and milk are an economical, effective means of obtaining important nutrients.

"They might be regarded as best buys."

'Spaced Out' Library For Science Fiction Fans

TORONTO (CP) — Somewhere in the very much here but Spaced-Out Library, one can see a collection of more than 12,000 science fiction items.

Judith Merril, a science fiction writer based in Toronto for the last five years after living in the United States, helped contribute material for the public library collection. She also has just published a book, Survival Ship, a collection of short stories.

Miss Merril launched herself into the science fiction orbit at age 25, and has written two science fiction novels, collaborated on two others, and has published collections of science fiction short stories and novels.

As a collector of far-out science fiction and similar material, she donated her private collection to the midtown Toronto library in 1971. She said that science fiction is creditable enough to merit a library.

Miss Merril said that 29 years ago, writers of science fiction got about the same reaction from publishers as would little green men from Mars.

She said when she first published a science fiction collection, publishers tried to push the book into the mystery mould, labelling it a "different kind of mystery thrill."

Sky-rocketing sales of the book bore out her faith in the science fiction genre and the present boom in science fiction publications.

Miss Merril said that although space adventures and accounts of life on other planets are the most dominant theme in science fiction writing 20 years ago, today's writers are more para-psychological theme and scientific experimentation.

Science fiction sometimes does predict events, she said.

"Clues to scientific inventions are always available in science fiction writing before they come off the boards."

The close link between the real and the fictional scientific world is emphasized, said Miss Merril. Some scientists write science fiction as a sideline and many are among the subscribers to science fiction magazines. All science fiction writers keep up to date on new scientific developments, she said.

Spaced-Out Library is the city's most unusual specialistic library which contains many small collections.

Quinte Women

Wendy Donovan Neale, Recreation Director

Expansion of the present recreation program is the uppermost thought in Wendy Donovan Neale's mind these days.

As Sidney township's new recreation director, she's anxious to make local recreation activities a top community concern.

"As people have more leisure time, they need to learn how to use their time creatively," she says. "Recreation programs should encompass a wide area of social, physical and cultural skills, so that individuals get a feeling of accomplishment from how they spend their spare time."

Mrs. Neale's main problem in carrying out her plans is the nature of the township — largely rural, with no central core. Her hardest chore so far is providing activities for the northern residents, so that they needn't drive too far to participate.

"Of course, many of the children who live on farms have adjusted to the swimming-in-the-river type of summer play, and don't think they need to come to a playground. But I believe that there are important things to be gained from playing with other children in a specially organized program."

Mrs. Neal's enthusiasm for her work stems from long affiliation with camping and recreational activities as she grew up. After a year in psychology she switched to the Recreation Program at the University of Waterloo, graduating with her degree in 1971.

With her husband Ken, recreation director for Campbellford, she hopes someday to open a children's camp, since they both believe strongly in the value of residential camping experiences. However, she is presently as interested in adult recreation as in children's.

"We're hoping to get a good turn-out for the aquabics — that's fitness and swimming classes — being held at the Sir James Whitney swimming pool August 11-22," she says. "All women over 16 are eligible, and there'll be babysitting for their children. Anyone interested should call me at 962-7720 to enroll."

Mrs. Neale is also planning yoga, art and crafts classes to start in the autumn. She intends to arrange several small classes in various areas throughout the township, so that the programs will be accessible to as many women and men as possible.

At the moment, she's in charge of nine teen-age playground supervisors, and of the activities being offered at Bayside and Batawa for children under 12. She's also busy with the preparation of the Bayside quarry for a junior swimming program, an extra benefit to Sidney children this year.

"This is such a satisfying job," says Mrs. Neale, "I enjoy working with the council, and I love most of all being in contact with the kids, seeing them having a really good time."

TOO STRONG FOR FANTASY By Marcia Davenport.

This book is a memoir from a gifted and famous writer. Her mother was the American singer, Alma Gluck, and her life was divided between America and Europe.

Too Strong for Fantasy is set in New York in the early 1900's and moves to Czechoslovakia after the Second World War. Mrs. Davenport's descriptions of various personalities are both colorful and vivid, particularly Toscanini with whom she was close friends for fifty years.

Jewish by birth, Mrs. Davenport is strongly anti-Communist. Prague was her second home and she lived there for some time while preparing a biography of Mozart. Thus she had a close view of the terrorism that enclosed the city during those years, the political tragedy, and the mystery surrounding Jan Masaryk. Jan Masaryk was Czechoslovakia's foreign minister of the exiled government in London. He and Mrs. Davenport were engaged to be married when he died —murdered, according to the author, although the public was informed that he had committed suicide.

This book is available at the Corby Library.

Lovely Additions

Individual miniature bouquets from the garden make lovely and colorful additions to a party place setting or breakfast tray.

Don't Cut Crusts

Do not cut off side crusts of bread when sandwich making until after refrigeration, for easy handling.

Pickling Hints

To avoid giving this season's fresh pickles a musty flavor, buy fresh whole spices, not last year's leftovers.

Avoid Brusing

To keep lettuce from going brown and getting bruised, always tear leaves gently with fingers into bite-sized pieces.

Summer Cooler

A clean, cool glass of white (dry) wine makes a good cooling drink if a few ounces of soda water and ice cubes are added to it.

Retired Auto Mechanic, 83 Invents Anti-theft Lock

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Paulson, 83, says he will give $100 to anyone who can tell him how they can steal a car that has his anti-car-theft device hooked to it.

"Gladly . . . then I'd improve it," said the man who described himself as "not the kind to sit in a rocking chair."

Mr. Paulson spent three years developing his Protectocraft device—which representatives of two police forces say could significantly reduce the number of stolen cars as well as drunken drivers.

The device consists of a switch which when set, locks a car's hood and ignition system. It can be released only when the combination lock that controls the device is correctly set and Mr. Paulson says the lock's dial is calibrated so finely that a drunk cannot manipulate it properly.

Police department representatives have seen the device and were impressed. (CP Photo)

John Paulson, 83, explains operation of his anti-car theft device, Protectocraft, in his workshop at his Vancouver home. The device, which took three years to develop, consists of a switch which, when set, locks a car's hood and ignition system. It can be released only when the combination lock that controls the device is correctly set and Mr. Paulson says the lock's dial is calibrated so finely that a drunk cannot manipulate it properly. Ann Landers

This 'Surprise Package' May Keep Guests Away

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then, a woman writes to complain about her husband bringing home unexpected dinned guests. Usually it's a guy from out of town who just happened to be in his office.

My next-door neighbor read a book recently that gave the perfect solution. It suggested that women who want to pump excitement into a back-water marriage should greet their husbands at the door wearing nothing but high heels and a string of beads. Or they might wrap themselves in plastic sheeting and tie a large red satin ribbon around "the package."

Any wife who pulls one of these stunts will never again have the problem of an unexpected dinner guest. Sign me—Positive

Dear Pos: A unique solution, to say the least. Did the book by any chance mention what to do with the children when Mummy does her burlesque numbers?

Dear Ann Landers: I have been putting off writing this letter since November, but after taking one downer, eight aspirin, two uppers and three shot glasses of Scotch whiskey, I decided to go the Ann Landers route.

Last year my best friend convinced me I should stop fooling around with drugs. I did. Four times. But now I'm at it again. For a while I was able to stay off the pills and stick strictly to booze in garotashiwieu cijenda booze mixed with orange juice. It worked for a while, then I showed up drunk in school one Monday morning, was expelled, and I learned my lesson.

I've tried to kill myself three times. Actually, I don't think I really wanted to die because I never took enough pills to kill me. I think maybe I just wanted attention.

There have been times when my friends convinced me that I don't need any of this junk. But after four or five days of being straight, I'm back — heavy as ever, or worse.

I don't know why I do it. One reason might be because I hate my parents. Another is that I hate myself. I hate my hair. It is falling out and the only answer is a hairpiece—which I despise—or a transplant job, and that's too expensive. Can you help me?—At 14 Messed Up

Dear 14: A boy of 14 with your history needs more than advice from Ann Landers. You are a very sick young man.

If losing your hair is part of your psychological problem, perhaps you should have a transplant. It might even be considered "therapy" and therefore covered by insurance.

I urge you to contact your local mental health centr. They are staffed with counsellors waiting to help kids like you. But you must let them know you want help. Get moving, and good luck.

Dear Ann: I'm engaged to a fine guy who has a hot temper. He has a habit of hitting or kicking things when he gets angry.

Last week when his baseball team lost, he socked the wall of the stadium and sprained his wrist. Today a motorist cut him off and he knocked his knee on the dashboard and it bled.

What's his problem? Any advice?—Love Him

Dear Love: That "fine guy" is grossly immature. He handles frustration like a 10-year-old. My advice to him is to get some counselling and learn how to handle anger. My advice to you is stay out of his way until he grows up.

Deadly Reptiles Travel by Mail

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The packages are sent out from Australia to American and European post offices every week, labelled "tropical hangings," "chocolates," or "Valentines." But inside, wrapped in towels and handkerchiefs, are some of the deadliest snakes in the world.

Lizards and crocodiles, too, are travelling around the world by ordinary mail in a massive reptile-smuggling racket that Australian authorities are just beginning to crack.

"Can you imagine what would happen if some of these packages broke open in, say, the Dallas, Tex., post office?" asked Brian Eves, the senior inspector of the South Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service.

"They would be confronted by some of the world's most venomous reptiles. We have the antivenenes here in Australia. Would they even know what kind of snake it was?"

He said the smuggling racket is the work of professional criminals, who stand to make big profits from the trade, and amateur naturalists who want to exchange specimens with hobbyists in other countries.

An American hobbyist was so grateful for the Australian reptiles he received that, as a gift, he mailed back in the hull of a model aircraft carrier a rattlesnake with its rattles taped to keep it quiet.

For the professionals, ordinary Australian snakes bring about $6.50 an inch on foreign black markets. Valuable specimens, such as a prime black tiger snake, can be worth $400. An ordinary lizard goes for about $40.

The trade goes on in tiger and taipan snakes and crocodiles, blue-tongued lizards, goannas and gecko lizards. The reptiles happily curl up for days inside packages so long as there is some moisture to sustain them.

"The reptiles trade has been going on for some time but we got a breakthrough we really needed," Eves said in an interview.

Two U.S. nationals came here and collected reptiles extensively while they were in this country. After they left—and they were suspected of taking some reptiles with them—three packages were sent off to them from Melbourne.

When the packages arrived, the gentleman concerned believed he was under surveillance by American authorities so he didn't collect them. The packages were sent back to Melbourne. There 35 reptiles worth $5,500 were found inside—all but one of them dead.

"This has led to quite a number of reptile suppliers and mailers in South Australia. Once we start interviewing and interrogating people you find one leads to two and two to four."

Eves said one trafficker admitted sending 177 packages overseas, sometimes at the rate of five packages a day. In the last two months, South Australian officials have seized more than 40 reptiles in packages bound for overseas.

Two-dollar Bill May Return in U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States treasury department, which gave up nearly 10 years ago on the lop-eared, bald-back $2 bill, is pondering the wisdom of reintroducing it.

But you can get odds forever that it will never play in Las Vegas.

The U.S. $2 bill, adorned with the mumbling visage of Thomas Jefferson, was regarded as a bad-luck bill prior to being recalled in 1966.

Not a gambler worthy of the name would touch one. If he had to pick one up, however, he first tore off the upper left corner "It let the bad luck ut."

Generally, the bad-luck legend revolve around the gambler who arrives home to find a $2 bill in his roll after a successful night at the tables.

No matter where he hides it, his wife will uncover the pale and boys dragges for the living room leaving him the $2 for car-fare.

The idea for resurrecting the dence is given as the high cost of making money. Three years ago, it cost $7.76 to make 1,000 bills. Today, the price is $11 per 1,000.

"The cost is the same whether it's for $1 bills or $100 bills, the highest denomination printed for the last 30 years. Denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000—all printed prior to 1946—remain legal tender.

Director James A. Conlon of the bureau of engraving and printing says the $2 bill would reduce what he feels is the disproportionate number of $1 bills in circulation, and would save his agency about $3 million a year in production costs.

Conlon has been trying to bring back the $2 bill since 1969.

He has the backing of Simon who says he hopes to see relationship between the $1 and of 1975.

The U.S. treasury will be flying in the face of the Harvard Graduate School of Business, whose students recently did a survey for the Federal Reserve System. They found little public support for a $2 bill and concluded "considerable marketing effort" would be required to get it off the ground.

Paraplegics Do Good Job For Taxi Firm

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — Eric Williams, owner of Pride Taxis in this community near Vancouver, says it gives him a great feeling knowing he is "helping someone to get back his productivity."

Mr. Williams recently hired two paraplegics to work as dispatchers with his company and says he plans to hire at least three more paraplegic dispatchers as the business grows.

It all began two years ago when Mr. Williams, then an employee of another taxi company, was driving Robert Robb to hospital for treatments following an open-heart operation.

Mr. Williams told the 41-year-old construction worker that he planned to start his own taxi business and Mr. Robb asked him if he could have a job as dispatcher.

By this time Mr. Robb was confined to a wheelchair as a double amputee following complications as a result of the cardiac surgery.

When his dream of owning his own taxi company became a reality, Mr. Williams hired Mr. Robb and now has put him in charge of hiring other paraplegics as dispatchers.

HIRE STUDENT

John Gardiner, 25, a third-year psychology student at Simon Fraser University, hired since been hired for the summer.

Mr. Gardiner, who became a paraplegic after an automobile accident in 1973, said he hopes he can stay on as part-time dispatcher when school starts again in the fall.

"It's a tremendous thing to happen," says Mr. Robb about his new job. "I hope the idea of hiring paraplegics as dispatchers catches on with other taxi companies."

Mr. Williams operates a fleet of 10 cars, with 20 drivers working day and night shifts and weekends.

Recession Forces Japaneee To Grab Defence Force Jobs

TOKYO (AP) — The economic recession has resulted in a rush of recruits to Japan's self-defence forces, whose prestige was once so low that soldiers complained they couldn't find women willing to marry them.

With nearly one million Japanese unemployed in April—290,000 more than one year earlier—the Deference Agency says it has decided to cut its recruitment goals this year to avoid taking in more soldiers than it can afford to pay.

The agency drew up its original target of 28,100 recruits for 1975 on the basis of past experience—it normally is unable to fill more than 86 per cent of its target. This makes a monthly average of less than 2,200 recruits, but one official said that since last year, the number of applicants ran up to 5,000 a month on the average.

And normally, about 1,700 soldiers quit each month, the official said, but in May only 900 decided to quit. With unemployment continuing to run at nearly two per cent of the nation's 50 million-member labor force, officials say they expect a continued trend of fewer dropouts and more new applicants.

Thus the agency has decided on a recruitment goal of 22,700 for this year to keep the land, sea and air self-defence forces near their present strength of 268,000 members.

Japan's post-war constitution bans military conscription.

After its losses in the Second World War, Japan took an anti-militaristic turn. Its constitution bans use of force as an instrument of national policy and some leftist groups oppose the existence of the self-defence forces, which are banned from having offensive weaponry.

Aside from the issue of militarism, high-school and college graduates looked to private business for jobs with higher pay and prestige and better lifelong employment opportunities.

But amid economic uncertainties, the self-defence forces' starting monthly salary of $194 is looking better.

Singapore Sling Loses Popularity

SINGAPORE (Reuter) — The Singapore gin sling—the fabled Englishman's drink in the Far East—isn't being drunk the way it used to be.

It once was the rage, the in drink of a generation in the heyday of British colonial rule in Singapore.

It was talked about, fashionable and drunk in style. Author W. Somerset Maugham enthused over it to seal its fame. Countless other visitors to Singapore spread its virtues far and wide.

The years have taken their toll on the Singapore gin sling. With much of Singapore's colonial heritage fast disappearing, this heady cocktail, epitome of those bygone years, is surviving in the shadow of its past and struggling against changing tastes and fashions and a host of rivals imported with a new expatriate community.

At its "home", the historic palm-fringed Raffles Hotel, it still commands something of its former glory.

Here it continues to hold pride of place in the long bar. But the setting has changed and all that remains of the past are two carefully-preserved pith helmets hanging behind the bar.

The gin sling originated at Raffles 60 years ago, with little hint of the success that lay ahead of it.

At that time the corridor in front of the hotel was a popular rendezvous for planters, ship captains and merchants to discuss business and relax in an informal atmosphere.

The corridor soon became known as "Cad's Alley". The amount of drinking that went on washington and some of the tales about it are staggering.

Even the hotel stretches the bounds of credibility with this claim in its brochure: "An old waiter of the hotel recollected a certain Dutch anthropologist who used to consume eight to 10 bottles of gin a day for breakfast every morning."

The gin sling was created in 1915 especially for the hard-drinking regulars of "Cad's Alley," according to the brochure.

It was concocted by the chief head bartender at Raffles, Ngiam Tong Boon.

His recipe was: half portion gin, quarter cherry brandy, quarter orange, pineapple and lime juice, drops of Cointreau and Benedictine, Angostura, and topped with a cherry.

It caught on instantly and its popularity soon spread. It duly passed into the colonial vocabulary, along with stengahs and sundowners. It became almost synonymous with the Raffles itself.

For barman Ngiam, the wide acclaim of his cocktail was a source of great pride and joy—but not fame or fortune. Few of those who drank it at the long bar were ever aware who the creator was.

Barman Ngiam's descendants still are behind the long bar, maintaining an unbroken family link with the drink on the other side of the counter.

Goat Boom Hits B.C.

HANEY, B.C. (CP) — British Columbia is in the grip of a goat boom. At least that's what Fraser Valley dairy goat breeders believe.

There has been a burgeoning interest in goats as the result of a deliberate program to upgrade the image of goats and to pull the dairy-goat industry into legitimate food production.

At a time when cattle people are facing losses that are putting many of the smaller breeders out of business, goat breeders are anticipating a bonanza which, despite their optimism, has not arrived.

There is no legal outlet for goat's milk and most production from small goat farmers goes to raise calves. Small farmers such as Erna Kramer of nearby Surrey say "people are begging for goat's milk—but we can't sell it."

Ron and Linda Williams, who have been raising goats as a hobby for a few years, now are preparing for a full-scale goat dairy.

"We're trying to break the ice," Ron said. "We've established a verbal contract with a dairy processing company to process the milk and with a distributor to place the product in health-food and chain stores.

The First Annual Fraser Valley Dairy Goat Show, held at Haney fairgrounds in June, had an entry of 320 goats. Five breeds were represented, as well as some crosses.

The exhibitors' enthusiasm was reflected in their choices of car bumper stickers which proclaimed, Only Goat Milk Is Love and In Goat We Trust!

Eng'and Of Tourist Vanishing

LONDON (Reuter) — The traditional England much loved by tourists is threatened with extinction.

The great castles, cathedrals and stately homes are just about holding their own. It is the landscape and townscape around them which is being eroded at an alarming speed—the old centres of cities and towns, the quaint villages and the unique patchwork quilt effect of fields enclosed by leafy hedges.

This view is being increasingly held by conservationists and also a growing number of ordinary people as they suddenly see their local haunts threatened.

The danger comes from the same combination of greed, vulgarity and sheer economy which attacks the environment worldwide while industrial populations amuse themselves with other things.

Because of its very smallness, the England of much praised generations of poets is particularly vulnerable.

The famous hedgerows are being ripped up and will be gone in 20 years because modern farming favors a "prairie" landscape for its mechanization, says a spokesman of the Countryside Commission, a government-funded but independent agency.

The market towns, with their old, eccentric buildings, are being levelled by bulldozers at a surprising rate, according to a new book, The Rape of Britain, by Colin Amery and Dan Cruickshank (Published by Paul Elek). A spate of recent articles in the British press agrees.

The variety of materials, local tastes and needs that gives these old towns their charm is being replaced by a style which varies only in the size of juxtaposition of the concrete boxes provided by modern architecture.

The 800-year-old market-place in Chesterfield, Derbyshire, is being obliterated by a municipal scheme. Almost the entire centre of Gravesend in Kent has been demolished. A third of the centre of Hereford, West England, is on a blueprint for destruction to make way for redevelopment. And so on. . . .

Not surprisingly, a spokesman at the government's department of the environment was less emotional. He said the villages were really the whole committee, which was growing and needed to expand.

The chest wig is designed for the male who needs or wants to display that little bit of curling hair under the unbuttoned shirt, which is a popular style now. The cost of such a matt is $200 and up. Defence Markets Surveyed

Future Wars May Be Fought On Uninhabited Battlegrounds

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Major wars of the future will be fought with remote-controlled weapons on uninhabited battlegrounds such as Antarctica or the moon, according to the chief gazer of a military crystal ball.

"There's a group within the Pentagon that's looking into automated warfare to eliminate man from the battlefield. We already have hints of this unmanned military hardware through defence contracts," said James Ratliff, president of Defence Marketing Services, Inc. (DMS.)

Ratliff and his staff of more than 60 research and interpretists going on in the defence business, and they predict the three world's appetite for military equipment and new directions in U.S. defence spending.

The Pentagon already has spent millions on the development of unmanned planes and tanks, Ratliff said. By 1980, he predicted, the "death ray," an intence laser beam which can wipe out an entire forest, will be ready to use.

Each year, employee-owned DMS produces eight million sheets of paper on defence spending, contracts and weaponry data in 14 market reports ranging from "electronic systems" to "missiles-spacecraft."

The material all of it published 600-page, $200 volumes.

DMS counts among its subscribers the Central Intelligence Agency, the House armed servicts commitee, Israel, Japan and nearly all the ATO allies. The bulk of its publications go to defence manufacturers.

"We're valuable to industry because we're a funnel to them. But we don't do anything that a company couldn't do for half a million dollars," said Richard Slawsky, vice-president of operations. "We try to explain the defence market not only for the giants but also for small subcontractors."

The thousands of companies involved in fighter plane production might find it valuable to know from reading the DMS world aircraft forecast that within four years, the world will need 3,487 more F4 Phantom jets than the 4,074 now in existence.

Companies making radios or air conditioners will want to know that the navy will spend $21 million a year on that equipment for a dozen Trident submarines by 1982.

The company says the trend is aircraft production is toward transport planes. The navy has begun a $50 billion, 10-year construction program that will add three carriers, 30 destroyers, 50 patrol frigates and an air cushion ship capable of travelling at 80 knots. Another 1,739 new ships will be added to Western world navies, DMS said.

In addition to its market reports, which are updated monthly with 40 to 60 pages of new information, DMS publishes six special 10-year forecasts on world ships, aircraft and the laser market. The aircraft forecasts cost $3,000 and are updated annually.

DMS also publishes monthly "intelligence" reports, a military code name handbook, and a list of every contract awarded by the Pentagon.

The company, operating from a renovated cow barn in this New York suburb, does not consider itself a snoop organization.

"If we can't get the information openly we don't print it. We won't report classified information. And we don't make value judgments. We're a neutral organization," said Ratliff.

The bulk of the information comes from congressional hearings, interviews with foreign military attaches and from digging through several hundred defence publications. DMS staff members—many of them former military people—also follow the Pentagon budget from presidential submission to adoption.

Garbage is coming up roses.

Twenty years from now, crops growing on recycled garbage will be an everyday sight.

That's pretty hard to imagine right now because most of us think of garbage as just that—garbage. But in fact, it's a potential resource.

And the Ontario Ministry of the Environment is harnessing it.

How does it happen?

By recycling. Garbage will be taken to recycling centres where it will be shredded, separated, and some of it, turned into fertile soil to revitalize barren areas of the province.

The same basic shredding and separating process will also produce fuel, paper, cardboard, metals.

And we've just begun to explore the possible end uses of garbage.

The system: step by step.

A centre for advanced research will come up with many more.

Where is it happening?

Our Ministry has already inaugurated Ontario's first recycling centre in North York. In the next two years, similar centres will be built to serve London, Sudbury, Peel, Halton, Metro Toronto and south eastern Ontario.

In 15 years there will be recycling centres all across the province to handle 90 per cent of Ontario's garbage—everything from abandoned cars to organic waste.

Why recycle?

Because the people of Ontario—all of us—pile up garbage at three times the rate that the population increases.

The Ministry is working on ways to reduce that amount, but we'll always have garbage. And we're having trouble finding places to put it and the landfill to cover it.

Once garbage is being recycled, those problems will be over. But more important than the dumping problems, we're literally throwing away valuable resources with every ton of garbage we discard.

In a community of 100,000, garbage recycling will conserve the equivalent of up to 3,500,000 gallons of fuel oil a year, 3,600 tons of reclaimed steel, 4,500 tons of glass.

Our recycling program is considered one of the most advanced in the world. It's a commitment to a different way of living.

And the whole world will be watching Ontario's garbage come up roses.

Soviet Ships Leave

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Two Soviet fishing vessels, the trawler Pulival and the tug Gigant, steamed out of St. John's harbor shortly after noon Sunday, the last of the Soviet fishing fleet to leave before the federal government deadline.

At about the same time, the small Soviet water tanker Altius was leaving Halifax harbor, ending the Soviet fishing presence in that port.

As of midnight Sunday night all Soviet fishing ships were banned from non-emergency visits to Canada's Atlantic ports. The closure was announced earlier this month by Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc, who said the Russians had disobeyed international fishing regulations.

Soviet fishermen had been frequent sights on the streets of Halifax and St. John's in recent years, easily recognizable by their habit of carrying brief-cases while shopping and sight-seeing.

MPs for Death Penalty

TORONTO (CP) — The Sun says a survey of members of Parliament shows that more than 70 per cent of the 106 who responded are in favor of some form of the death penalty for premeditated murder or the murder of policemen as prison guards.

The newspaper says the questionnaire on capital punishment was sent to all 264 MPs. Replies were received from 54 Progressive Conservatives, 39 Liberals, seven New Democrats, three Social Credit, one independent and two who did not want their names or party identifie.

All seven NDP members said they wanted the death penalty abolished.

The Sun says that of the 19 Liberal, 50 Tory, three Social Credit, one independent and one unidentified MPs who replied in favor of the eath penalty, 70 per cent said they would like to see hanging replaced by a different method of execution.

In 1973, Parliament voted 110 to 108 in favor of the death penalty.

No Aid After Tornado

ST. BONAVENTURE, Que. (CP) — No special government aid will be recommended for those left homeless in the wake of a tornado which ravaged this community Thursday leaving three persons dead and 45 injured.

Gerard Frigon, a provincial government representative who visited the devastated area during the weekend to assess the damage, said Saturday he will not recommen any special aid program other than standard forms of government compensation.

"We don't have to compete with insurance companies," Mr. Frigon said. "The residents have, or should have, insurance policies."

Bobcats Latest Cut May Prove Fatal Slice

Well sports fans, I know it's the time of year when everyone has their eye on the National and American League pennant races, but it must be getting close to the hockey season — I can tell by the chill coming my way from the hockey front office. The ice seems to be coming at me from all direction these days.

In any event, the cold surrounding my rototiller existance isn't near as chilling as the blast of winter that struck Bob Boyle on Saturday evening.

After a long absence, due to medical reasons (of a physical nature), I began pounding the oil keys again. My return efforts at editorializing appeared in Saturday's edition. The results were magnanimous Hallelujahs and disasterous.

Bob Boyle will not be coaching the Belleville Bobcats this season. A situation which is unfortunate not only for the hockey players of the area but also for Belleville's hockey fans.

Jim 'Snipe' Matthews general manager and owner of the Belleville Bob cats, enfuriated by the writing on the page — a first cousin to the writing on the wall — quickly informed Boyle that his talented and experienced services would not be necessary to his team for the 1975-76 hockey season.

"I didn't see anything wrong with what was said in the paper," said Boyle, "it is a matter of fact I thought it would help to clear the air."

"You know," he continued, "it everything started on the right foot."

Quite contrarily all the article did was set the situation back a couple of years.

It seems 'Snipe' took offence to the piece. Through correspondence he informed this department just what he had taken offence to. However, all the correspondence did was further my convictions as to what was wrong with the Bobcats.

I still contend that Bob Boyle and his knowledge would have helped put the Cats back into a place of respectability.

Belleville hockey fans, or for that matter sports fans of any kind, have never backed a loser; unless the loser happened to be victim of foul fortune rather than poor ability or miserable effort.

Last season, after the Cats had jumped off to one of their worst starts in five years, they were faced with the added dilemma of being coachless.

From out of the blue came Doyle to the rescue, saving the Cats out. The entire team was torn by mental problems; players were either quitting or turning to other teams and the general atmosphere in the dressing room was one of distrust.

Bob Boyle stepped into this situation, knowing full well what he was up against and lifted the Cats to a near .500 season.

It was too late for him to do anything else however. He had best three cards left with which to sign players upon entering the playoffs and several of club's original signing had left the squad and refused to return.

Still, Boyle stuck it out. At the end of the season, he made (it specifically clear that there would be changes in all aspects of the organization I don't know why he'd want to be back in the fold. But, you could have had someone who would have endeared a long term contender.

And if you don't get a contender this year, you won't be able to give your Friday night tickets away next year.

Townsend Takes Title

The Ontario Senior Mens Overall Water Ski Association Championship went to Harold Townsend of Belleville, on Saturday.

Townsend placed first in tricks with 2590 point, first in slalom with 28 buoys and managed a 112 feet jump despite the rough water conditions, to place second in jumping and win the overall title.

The championships, held in Dunnville, Ontario, saw Don Kesserling ...come second to Townsend.

Sunday night marked the opening of the Tam O'Shanter Hockey Symposium at Four Season's Hotel. Here, Russian National coach, Boris Kulagin, keeps the atmosphere loose as he chums it up with Russian Interpreter, Leon Zarakhovitch (right) and Gary Green, director of Tam O'Shanter. Paul Hoag, chairman of the Kingston Minor Hockey Association and organizer of Wednesday night's panel discussion at Queen's University, keeps a watchful eye on the antics.

Celebrity Studded Hockey Symposium Off and Running

It started as a national affair, blossomed into a North American event and then mushroomed into an international concurrence. With Sunday night's registration, the Tam O'Shanter Hockey Symposium officially got underway.

Some of the world's more highly celebrated coaching experts headline the first in what is hoped will be an annual hockey happening.

"I never dreamed it would grow into something this prominent," said Gary Green, director of Tam O'Shanter Hockey School and organizer of the symposium. The clinic is a first in North American. For that matter, it is matched only by the symposium which was held in Russia last year.

But it is a first in more ways than one. It has set a precedent on the Russian sports scene. The registration of Boris Kulagin, Sunday night, marked the first time a Russian in the world of sports had every come to Canada for training — if it's at all possible to teach a coach Kulagin's calibre anything.

However, Kulagin is just one of many landed personalities in attendance. Other include, John Somlar, head variety coach at Princeton University, Lars Waldner, president of the Swedish Minor Hockey Association, Fred Holger, Dutch National Coach, Dan Malone, first division coach in Sweden, Dr. Robert Fowler, CCM Board Advisor, Dr. Earl Hooner, chairman of the United States Amateur Hockey Association, Gary Young, coach of the St. Louis Blues, Bob Baun, coach of the Toronto Toros, and Billy Dineen, coach of the Houston Aeros. In all, 110 coaches, managers, trainers and other interested hockey enthusiasts from around the world will be in Belleville for the week-long symposium.

And the event is hardly going unnoticed. Al Stuart, director of Hockey Night in Canada, ... will be bringing his crew into town to film the highlights of the lectures. The major newspapers in the province will be covering it and rumor has it, CBC will be around for a piece of the action.

To add to the already full schedule the lecturers, Peter Elson, Frank Carrey, Billy Harris, Fred Shero, Roger Neilson, John Marshall, Fred Dunbar and Dr. Richard Lonetto will join Father David Bauer and Kulagin in a discussion and question and answer period at Grant Hall, Queen's University, Kingston.

Courtesy Tickets Available

If you're interested in attending the panel discussion Wednesday at Grant Hall, Queen's University, Kingston, McDonald's Family Restaurant, North Front Street, has 150 tickets to give away.

The discussion, being sponsored by the Kingston Minor Hockey Association in co-operation with Tam O'Shanter Hockey School will feature Peter Elson, Father David Bauer, Frank Carrey, Billy Harris, Doris Kulagin, Fred Sherry, Roger Neilson, John Marshall, Dr. Richard Lonetto and Fred Dunbar.

Macs Round It Out to 30

By TOM GAVEY
Staff Sportswriter

A rather shorthanded Belleville McDonald team came up empty handed in four Ontario Fastball league starts over the weekend. The losses gave them a 4-30 record on the year.

The Macs just couldn't pull one out of the fire as they fell 6-5 to Woodstock on Friday, 2-0 to Hamilton on Saturday and 7-1, 5-0 to St. Catherines on Sunday.

In the doubleheader at St. Kilts it looked like rain until game time,but luckily, for St. Catherines anyway, the sky cleared and the two games were played.

In the first game of the twin bill the Macs came close, as they lost a tough game 3-1 in 10 innings.

Belleville took an early lead in the top of the fourth when Paul Goodfellow blasted his first OFL homer.

In the bottom of the fifth, Mike Mayer from St. Kitts pounded one for the home team off starter Scott Reid to tie things up.

That sent it into extra innings.

In the bottom of the tenth it was all over the Belleville, as the Mr. Jackets loaded the bases and a bunt brought in the winning run and a close play at the plate.

It was in this match that the Macs came up with a triple play, the first one in the team's history. It came about in an odd way when a St. Kilts player hit a hard ball to Wayne McTaggart at third base, with men on first and third. McTaggart tagged the surprised Mr. Jackets runner, and threw to Terry Meagher at second. While this was going on the batter had somehow run by the man on first base. Meagher touched the batter-runner and then walked over and casually touched the original first base runner who was standing flabbergasted by the turn of affairs.

Still, Belleville lost, with Scott Reid going all the way, he gave up nine hits and one walk, while striking out six batters.

The win went to an old Belleville nemesis Dick Baldt.

The only other Belleville hits came from Frank Robinson and Steve Ling, but they couldn't add to Goodfellow's homer.

In the second game it was St. Kitts all the way, as Jim Chas had a rought time with the opposition batters.

Ken Hodgkins homered for St. Catherines to bring in two runs, and from there it was all downhill for Belleville, as they lost 5-0.

Chase gave up six hits, but all of them were hit hard and he was relieved by Scott Reid in the seventh.

The win went to veteran Ken Hobra, a big lefthander, who gave up just one hit, a bunt single by Steve Ling.

In the game against Hamilton on Saturday night, the Macs did well, but they just couldn't penetrate the pitching of Wally Dick.

Chase pitched well for Belleville, giving up seven hits. The runs were scored in the fourth, when Dick Beasley hit for the league in triples, ripped his tenth of the season.

Belleville had a brief rally in the ninth, as Carl Boomer and Wayne McTaggart both singled. Unfortunately, as is usually the case with the Macs, they couldn't get the big hit to bring them in.

Frank Robinson's Belleville hit of the game came from Steve Ling, who had a great weekend at the bat.

The real heartbreaker of the weekend came on Friday night against Woodstock, as Belleville lost 6-5 in nine innings.

Belleville took an early lord had couldn't hold on to as Woodstock moved out ahead. Some clutch hitting in the ninth tied things up for Belleville and it looked like extra innings, but wasn't to be, though, as starter Scott Reid loaded the bases and then walked Pat Werby to give Woodstock the winning run.

The really unfortunate thing is that Belleville was one short of pitchers that he couldn't relieve Reid and possibly save the game.

The win for Woodstock went to Bob Prorozuk, who relieved starter Don Reeder.

Hits for Belleville were plentiful, as Steve Ling singled three from Steve Earthers doubled and tripled. Frank Robinson doubled and singles came from Bruce Ellis, Dave Duval, Larry Mawby and Paul Goodfellow.

BYBF Leads Playoff

The Belleville Yardmen opened the provincial Women's Softball Union playoff season here in Belleville Sunday, taking the first game of their intermediate A series with Lakefield by a 10-2 margin.

Sandra Claus fired the win for Belleville, allowing eight hits. She struck out six and walked five. Cheryl Bailey absorbed the loss, also throwing an eight-hitter. She fanned five and walked four.

Sheila Alexander led the Belleville hitting parade with three base hits, while Claus, Judy Bassett, Sue Morton, Carol McFarlane and Donna Preston each rapped singles.

Beth Flaherty had a three-base hit for the losers, with Pat Brennan adding two singles.

BYBF scored a run in the first inning and added two more in the seventh to offset Lakefield runs in the seventh and top of the ninth.

The next game of the series goes in Lakefield, Wednesday night, with game time set for 8:30. The box will leave the Belleville Hall for the game at 6:30.

Meanwhile, two other teams from the Belleville and District Girls Softball League are preparing for their Intermediate B series.

Belleville Madoc Indians and Madoc Purinaettes, last year's Belleville and District Ladies league champions, will book in the final round, with the loser dropping to the Intermediate B series.

First game in that series will be played in Madoc. That one gets under way at 8:45. The two teams will go right back at it on Wednesday night, at Centennial field, with game time 6:45.

If the two teams haven't seen enough of each other by then, they book up in a regularly scheduled Band D game Thursday night.

North Bendale Adds Local Tourney to List

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

North Bendale ended through to Second Group McDonald's Bantam Softball Tournament Saturday

seathed to come up with their third tournament win in four tries this year. Taking the final game in a rousing 15-0 fashion over Scarborough, the North Bendale crew added the Belleville win to victories in North York and Picton.

The four wins recorded by the North Bendale team brought its total to 25 for the season, with only a single loss to their credit. It marked the sixth time they had beaten Scarborough this year, although Scarborough managed only team to have beaten them. That loss came in the Scarborough tournament four weeks ago, in the championship game.

North Bendale sent Beamsville to defeat in their first game by a 12-4 count, then eliminated Willowdale. ... Picton was their next victim, a 1-0 squeaker, with the run coming in the first inning.

In the final game, the winners scored two runs in the first and never looked back, on the strength of a one-hitter by Barry Holt, chosen the Most Valuable Player in the A division. They added five more in the third, two in the fifth, four in the sixth, and one in the seventh.

Holt had a no-hitter going into the sixth frame, but was foiled in his bid by a clearly hit sharp single to right center by Steve Hastings. The winning chucker threw third strikes past batters in the final, not walking a man.

Third baseman Derek Breach led the 21 hit slugfest with a triple, two doubles and a single, while Bob Lukevich checked in with two doubles and two singles.

Oshawa, last year's champions, lost their initial contest to Willowdale, but came back to win three straight, and the championship, with a 6-3 win over Richmond Hill. They dumped Port Perry in their second game by a 5-1 margin, and eliminated Belleville by the same score.

The Belleville Yardmen boat team had troubles in the tourney, losing two of the three games they played; losing to A finalists Scarborough in the first game, 3-0, winning their second 5-1 from Harrowsmith, and then bowing to Oshawa.

Scarborough pitcher Pete Toshakouski stopped the Belleville attack on three hits, all singles, in the first contest, with the locals were relegated to the consolation side. Clarence Brookema, Bob Hodge and Doug Campbell each stroked one base hit.

Toshakouski also led his team at the plate, slamming a fourth inning home run, adding a bunt single. Grant Baldes bagged a double, while Tom Hnatko and Don Haley each singled.

Rickey Tripp was tagged with the loss in the Belleville rubber, striking out three. Pitcher Toshakouski managed five whiffs.

The locals bounced back in their next game on the strength of a one-hitter by Tim Soule. The only hit he gave up was a lead off home run by the Scarborough seventh frame to Rick Revell. Soule struck out 15 during the game, walking two. Cy Chapman took the loss, knocked for only four hits, striking out four and walking three.

Clarence Brookema led the Belleville attack with a home run and single, with Ron Bayley also rapping a four bagger. Andy Bossii completed the hitting with a single.

Belleville got four runs in the second inning, with three men unearned, after Hartcrowsmith committed four errors.

The hosts bowed out to eventual B champs Oshawa, collecting only two hits in a 5-1 loss. Doug Campbell was the only Belleville batsman to touch Oshawa hurler Randy Chopek, pounding a triple and single, also scoring the lone Belleville run.

Tim Soule was once again on the Belleville mound, nicked for six hits, although four of them went for extra bases, including two homers. He struck out six and walked two.

Larry Pesaski stroked two home runs and a double, while Grove Sutton hammered a home run and double.

North Bendale captain Bob Lukevich accepts the A championship plaque from tournament director Pete Hunt after his team had captured the top prize in the second annual tourney, at the Alemite on Saturday. North Bendale dumped Scarborough, 15-0 in the final game to take the title.

With the same magnetism that always surrounds him, Bobby Hull of the Winnipeg Jets signed many an autograph before, during and after the benefit softball game Sunday afternoon at the Alemite. Hull couldn't come up with the same positive force field in the game, though, as his CJBQ team dropped another one, 4-1 to the Belleville and District Umpires.

Hull Still Favorite No Matter What Sport

Despite a delay due to rain, and the threat of more wet stuff throughout the contest, the benefit softball game between the CJBQ Homers and the Belleville District Umpires was a boomingly successs Sunday afternoon.

Held to raise money for crippled children through the Shriners and Alhambra lodges, the game featured several National Hockey League and World Hockey League Stars, as well as Hockey Hall of Fame Curator and former Intelligencer sports writer, Lefty Reid.

Heading the show at the Alemite was the Golden Jet, Bobby Hull, of the Winnipeg Jets of the WHA and a former resident of the Quinte area. Born in Point Anne, Hull was no stranger to the ball field, where he played many seasons in the local leagues before departing for points in western Canada.

The same Hull magnetism was once again in evidence as dozens of autograph seekers flocked to see the Golden Jet in person.

Also representing the professional ranks of hockey were Larry Mavety and Jim Turkiewicz of the Toronto Toros, and George Ferguson and Jack Valiquette, both of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Hull toiled for the Homers in the game, pitching what he said "for the first time in five years." He hadn't been too much of his former pitching ability.

The other four, along with Reid, played for the boys in blue, proving to be the better of the two "teams".

The umpires scored a pair of runs in the first inning, and went on to record a 4-1 win.

The real winners were the children however, with about $1700 raised through the game. The figure is an approximation, with the final tally not to be known until sometime later this week, after all monies have been accounted for.

Among the many people who donated their time to the worthy cause were the players, umpires, both playing and officiating, and the many donors of door prizes for the outing.

The opening ceremonies were handled by Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Hastings MP Jack Ellis. The pair, along with the hockey people, were piped in by Doug and Al Durno.

Two pitchers carried off both Most Valuable Player Awards at the McDonald's Bantam Softball Tournament Saturday. Barry Holt, from North Bendale, top hitter honors in the A division, while Oshawa's Randy Chopek captured the B title.

Holt fired third strikes past no less than 41 batters in the three games. He pitched for the tourney champs, picking up three of the four North Bendale wins.

He also was effective at the plate, ranping a pair of singles in the final game, against Scarborough.

Chopek fanned 38 batters in picking up three wins as Oshawa took the B title. As well as his pitching prowess, which included a one-hitter against Port Perry and a two hitter against Belleville, he slapped out three singles in the B final contest.

Nicklaus Loses in Sudden-death

Weiskopf Earns Second Canadian Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Tom Weiskopf won his second Canadian Open golf championship Sunday, while the man he described "as the greatest player in the history of the game" finished second.

Weiskopf won his first Canadian title in 1971 at Montreal's Richelieu Valley Golf Club.

He won the $40,000 first prize Sunday and the Peter Jackson Trophy—an Eskimo soapstone carving—by defeating Jack Nicklaus on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

The pair completed the hectic final round of the 72-hole, $200,000 event, played this year over the par-70, 6,959-yard Royal Montreal Golf Club course, with 274 totals, six under par.

The playoff became necessary when Nicklaus, playing in the group next to last threesome, bogeyed the par-four, 448-yard 18th hole for a one-stroke lead over Weiskopf.

The latter, playing in the final group, needed a birdie to tie the same hole to force the playoff.

The two golfers then moved out to the 15th tee to begin the deciding extra-hole play. Nicklaus reached the green in two strokes, as Weiskopf hit himself 10 feet from the cup and Weiskopf was just over 14 inches from the hole.

Nicklaus missed his put but Weiskopf sunk his for the win.

The superlative golf Nicklaus displayed from the opening day of the tournament, when he shared the lead with Weiskopf as they set competitive course record of 66, seemed to desert him in the dying minutes of the tournament.

His problem on 18 developed when his drive landed in the water and he was forced to take one-stroke penalty drop to keep the ball in play. Lying two, he used a two iron to get to within feet of the pin, but two-putted his bogey.

Nicklaus said later he did not dwell on the fate he had given Weiskopf and Gay Brewer, who finished at 275, had bogeyed the 16th hole, giving him a two-shot lead on the tee.

"If I had known, I might have played a three wood off the tee (18th)," Nicklaus said later.

"Obviously I'm very excited to have won another Canadian Open," Weiskopf said. "What makes it even more rewarding to me is to beat the greatest player in the history of the game—Jack Nicklaus."

While Weiskopf was disappointed over his earlier loss to Nicklaus in the Masters, the latter was equally charitably in his continued failure to capture the one major tournament that has eluded him since 1967.

In eight Canadian Open appearances, Nicklaus now has finished second three times, third once and fifth twice, as well as 27th in 1966 and 13th last year.

Top money winner on the tour this year with $180,799 in earnings, Nicklaus pocketed $22,800 for his second-place finish.

Weiskopf has won $189,565.

Brewer, who entered the final two rounds tied with Nicklaus, at 144-139. Prior to this tournament he had managed just one sub-par round, a 69 although playing regularly on the tour.

Weiskopf started the day one stroke behind Nicklaus and Brewer on the strength of rounds of 65, 74, and 68. He shot a 67 in his final round.

Nicklaus was 65, 71, 70 and 68 for his four rounds, while Brewer's card read 68-68-70-69—275.

Both Weiskopf and Nicklaus said they were not in favor of sudden-death playoffs to decide a national championship. They maintained that an extra round would be a better way to decide the winner.

Arnold Palmer finished alone in fourth place. Palmer, who played head-to-head with Nicklaus and Bruce Crampton in Australia, began the day at par. He finished in the tournament with a three-under 277. He picked up $9,600.

Crampton was fifth, one stroke off Palmer's pace, earning $8,300.

J. C. Snead, nephew of veteran Sam Snead, fired a final round 68—as did Ray Floyd and Charles Coody—to finish one stroke under par for the tournament at 278. He won $7,200.

Gary Player of South Africa, Bob Wynn, former Canadian champion Lee Trevino and Ken Still, finished at even par and each won $5,675.

Bob Rose of Copetown, Ont., finished with 1b same score as Cowan and picked up $360. Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., finished at 298 to earn $300.

Sunday's attendance was announced at 18,700, bringing the total for the week to 65,750.

Canadian and U.S. Teams Get Eleven Each

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States and Canada each took 11 medals at the International Competitions 1975 track and field meet during the week-end, but the U.S. was a clear winner over the host country in the unofficial medal standings.

The U.S. collected five gold, two silver and four bronze while Canada managed three golds, three silver and four bronze.

Belgium was second to the U.S. with four golds, a silver and two bronze, followed by Poland with three golds, five silvers and one bronze. Canada's showing earned fourth place.

A small contingent from the Soviet Union, expected to do far better in the 1976 Olympic Games to which the meet was a prelude, had one gold and a bronze, trailing such countries as France, which took seven medals, and Ethiopia, with three.

The only U.S. gold Sunday came in the women's 200 metres when Pam Giles was timed in 22.73 seconds to nip Bellgium's Lea Alaerts in 23.75.

Canadians won two events Sunday, the men's 4-x-400-metre relay in a two-nation battle with Nigeria, and the men's shot put, in which Bishop Dolegiewicz, a Toronto native living in Laval, Que., won with a heave of 19.95 metres.

Two Canadian open records were established Sunday for a total of 12 in the three-day meet.

Maria Vergova of Bulgaria hurled the discus 61.76 metres for a women's mark, and among the men, Aime Abo of Finland threw the javelin 84.94 metres.

Ludmilla Popovskaia of the Soviet Union maintained the lead she held after three events Saturday to take the women's pentathlon with 4,205 points. The only established record she won was the shot put Saturday.

Belgian men won two golds Sunday. Allons Brijdenbach recorded the first in 20.81 seconds in the 200-metre event, and Mark Nevens collected another with a time of three minutes, 42.12 seconds in the 1,500 metres.

Mexico received its only gold-medal performance in the 5,000-metre event as Rodolfo Gomez took the gold in 13:44.6 ahead of Czechoslovakia's Stanislav Hoffman in 13:35.96.

Natalia Andrei won women's 1,500 metres for Romania, fifth in the medal standings with three golds, a silver and two bronze. She was timed in 4:16.09.

Enno Del Ferno produced Italy's lone gold with a men's high jump victory. He leaped 2.18 metres without having missed an attempt. He tied for over on jumps ahead of Jacek Wanda of Poland and Montreal's Claude Ferragne.

Five open marks were surpassed Sunday. Grazyna Rabsztyn of Poland completed the women's 100-metre hurdles in 13.16 seconds, and Kathy McMillan of the U.S. sailed 6.51 metres in the women's long jump. Manfred Huening of West Germany threw the hammer 72.40 metres.

Romanians set the other marks. Gheorghe Cefan won the 110-metre steeplechase in 8:17.64 and Marinne Suman took the women's metres in 1:59.2.

The only Canadian medals Saturday came in the women's 800 metres as Victoria's Joyce Yakowicz and Mary McGowan of Guelph, Ont., took the silver and bronze, respectively, behind Deborah Sarpenter of the U.S.

Andretti Snaps Bad Luck String

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Mario Andretti snapped a string of bad luck in Formula 5000 racing event, Sunday when a crash in front of him forced him to take the 100-miler at the curving, hilly Road America course.

Andretti averaged 110.355 miles per hour in his Lola-Chevy to collect the $15,000 first prize. He finished 16.6 seconds ahead of England's Jackie Oliver.

Andretti also won the 12-lap, 30-mile qualifying heats, leading all the way.

Eppie Fedane of Thorehill, Ont., was third in the main event, and American B.J. Swanson finished fourth in his Lola-Chevy.

Brian Redman of England, series point leader, was set back in the second qualifying heat when a suspension brace broke and he ended up 19th place. He started in the 20th position, but charged to third before a spin cost him a tire change set him back again.

He finished eighth—and the second time in 38 Formula 5000 races he had not finished first.

St. Catharine's Clubs Dominate Nationals

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Ontario eclipses dominated the weekend's national rowing trials, winning 21 of the 27 events.

Quebec captured four sculling finals and the oil gold medal salvaged by western Canadian crews came when a cox and coxless elite pairs from the Burnaby B.C., training centre won their event.

The powerful St. Catharines Rowing Club, Canadian junior champions for the last 14 years, paced to eastern attack with eight final. The second-ranked Ridley Boat Club added four, including the elite eight and Brock University rounded out the Garden City show by taking the women's coxed four.

The three-day competition saw fair weather conditions ranging from calm water and bright sunshine to wind and rain was designed to select Canadian crews for next month's FISA junior championships in Montreal, and the men's and women's world championships in Nottingham, England.

However, neither team can be named until a selection committee from the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen confers wi. Sport Canada officials.

St. Catharines RC was paced by its big four-eared crew which won both the elite coxed four and four in head-to-head battles from boats from Burnaby.

St. Catharines also swept the two youth fours and eight, the junior eight and pairs and had Mike Russell and Jim Dwyer pick up the light double.

Burnaby was favoured in the elite four with the same crew which represented Canada at last year's world championships.

However, the westerners broke and finished last as the St. Catharines boat moved by with 400 metres to go.

In the cox four final, the same St. Catharines crew strayed by Andy Van Buyten had a length on Burnaby at the line, clocking 6:08.4 compared with 6:38 in the coxless final.

Rids had to come from behind to edge Burnaby in the big eight for one of the closest finishes. A spring through the final quarter earned the St. Catharines crew its three-foot margin and a sizzling 5:41.5 clocking for the 2,000-metre distance.

The youth coxed pair also went to Ridley while 15-year-old Brian Elliot added the youth singles and then combined with his 16-year-old brother Barry for the youth doubles.

Brockville added to the Ontario total by taking the lightweight coxed four and four, then combining its women's coxed four with four girls from Vancouver and winding up on top of a 6-4 field.

The University of Western Ontario won the lightweight singles and the women's pair. Brian Thorne of St. Catharines, a 20-year-old physical education teacher at Western, was the sculler while Monica Dragicevic and Becky Stevenson combined for the pair.

All three are good bets to repeat for the Canadian team after having rowed last year.

Bev Cameron, 22, scored in the women's singles for Ottawa defeating Monica Boettcher of Calgary by a whisker in the thousand-metre final. The 17-year-old westerner was Canada's entry in last year's worlds.

There was no mistake about the win by Bill Scolie in the elite singles. The 33-year-old Thunder Bay sculler was six lengths up on his nearest rival, Mike Cullen of Brentwood, B.C. at the line, covering the 2,000 metres in 6:58.8.

Quebec's strength lay in sculling. The provincial squad picked up the elite quad and double as well as the women's coxed squad and double.

It was Sandy Manson and Bob Bergen who combined for Burnaby's elite pair while Rick Crawley and Gref Hood with cox Glen Battersby scored in the coxed pair final.

Toronto Argonauts were second in the pair and St. Catharines chaud home Burnaby in the coxed event.

Argos had better luck in the youth pair when Tim Britton, Peter and Mike Evans combined to defeat two other crews with a 4:45 clocking for the 1,500-metre distance.

CAAO officials hope to move the junior squad into Montreal next weekend depending on when Sports Canada says over the selection. The elite men's and women's teams are slated to fly to England Aug. 11.

Canada Loses Second of Three

UNDINE, Italy (CP) — Canada's national basketball team lost 96-79 to Italy in an intercontinental Cup basketball game Saturday on its second defeat in three starts.

The Canadians defeated Greece 74-72 in Athens last Tuesday before losing to Yugoslavia 97-87 in Belgrade on Thursday.

Yugoslavia, the European champions, lost 97-82 to Brazil in another game Saturday in Belgrade.

In other games, the United States made its debut with a 96-80 win over Greece in Athens and the Soviet Union, in its first start, defeated Mexico 97-78 in Leningrad.

The East Canadians were Lars Hansen of Port Coquitlam, B.C., and Phil Tollestrup of Raymond, Alta., both of whom left the game after collecting five fouls. Bob Sharpe of Guelph, Ont., and Romel Raffin of Kitchener, Ont., also left for the same reason.

Italy led 50-39 at the half.

Bill Robinson of Chemainus, B.C., led the Canadians with 18 points and Martin Ralph of Winnipeg had 12. Tollestrup and Hansen each had 10 points. George Rautins of Toronto added seven, and James Russell of Burlington, Ont., Raffin and Sharpe scored six each.

Pleased With Showing

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Paul Hans Fugh, a naturalized Canadian, who salvaged something for his adopted country at the Canadian Olympic Regatta in Kingston (CORK) which wound up Saturday.

The sailmaker from Toronto, an Olympic medallist when he sailed for Denmark, won his second race of the week Saturday in the Finn third over-all in the flying Dutchman Class.

He was the top Canadian finisher.

Paying homage to Yves Pajot of France and Jorg Diesch of West Germany, who finished one-two respectively in the class, Fugh said:

"If we can finish this way next year, in the Olympic sailing, I'm happy."

Fugh and Evert Bistel, his crew, now have a five-day layoff before taking part in the Flying Dutchman world championships in Buffalo N.Y.

The rest of the Canadian entries, hampered by inexperience and heavy weather more to the liking of the Europeans, finished well down in all standings.

Most of the class leaders had their places clinched before the races Saturday, mainly because of wave conditions Friday.

Pajot and Diesch did not even bother to sail and Yves Pajot of Australia, who won the Soling class had his boat hauled out and hitched into a trailer even before the last race began.

Two United States sailors, William Buchan and Rob Wilson took second and third respectively in the solings.

Glen Dexter of Halifax, the top Canadian in the Soling class, finished 19th.

Paul Allen of the U.S., who won the Tornado class, also did not bother to run the last race.

Rob Smyth of the U.S. was second and Jorg Diesch of Germany was third.

Canada's Tornado sailors were well down in the final rankings, with Jeff Brennan and Beloel, Que., the best of the group, in 16th place.

John Albrechtsson of Sweden had to start the final Tempest race to clinch first, but he didn't have to finish it. The only man with a chance to beat him was West Germany's Uwe Hares, who finished second.

Mares could have caught Albrectson but needed to finish at least 11 boats ahead of Albrectson's. Mares gave up and left the race.

Giuseppe Milone of Italy won the last race to finish in the Tinn standings with John Brand of Australia second.

Magnus Olin of Sweden, who showed power early in the week faded in the last races to finish third. Sandy Riley of Toronto was 15th.

In the 470 class, Francois Fountaine of France was the winner ahead of Marc Lanzerat, also of France. Garry Geitz of Toronto was third.

Colin Park of Vancouver was 15th top Canadian, finishing 25th.

Orillia forward Mike Clarke was in a little too close on Wallaceburg goalie Jim Peterkin to collect his hat trick in the A final game of the Mcdonald's Bantam Tournament Sunday, but settled for two in his team's 9-2 win. Clarke was clearly inside the crease when he let his shot go, which did beat Peterkin. The play was called back.

McDonald's Bantam Lacrosse Tournament

Orillia Powers Way to Top Honors

Using a potent offensive attack, including both fast breaks and team pressing tactics, Orillia won the A Championship and McDonald's Trophy at the first edition of the McDonald's Bantam Invitational Lacrosse Tournament here on the weekend. The tournament was hosted by the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association.

The Orillia club averaged just under 10 goals per game in their three contests, including nine in the final against Wallaceburg in a 9-2 victory. They opened their matches with a 13-6 drubbing of Buffalo and went on to take a 7-2 decision from Whitby.

In the final game against Wallaceburg, the winners struck first blood with a marker by Jim Gemson with only 45 seconds elapsed, but fell behind on Wallaceburg goals by Mike Raymond and Dan Knight, less than two minutes later.

The lead was short lived, and the last Wallaceburg was to have, however, as Orillia came back to tie the score in the first period, adding four more in the second and topping the win off with three in the third.

The Orillia scoring was spread out in the big game, with John Coreno and Mike Clarke collecting two each. Five other netted one apiece.

Orillia scoring through the tournament was well spread out. The different players shared 29 goals. Stu Burnie and Mark Tabor led the way with six and five goals, respectively. Mark Fletcher collected seven assists to go with four goals to lead his team.

Buffalo Athletics won three games against only one loss to take the B championship, also with a well balanced, high powered offence.

After absorbing the first round loss to Orillia, they went on to dump Kapuskasing 11-5, Whitby 9-3, and Orillia 13-6 in the B final, and collect the Bell Telephone Trophy.

Chris Rebaun and Ladd Staats teamed up to get 26 goals on the board between them, with Rebaun accounting for 17 of them. They also chalked up 20 assists. Rebaun added Staats by two points, 23-21, in the race as the tournament's top scorer.

Behind the three goal performance of Jeff Dean in the C championship game, Huntsville dumped Gouocester 9-4 to take that title and the City Hotel Trophy. They bowed in their first contest 11-5 to Wallaceburg, but came on with a 9-0 defeat of Belleville.

Kingston was the winner in the D championship game, with the host Belleville Yardmen team on the short end of a 5-4 speaker. Jamie Forster, Steven Riddel, Danny Prewer, and Steve Slaughter each tallied once in defeat for the Belleville club.

Kingston had taken a pair of losses before the win against Belleville, 9-6 decision to Kapuskasing and 8-4 to Gloucester.

The host Belleville Yardmen did not fare too well in the two-day tournament, coming up winless in their three contests. In the opener of the tourney, Nepean dealt them a 12-3 setback, led by Jamie Treutman's four goals and two assists. Gerry Healy, John Belanger and Steve Biddel each netted on goal in defeat.

In their second game, they were shut out by Huntsville by a 9-0 count. Jeff Dean fired three goals for the winners with John Potts recorded the shutout in the Huntsville net.

The Yardmen then won in with the Kingston crew in the D final, only to lose by the 5-4 margin.

Other teams participating in the two-day affair held at both the Memorial and Dirk Ellis Rinks, were Kawartha (Bridgeworth), and Cornwall.

McFarlane Leads All-star Onslaught

MADOC — The combined best of the Belleville and District L.E.L.E.* Softball League proved to be too much for last year's league champs, the Madoc Purinasetes, in the annual All-star contest played here Saturday night. The All-stars came up with a 5-1 victory over the home team.

Before a crowd of about 400 spectators on the softball evening the all - stars rapped out 20 base hits in pounding the win, with all but two players in the lineup collecting at least one safety. Purinas Sam picked up eight hits in the game.

Carol McFarlane of the Belleville Yardmen, who caught the entire game, led the way for the winners with four singles, while Sue Morton, also of BYBF, bagged a double and two singles. Nancy Birch, of the Yardmen had a double and single, with Roseanne Hovings of Belleville Broadloom, doing a touch inning triple.Pam Smith, of Broadloom, and Sharon Francis, from Ellis Construction, each singled twice, with Shirley Gulliver doubling.

For the Purinasetes, it was Jane Bailey with three singles in four trips to the plate, with pitcher Sandra Fleming and Bonnie Jones each adding a double. Marg Bateman and Sharon Lessard rounded out the losers' attack, with a base hit each.

Three pitchers worked on the all-star rubber, with Shirley Gulliver, and Sue Morton, both of the Yardmen, and Norma McQuarrie, of Lakeside Oxygen, each throwing for three innings.

Gulliver was the starter, allowed two hits, fanning two while walking none. McQuarrie came on in the top of the fourth, and allowed the only Purinasetes run, in the fourth. She gave up four hits, striking out two and walking none.

Morton came on in the seventh to wrap up the win, striking out four and walking one in her three frames. She gave up two hits.

Sandra Fleming went all the way in the loss, giving up 20, well scattered hits. She fanned three, and walked none, pitching herself out of many jams from the steadily hitting all-stars.

The winners left no less than 12 on base, while Madoc stranded six.

Hastings riding MP Jack Ellis was on hand to toss out the first pitch for the game, while Cecil Hogg, Reeve of Madoc Township, did the catching for the ceremony.

Tykes Earn Dorchester Consolation Title

The Ellis' Motors Tykes were defeated in the first game of the Dorcester Tyke Tournament, but after that, there was no looking back, as they went on to win the "B" championship.

In the final game the Belleville team was pitted against Huron East, who they defeated easily, 15-2, to take the "B" side honors.

Robert Boomhower took the victory, striking out five in the important game.

The loss went to Bob Buchanan.

Phil Harvey had a triple and three singles in the win, Jim Cook had a triple and two singles while Robert Boomhower doubled and singled.

In the first game of the tournament, Belleville didn't fare so well as they lost 13-6. That put them on the "B" side.

The loss went to Rob Boomhower, while Bradley Gray homered to lead the Belleville bats.

Elliot Motors went on to face Scarborough Village, whom they downed 7-3 on the pitching of Rob Revoy.

Gray doubled and singled for the winners, while Bill Harvey and Dave Coughlin had two singles.

The locals had no trouble with Corrunta, beating them 12-3 with Revoy taking his second win of the event.

Jim Cook homered while Boomhower tripled.

That led things to the "B" championship, and Belleville's title.

Bosox Do Double Zero On Fading Yankees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Red Sox are running away with the American League East and they don't expect to be caught.

"I don't think we can blow it," said manager Darrell Johnson. "These boys just love to play baseball and they play the hell out of it."

"If we stay healthy, no one is going to catch us," said pitcher Bill Lee. "We have the best ball club."

The reason for all the optimism was a 1-0, 6-0, sweep Sunday over New York Yankees, a twin-billing that lifted the Red Sox eight games ahead of second-place Baltimore Orioles. Lee and Roger Moret pitched six-hitters as Boston won for the 17th time in the last 20 games.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's swept a doubleheader from Chicago White Sox 10-1 and 7-1, Baltimore took two games from Milwaukee Brewers 7-4 and 11-6 in 10 innings, California Angels routed by Minnesota Twins 6-1, Kansas City Royals shaded Texas Rangers 3-1 and Detroit Tigers split with Cleveland Indians, losing 8-7 and losing 14-3.

In Saturday's games, it was: Boston 4, New York 2; Cleveland 6, Detroit 4; Chicago 3, Oakland 1; Baltimore 4, Milwaukee 0; Kansas City 7, Texas 6; and Minnesota over California in a doubleheader, the Twins winning the first game 9-4 with the Angels taking the nightcap 5-2.

BILL LEE

Lee (13-6) outdueled Catfish Hunter (13-10) in the first game. Lynn reached first on an error by shortstop Jim Mason in the ninth inning, stole second and scored on Rick Miller's single for the game's only run.

Boston had an easier time of it in the nightcap as Jim Rice stroked four hits and drove in two runs, and Carl Yastrzemski hit his 12th home run of the year. Moret made it seven wins in eight decisions as he bested Tippy Martinez (1-1).

The losses left the Yankees pre-season co-favorites with Baltimore to win the East, 10 games off the pace with a 50-50 record.

Vida Blue (14-8) and Stan Bahnsen (7-8) pitched eight-hitters and Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi homered in each game as Oakland upped its lead in the AL West to 9½ games.

Baltimore rallied for six runs in the ninth to tie the second game and five more in the 10th to win it. Doug DeCinces' two-run triple and Al Bumbry's two-run homer keyed the rally in the ninth while Tommie Davis hit a grand slam homer in the 10th.

In the opener, Don Baylor drove in three runs with a pair of doubles, Bobby Grich homered and Davis collected his 2,000th major league hit. Jim Palmer (14-7) beat rookie Jesse Jefferies (0-1). Mike Rogodzinski, Darrell Porter and Gorman Thomas homered for Milwaukee.

Dick Lange (4-3) posted his first complete game victory of the season for California and had a shutout until Tony Oliva homered in the ninth. Dave Collins belted a two-run homer and Mickey Rivers had a triple and single for the Twins. Rivers also swiped his 55th base of the season.

Steve Busby, (13-8) bested Gaylord Perry (9-15) as Kansas City won its fifth successive game, four of them under new manager Whitey Herzog. Detroit rallied from a 7-2 deficit to take the opener on Aurelio Rodriguez' tie-breaking triple in the eighth inning. Mickey Rivers drove in four runs with a single, double and home run for the Tigers.

Cleveland came back in the nightcap behind Fritz Peterson (5-7) who won for the first time in two months.

Clark Edged In Shootout

BISLEY, England (CP) — Ron Clark of Burlington, Ont., was narrowly defeated in the final of the Queen's Prize competition at the Bisley Rifle Association annual shoot Saturday.

However, the former Prince Edward Island resident shared in a Bisley record, as 40 competitors who tied for first with a score of 294 out of a possible 300.

It was the first time since 1860, when the meet started, that so many tied for first place. There have been several ties between two or three men and last year, four shared the lead.

The tie shoot was won by 52-year-old Charles Trotter from the Isle of Guernsey. He only dropped a single point in the five-shot shootoff. Three British competitors dropped three points each and Clark dropped four to finish fifth in the order of merit.

Clark, a staff relations officer at Mohawk College in Hamilton, was treated almost like a winner when he got back to the Canadian pavilion in the Bisley camp.

Dave Rumbold of Ottawa said: "We were all crossing our fingers for a Canadian winner when the tie shoot was going on. We are sorry Ron did not make it. But let us remember that this is just not a case of being lucky. He made the top score in the Queen's Prize. That is the big thing."

Joe Gibault of Victoria, a British Columbia government employee in the fish and wildlife branch, finished 29th in the final 100 with 278. Gilles Brousseau of Fort-Rouge, Que. scored 273 and Gordon Higgins of Halifax had 272.

Brousseau, Clark, Gibault and Higgins advanced earlier in the day. Gibault had the best score, 145, in the earlier, competition from 300, 500 and 600 yards.

Brousseau had 143, Clark 144 and Higgins 143.

Don Bullock of West Vancouver and Bill Hall of Ottawa, just missed the final 100 following a shootoff between 34 competitors who scored 141 for the last 11 places.

Hall, a regular member of previous Canadian teams, took part as a private competitor.

Other Canadians came close with scores that would have got them on a lower scoring year.

Dick Hampson of Ottawa, a former winner, Bob Barwise of Charlottetown, cadet Alan Clarke of Newtonville Ont., and Ralph LaBeyne of North Vancouver all scored 146.

Jim Thompson of Toronto had 139 and Dave Phillips of Calgary 138. Bill Cox of Toronto and Bridgetown, N.S., Jacques Dugas of Noufchatel, Que., and cadet Chris Lawson of Sudbury, Ont., all had 136, a score which at one time would have qualified for the 100.

East Pennant Race Could Tighten

Ozark and Company Take on Bucs Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now that Cincinnati Reds seem to have locked up the west division, the question is who'll volunteer to try and stop Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League east?

"Somebody has to and we'll do our best," said Philadelphia Phillies manager Danny Ozark as he looked forward to tonight's opener of a three-game series in Pittsburgh against the front-running, Pirates.

The Pirates steamrollering Montreal 4-1 and 5-3 in a doubleheader Sunday, got a bit of unexpected help from St. Louis Cardinals, which dumped the Phillies 9-6 and dropped them 9½ games out of first place.

In the other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Cincinnati 5-3, San Diego Padres defeated Atlanta Braves 3-1, San Francisco Giants downed Houston Astros 3-2 and, in another twinbill, Chicago Cubs split with New York Mets, winning the opener 4-2 before the Mets took the nightcap, nightcap 4-1.

"I'd settle for two out of three any day against the Pirates," Ozark said. "We'll try to win the first game and then worry about the others. You start talking about sweeping and you forget what you're supposed to be doing each game."

Ted Simmons' seventh-inning home run carried the Cardinals to a Philadelphia. It was his sixth double of the season and the 9th a winner of 20-year-old Bob Gibson, his first victory since June 22.

Willie Stargell borrowed a bat from pitcher John Candelaria and slugged a three-run homer in the eighth inning of the night cap to give Pittsburgh its sweep over the Expos.

DANNY OZARK

Ken Brett and Larry Demery combined on a three-hitter in the opener with Brett getting a single to drive in one of the Pirates' runs.

Don Sutton won his 14th game of the year but despite the victory, the Dodgers finished themselves right where they started four games ago, 17½ games behind the Reds in the west.

Lee Lacy's two-run single capped a four-run fourth inning for the Dodgers. John Hale injured the outfielder when he traded blows. He scored on Ron Cey's single Lacy drove in two runs after singles by Steve Yeager and Bill Russell.

Dave Winfield's two runs batted in marked Randy Jones' shutout. He shut enabled the Padres to sweep a four-game series from the Braves, who won all but one of their games against San Diego a year ago.

Chris Speier hit a homer for the Giants while John Montefusco and Gary Lavelle turned Houston, teaming for seven-hitter. Montefusco welt the first five innings in the Astrodome, allowing the Astros' Jose run, a Doug Rader homer.

Bill Madlock hit a two-run homer to break a third-inning tie and added a solo shot in the seventh to give the Cubs their first-game victory.

The Mets rebounded on Wayne Garrett's two-run single that triggered a three-run 10th inning. Singles by Felix Millan and Rusty Staub and a walk loaded the bases for Garrett, who singled to left to break the tie. John Stearns scored the winnr run with a single to centre.

Canada Climbs Into Fourth as Aquatic Championships Close

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The United States retained its medal and points title at the world aquatic championships that ended Sunday while Canada moved up a notch to fourth place in the points race.

While Canada finished strongly in points—a sign of its general improvement in swimming—its total medal production was unchanged. Canada had six medals in 1973, including one gold, and had the same total here but without a gold.

Canada finished with four silver and two bronze this year.

Synchronized swimmers related their medal and points level, winning the same three silver medals they did in the first championships two years ago.

The only other medals came in speed swimming and two of them, a silver and a bronze, were won by Nancy Garapick of Halifax, the youngest member of the Canadian team at 15 years of age.

The women's 4x100 metre relay team won a bronze medal. Canada won its third silver medal Sunday in synchronized swimming when the team finished second behind the U.S. and ahead of Japan.

In speed swimming, however Canada came up empty-handed Sunday night. The best placing of the five individual finalists was seventh and the men's 4x100 medley relay team missed a bronze medal because of a poor breaststroke leg.

The U.S. was the easy winner in 2:40.00 with West Germany second, Britain third on the strength of David Wilkie's tremendous breaststroke showing and Canada fourth.

In the final three events, Jenny Turrall of Australia retained her 800-metre freestyle title, Andy Ocan of the U.S. finished ahead of Vladimir Bure of the Soviet Union in the men's 100-metre freestyle, and Koenelia Ender won her fourth gold medal in the women's 100-metre freestyle.

Anne Jardin of Pointe Claire, Que., was seventh in the 100-metre freestyle, Bob Kastings of Montreal was eighth in the men's freestyle, and Shannon Smith of Vancouver and Elizabeth McKinnon of Thunder Bay, Ont., finished seventh and eighth in the 800-metre freestyle.

The results gave the U.S. 37 medals, 18 of them gold. East Germany finished with 23 medals, including 11 gold, and the Soviet Union had 11 medals, two of them gold.

As expected, it was the U.S. male swimmers who produced the bulk of their points, 178 of the 417 total. That was more than double the total for East Germany's men.

Put the American girls made serious inroads into East Germany's domination of women's swimming.

The American girls, led by Shirley Babashoff and Kathy Heddy compiled 150 points, only 41 less than the East German girls. Despite the performance however, the over-all U.S. point and medal totals were down from Belgrade.

Two years ago the Americans had 44 medals and 425 points. It was the same story with East Germany, which had 280 points this year, and Australia, the country Canada displaced in the standings.

Only Canada and the Soviet Union showed improvement from 1973. The Soviets upped their medal production to 11 and jumped their points to 160 from 113.

While Canada's medal total was unchanged, its points leapfrogged to 150 from 99, the best improvement by any country.

Despite that, however there were disappointments. Swimmer Sandra Schmirler of Vancouver, considered a sure medal winner, failed to swim to her potential and was never a medal threat.

But the biggest disappointment was the divers. Only one of the six divers — Teri York of Vancouver — could even qualify for finals. She made it in both women's events but finished a disappointing sixth in lower and seventh in springboard.

"Teri excelled herself," coach Irene Macdonald said. "But she left to carry the lead for the team. We can't be satisfied with our performance here and must sit down now and take a long, hard look at the entire situation".

"It was a super performance by Rick," Macdonald said. "The unfortunate part is that under the way we select our team we couldn't use him on the tower as well."

Canada sends its two top divers on each board from a national trial and does not waver from that policy.

"A lot of countries don't follow that policy," Macdonald said. "They select who they think are their best divers. The Americans go with the trials but they have the depth to afford to. We don't.

Phil Boggs of the United States and Klaus Dibiasi of Italy defended their springboard and tower championships, Janet Ely of the U.S. won the women's lower and Irina Kalinina of the Soviet Union won the springboard gold medal.

The Soviet Union took third place away from Canada by winning the final event late Sunday night, the water polo gold medal. The Russians beat defending champion Hungary 5-4 to pick up 14 points.

Italy was the bronze medal by tying Cuba 4-4 in a replay Sunday night after winning 6-3 in a protested game in the morning.

Canada's water polo team finished 14th.

Warfield, Csonka, Kiick Get Top Billing with Fans

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The World Football League opened its regular-season schedule Saturday night, but former stars with Miami Dolphins of the national Football League stole the show in an exhibition game.

Paul Warfield caught two passes, both for touchdowns and Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick combined for 188 rushing yards to lead Memphis Southmen to a 147 exhibition victory over Shreveport Steamer before 20,196 fans in Shreveport.

In San Antonio, 12,325 fans were on hand to watch the WFL open the 1975 season, and the Wings responded with a 27-10 win over Charlotte Hornets after trailing 10-8 at halftime.

Saturday's only other game was an exhibition matchup between Jacksonville Express and the Hawaiians, which the Express won 19-7. The only Sunday exhibition game saw Philadelphia Bell whip Portland Thunder 30-21.

In Shreveport, Warfield grabbed scoring passes of 23 and eight yards in leading Memphis to its first exhibition victory of the year.

Warfield's eight yard touchdown catch came with 24 seconds left in the third quarter and broke a 7-7 tie. Memphis had a short 29-yard drive after recovering a Shreveport fumble.

The former Delphin star slanted over the middle for the first touchdown of the game early in the first quarter.

In the WFL regular-season opener in San Antonio, running back Billy Sadler scored two touchdowns to pace the Wings to their victory.

Sadler gained 65 yards rushing and caught three passes for 22 yards in addition to scoring the two touchdowns.

He scored his first TD on a two-yard taunt in the first quarter, and added his second on another two-yard play in the second half.

The Express victory, before a home town crowd of 8,822, saw place-kicker Charles Durkee pass nine yards for the winning touchdown.

Jacksonville got its first scoring opportunity early in the second quarter when linebacker Fred Abbott recovered a fumbled handoff by former Ottawa Rough Rider quarterback Rick Cassata, now the Hawaiians.

On fourth down, Durkee went back to place kick, picked up another fumbled snap, and passed nine yards to running back Don Lamb.

On Sunday, cornerback Mary Pettaway scored two touchdowns on a punt return and an interception as the Bell dumped Portland.

Pettaway took a 49-yard punt at his own nine yard line and sprinted nine yards for the first score. He added his second when he picked off a Don Horn pass with ten seconds remaining in the first half.

A crowd of 3,076 watched the game in Portland.

Caribou Continue Rule Over Quebec

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Caribous continued their home-floor mastery over Montreal Sunday night by defeating the Quebecois 16-9 in one of two National Lacrosse League games.

In another game Sunday, Boston Bolts topped Maryland Arrows 27-17 while on Saturday, Long Island Tomahawks topped the Arrows 18-10.

Divers Disappointing

CALI, Colombia (CP) — It was a disappointing week for Canada's diving team and coach Irene Macdonald of Vancouver said Sunday it was time for a long, hard look at the entire scene.

"We certainly can't be satisfied with what happened here," she said after the final diving event in the world aquatic championships.

Macdonald and her assistant, Don Webb, had said they hoped to have divers in the finals. With the exception of Teri York of Vancouver, that hope was not achieved.

York, clearly Canada's No. 1 diver on both springboard and tower, finished sixth on the tower and seventh on the Canada's only five points.

"Teri excelled herself, but she was left to carry the team for the rest of the team," Macdonald said.

The biggest disappointment was veteran Bev Boys of Point Claire, Que., who failed to make the finals of either women's event and dropped from A group to B group in Sport Canada's rating of Canadian athletes.

Boys' coach, Don Webb, rejected the idea that it might be time for her to consider retiring, saying "Bev is not finished by a long shot.

"But even diving as badly as she did, if she had hit her triple twister on the final dives she would have been in the finals," he said.

The only Canadian man to make progress was Vancouver's Rick Friesen who finished 11th in the springboard and became a super athlete.

"It was a super performance by Rick," Macdonald said. "The unfortunate part is that under the way we select our team we couldn't use him on the tower as well."

Canada sends its two top divers on each board from a national trial and does not waver from that policy.

"A lot of countries don't follow that policy," Macdonald said. "They select who they think are their best divers. The Americans go with the trials but they have the depth to afford to. We don't.

Phil Boggs of the United States and Klaus Dibiasi of Italy defended their springboard and tower championships, Janet Ely of the U.S. won the women's lower and Irina Kalinina of the Soviet Union won the springboard gold medal.

We invented the tools of the trade.

For as long as mankind has had cars, the cars of mankind have had rust.

And nobody ever really found a way of stopping it until Ziebart Rustproofing came along.

A big part of the problem with stopping rust was to find a way of not letting it get started. And this is trickier than you'd think once you realize that rust rots your new car away from the inside out. It starts deep inside your car's body like a cancer. In the unprotected welds, seams and hidden boxed-in metal sections.

And even though you may have the best rustproofing sealant in the world (which we believe we have), it's worthless if you can't completely coat all this hidden inside metal.

We solved this problem by literally inventing special spray tools that had never existed before.

There are nine of them in all and they're a Ziebart exclusive. Nobody else has them. Or can get them. (In fact, they're patented in 33 countries.)

With these unique tools (one of which even sprays backwards) we can reach places inside car bodies that no other tools can reach. And then coat the exposed metal with our sealant that nobody else can match.

Now, how do we know where these places are if we can't see them?

The answer is yet another Ziebart exclusive. In the form of three constantly up-dated Technical Manuals, weighing some 15 pounds and totalling over 2,000 pages.

They contain new car drawings and actual factory specifications showing exactly where all the boxed-in, hidden areas are on over 800 models of cars and trucks. Domestic and foreign.

Rustproofing is probably the most important thing you can do for your new car.

And nobody knows it better than Ziebart.

After all, we not only invented the tools of the trade, we invented the trade.

IN MEMORIAM

GUAY — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. Frances Guay, who passed away July 18, 1972.
Sadly we miss the place she miss her, Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow, Lies within our hearts concealed.
Sadly missed by her husband, Noel, son Bill, daughter Linda, and grandson Brian.

RAPPEL — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away two years ago on July 24, 1972.
He is gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
We, as we do every morning,
Kneel by her bed to say a prayer.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within the hearts concealed.
Lovingly remembered by Mom, Sons Andrew, Bernie, Terry, Douglas and sister Justin.

SAUNDERS — In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away July 26, 1962.
Nine years have passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts her loss will be felt still.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Doris and sons.

SANDERCOCK — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Jack Sandercock, who passed away July 26, 1971.
No one knows our heartache,
Only those who feel as we feel.
Of the grief that we bear in silence,
Of the wounds that time can't heal.
—Always remembered by wife Ethel and family.

COMING EVENTS

The nieces and nephews of Grace and Thomas Greenly, are hoping to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, August 5th, 1972, at a party at the Mitchell Community Centre and would like their friends and relatives to share in the gifts please.

Coal Mine Loses Money

RIVER HEBERT, N.S. (CP) — As coal mines go, the single coal mine here is something of a throwback. It's a money-loser even in these days of high energy costs.

Its 65-man work force digs the coal at an average 1.31 tons a man-shift. The pay works out to about $21.75 a shift.

The 24,000-ton annual production is sold to Nova Scotia Power Corp. at a price far below market.

The River Hebert operation is one of three independently-operated collieries in Nova Scotia which together need about $1.5-million a year in provincial subsidies.

Ron Beaton, the mine operator, is the first to admit the thing wrong with his mine is its lack of mechanization. And, he knows the mine is on its last days with five years left at the most.

Partial mechanization, although costly, would help in the training process for miners who would transfer to any new mine that might be opened in the area. Any new operation, he adds, must be fully mechanized.

It would be a money-maker on its own.

DESIGN R-45
852 Square Feet

This modest bungalow with its unique arrangement and spacious rooms, is a fine example of what can be accomplished by proper planning. It could be a perfect retirement home for couples whose children have grown up and set up their own households.

The separate entry hall leads into a large living room which includes bookcases built on either side of the fireplace, a large picture window and a door to the rear patio. There are good closets and a pleasant and roomy kitchen in the front corner of the house with a door to the basement and service entrance.

Exterior treatment is a combination of stone-veneer and vertical boards but the house could easily be built entirely in brick or stone veneer or in frame.

The design is suitable for any type of heating.

Plans for Design R-45 cost $35 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail. New second millions of two books Home Designs for Canadians are available for $1.50 each plus 25 cents for handling. Book one presents 36 designs for homes up to 1600 sq.ft. for 1 storey and split level, 1800 sq. ft. for one and one half and 2 storey. Book two shows 41 bungalow homes. (Ontario residents add 5 per cent Sales Tax on all purchases). Order book from Home Planning, 40 Jarvis St., Toronto, Ontario.

Scorpion Hitched Ride with Campers

OTTAWA (CP) — Vacationers at a campsite outside Cardinal, about 50 miles south of Ottawa, discovered recently that a camperjaller from Texas had brought along an unexpected hitch-hiker—a scorpion. Reports of the "deadly" visitor's arrival aroused the fears of local citizens and municipal officials.

But an insect specialist with the federal department of agriculture said their fears were probably groundless. He said that scorpions are common in parts of Canada, and like the one brought from the United States, virtually harmless.

"Its sting is similar to a bee sting—you feel a sharp pain when sting and have a bit of swelling but by the next day you wouldn't know it had happened to you," explained Jack Martin, a scorpion expert.

"No one in Canada to my knowledge has ever died from a scorpion sting," said the entomologist who works for the agriculture department here.

Mr. Martin said scorpions are common in the drier parts of British Columbia, especially the Okanagan Valley, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"I've collected hundreds in these areas, and unless you are allergic to the venom, as some people are allergic to bee stings, the scorpion sting is absolutely harmless."

The centuroides scorpion found over the July 1 holiday weekend at a Cardinal campsite was yellowish brown with deep brown stripes on its belly.

Like all scorpions, it had pincer-type claws in its front and a six-segmented tail. The venom is located in a sting in the tail.

"This type of scorpion would not have survived the Canadian winter," Mr. Martin said.

Scorpions belong to the same insect group as spiders and he said many of them are brought into Canada by campers from the United States.

"We now have black-widow spiders in Canada, but their sting is not nearly as poisonous as that of their sisters to the south," he said.

Inshore Fishermen Get Scant Rewards

PETTY HARBOUR, Nfld. (CP) — Why would fishermen continue to battle the seething unconcern of government and uncontrolled depletion of fish stocks for little, if any, return?

What motivation is there each spring for these men to return to their small boats to take the scantiest livelihoods from the sea instead of settling for more lucrative and secure jobs on the land?

There is no discernible reason but the inshore fisherman, often romanticized and called three or four to a boat—60 reap the harvest of a capricious and often untrustworthy sea.

George Chafe, salmon and cod-trap fisherman, is one of this hardy breed, putting out from his home port in Petty Harbour, a small community a few minutes drive and another world away from metropolitan St. John's.

George Chafe has lived in Petty Harbour all his 37 years and has been an inshore fisherman for almost as many. His wife and six children, five boys and a girl, depend on the meagre taking from the sea.

The family lives on the south side of the harbor, along the near barren and rock-studded coast, in a wooden home he built when he got married.

Each fishing day takes him to the waterfront, where his open trap skiff—something like a 20-foot dingby—rides the swells.

"She's a good, strong boat," he says, climbing down to the craft, "the first boat built at the fisheries college and there hasn't been another one so good."

On a cool day recently, skipper Chafe turned over the boat's engine as his fishing partner Richard Clements, 12, untied for the 1 kilometer-or-thereabouts trip out to the mouth of the harbor.

Mr. Chafe had already degreed that the day would offer in weather and catch. Years of experience have told him the fishing "won't be too good."

"It's a fall wind that's blowing and no good for salmon," he said. If it weren't for his visitors, "we'd probably not go out this morning."

Mr. Chafe explained that the cold water temperature deters salmon from swimming the inshore areas where the nets are set.

"The fish won't come in to Petty" skipper Chafe warned, as the boat eased towards No. 1 net. "I doubt if we'll get even one."

The water was clear and the net visible. He was right. This first of three nets he planned to visit was empty. Its mesh seven in all, figured at about $2,500. On this day only five were in the water while two others were being cleaned.

"That's just the problem," Mr. Chafe said. "When the water is cold and clear, the fish can see them (the nets) before they are trapped."

The second net, too, had caught nothing and the boat headed farther along the coast to another.

At the last net, partner Clements spotted the silvery sheen of a struggling salmon, snared by its gills in the mesh.

"Are there any more?" skipper Chafe asked eagerly, but Mr. Clements said no.

The nets checked, the fishermen headed for home.

On the way, Mr. Chafe explained that two of his nets being cleaned would have to be re-set in the morning. Then two others would be hauled and cleaned by hand.

"That's a tough job and I don't like it at all, but the nets have to be cleaned when they are in cold water."

The cold, the tough work and the poor catch are part of the reason Mr. Chafe calls salmon fishing "a bad" because there is "just no money in it."

"No matter how much you catch, there's not enough to break even."

Salmon prices have been good, ranging as high as $2 a pound but lit offset by fishing costs—$2,400 for the skiff, $2,800 for the motor, nets $3,800 and cod traps at $4,500.

Skipper Chafe said an inshore fisherman needs to gross up to $10,000 to make the fishery pay but those at Petty Harbour were lucky to hit the $5,000 mark.

"I wouldn't encourage my sons to spend a career on it now," he said.

Spittoons Preferred

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — The Non-Smokers Association of Canada has shifted its campaign emphasis from health hazards to fire hazards in an attempt to reach more people, says president Robert Ludwig.

And that's why Mr. Ludwig is pushing for the revival of chewing tobacco and snuff and for the return of the spittoon to hotel lobbies and restaurants.

"We can't lose on this campaign because smokers are killing themselves off," the president of the organization which claims 20,000 members said in an interview. "They either die of lung cancer or burn themselves up in bed."

A spot of juicy snooze is better than a blazing mattress, he said. Mr. Ludwig claims that chewing tobacco is safer and healthier than smoking. It may seem messier, but it doesn't burn the drapes and ceiling, burn holes in tables, pollute the air or set fire to the house.

Snooze is made of ground tobacco-leaf stems bound with alcohol and molasses. It does have its drawbacks, though. A cuff of snooze, which is lodged between the lower lip and teeth and kept there for over the hour or so, creates a permanent bulge in the lip. It also stains the teeth black.

He also proposed a buddy system, teaming up cigarette smokers with tobacco chewers to cut the fire hazard.

Mr. Ludwig suggested that tobacco manufacturers be required by law to put five cents for every pack of cigarettes sold into a trust fund to pay for fire-damage losses.

Bicentennial Big on U.S. Networks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In case people missed anything during the first 200 years of the United States' existence, you should stay tuned to your television set. It's all coming back.

The founding fathers, the presidents, the 50 states, women, minorities, children, science, the Civil War, sports, humor, inventions, life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness—you name the subject and the three American networks have a bicentennial angle on it.

And not just for prime-time specials, either. There will be plenty of bicentennial shows for children ⅔ for day-time viewers and for late night insomniacs.

NBC alone is producing more than 165 hours of bicentennial-related programs, and the five stations it owns are developing an additional 70 hours.

ABC also has announced massive bicentennial production plans, and CBS is expected to follow suit soon.

There have been a lot of bicentennial-related programs already. The informative and entertaining bicentennial Minutes have been running nightly on CBS since last July 4 and will continue through July 4, 1976.

CBS has broadcast a series of specials on Benjamin Franklin, and NBC has done the same with Abraham Lincoln.

"And I think we will," he added, "because the projects are being spaced out over 18 months. I suspect that when you'll feel it the most is July 4, 1976.

"I think on that day people may think they can't turn anywhere on their dial without getting Bicentennial."

Certainly you won't be able to turn to NBC for relief on that day. It plans unprecedented, 24-hour coverage of special events commemorating America's 200th birthday.

Entertainment segments and portions of sports contests will be interspersed with live coverage from around the country, running from midnight to midnight.

Until then, however, TV executives say they think the bicentennial programs will be diversified enough and scheduled at sufficient intervals to avoid glutting the audience.

"I think the spacing will be enough so it won't seem like we're stuffing it down your throat," says Lower.

Every Friday until Independence Day next year, NBC's Tomorrow show will address itself to an in-depth look at one of the states, plus the cities of Washington and Philadelphia. One other topic still is to be chosen.

The first instalment will deal with the nation's capital. After that, the 50 states will be saluted, generally in reverse order of their admission to the Union, beginning with Hawaii and concluding with each of the 13 original colonies.

Why are the networks hitting the bicentennial theme so hard?

"We see it as an opportunity to re-examine the American dream," offered James E. Duffy, president of ABC Television.

"I think it's something we need right now—something lasting us together after recent problems in Washington and with the economy," said Robert T. Howard, NBC's president of NBC television.

But will today's problems and the country's shortcomings of years past be glossed over in a flurry of glorifying the United States?

"A lot of it will be flag waving," admitted Howard, "but a lot of it will not be.

Granulated Lids On Eyes Annoying

By G. C. Thosleson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosleson: Will you please explain granulated eyelids and their cause? The eye doctor told me this is what I have. I was given eyedrops, and I have not noticed any relief.

The doctor assured me this was not serious, but if is so irritating. Can you suggest anything?Mrs. C.A.F.

Granulated eyelids are the result of an eye irritation, the granulation being tiny scars which have formed over lumpiness or particle formation from a discharge. The initial cause might have been a chronic infection of the lids, an allergy, or a physical irritation from things such as dust particles.

An allergy can cause excessive secretion, it can even result from an irritant used in cosmetics, eyelash darkener being a common offender. A skin disorder affecting the scalp (dandruff) is an common cause also involve the eyelids and lead to eventual granulation. This would be a form of conjunctivitis.

A condition called trachoma is a more serious, chronic disease of the eyelids—quite widespread in parts of the world where sanitation facilities are not as complete as they are in most western countries. It is thought to be virus-caused.

If you suddenly developed eye lids can progress and become serious problems.

Treatment of the case of your condition can take some time before relief is noticed.

Dear Dr. Thosleson: My son has been bedwetting since he was out of diapers. He is now seven years old. We have tried getting him to the bathroom before we go to bed, but that doesn't help.

Recently we took him to a urologist, who suggested a cystoscopy and then a meatotomy. The doctor suggested the cystoscopy because my husband had had a kidney removed. If my son had an internal disorder, wouldn't it show in a urine specimen or in a blood test? Can you tell me something about a meatotomy? Can it stop bedwetting?—Mrs. E.B.

A thorough investigation of the urinary tract is usually in order in cases of persistent enuresis (bedwetting). A cystoscopy is a bladder examination by means of a cystoscope, a hollow metal tube inserted via the urethra.

A meatotomy (me-a-TOT-o-me) is a minor procedure to enlarge the opening of the penis. The need for this would be evident on visual examination. If the opening is too small or imperfect, it can be corrected surgically. Yes, it could stop bedwetting if that is the cause.

As to your other question, a urine test might give a clue to an internal disorder, but would not pinpoint it as would a cystoscopy. A blood test might detect an internal disorder, too, but would be even less valuable in locating the problem.

An allergy to certain foods could be a factor in his problem. You should feel lucky that your doctor has detected the possibility of a physical defect that might be causing his problem. Otherwise, the search for a cause could be long and painstaking and, as in too many cases, fruitless.

Dear Dr. Thosleson: What happens to the female egg after the tubes have been tied? Do they stay in the ovaries?—R.J.L.

A woman continues to ovulate after tubal ligation. But since the egg cannot pass into the tubes, it disintegrates and is absorbed by the body.

Dear Dr. Thosleson: What is the cause of hives? I have tried about everything my friends suggest to get rid of them. I've had them for over a month now, and the itching is just driving me crazy. Can you please help me?—E.S.

The technical name for it is urticaria, and it is essentially a sensitivity to something either taken by mouth or inhaled in, or contacted physically by the skin. The cause of the symptoms, the itching and the "wheals," is thought to be a release of histamine in the body in response to the allergen, whatever it might be. And it could be anything from penicillin and other drugs to shellfish or other foods such as wheat or eggs. Aspirin is a common offender.

So it is important to determine the cause.

In massive cases, the joints can become involved to a degree where the patient may have to be hospitalized. Fortunately, most cases do not reach this stage of seriousness. But I have known cases so violent, that symptoms such as sudden and transient puffing of the eyes, ears, fingers, or other body parts occur with regularity before the condition is brought under control.

I am afraid your friends are not going to be of much help to you. You don't mention seeing a specialist, and that is quite logical, if carefully chosen. Allergists have been helpful in relieving the condition. In severe cases, corticosteroids may be needed.

Otherwise, toxins (histamine, for example) can help ease symptoms. An old remedy, which I suspect is not being used much today because of the new drug assaults, is oatmeal. The hives victim simply placed some oatmeal in a cheesecloth bag and dipped it into warm water, then dabbed the affected area of the body with it, allowing it to dry on. Oatmeal may be added to the bath water, also.

I have reported to mention another possibility with hives that can cause or worsen attacks—the emotions. Some cases have been traceable to periods of great emotional stress—change of job, money crises, etc. This can never be discounted.

Dear Dr. Thosleson: Can you tell me about Xenon disease? I cannot find any reference to it in the literature I have. Is it related to ulcerated intestines? My son, 38, has it.—Mrs. E.

You have the incorrect spelling of it. Crohn's is why you could not find your reference. This is a chronic disease, also called regional ileitis, or regional enteritis. It differs from other intestinal disorders of this type because the cause cannot be determined. The name refer to the location in the bowel.

It most commonly affects the lower small intestine, leading to hardening, a thickening and sometimes an ulceration in the bowel lining. It can cause an in the prime age group for this to occur. In initial attacks it is sometimes mistaken for appendicitis, since the pain occurs usually in the lower right section of the abdomen. The diagnosis of Crohn's can be verified by x-rays or by tracing the progress of a barium-labeled meal through the intestines.

Sufferers report symptoms of alternating diarrhea and constipation, loss of appetite. Anemia can be a complication in the chronic progresses, especially in severe cases of ulcerations.

The outcome is as uncertain as the cause. Some patients having initial symptoms often need surgery may be free years afterwards.

Bed rest (treatment is essential. Long (up to three months) periods of complete rest is helpful, and a diet of low-residue foods that place the least possible work load on the bowel is usually required. If an obstruction NOTE FOR MRS. G.H.M.: Excocurs within the bowel, then by-pass surgery may be necessive sexual desires such as you report are based on emotional factors, and are not symptoms of Dr. Jekyll's the emotional problem that must be treated.

Paradise Is Persian

TEHRAN (AP) — In 500 B.C. Xenophon, the writer-soldier, visited the gardens of a Persian king. He was so impressed by the multitude of flowers and the lush greenery he took the Persian word for walled garden—firdaus—back to Greece and the word came out as paradise. Jim: "How about some articles on the Blackwood convention."

Oswald: "In its original and simplest form as invented by Easley Blackwood over 40 years ago, it provides that a bid of four notrump demands that partner respond to show aces. Five clubs shows none, five diamonds one, five hearts two five spades three and fivenotrump four aces and six notrump all four."

Jim: "In the last 20 years the five-club response shows zero or four aces and five notrump is not used. It is assumed that a player can tell whether his partner holds four or not."

Oswald: "North has a perfect opening opening. He plans to bid seven if South shows three aces, six if he shows two and five if South shows one."

Jim: "Suppose he shows no ace?"

Oswald: "North would get a bad luck for him."

The correct rebid is a raise to two spades. You only have three aspects, but your alternate bids are all unsatisfactory. If your partner holds four spades and a bad hand two spades should be a reasonable contract. If he has a good hand and only four spades he will probably find some other bid than a jump to the spade game.

In particular you should avoid a one notrump rebid with that worthless doubleton in hearts.

Lawyer Can't Find His Client

VANCOUCER (CP) — Ian Donald, lawyer for Andry Bruce, 28, the prisoner injured last June during an incident at the British Columbia penitentiary, said Sunday he could not discover where his client was being held.

Mr. Donald said that without instructions from his client, he cannot say whether Bruce will testify before the Parrts commission investigating the five hour seige at the penitentiary. Classification officer Harry Steinhauer was shot and killed when armed guards rushed the vault where 15 hostages were held by three knife-wielding prisoners.

Bruce, who was critically wounded when Miss Steinhauer was shot, was holding a knife at her throat when the squad rushed in.

Mr. Donald said he has been unable to find out where the Canadian Penitentiary Service is holding Bruce, who was discharged from hospital during the weekend. He also said he is unable to receive security clearance necessary to meet with his client.

Commission counsel John Rowan had asked if the three prisoners would testify before the three member commission headed by B.C. Chief Justice John Farris.

Lawyers for Claire Wilson, 26, and Dwight Lucas, 30, have said the two prisoners will testify only if the commission provides them with in-camera testimony.

Mr. Justice Farris has told the inquiry the identity of the man who killed Miss Steinhauer would remain a mystery because used by the six guards who rushed into the vault were mixed up after wards.

He said he and the commissioners Henry Pope and Jack Lynch think a penitentiary "reservoir, Albert Hollinger, 27, liberately mixed up the guts in an effort to hide the identity of the man who killed Miss Steinhauer.

Union Chief's Right To Criticize at Issue

OTTAWA (CP) The Public Service Alliance, representing unionized union president Arthur Stewart, argued today that union officials have the lawful right to criticize tne departments in which they are employed.

In a submission to the public service staff relations board, the alliance says the Public Service Staff Relations Act vested union officers with the right to express views publicly on conditions of employment which might adversely affect employee morale and general well-being.

Mr. Stewart, president of the 8,000-member supply and services component of the alliance, was suspended for three months from his job after writing an article critical of the department for the Ottawa Citizen.

Jean-Pierre Goyer, sc. ty minister, and Prime Minister Trudeau have both said Mr. Stewart exceeded his rights in criticizing the department.

Mr. Stewart would lose $6,500 in pay if the suspension is upheld. The union wants reinstatement of Mr. Stewart in his position with pay retroactive to June 24.

The alliance said if the president of a union cannot represent the membership, including making criticisms of his department, collective bargaining laws passed by Parliament will be frustrated.

J. M. DesRoches, deputy supply minister, who ordered the suspension, was guilty of an indiscretion, his previous record had been unblemished and he should have been subject to only a mild oral or written reprimand.

Mr. DesRoches should, in future, be restricted from acting and replaced by " someone competent to administer disciplinc in a rational manner".

Trade union officers outside government had the right to express their views and similar rights must extend to public service union leaders, the alliance submission said.

Spacemen Isolated

HONOLULU (AP) — The three Apollo astronauts, their lungs still congested from inhaling fumes in their spacecraft, face a 10-day period of seclusion here because they are vulnerable to infections.

Doctors said Sunday they plan to release Thomas Stafford, Donald Slayton and Vance Brand from the Tripler army hospital Tuesday, then place them in "semi-isolation." Their wives were to fly here from the Houston area.

Mishap Kills Five

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont (CP) — Five persons were killed Sunday in a head-on collision between two vehicles on the Trans-Canada Highway 35 miles north of here.

Police released the name of only one of the dead—Patrick Unwin, 28, of Lunenburg, N.S.

The other four were reported to be members of one family from the Winnipeg area.

Jailed for Beef

ROME (Reuter) — A Rome policeman has been taken into custody for complaining against his low pay and long working hours, police sources said Saturday. They said Carmelo Ricci was voicing his complaints to a friend at a restaurant when he was arrested by another diner—a police captain in plain clothes. No formal charges have been filed.

Annoyed

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Soviet immigrant shot three persons dead Sunday and killed himself after he failed a driving test, police said. Authorities said Israel Schnitzer, 40, killed two driving instructors and a policeman at a car registration office in the Mediterranean port city of Ashkelon, then shot him self.

Hijacking Fails

TOKYO (Reuter) — Police arrested Hidekazu Oshima, 17, aboard a Japanese All-Nippon Airways Tristar today after a hijack attempt on a flight from Tokyo to Sapporo in northern Japan.

Police boarded the plane, carrying 275 passengers and a crew of 11, after it landed at Haneda International Airport here and arrested the youth.

Police said no one was hurt.

Captain Takaaki Kimura reported the hijacking in mid-flight and the plane returned to Tokyo.

Trudeau Expected to Hold Talks With Breshnev on Fish

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is expected to hold bilateral discussions with Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev during the European security summit conference this week in Helsinki, Finland.

Government officials say Mr. Trudeau is one of four or five leaders whom the Communist leader has expressed interest in meeting during the Wednesday-to-Friday conference.

That was before Canada closed its East Coast ports to the Soviet fishing fleet last week and the issue is certain to be raised in any talks between the two leaders.

The prime minister leaves for Helsinki on Tuesday, ahead of scheduled foreign trip this year. He speaks on the first day of the conference Wednesday and is expected to be a guest of the Finnish government at the flag-raising home Sunday afternoon.

The conference has been billed as the greatest political extravaganza in Europe this century, bringing together 35 heads of state in one conference for the purpose of a large document designed to remove tensions, increase security and extend co-operation in Europe.

The document is a set of non-binding principles worked out in two years of negotiations—talks in which Canada took an active part.

Each signing state must respect "each other's right freely to choose and develop its political, social, economic and cultural systems as well as its right to determine its laws and regulations."

The states also agree not to use force against each other, to regard as inviolable all frontiers, to respect each other's territory, to respect religion or belief," and to respect the rights of minorities.

Critics of the document say it means acceptance of the status quo in Eastern Europe, including the end of calls for self-determination by the people of so-called captive states.

However, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said in an interview Friday that the document "does not confirm as immutable the Soviet hegemony in Eastern Europe." Peaceful change was possible.

James Bay Power Seen By 1980

CAMP LG2, JAMES BAY, Que. (CP) — "I'm very confident we're going to respect the timetable, and that by autumn, 1980, the LG2 powerhouse will begin to produce electricity," says Robert Boyd, president of the James Bay Energy Corp. (JBEC).

Mr. Boyd was addressing 50 reporters as they made their way by plane from Montreal for a one-day tour last week of the largest of four dam sites of the James Bay hydroelectric project on the La Grande River.

From the technical point of view, he noted, there remained several problems, but none of them appear unremovable.

"You can't build a project worth several billion dollars without problems," he said pointing out that the LG2 dam will be the largest in the world when completed.

Mr. Boyd said claims that 132,000 square miles of Quebec land mass of the James Bay region—are going to be permanently inundated by artificial lakes created by the dams are inaccurate.

Only 10 per cent of that figure now is under water, and by the time the project is completed the figure will reach no more than 15 per cent.

At present, some 5,500 workers are working on the project—2,300 at LG2, 300 at the Duncan River site, 1,200 in administration jobs and 100 in management position. By 1978 when work reaches a peak, more tan 12,000 persons will be employed on the project.

Since the agreement last fall between the Quebec government and native people in the region, Quebec Indians have dropped their opposition to the project, said Mr. Boyd. Between 150 and 200 natives of the 8,200 in the region are employed on the project.

Quebec Cannot Trust Supreme Court . . . 'L'Allier

DANVILLE, Que. (CP) — The continuing dispute between Ottawa and Quebec over jurisdiction in the communications field may force Quebecers to make some tough decisions regarding their future, a Quebec cabinet minister said during the weekend.

Communications Minister Jean Paul L'Allier told a young Liberals' workshop that Quebec cannot trust the Supreme Court of Canada to render an impartial judgment on any controversy involving Quebec.

"We can have our doubts about the impartiality of the Supreme Court" because its justices are appointed by the federal government and are known for their strong federalist leanings.

Quebec's demands in the communications field were rejected out-of-hand at a federal-provincial conference two weeks ago by federal Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier.

Last week John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) demanded assurances from Prime Minister Trudeau that he would speak out for self-determination and human rights at the summit conference. Mr. Diefenbaker said he was expressing the concerns of hundreds of thousands of Canadians of Lithuanian, Estonian, Latvian and Ukranian descent.

On Sunday a spokesman for groups representing these people said there will be a 72-hour vigil in Toronto to protest Canadian signing of the document.

MPs Return to Their Desks As Gas Tax Debate Drags On

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons debate continued today on the 16-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax and could drift into August before the bill is passed and the House adjourns for a summer recess.

Impatient members of Parliament had expected to recess last Friday until Oct. 14.

However, an uproar over allegations that John Reid (Kenora-Rainy River), parliamentary secretary to Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, had leaked budget secrets to businessmen last fall was a delaying factor. Mr. Reid denied the allegations.

Still, the House voted to refer the matter to a parliamentary committee for investigation and debate of the issue took much of the time alloted for the gas tax debate.

Meanwhile, New Democrats indicated they will try to have proposed tax rebates broadened to include not only doctors and lawyers on duty but also such workers as plumbers and electricians who need their cars for their jobs.

The bill is undergoing clause-by-clause study and votes on the individual clauses are held.

Wm. Stewart Ending Long Political Career

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — William Stewart, Ontario agriculture minister, said Sunday that he is retiring from provincial politics, ending a career that has spanned 18 years in the legislature.

Mr. Stewart, 60, said in an interview that his resignation will become effective when Premier William Davis announces the placement or when an election is called.

The minister recently left hospital and is recuperating at home following a June 12 heart attack.

"I'm still in daily touch with the office from my home," said Mr. Stewart. "But I won't be returning to Toronto without my doctor's permission and I don't expect that for several weeks yet."

Before his heart attack, he was named vice-chairman of the Progressive Conservative party's re-election committee, a post he said he hopes to continue.

Pact Is Broad

Europe Gets Guidelines

HELSINKI (Reuter) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, U.S. President Ford and heads of 33 other governments assemble here today for the biggest summit conference held in Europe.

The leaders of all European states, except China's ally, Albania, plus the United States and Canada, begin a three-day summit meeting Wednesday to sign a 30,000-word declaration.

The declaration will in effect consecrate a post-war status quo and enshrine the inviolability of frontiers in Europe, a 30-year-old objective of the Soviet Union.

But the Western side has insisted—and Moscow has accepted—that the inviolability of frontiers does not rule out the possibility of changing borders by peaceful means.

The West also has wrung from Moscow concessions from the Soviet side on greater human contacts, travel and the flow of information across the East-West dividing line in Europe.

The documents to be signed are divided into four sections.

The first contains a list of the principles relating to security, including confidence-building measures in Europe.

The principles cover sovereign equality, refraining from the threat or use of force, non-intervention in international affairs and the peaceful settlement of disputes.

But they do not affect the obligations such as the post-war rights and responsibilities in Berlin of the Big Four powers—the U.S., Britain, France, and the Soviet Union.

The second section calls for the promotion of economic, scientific, technological and environmental contacts among the signatory states.

The third section, to which the West attaches the greatest importance, deals with human contacts.

The participating states have agreed on proposals for meetings between members of families divided by frontiers, marriage between people from different states, freer travel for personal or professional reasons and more opportunities for sports meets.

It also calls for improved circulation of foreign newspapers and other publications and of film, radio and television material and better working conditions for foreign correspondents.

The fourth section provides for a Belgrade conference in 1977 to review the way the accords have been working.

In the policy speeches which begin Wednesday, Western leaders are expected to say that the test of Soviet intentions to honor the agreements, which are not legally binding, will be whether the Warsaw pact countries now are willing to break the deadlock in the Vienna talks with NATO states on mutual force reductions in central Europe.

As often happens at conferences of this type, government leaders will hold bilateral meetings on a host of other regional and world issues, such as the Middle East and Cyprus.

The U.S. is expected to discuss ways of integrating its economic policies with European Common Market countries.

The future of democracy in Portugal also is likely to figure in the talks. Portugal's Common Market countries have said they will not give economic development aid to Portugal, now siding further to the left, unless there is progress toward "pluralistic democracy."

Prime Minister Trudeau may discuss with Brezhnev the closing of Canadian ports Sunday to Soviet fishing trawlers and with various leaders the pressures on him to extend Canada's offshore limit to 200 miles from 12 miles to conserve the fisheries.

Turks Take Over All of U.S. Bases

ANKARA (AP) — Turkish commanders took control of all United States intelligence gathering bases in Turkey today, the general staff announced.

Its statement said operations were suspended on all the common defence installations in Turkey except the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) functions of the strategic airbase at Incirlik in the southeast.

"Turkish commanders are in full control of all combat and intelligence gathering systems on the installations," the statement said.

Meanwhile, in Brussels, Turkey was going before North Atlantic Council to ask whether its other NATO allies would supply arms that had come from the U.S. before congress imposed an embargo after Turkey invaded Cyprus. No immediate decision was anticipated.

The Turkish foreign ministry said 29 more bases were taken over today, bringing the total to 25 occupied U.S. installations.

However, the U.S. state department said the Turkish government has not demanded removal of U.S. personnel.

The ministry said Turkish military commanders moved Monday into a major U.S. base at Karamursel southeast of Istanbul, radar stations at Sinop and Pirinlcik, two smaller installations at Belbasi near Ankara and Karagburun near the Black Sea coast.

"Turkish sentries controlled traffic moving in and out of the bases.

The foreign ministry said Turkish commanders would work with the senior U.S. officer at each base.

The Turkish customs ministry said the government has stopped importing fuel for the two squadrons of Phantom jets stationed at Incirlik.

The Turkish actions are in reprisal for the U.S. House of Representatives' vote against lifting an arms embargo on Turkey. The embargo was imposed after Turkish troops invaded Cyprus.

Ford Pays Tribute To Auschwitz Dead

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — His head bowed in silent prayer, President Ford placed a wreath today at an international monument marking the site of Nazi Germany's Auschwitz gas chambers where millions died in the Second World War.

Accompanied by Polish Communist party leader Edward Gierek, Ford flew from Krakow airport to the Auschwitz camp by helicopter for the brief ceremony that preceded a presidential speech in Krakow's market square.

Next on his schedule was the 35-country security conference in Helsinki.

Thousands of people from this area that produced many Polish-Americans streamed into the Old Square from all directions to see the second U.S. president to visit this country. Former president Richard Nixon visited Poland in 1972.

Ford's 27-hour visit to Poland was long on ceremonies, short of substance. It did produce a statement in which Ford and Polish Communist Party leader Gierek expressed a "will to achieve progress" in stalled Vienna negotiations aimed at mutual arms reductions in central Europe.

This was considered significant in that the Communist bloc countries have played down the Vienna talks while nuptiner hard for an on binding European security agreement that will be signed in Helsinki this week by Ford, Gierek, Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and leaders of 32 other governments.

Richard Davies, U.S. ambassador to Poland, told reporters "There wasn't an opportunity to break new ground" during Ford's visit.

He attributed this to the successful negotiation of a series of agreements announced during a Ford-Gierek meeting in Washington last October.

In stopping at the Auschwitz camp, Ford was looking back to a time when the U.S. and Poland were Second World War allies fighting Hitler's Germany.

An estimated four million persons, most of them Jews who were blood or spiritual kin of many Americans, were exterminated at Auschwitz through gassing, starvation, beatings and torture.

Hoax Falls, Bankers Told Wives in Danger

TORONTO (CP) — Seven bank managers received telephone calls at work Monday demanding large sums of money in exchange for the safety of their wives, police said today.

Three managers knew the alleged kidnapping was a "hoax" and called police immediately because they were bachelors, police said.

The calls apparently came from the same man, police said. Money demanded ranged from $8,000 to $15,000 and the arrangements for payment of the money were vague, such as: "Drop the money in the nearest trash can."

Police said investigation showed there had been no personal contact made with the wives of any of the married bank managers and no money ever left the banks.

Detroit Riots Follow Slaying

DETROIT (AP) — A black teen-ager who was shot by a white bartender, touching off violence in a small section of west Detroit, died in hospital early today, police reported.

The victim, Olie Wynn, 18, was shot Monday night by a bar owner who said he found the youth tampering with his car.

The shooting resulted in a night of violence between police hurling tear-gas at hundreds of rock-throwing youth blacks who roamed through the Livernois-Fenkell area.

Police said the trouble had subsided by early this morning.

Police said between 500 and 700 officers were involved in the disturbance and 36 persons were arrested, but for malicious destruction of property.

Wynn, admitted to Mount Carmel Mercy Hospital after the shooting, died of head wounds.

Officer Don Nash, a police department spokesman, said Wynn had a record of "extensive police contacts" but no criminal record.

Police said the bar owner, Andrew Chinarian, 29, told them he shot Wynn when he found him tampering with Chinarian's car. Chinarian was not charged.

After the shooting crowds began gathering near Bob Bellton's Bar, which is owned by Chinarian.

Some youths in the crowd tossed fire bombs.

On one block, six blacks stood guard inside a black-owned discount store, cradling small semi-automatic weapons.

A policeman was treated in hospital after being hit in the forehead with a brick.

Several police cars were set on fire, one burning to the pavement while about 100 persons stood and cheered.

Pork Prices To Stay High

TORONTO (CP) — Pork prices have increased about 20 per cent during the last 12 months to their highest level in history, an industry spokesman said Tuesday.

And the price of bacon, ham, chops, roasts and other pork products is expected to remain high for at least another year because of a continent-wide shortage of hogs, says Keith Leckie, general manager of the Meat Packers Council.

In a little more than a year, the price paid producers for a carcass doubled to a record $81.50 a hundredweight from $40.25.

Nigerian Military Coup Upsets Absent Gowon

LAGOS (Reuter) — Gen. Yakubu Gowon, Nigeria's head of state, was ousted from power during his absence from Lagos today in a takeover proclaimed by the commander of his own elite Guards Brigade.

Col. Nassran Garba, 32, a British-trained Guards commander, announced over Lagos radio that Gowon had ceased to be head of state and leader of the armed forces.

Gowon, 40, is in Kampala attending the summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity.

The radio said the coup was bloodless and warned people to be law-abiding, saying anyone caught disturbing public order would be "summarily dealt with."

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was announced and all airports and borders were closed and guarded by troops.

Gowon, 40, came to power by a bloody army mutiny in 1966.

He governed during 2½ years of bloody civil war before peace came to Nigeria in 1970 and established a reputation as an able administrator in war and peace.

Gowon, a member of one of Nigeria's minority tribes, has tried to bring about tribal harmony and the unification of a country of 55 million people—in terms of population, the largest on the African continent.

There have been constant appeals for restoration of civilian government in Nigeria.

The president of Nigeria's United Labor Congress called on Gowon on July 22 to hand over power to civilians by the end of 1976.

Labor leader Alhaji Yunusa Danguru said Nigeria needed a change of government after 10 years of military rule.

Gowon has set 1976 as the target year for a return to civilian rule.

In a speech marking the 10th anniversary of independence from British rule in October, 1970, he said his military government would try to complete its program earlier if possible.

But in October, 1974, Gowon abandoned the 1976 target, saying a precipitate withdrawal would throw the country back into confusion.

He said that the ban on political activities, due to be lifted at that time, would remain in force. He set no new date for lifting the ban.

Nigeria is black Africa's wealthiest country. It earns an estimated $24 million a day from oil sales.

Hydro Corridor Analysis Is Nearly Completed

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

"Final analysis" of the proposed high voltage power transmission line to run from the Lennox generating station to the Oshawa area will be complete in September and ready for government presentation, a spokesman for the secretariat of resources development said Monday.

Bill Dick, spokesman for the secretariat, said during an interview with The Intelligencer Monday, a special task force is at present considering the power corridor and should be making some recommendations by mid-September.

The power corridor has been the subject of Ontario Hydro studies and more recently the responsibility of the Solandt Commission. Following a number of public meetings along the proposed corridor, Dr. Omand Solandt reported his findings to the resources development secretariat.

"There has not been as much concern as we might have expected," said Mr. Dick, "though, we have had some complaints.

"We are now in the process of evaluating the commission's findings and the public input," said Mr. Dick.

If the recommended power route is taken, it will mean the loss of 750 acres of agricultural land in Sidney and Thurlow Townships.

Last January, Hastings County Federation of Agriculture president Ivan Mayhooke at a Sidney public meeting saying most of the food in Ontario is grown in a narrow strip along the lakes, a strip already shared with industry and cities.

"Little has been done about conserving farm land," he said.

The hydro corridor is designed to be 625 feet wide and will pass through Tyendinaga Township, and Sidney and Thurlow Townships, four miles north of Belleville.

Once the findings are complete they will be delivered to secretariat head Allan Grossman and from there will be sent for government approval, the government spokesmen said.

Police Offer Hints for Safe Trailer Towing

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The use of trailers for sport and vacation enjoyment is steadily increasing this summer, says Constable Don Joyce, community services officer for Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville.

And he offers some hints to promote enjoyable and safe operation of a trailer.

Starting — "Accelerate carefully. Take it slowly and easily."

Slowing and Stopping — "A sudden stop can jackknife your trailer or shift your load, so keep a greater distance than normal . . . and the car ahead . . . is of the fast lanes and maintain a speed that makes sudden stops and slow-ups unnecessary."

Taking Curves — "Stay close to the middle of your lane."

Backing — "Back very slowly. Turn wheel slightly, then straighten. Steer by a series of short turns."

Passing — "When towing a trailer, you need much more fast as without it. Then too, your car plus trailer is much longer. Before you pass, make sure there's enough time and room for the manoeuvre.

"When you have passed, allow more room before you move back to your lane. Don't cut in and swerve . . . this can make your trailer swing and sway."

Being Passed — "Help other drivers pass you when necessary. If you're holding up a line of traffic, the right thing to do is to pull off and let them pass."

"If a bus, van or transport passes you, air pressure may push the rear of your trailer to the right. Almost instantly, this pressure will push the front of your trailer to the rear of your car, ask your dealer to supply you with a load equalizer trailer hitch."

Hitch — "Use a good trailer hitch. The hitch-ball should be installed so that when the trailer is attached and tightened, it rides on a horizontal plane with no tilting. If the front of your trailer is rear of your car, ask your dealer to supply you with a load equalizer trailer hitch."

"Be sure your trailer hitch is properly bolted to the car frame, has the correct coupling and has sturdy safety chains."

Loyalist Loan Program Open to Students

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

The Loyalist College Student Loan Program will be in operation again for the third consecutive year.

The program was set up to help "needy full-time students" reports the Loyalist Calendar.

The Director of Finance, Glyn Harry says the system is for "emergency loans" and that it acts as a supplement to the Ontario Student Loan system.

"The program was not set up as a criticism of the present system but to fill the gaps missed," says Mr. Harry.

Last year the Nursing Assistant Program was not considered to be a post-secondary course which is one of the requirements to receive a loan from the government program, says Mr. Harry. Because of this situation, most of the applications were from this course.

Mr. Harry says, "This has been changed to fix the problem."

The loans are based upon academic standings, the need and the credit rating of the student, says Mr. Harry.

There is also a counselling service available to the students.

Before a loan is approved, the applications are examined by a committee made-up of the Director of Finance, the Director of Student Services and the Student Awards Officer.

The $22,000 fund is used as a last resort, mainly for emergency cash, says Mr. Harry.

"The loans are usually pretty low," says Mr. Harry.

Loan Program Again

At the last board meeting, it was announced there was currently $12,200 out as loans, states Mr. Harry.

Mr. Harry noted that no current loans have been defaulted.

The loans approved are paid back by the same method as the Canada Student Loans, says the director.

"The student has five months after he or she graduates to pay back the loan without interest. After that time, the interest rate will be the going rate at the time," says Mr. Harry.

Mr. Harry reports that of the 40 applications received, 35 were approved with the remaining being kept.

"The system is warranted. It provides an opportunity for the student to finish his education," says Mr. Harry.

Police Attend Game

City police were called to the Dick Ellis Rink here for the second time this year in connection with violence during a minor lacrosse game Sunday.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said today he had received second about 1 p.m. when an intoxicated visitor from Wellington allegated a fight with Joe Weymark, coach of the Belleville bantam team.

He said a youth joined in the struggle to assist Weymark and was hit in the face by the visiting fan. Finally, a rink attendant stepped in to restore order.

Chief Crosbie said by the time police officers arrived, the Whitby man had left the rink and he has not been found or identified. Two officers remained at the rink for about two hours in case of further trouble.

The embroiled the fight had nothing to do with the actual play of the game and did not involve spectators.

On June 2, a donnybrook at the end of an exhibition lacrosse game at the rink resulted in a broken ankle for a Belleville youth and an assault causing bodily harm charge laid by police against a Trenton youth.

Musicians Past Tests

Ten people have passed examinations administered in Belleville by the Canadian Accordian Teachers' Association.

The names are in order of merit: Grade IV, first class honors, Dick Falwaczny and Faith Cummings; honors, Stephen Ashbury; Grade V; first class honors, Bruce Wright, and Debbie Petrichy; honors, Grade School; Grade VI; honors, Joyce Kuger. Grade VII, first class honors: Carl Huffman and Nancy Grade VIII; honors, Louise Beninger.

Stolen Goods

The city police youth bureau is investigating a group of juveniles following the recovery of a quantity of goods reported stolen during the last several days from a storage shed in the rear of the Reading 'N Greeting Shop at 292 Front St.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said today the goods included lightners, pent, hair trimmers, postcards, playing cards and sunglasses.

He said some of the articles were discovered underneath a boat situated in the rear of Murray's FoodMart on Front St. and others were found at the home of the juveniles.

Police were tipped by a man whose children had observed some of the juveniles going under the boat. Chief Crosbie said the juveniles (juveniles) are pretty young kids so charges may or may not be laid.

"He's Really Hurt!"

Injury awards of $100,000 and more in auto or sports accidents are becoming more frequent. Both auto liability and personal liability insurance should be increased to meet the greater risk of high damage awards.

REAL ESTATE:
THE RIGHT PRICE
Ed. McKinney
Realty Ltd.
J. Ed McKinney

We all-learn from other people's mistakes. But unfortunately, some of us have to be "other people". One of these mistakes can be selling the wrong selling price on your house. An under-priced house will sell fast, but the owner will lose money. An over-priced house will not move at all, and many excellent buyers will be lost to others.

What your home is worth is not what you think it is, or what the buyer might think it is. Its true value is determined by its location, the general economic climate, the current local real estate situation, the age of the property and the wear and tear it has seen.

Call in a well-established local REALTOR for this vital determination. He's experienced in real estate evaluation and is in constant touch with the local market. He knows what homes are selling at what prices. It's a nice feeling to have him working on your side right from the start.

Parking Lot Opens

Picton mayor Donald Fraser, left, and councillor Charles Hepburn, chairman of council's traffic and parking committee, Monday attended the official opening of the Mary Street parking lot with other officials. They examine a new sign marking the site. The lot is located at the former Mary Street school property.

Picton Opens Free Parking Lot

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A paved parking lot to accommodate 71 vehicles was officially opened here on Mary Street Monday by Picton mayor Donald King and members of town council.

"I feel this is a definite asset to the town," observed Mayor King—after a ribbon cutting ceremony at the entrance to the parking site.

The mayor noted a council committee appointed this year to study traffic and parking considered improvements to the Mary Street lot an important first step in reducing Main Street congestion

The property, formerly the site of Mary Street School already was owned by the town and only a paving job was required to create an ample free parking area for shoppers.

Mayor King said off-street parking behind Main Street stores has been discussed on numerous occasions but the situation is "complex."

He added that there are many issues involved, such as rights of way.

However a meeting with all merchants to discuss possible future development at the rear of stores is planned.

Mayor King said he hopes to see additional steps taken this year to improve parking here.

Councillor Charles Helpburn, chairman of council's committee on traffic and parking, added that the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will be asked to participate in efforts to reduce parking problems on Main Street.

The Mary Street parking lot is free and no attendant has been hired.

"If it is well-used there is no need but if it is misused an attendant might be needed," said Mr. Hepburn.

It was noted that should an attendant become necessary in future probably it would be only during the peak summer period.

Mayor King said hopefully many Picton merchants will park at the rear of the new lot freeing the slots they normally fill on Main Street for shoppers.

Seat Belts Important In Water Accidents

TORONTO — The correct use of seat belts is the best way to avoid serious injury or death after a vehicle collides with another obstacle and plunges into water, says the provincial ministry of transportation and communications.

The ministry notes a study conducted in the Netherlands by the Institute for Road Safety Research indicates more than half of all traffic accidents involving water, vehicles involved had collided with another obstacle before going into the water.

"Since occupants must be able to react quickly, escape depends on remaining conscious and free from serious injury," the ministry comments.

"And properly fastened seat belts prevent further injury during the severe jolt that occurs even at low speeds when a vehicle collides with water."

The ministry says the Dutch study concludes the doors of a submerged vehicle, in nearly all cases tested, were impossible to open because of outside water pressure and thus windows offer the best escape route.

Ontario statistics in 1974 show that of 28 people drowned following a collision, none were seat belts, the ministry points out.

Fire Destroys Hay Stock

MILFORD — Fire Monday morning levelled a barn near Milford Mill Pond, burning approximately 1,200 bales of hay.

South Marysburgh Township firemen were called to the scene by students with the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority who had been working nearby when they smelled smoke.

The barn, owned by Isadore Steen, was over 100 years old and used principally for storage.

A spokesman for the fire department said cause of the blaze is unknown. The barn was not used for stock and the hay in storage was over a year old, eliminating the possibility of spontaneous combustion.

Inquest Uncertain In Boat Accident

NAPANEE — An inquest into the May 25 fatal boating accident which killed five people on the channel between Amherst Island and the mainland just south of here has not been completed and may, upon, says Coroner Dr. J. D. Alkenbrack.

"It hasn't been decided one way or the other," he said Monday. "We don't have the investigation completed yet."

However, Dr. Alkenbrack said there is a possibility an inquest will not be held once the investigation is closed. "I can't see anything imminent in the future," he commented.

A spokesman for Ontario Provincial Police at Napanee said three bodies are still missing and the exact cause of the accident is still unknown. He said police are making periodic checks of the area.

Listed officially as missing and presumed drowned are Bradley Gibson, 21, of Amherst Island, Robert Gibson, 24, of Napanee and Robert McGinnis, 29, of Kingston.

Their companions were Deborah Gibson, 23, of Napanee, Patricia Loughteed, 21, of Napanee and her husband, Donald Loughteed, 27, of Napanee.

Mrs. Gibson, the wife of Robert, is the only survivor. She was found unconscious in the water off the Bayshore Rd. about three miles west of where Mrs. Loughteed's body was recovered near Conway on the mainland, about six or eight miles west of the probable scene of the accident. Mr. Loughteed's body was discovered in almost the same location as that of his wife's, 13 days after the accident.

The six persons left the northwestern tip of the island at about 1.30 a.m. in a 15-foot fibreglass boat on a one-mile trip across the channel to a point where their cars were parked off Highway 33 on the Lennox Generating Station at Bath.

They were reported missing at 10.30 a.m. and several hours later, searchers recovered the seats and paddles of the boat and the two women.

The spokesman said police surmise the motor stalled, the boat began to fill with water and the occupants decided to try and swim to shore.

Drilling Rig Takes Tumble

BANCROFT — An unusual highway accident near here Monday toppled a 22-ton drilling rig off Highway 62 resulting in undetermined damage to the $100,000 machine.

The self-propelled unit had been in Bancroft for construction work and was on its way back to Foxboro when the incident occurred. Two mobile cranes were dispatched from Trenton and Ontario Hydro crews were required to make service lines.

Owners Want Action

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Builder Maurice H. Rollins of Belleville said Monday his company will correct any "legitimate problems" that should have been rectified by his firm in an unspecified number of homes in the Yelsons Burthside Heights subdivision here.

His response came after a petition from subdivision residents handed to him early Monday charged Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. with "lack of action . . . to fix the many problems in our homes."

Mr. Rollins said his company will act, but it "depends how bad the case is" and upon whom the responsibility rests — builder or homeowner.

Of the 74 detached homes in the subdivision, 64 were purchased under the Home Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) program in which the Ontario Housing Corporation leases land to the buyer to keep house costs down. Others, including 10 rental units, range up to $18,000.

The petition filed with Mr. Rollins Monday contained 43 signatures representing individual households, according to group spokesman John Rilling. Quinte Information and Assistance Centre case worker Bill Hockley was present when the petition was presented.

Mr. Rollins said he first heard a petition was being organized from company members who had heard news reports Saturday.

He said a glance at names on the petition revealed many to be unfamiliar to him: "I have no idea about claims."

Spokesman Rilling Sunday claimed Saturday an OHC inspector had not conducted final inspections of homes in Burthside, promised repair by the builder had not been followed over repair of major structural faults, and homeowners had not received one-year warranties information.

Speaking from his home late Monday, Mr. Rollins said he had eight listed from people with complaints but he did not know the nature of those complaints.

He said the petition, he said, "they didn't put down anything about the problems, just names." (The petition does not list household complaints.)

The builder said he "was sure they have guarantees" but he "couldn't say whether they've got them or not." He said company policy dictates homebuyer gets a warranty.

To the basic charge — that houses contain structural faults — Mr. Rollins said there were none. It's "very incorrect".

Homes were inspected at least five times at various stages during construction, he said.

Cars Hit In Passing

MARMORA — Two persons escaped injury in a two-car accident which occurred when one vehicle attempted to pass on Highway 62 about four miles south of Marmora Monday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Trenton said the drivers were a 1967 Camaro as Laurie Carter, 19, of West Hill, Ont. and the driver of a 1973 Chevrolet van as Brian Thomson, 19, of 36 Lemoine St. in Belleville.

Police said both vehicles were northbound in the 1.25 p.m. mishap.

Constable Scott Robinson estimated damage to the Carter car at $500 and to the Turner vehicle at $350.

Hastings Vista

Scottish visitor Margaret Lamont, aglitter backdrop of pine forest, gets first look at Hastings countryside on the farm of Stewart Cooke, just south of Ross Lake of Highway 62. The junior farmer exchange visitor has been in Ontario since June and will return to Scotland in September. With official host Bill Cooke, she will see various farming operations and activities in Hasting before moving on to eastern Ontario August 8.

Scottish Lassie Junior Farmer Guest

A bonnie Scottish lassie will be the guest of the Hastings Junior Farmer Club until August 8. More specifically, she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Cooke and their sons on their farm just south of Ross Lake, off Highway 62.

Margaret MacPherson Wilson, 22, arrived Monday afternoon at the Cooke cow-calf operation, which is a bit of a change from her home dairy farm of 130 acres that specializes in pedigreed British Friesian cows.

Under the junior farmer exchange program this year, six Canadians are in Britain and nine young farmers from England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, are getting acquainted with Canada.

"Getting acquainted" is the main purpose of the exchange, said Carol Somerville, of the Stirling provincial agricultural office, who accompanied Miss Wilson to the Cooke farm.

So far in her travels in Canada, Miss Wilson has stayed at farms in the Niagara, Middlesex, Bruce County and North Simcoe districts.

When she leaves Hastings she'll carry on to farms in the Lanark and Prescott districts. Then she has two weeks at her own before returning home September 11.

"We're going to rent a car and head for Western Canada. We plan to see as much as we can before we have to turn around and get to Toronto for the return flight," she said.

Her major impressions of Canada, so far, are the size of it and the distances involved in getting from place to place. "And you people seem to eat an awful lot of hamburgers."

A rich brown tan confirms her liking for the warm Canadian summer that she's put in visiting and working on Canadian farms.

As for farming, Margaret, who is a research assistant employed by the Multiple Sclerosis Society and Glasgow University in virus research at Belvedere Hospital, Glasgow, has seen very little difference between Canadian and Scottish dairy farming methods. "We may be more intensive in Scotland, but then we're short of land."

Leaderless Conservatives Long for Diet of 20 Years Ago

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Mr. Tory would be amazed — or perhaps, knowing of the man, you wouldn't at all — how many Conservatives these days are looking pretty fatively at John Diefenbaker, dean of the House of Commons and wishing it were some 20 years ago.

Did you going on so then, poised to take over the Tory leadership and head the Conservatives swep to six years of federal power.

The Conservatives shopping today for a leader, and although Diet is edging 80, to some he still looks by far the best buy.

They remember him all through the years as the only Conservative who could take the parliamentary measure alike of Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent, Lester Pearson and now Pierre Trudeau.

He is revered in Parliament as the wizard of Elder Statesman, even, yes, as a Great Man.

His secret is that he regards himself as a "barbershop politician."

For that is where the people used to meet, didn't they? And around the crackle of barber chairs, they argued, swore, and in the village Post Office.

Diet from his first day worked always to meet people.

It was his business and his recreation, too — his political touchstone.

The posh clubs of the big cities he seldom set foot in, the only prime minister in living memory never to join Ottawa's ritzy Rideau Club where the rich, the famous and the powerful are supposed to lunch.

So he always was known as the called "the real people" MP.

In the barbershop, the small town store, the rural hall, even the church basement — and he has been campaigning for Conservative Leader and Prime Minister, in half a dozen of these, Queen Elizabeth Hall on the grounds of Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition, and to the mass gathering places of Winnipeg, Halifax, Edmonton, Victoria and points between.

So in the record of his long years on the public platform, he probably shook more hands than any other Canadian leader.

That was the idea, meet people, shake their hands, and most important of all, get and remember their names.

It was his first rule of politics: shake the hands.

Bob Coates, veteran, nearly 9 years, Nova Scotia MP, recalls it as his first lesson from "The Old Master" in winning votes: shake the hand.

"I had won the Tory nomination in 1957," he remembers. "I was a new leader, came to Amherst to speak for me at my first big rally.

"We weren't supposed to have a chance, and nobody came. After all, the Liberals had been in power for 22 straight years.

"But Diet told me that night, 'There comes a tide . . .'

"It was a great meeting. They crowded in to see and hear Diet, and he gave them the old thunder.

"Just before the end, he leaned over and whispered to me to tell the chairman to introduce him. I went off the platform and back down the aisle to the door.

What for, Bob Coates wanted to know.

"So together we can shake the hand of every man, woman and child in the hall, Diet told him. "You'll introduce me to them, whose names you know, and we'll talk to everyone here tonight if it takes until tomorrow.

Perhaps Diefe greatest performance in the simple basic art of handshaking was in the campaign of 1958 when he came back to the Capital as Canada's biggest-ever winner with those stunning 208 seats.

He stayed in the Queen Elizabeth Hall in Toronto, that great barn of a place that comfortably holds thousands.

"That was the time it was enough for so many Canadians — especially pensioners — just to touch him.

And the huge hall was packed to the doors.

Diet and wife Olive stood there during the afternoon hours, and following a boxscanner break, into the evening. Just shaking hands and murmuring: "Hello, there, good to meet you.

The physical punishment of the hands — both right, and then when he switched to left was agonizing, even for a pro in peak crowd form.

They turned black and blue and were sore and swollen.

But Diet ignored it and kept right on shaking and the very last of those astonishing never-before-approached 208 seats.

The public relations people call it "commandeering."

Diet says its the simple just getting-to-know-you stuff.

Right now Diet could be "looking for a candidate, as the saying goes in these parts.

And if he finds one, the hacky leadership candidate will have the best coach in the business.

Lonsdale Like Fantasy

The village of Lonsdale is from the story book.

Nestling in the undulating country around Marysville, it's a community a youngster might dream of in fantasyland, or come upon in a book read at his mother's knee.

It may sound trite, but Lonsdale has old-world charm, with here and there a hint of far-out modernism where. But the architecture of the seventies is the exception rather than the rule and on some wood sliding on the fringe there may be seen some advertisements for cigarettes that jog the memory back quite a few years.

In the heart of the village a bridge, beside a fine old stone home, spans the waters from a nearby dam.

Thoughts of this attractive little place come to mind with the advertisement from County engineer B. F. Pinder of a public meeting scheduled at Lonsdale Women's Institute hall August 14.

The purpose, of the meeting, says the ad, is to inform all interested parties of the plans of the County roads and bridge committee to replace existing Lonsdale bridges over the Salmon river.

Participatory democracy, as well as the jargon of the times, has caught up with Lonsdale) for the ad goes on to say that "public input" into the preliminary plans is invited, and these are on display at Tyendinaga township offices.

A winter's day comes to mind, a white-covered landscape, and the sun playing on bare trees and blue water and the ice mixing with the open water of that same river.

It was the view from the bridge — away from the fret and toil of the urban scene. One day soon though people there will get together and discuss one aspect of the modernization that can intrude on even the most tranquil of environments.

Shades of another bridge promised in our midst: this year . . . next year . . . sometime. . !

Guernsey Man Seeking Badges

Collecting regimental badges doubtless is a hobby of many old soldiers. One we have heard from once or twice in recent years is a Channel Islands man. His name is Pike, but his christian name we cannot make out, and don't recollect it from last time.

Mr. Pike, who says he is a postman (mailman) and lives at 35 Hauteville, St. Peter Port, Guernsey, has written again, this time asking in particular for information on the Argyll Light Infantry, and noting: "I know I will never be lucky enough to obtain one of the badges." Well, who knows?

A typical Army Service Corps veteran who served mainly in the Middle East, Mr. Pike was demobilized in 1946. He is interested in Canadian badges of the past and present, as well as those of the militia and the C.E.F.

New Vantage Point Available

Bellevillians of pre-overpass and Four Seasons vintage may be hard put to it to recall the topography of Dundas Street and all along there by the rail track getting on for a decade ago.

A look back to the Centennial parade in 1967 brings back memories — the bands and marchers proceeding to Zwick's Island. Past the less than trimly-landscaped underground bordering the rail track, and the old Devil's Elbow stretch where now there is verdant green and a magnificent flower bed flanking Highland Avenue. One couple fairly new to Belleville were surprised when told the other day that the roadway in front of the Four Seasons and the bordering poplars were part of the old route.

So where is one of the finest vistas in Belleville today? It is the view from up there in what is now a park, where the old Highland Avenue route comes to an end, and the eye takes in a broad sweep of the bay, yachts glide past and the auto traffic and other commerce of the city is muted by the beauty of it all.

One evening recently, some members of Belleville's Thursday community who live nearby were enjoying the view. Thus an ancient culture and the creativeness of environmental planning, in a new beauty spot, were set in this modern and universalist setting.

Reader Objects to Paying For French-Language Stations

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In The Wing-Standard, of July 12 under the by-line "Kingston — Belleville seeks licence for French Station", I note that CBC has applied for a French-language television station in Belleville-Peterborough, Kingston and Belleville. Ontario, among several licence applications to be considered by Canadian Radio-Television Commission in Ottawa in September. Also CBC is seeking licences for French-language FM stations in Kingston and Belleville.

I find this rather appalling when one considers how few French-speaking citizens reside in these areas and also when one considers what the taxpayer's burden would be if these applications are approved.

Would it not be considered also that most people living in this area, at least a few years time, would find it rather difficult if they did not speak English.

For years there has been considerable pressure for CBC English-language satellite station in this area — to no avail. Now with no noticeable demand, we are about to be swamped with a proliferation of French-language broadcasting in an area where the concentration of French is very sparse.

Surely there is something out of balance here. The principle of representation by population has been turned upside down.

It would be interesting to learn the total construction costs plus operating costs and divide this figure by the number of potential listeners and viewers. No doubt this figure would be staggering but there is also no doubt that the public will never have access to this information.

The program for southern Ontario appears to be:

PHASE I — — — Been seen Francophone — at Kingston Royal Military College.

PHASE II — Flooding the area with French language TV and Radio broadcasting.

PHASE III — ? ? ?

This is written without prejudice.

Air Canada Officials Want More Power Despite Allegations

BY DAVID GERSOVITZ

MONTREAL (CP) — Has Air Canada contrived to change its self from victim to victor?

When Transport Minister Jean Marchand makes public the full results of an inquiry into Air Canada's tangled financial affairs he will also give the publicly-owned airline the kind of corporate power it insists are needed?

In McGill University law school corridors, where Chief Justice William Dorsey of Ontario Supreme Court concluded two three-month-long inquiry this week, there were among the questions posed by lawyers and observers.

Despite allegations of kickbacks and improper transactions, senior Air Canada officials pressed for broader corporate powers.

Blue-chips Air Canada witnesses emphasized the link between outlawed corporate powers and some of the controversial deals and business relationships brought to light during the inquiry.

These dealings included the need to work through loosely-affiliated domestic corporations so Air Canada could circumvent charter restrictions against activities such as charter tour promotion and leasing accommodation for travellers.

The McGregor transaction—the much-publicized payment of $100,000 to a Montreal travel agent for "consulting services"—emerged as an ill-advised attempt by beyond the airline's legal jurisdiction and invest in a national travel agency scheme promoted by R.Y. McGregor.

Air Canada counsel Gordon Henderson was more blunt in his summation.

"It is a commercial operation," he said of the airline, "and should be treated as such. It is inevitable that there will be — which would not be applicable to any commercial operation."

Ventures, an affiliate of Air Canada's parent, Canadian National Railways, emerged as a prime example of the problem.

It was formed in 1973 under CN's corporate umbrella so the airline could compete in the charter field at a time when the Canadian transport commission was abolishing affinity requirements.

News reports that Ventures's 1974 deficit of $1.154 million was "hidden" in the Air Canada budget, provided the airline with a further route to attack when Mr. Justice Dorsey described as the convoluted relationships forced upon Air Canada.

Mr. Henderson insisted that all such deals and arrangements were concluded by honest men seeking to do their best for the airline.

Revelations about payment of $100,000 to Mr. McGregor on June 20, 1974 led to the inquiry.

During the inquiry, both parties to the deal insisted the $100,000 was payment toward eventual stock ownership in the national travel agency and for consulting services, as the transaction was.

Letters of agreement between Air Canada and Mr. McGregor said he would also influence foreign airlines to do business on behalf. Witnesses said they were never meant to be implemented.

Terms of the agreement permitted Air Canada officials to draw the $100,000 from their promotion budget.

Senior airline officials—chairman Yves Pratte, president Ralph Vaughan and others—insisted they did not know a payment had been made until letters of agreement signed until the airline's internal auditors had turn uncovered the deal early this March.

Both Mr. Pratte and Mr. Vaughan also criticized Yves Menard, 50, who engineered the deal as Air Canada's vice-president in charge of sales.

Mr. Pratte, under fire since the McGregor payment was revealed in the Commons last April 17, told the inquiry:

"In terms of execution, I don't think it was completed in such a stupid manner."

Mr. Menard emerged from the inquiry a somewhat pathetic figure. The McGregor letters of agreement were "stupid," he has said, but he hadn't scrutinized them carefully enough.

Mr. McGregor told the inquiry discussions with airline officials gave him the impression the $100,000 payment was to ensure continued "brand loyalty" to Air Canada, that he would promote the airline and provide stock options in his proposed national agency.

Mr. Menard was also critical of ownership of a Barbados villa, purchased in 1973 from an affiliate of Sunset Crest Realties of Barbados. Eleven months later, Air Canada signed leases for condominiums in the same development, in a deal authorized by Mr. Menard which could mean a loss of $1 million for the airline.

John McGill, who succeeded Mr. Menard, has decided not to renew the Barbados lease.

But Mr. Menard's ownership of the villa was well known throughout senior management. Airline officials said they assumed the purchase was legitimate.

Only in February, 1973, Mr. Pratte- and Mr. Vaughan become aware the mortgage on the villa had not been executed, they testified.

Mr. Menard resigned on Feb. 27, two days before the villa matter was revealed.

Mr. Menard told the hearing this "might have placed myself in a delicate position." he denied that slow execution of the mortgage was connected to his role in the leasing arrangement.

Thursday, it was disclosed Mr. Menard retained a post as "consultant" with a former employer, Hrdlt and Charton Ltd., on joining the airline in 1970. In 1971, Hrdlt and Charton, with contracts to supply Air Canada with wine for dinnerware.

In closed-door testimony relayed Thursday, Mr. Pratte said he "never would have tolerated" the connection with Hrdlt and Charton, if he knew of it.

Lawyers and others who have followed the inquiry tend to underplay the importance of proceedings will result from it.

"There hasn't been one bit of evidence of any corruption or dishonesty," said Mr. Henderson.

Mr. Justice Dorsey, however, it is not within his mandate to recommend criminal or civil action.

The chief justice now will sift through some 8,000 pages of testimony and exhibits to decide the propriety of the airline's financial controls, whether senior airline officials responded promptly and properly enough to the McGregor matter and other transactions.

Mr. Pratte and Air Public relations official Conidec: "We had our problems, but this inquiry is proof of what the airline had been waiting for."

Ban of Soviet Fishermen Asserts Our Concern

By VINCENT EGAN

Canada's decision to deny the use of East Coast port facilities to the Soviet fishing fleet, may not be a monumental move in itself. From all reports, the Soviet fleet is self-supporting.

But the real significance of the ban may be that our government has finally acted—harshly or not—to assert Canadian concern about the danger that the cod and haddock catch will soon be wiped out by foreign fishing fleets.

And the broader significance we can at least hope—could be that our political leaders will be less wishy-washy in dealing with other countries that trample on Canadian interests than they have been until now.

In the case of Canada's North Atlantic fishing industry, catches of certain species have been cut in half since the end of the 1960s. If nothing were done to reverse the trend, the industry could be facing extinction.

Pious reliance on the powers of the International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries (ICNAF) to correct the overfishing has failed. Quotas set by ICNAF have been far too high, favoring the spoilers rather than the conservationists—and even those quotas are not respected.

Meanwhile, the Soviets, Spaniards, Portuguese and others have no doubt been vastly amused by our toothless-liger approach through ICNAF and the Law Of The Sea conference.

With their sophisticated assembly-line fishing methods, they have been systematically taking every pound of fish that they could find in Canadian waters. Soviet factory-ship equipment has been likened to vacuum cleaners.

When a Canadian fisherman gets in the way of Soviet trawlers—in Canadian waters—he's likely to end up second best, shopping for new nets.

Canada's North Atlantic fishing industry won't be saved overnight. Barring Soviet ships from our East Coast ports won't put a stop to abuses that have been going on for many years, nor will it suddenly earn respect for Canadian law and Canadian interests among the Soviets and the other plunderers.

But a start has to be made somewhere. Our federal government must surely be thinking ahead to next year, to what will necessarily be a prolonged and bitter fight.

That next year could well be a unilateral declaration that Canada's jurisdiction extends 200 miles out to sea beyond our coast instead of replacing today's 12-mile limit.

Iceland, Peru and other countries have made such a declaration, and the government of Newfoundland and 100,000 citizens of the province have petitioned Ottawa for a 200-mile limit.

That wouldn't solve the overfishing problem, but it would give Canada some measure of effective control.

Whatever measures Canada takes, there will unfortunately be a certain amount of short-term loss of business. Certainly the decision to close our ports to the Soviets will cause financial loss and unemployment in St. John's and Halifax for a time.

All the while, though, Canada has avoided taking bitter medicine that would work to its long-term benefit.

Without drastic action now, our centuries-old fishing industry and its shore-based support industries could be wiped out.

In a world that needs all the food supplies it can get, that must not be allowed to happen.

Nuclear Power Development Seen as in Early Infancy

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. John Foster sits back on a comfortable couch in his downtown tower office and envisages dozens of squat, concrete nuclear-reactor buildings sprouting in across the country.

Nuclear power now provides ten per cent of the country's total energy needs, 48 of it in Ontario so far, said Dr. Foster, who has been president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) since the beginning of this year.

But times are changing, with both Quebec and New Brunswick embarking on construction of nuclear generating stations and other provinces beginning to show interest.

"By the end of the century nuclear power will make up a quarter of the country's energy requirements," said the head of the federal Crown corporation.

Manitoba plans a nuclear plant for the late 1980s and British Columbia probably will enter the nuclear field around the same time.

By the year 2000, Dr. Foster estimated, the only provinces not using nuclear power will be Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland — provinces able to meet their needs by other means such as oil-and coal-fired thermal stations or hydroelectric power.

It was only eight years ago that the first full-scale nuclear generating station went into operation at Douglas Point on Lake Huron for Ontario Hydro. Since then the provincial utility has built four nuclear reactors at Pickering, near Toronto, has eight other units under construction and plans a further eight.

For Dr. Foster, who got in on the ground floor of the nuclear power program more than 20 years ago, all the developments to date are just a start. He considers the industry in its infancy.

"I compare where we are in nuclear power today with where we were in aviation in the 1920s.

"We're at about the Fokker Tri-motor stage and I'm not sure we've even reached that level," he said. "There was an awful lot of money spent on aviation development after we got to that stage."

The 54-year-old Halifax native first became interested in nuclear power while working for Montreal Engineering Co. just after the Second World War.

"I thought nuclear power might be a coming thing so I bought some of the early textbooks. I read them on the street cars going back and forth to work in Montreal."

His company loaned him to the government in 1953 when design work started on a nuclear electric-generating station. The loan turned out to be permanent. After 13 years he resigned from Montreal Engineering in 1966 to become an AECL vice-president.

He took over as president last Dec. 31, charged with heading AECL as it moves into a period of unprecedented growth.

But greater dependence on nuclear energy as oil becomes scarce and increasingly expensive will entail more research and development spending on such things as new forms of fuel and waste disposal.

Dr. Foster sees a continuing requirement for major expenditure by the nation in such research, adding that it is too soon for public utilities and the industry to take over that task.

But he steered clear of saying that the federal government is pulling its purse strings too tight, a charge made earlier by the Science Council of Canada, an adviser to the government.

"I suppose you can always spend more," he said. "There are lots of people with ideas on how to spend money. But, really, it is up to us to put forward programs that are clearly sound enough to command new research money from government."

But he added, in answer to a question that AECL's research budget has not increased in real terms for several years with additional money provided only to match the rate of inflation.

Among projects the corporation has in mind is an investigation into use of thorium as part of a fuel cycle in Canadian-designed nuclear reactors, a manager Dr. Foster said could increase energy output 10 times.

Unlike reactors developed in other countries that use ordinary water as a coolant and enriched uranium as fuel, the Canadian system employs heavy-water as coolant and moderator and burns natural uranium.

It makes the Candu reactor more costly to build, but the higher initial spending is more than offset by lower fuel costs during the life of the reactor.

Dr. Foster said that with increased use of nuclear power, there will be more pressure on the country's massive reserves of uranium. AECL wants to look at other fuel cycles in case they are needed.

He explained that thorium, not fissile or fissionable in its natural state, might be treated with uranium, plutonium or by itself for use as a reactor fuel. He said the country has abundant supplies of thorium.

AECL also plans to investigate reprocessing spent fuels from reactors, extracting plutonium for use either in treating the thorium or as a separate fuel.

Since plutonium is suitable for use as a fuel only in the fast reactors developed in other countries, Canada would then have two choices—build the different type reactor or try to sell the plutonium to other countries.

But experts cite problems. Plutonium can also be used in the manufacture of nuclear bombs.

The government is at present under pressure for planning to sell Candu reactors to countries such as South Korea and Argentina. Opposition parties say the buyers may extract plutonium from waste fuels and use it for weapons manufacture. They say government safeguards requiring inspection of plants and promises not to build explosives are insufficient.

Any proposal to export plutonium itself would be unlikely to attract much support.

Industrial Heart of Scotland

Glasgow, the industrial heart of Scotland, this year is celebrating the 800th anniversary of the granting of its first charter. In the midst of celebrations ranging from events to international football matches, trade delegations have been touring Western Europe to attract more industry to the Clydeside. And one of the biggest urban renewal projects in Europe is going on in 29 separate districts covering five square miles.

The city's name comes from Glasghe, the original Gaelic which means "dear green place." Its history goes back to 540 AD, to the time of St. Mungo who was adopted as patron saint, but it was not until 1136 that the diocese was established by papal consecration.

It was not until after the Treaty of Union in 1707 with England that Glasgow made the effort to become the "great gateway of civic Europe towards the New World" — and succeeded until the revolt of the American colonies in 1775. Traders became "tobacco lords" and strode the streets in red cloaks as the middlemen for much of Europe.

But this period of glory died and it was the power of steam — harnessed by James Watt at Glasgow University — that put the city at the forefront of the Industrial Revolution.

In 1745, however, when Bonny Prince Charlie's troops occupied the city, George Square, now the Centre, still was neglected marshland surrounded by meadows. Today the square contains the oldest Chamber of Commerce in Britain.

The growth of the city, illuminated at night by the red glow of its furnaces, was extraordinary as Highlanders poured down from the north and the Irish came from across the sea.

Massively endowed educationally, its 21,000 students from all nations are, proportionately, the most cosmopolitan's heaviest cluster. Next to Edinburgh and London, Glasgow attracts more visitors from overseas than any other British city.

In the mercantile and industrial sense the terms Greater Glasgow and Clydeside are interchangeable, the streets reaching into each other.

Glasgow Marking 800th Anniversary

GLASGOW (CP)—This city which is the industrial heart of Scotland this year is celebrating the 800th anniversary of the granting of its first charter. But instead of looking backward, it is looking outward and ahead.

In the midst of celebrations ranging from events to international football matches, trade delegations have been touring Western Europe to attract more industry to the Clydeside. And one of the biggest urban renewal projects in Europe is going on in 29 separate districts covering five square miles.

The city's name comes from Glasghe, the original Gaelic which means "dear green place." Its history goes back to 540 AD, to the time of St. Mungo who was adopted as patron saint, but it was not until 1136 that the diocese was established by papal consecration.

It was not until after the Treaty of Union in 1707 with England that Glasgow made the effort to become the "great gateway of civic Europe towards the New World" — and succeeded until the revolt of the American colonies in 1775. Traders became "tobacco lords" and strode the streets in red cloaks as the middlemen for much of Europe.

But this period of glory died and it was the power of steam — harnessed by James Watt at Glasgow University — that put the city at the forefront of the Industrial Revolution.

In 1745, however, when Bonny Prince Charlie's troops occupied the city, George Square, now the Centre, still was neglected marshland surrounded by meadows. Today the square contains the oldest Chamber of Commerce in Britain.

The growth of the city, illuminated at night by the red glow of its furnaces, was extraordinary as Highlanders poured down from the north and the Irish came from across the sea.

Massively endowed educationally, its 21,000 students from all nations are, proportionately, the most cosmopolitan's heaviest cluster. Next to Edinburgh and London, Glasgow attracts more visitors from overseas than any other British city.

In the mercantile and industrial sense the terms Greater Glasgow and Clydeside are interchangeable, the streets reaching into each other.

Glasgow houses the Scottish Stock Exchange, along with many British headquarters of organizations in shipping, banking, insurance and retailing.

Greater Glasgow turns out whatever man might need from ships and automobiles to air-conditioners and ventilators. It also makes watches, clocks, bagpipes, spectacle frames, curling stones and umbrellas.

Glasgow's geographical position makes it an Atlantic city on a northerly axis, straddling the trade lanes since its early mastery in Virginia tobacco.

Nowadays, as Glasgow's maritime lifeblood floods through Clydeport, it also functions in effect through two international airports: its own Glasgow airport at Abbotsinch and nearby Prestwick, 15 and 20 minutes respectively from the city centre, collectively handling 2.5 million passengers a year and shifting 40,000 tons of freight.

Just beyond Glasgow's boundaries (the city has 63 public parks) is the Clyde estuary — 1,240 square miles of island-studded seaway and fjord.

The city itself, shedding surplus population to surrounding New Towns as it gets on with its huge rebuilding programme, is far removed from Daniel Defoe's description, "the beautifullest little city I have seen in Britain."

But it is still one of the world's most vital trading centres.

Student Unrest Aims At Domestic Hardships

NEW YORK (CP) — Demonstrations, riots and picketing have resumed on United States campuses. But this time, students are fighting for lower tuition rates, more financial aid to their institutions and greater support rather than foreign policy or anti-Vietnam involvement.

Civil rights and politics have taken a backseat on the college campus and academic scene. Inflation, with its knawing away at educational resources, has cut heavily into the budgets of colleges across the U.S.

Students carrying signs and slogans have appeared on campuses as diverse as Brown University in Rhode Island, Princeton and Rutgers in New Jersey, Maryland, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and State University of New York.

At University of Pennsylvania, students picketed with signs that read:

Freeze Tuition not Hiring, and Cut the Budget, Not our Throats.

The pickets were protesting higher rates for room and board, as well as tuition increases, reduced student services and insufficient financial aid.

At Brown University, black students took over a building and held it for several days. In addition to lower tuition rates, they demanded a substantial increase in the number of minority students accepted by the university. The trustee committee agreed to increase efforts towards recruitment of eligible blacks, and said they would add about 25 per cent more minority students during the next years.

Dr. Donald Hornig, president of Brown, urged that students be involved in the budget process to help get budget priorities but not in the detailed process of budget-making. He said that the current budget is geared to a three-year austerity program designed to eliminate the university's deficit spending.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has said that unless financial conditions improve, one out of every 10 institutions of higher learning will either fold or merge.

Students at Princeton have demonstrated against the trustees' decision to increase tuition fees by $425. Despite its fee increase, which brings tuition and room and board to about $6,000 a year, the budget is not balanced.

At University of Massachusetts, students finalized in support of a budget that would not cut into services or raise tuition fees.

A state-wide coalition of student governments on 29 campuses, called the Student Association of State University of New York, has taken an active part in demonstrating and lobbying against tuition or other increased fees. Students at University of Minnesota also resorted to lobbying.

The Minnesota students chartered a bus to shuttle student lobbyists from the campus to the state capitol. They joined other students across the country in their protest for less tuition but better education.

Where to find a 10¢ pay phone.

The cost of making a local call from some pay phones in Belleville, Picton, Trenton and surrounding areas is increasing to 20 cents. But there are still 10 cent pay phones around. And we'd like to tell you where you can find them.

The 10¢ Pay Phones
Generally, you'll find these phones on sidewalks, in railway and bus stations, hospitals, nursing homes, rooming houses and churches.

The 20¢ Pay Phone
Pay phones in most other locations, such as hotels, airports and restaurants will go up to 20 cents.

Pay Phone Emergency Calling
At the same time, a new service will be added to all outdoor pay phones. What this added service does is enable you to reach the Operator, Directory Assistance and Repair Service without depositing a coin.

From now on, when you're calling from a pay phone, look for the information card above the dial. It clearly tells you whether it's a 10 cent or 20 cent pay phone.

Man Protests

LONDON (AP) — Mike Flynn, 24, dressed up as a woman to protest the cheaper train ticket offered to women as part of a chauvinist excursion. He travelled with a friend, Mary Workman, and shaved off his moustache and put on a wig to purchase the ticket. He went on the train and then took off the wig to protest discrimination against men.

Institutions Lonely For the Aged

HALIFAX (CP)—Elsie and George are two old people living their last years in homes for the elderly, and their loneliness and feelings of the independence epitomize a way of life that a Halifax doctor opposes.

Elsie says she feels lonely and neglected, watching life ally by from a seat behind the lace-curtained window of an institution in this old port city.

"If you only knew," she said "how it feels to grow old, especially alone. I've been sitting here and watching that street for seven years since my husband passed on, waiting for my turn."

"I don't get—out much. There's really nowhere to go and it costs so much to do anything anyway. On what I get for pension . . . most of it goes for this place."

Elsie's 74-year-old hands offered shaky punctuation of her thoughts. She spoke hesitantly and said she was uncertain of herself at this stage of life.

"The first day here was depressing. I tried to talk with some of the people but some were tired; most were ill or didn't have the willpower or strength to do anything much.

"Right then . . . I wanted to go back home but I couldn't . . . I didn't own it anymore."

George was a fisherman for nearly 40 years when he decided he had had enough and entered a senior citizens' home in rural Nova Scotia. Now, after three years of inactivity, he said he would like to turn back the clock.

George, now 72, said he was never ill a day in his life as an active fisherman but living in the relative quiet of the home he has picked up influenza each winter and finds a limitless number of aches and pains.

"I s'pose, boy, it's all the time I got on my hands now. Gives me lots of time to think about what ails me. When I was at sea, there was none of that, my son. Too busy to be sick."

Dr. Peter C. Gordon, head of preventive medicine and the clinical research centre at Dalhousie University, has studied aging and the effects of community attempts to help the elderly.

He has a strong dislike for institutionalization of the elderly unless such care is essential.

The penchant for placing senior citizens in homes is nothing more than an extension of the old country poorhouse syndrome—a method of removing a problem from the community, he said in an interview.

To the elderly, there is no place like home and "we must change our priorities and opt for programs and services designed to maintain the independence, dignity and self-respect of the elderly through community care.

When one hears of new institutions being promoted partly on the basis that they will provide employment and otherwise benefit the economy, one can't help but wonder whose interests are really being served by the construction of more and more of these facilities."

Dr. Gordon said studies self — respect of the elderly form the fastest growing segment of Canadian society—at a rate out of proportion to the total growth of the population.

In 1971, there were 1.7 million Canadians aged 65 and over; by 1986 this is projected to reach 2.6 million or 10 per cent of the country's population.

The co-ordinator of the St. Ola United Church Women's group Arts and Crafts Fair, Doris Alton shows a quilt made by the group as a door prize.

Craft Fair for Artisans

ST. OLA — Members of the United Church Women's group in this small hamlet, 25 miles south east fo Bancroft, decided a number of years ago that they would provide the vehicle for local artisans to retail their art and craft work.

Three years ago, the St. Ola Arts and Crafts Fair was born and there hasn't been a backthe area who do so much beautiful work, that we decided to provide an outlet for their work," said Doris Alton, who is the co-ordinator of the two-day event.

According to Mrs. Alton, "Each year the fair gets bigger and better; this year we have 32 exhibitors . . . most of them from the St. Ola area; however, there are people here from Eldorado, Madoc and Toronto."

Included in the items that were for sale Friday and Saturday were candles, leatherwork, weaving, quilting, knitted and crocheted children's wear, stuffed toys and home baking to mention a few.

Douglas Radner showed films taken around his area including new culvert installation, sugar bush, museum footage and views of a large strawberry picking operation. Mrs. Corfield also gave a "did you know" spin about farming, including the topics of beef, milk, sugar cane and coffee scarcity.

REDNERSVILLE WI

Marian Townsend was hostess for the July meeting of the Redneersville Women's Institute held recently.

The future of the farm was discussed in the roll call. The members said that profit to farmers must increase with middlemen receiving less of the food dollar. They saw more specialized farming and group or co-operative farming to make best use of equipment. Many of the women said they expect milk to become scarce.

The program on agriculture was led by Marlene Corfield who began the program with "Old Macdonald Had a Farm".

Extra Watering Now Prevents Tomato Rot

One of the most common problems of garden tomatoes is blossom-end rot, says D. M. Sangster, horticulturist with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

This disorder, usually noticed in mid-August, is occurring now in local gardens. When the tomato fruit is just starting to turn red, Mr. Sangster says, brown- or black-colored spots appear on the bottom, or blossom-end, of the fruit. Tissue in the affected area becomes dry and leathery. The tomatoes develop a flattened appearance, caused by shrinking of tissue on the lower half of the fruit.

Blossom-end rot is not caused by a disease organism, but is associated with lack of sufficient mixture or calcium in the early stages of growth of the tomato fruit. The disorder can be aggravated by shallow soil which fail to hold moisture, and periods of insufficient rainfall.

Mr. Sangster says that if the tomatoes are overwatered early in the season, root development may be restricted, making it difficult for the plants to obtain sufficient moisture later on.

He advises gardeners to keep their plants well supplied with water all through the summer, but particularly in hot, dry spells.

Ann Landers

Do Gentlemen Prefer Gentlemen?

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently that Anita Loos, the woman who wrote "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" nearly 30 years ago, made the statement that if she were writing that book today she'd call it "Gentlemen Prefer Gentlemen."

Has homosexuality become THAT widespread? Do you honestly believe that the number of males who prefer members of their own sex has accelerated to that degree? If so—what's the reason?—Bug-Eyed In Peoria

Dear Bug: No, I don't believe homosexuality has become "accelerated to THAT degree." I do believe, however, that a great many "queens" are coming out of the closets and making their preferences known.

Some who have "announced" have been real shockers. A great many people used to think all gays were lisping, limp wristed oddballs who could be spotted on sight by their makeup, perfume and outlandish dress. Tain't necessarily so. Some gays are very conservative dressers and you'd never know without being told. Miss Loos's comment notwithstanding, I still believe most gentlemen prefer blondes, brunettes or redheads—of the opposite sex.

Dear Ann Landers: Nine years ago I married a man I'll call Ed. We had a son, Mark, and were divorced six months later.

Part of the divorce agreement was that Ed would have no financial responsibility for Mark, provided he would never attempt to see or contact the child. I didn't need the money and wanted nothing more to do with the rat.

Mark is now seven years old. My brother and his family have been wonderful to me and my son. We are like one family. I haven't heard one word from Ed since the divorce.

The problem: I have kept the pictures of Ed with Mark, taken when he was as infant. Until recently, Mark has been satisfied with the explanation that the person in the pictures is his father and his name is Ed. Now I'm beginning to get questions like, "How come I never see my father?" and, "What kind of person was he?"

I believe in being truthful. How does one tell a child, "Forget about your father. He never cared about you."

Thanks for your advice.—Mark's Mother

Dear Mother: It sounds as if Mark is going to have plenty of problems. Please don't add to them by telling him his father never cared about him.

Surely you can think of a few decent things to tell Mark about his dad. Try your darnedest and I hope you come up with something—for the boy's sake.

Bride, 68 Groom, 100

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — As millions of others have done, the bride and bridegroom smiled and clasped hands during the ceremony but there was a difference. The bride was 68, and the bridegroom was 100.

Oscar Borjesson and Florence Baker, who had known each other eight years, were married in a double-ring ceremony in his apartment. Her apartment was just upstairs.

"When a man passes 70, age doesn't make a difference any more, it seems," said Bo Jensen, who is looking forward to his new wife's cooking.

"I like everything she cooks," he said.

The newlyweds turned to each other in loneliness and grief after their former spouses died within one month of each other.

They travelled together, visiting friends and relatives. She cooked and cleaned for him, and he shared with her the crops he grew in a large backyard garden.

Then they decided to marry.

Borjesson was born in Sweden in 1874 and was raised on a large farm. He came to the United States with his father in 1890.

Television Aids Reading Skill

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Sixth grader Adriana Steele of Rochester, N.Y., smoothly narrated a television program on teaching careers, using words like "occurricular activities" without missing a beat.

Adriana's performance was doubly impressive because she and fellow classmates were ranked last spring in the lower 25 per cent of their grade in reading skills — at least two years behind other children their age.

She— was demonstrating the results of an experimental reading program in which grade-school students produce their own abbreviated television programs.

Ewald Nyquist, state education commissioner, said the program has been a success and should be expanded to school districts throughout the state and the nation.

"The program capitalized on the importance television plays in the everyday life-style of today's child, especially the disadvantaged," Nyquist said. "The project makes children want to learn to read, they need to read, so that they can produce a short television show of their own."

Reporters watched a "before and after" videotape of a student identified only as Vinnie. In his first attempt, Vinnie mumbled, stumbled over his script and slouched in his seat.

His classmates criticized him, and then he looked at the videotape.

"I messed it up," Vinnie told his teacher. Evaluating his performance, he observed, "I think it stinks."

Vinnie is shown again three weeks later, wearing a tie and sitting upright, with improved reading and distinct speech.

State education department officials say that the program, known as GERIS for Graphic Expression Reading Improvement System, has nearly doubled the reading comprehension of students enrolled in the classes. It has been shown to be most effective in Grades 4 through 7.

"The key to its success seems to involve several factors," said Mr. Nyquist. "First, the child senses that he needs to do his best writing, reading and speaking to be on television; second, he receives immediate feedback for his performance on videotape; and third, he knows he has a built-in option to rework his tape until he is satisfied with it."

Gas Tax Amendments Defeated by Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — Debate on the bill authorizing a 18-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline nears its conclusion today as government members persistently turn aside opposition attempts to amend the proposed legislation.

Detailed study of the bill was nearly completed Monday night as MPs, sitting as a committee of the whole House, debated each clause. The bill, which amends the Excise Tax Act, also increases the tax on air travel and sets taxes on wine and home insulation materials.

However, it is the gasoline tax that is drawing opposition fire.

The government intends to move adjournment of the Commons, originally scheduled for June 27, once the excise tax bill is approved. And the Senate, which meets Wednesday, must approve the tax bill before it can become law.

The government has been collecting the gasoline tax since it was announced in the June 26 budget, although it says the bill must have Commons ratification before it can be passed and officially paid.

The bill allows the cabinet to set regulations outlining eligibility for the refunds. The government has said commercial users such as farmers, fishermen, salesmen and businesses will qualify.

A proposal from Gerald Baldwin, Progressive Conservative House leader, that Parliament have authority to turn down an extension of regulations, was defeated.

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic expert on legislative tactics, proposed refunds on gasoline used in driving to work.

Finance Minister John Turner said the tax is partly aimed at subsidizing users of high-cost imported oil and balancing the price of lower-cost domestic oil. Areas in and east of the Ottawa valley use imported oil.

But he said the government will not subsidize those who choose to drive instead of using public transit, to own a big car instead of a small one, or to live far from their place of work.

Cyril Symes (NDP—Sault Ste. Marie) questioned Mr. Turner's suggestions that people use alternate forms of transport. During the election campaign, he said, Prime Minister Trudeau promised subsidies for Canadian developed transportation systems, a federal takeover of passenger rail services and establishment of a national urban transportation development corporation.

"Only the prime minister is entitled to respond to that kind of a question on behalf of the government," Mr. Turner replied. Mr. Trudeau leaves today for Helsinki for a European security summit conference.

Clauses of the bill raising the air travel tax and reducing the wine sales tax passed quickly Monday. The tax on Canada-United States flights goes to eight per cent from five per cent.

Mr. Turner said the maximum tax on flights to all destinations will be $8 with a flat $8 tax on flights to locations other than the continental U.S.

The cut on excise tax for wines is equivalent to 6½ cents on a 25-ounce bottle of most wines. And the five per cent tax on insulation is to be eliminated.

Newspapermen Called To Testify on Reid

OTTAWA (CP) — Publisher Mark Farrell and at least five editorial members of the Montreal Gazette will be asked to appear before a parliamentary committee investigating the newspaper's allegations that Parliamentary Secretary John Reid leaked information on proposed excise tax changes.

Rod Blaker, Liberal Lachine-Lakeshore), chairman of the Commons privileges and elections committee said Monday night they will be invited to set a date convenient to them for appearances in the latter half of August.

Besides Mr. Farrell, those invited to appear are the chief editorial writer, the executive editor, the managing editor, the city editor and reporter Jacques Hamilton.

The newspaper alleged last Thursday that Mr. Reid (Lac-St-Jean-Rainy River) was "fed advance details of last November's federal budget and shared details with manufacturers who could gain from the information." Mr. Reid is parliamentary secretary to Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp.

The newspaper retracted that statement Friday, saying that he leaked details of a tax change that came after the November budget. Mr. Reid denied the allegations and asked for a committee investigation.

The Gazette said in an editorial Friday that Mr. Reid "disclosed advance information not about last November's budget itself, but about a later amendment to the budget."

Mr. Reid said he plans to use The Gazette and La Presse, a French-language Montreal daily newspaper that published "a verbatim translation" of The Gazette's Thursday article.

The committee also will study the allegation that Mr. Reid had advance knowledge from official sources of government intentions to amend the tax bill to remove the excise tax on small boats.

The 10-per-cent tax was imposed in the November budget and removed by amendment made public in the Commons Jan. 28, 1975.

Sinclair Stevens, (York-Simcoe) one of two Progressive Conservatives on the steering committee, said he proposed that Mr. Reid be asked to testify first but the motion was refused.

The motion to invite the Gazette people late in August and have Mr. Reid testify first also received an urgent

"We thought we'd defeated it," Mr. Stevens said, "but then the big guns started to appear."

Mr. Blaker had two votes because he is chairman and that was enough to push the motion through despite opposition protests.

"It was so incredible that we had got up and walked out," Mr. Stevens said.

He said it appears as though the Liberals "are having real second thoughts" about the whole inquiry.

New Harbor Controls Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Harbors Board will be replaced by a ports commission under a new ports act to be introduced in Parliament next winter, Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Monday.

The announcement by Mr. Marchand in a news release follows the recommendations of a committee under George Scott, senior assistant deputy transport minister.

Mr. Marchand said Roy Hillier, administrator of the marine wing which will operate the proposed commission, will have a committee charged with working out the operational and financial details of the new organization. Legislation is expected "within six months or so," he said.

The proposed act would delegate more operating responsibility to harbors board ports. About 25 ports would have commissions of up to seven members, most of them federal nominees.

These ports would be part of the national commission which would directly control the 275 small harbors and wharves.

Regional advisory bodies, consisting of the chairman of the port commissions, provincial representatives and others, also would be created.

A national ports policy board consisting of the four regional advisory board chairmen and four other members would advise the ports commissioner.

The day-to-day operations of ports could not be run from Ottawa, Mr. Marchand said. However, Ottawa "must have the final say on major port matters and must be satisfied that the ports are being well-managed."

Astronauts' Error Caused Gas Leak

HONOLULU (AP) — A slipup by the Apollo astronauts caused poisonous rocket fumes to flow into their cabin as they headed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown ending a joint United States-Soviet space flight, space agency officials say.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials refused to call it pilot error.

They said the U.S. astronauts may have failed to throw two necessary switches because an electronic squeal disrupted communications in the Apollo. The two switches were to open an automatic landing system.

The unofficial account of the incident was released Monday as Thomas Stafford, Donald Slayton and Vance Brand prepared to end a four-day stay in orbit. They were being taken to secluded quarters today to begin 19 days in isolation.

The astronauts are to continue tape recording their accounts of the mission during their isolation. The seclusion was ordered because their gas-inflamed lungs are vulnerable to infection.

Dr. Glynn Lunney, technical director of the Apollo-Soyuz mission which ended last Thursday, said precise details of what caused the gas leak are still unclear.

A lapse in communication apparently occurred between Slayton, who was calling off checklist items, and Brand, who was to have switched the automatic system on.

Failure to throw the switches as the Apollo command module was dropping toward an ocean splashdown meant that small steering rocket motors were not shut off.

One of the motors was located on the outside of the module, just two feet from a small duct that sucked air into the cabin to equalize pressure. Through this valve came a cloud of nitrogen tetroxide, an element of the rocket fuel that sent the crew into a coughing spell that lasted until the module landed.

Once on the water, the spacecraft turned upside down. Stafford, the flight commander, freed himself from his inverted couch and fell to the bottom of the cabin, but he managed to crawl back up and unpack a set of oxygen masks, which may have saved the men from serious injury from the gas. At one point, Brand passed out for about a minute.

Meanwhile, the astronauts spent most of Monday resting and giving debriefing reports.

Refused More Money, Mother Leaves Children

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — "As long as you don't want to give me more money I'll leave them with you," the woman told Robert Zinkus, assistant director of Worcester's welfare office as she walked away, leaving seven children behind.

Zinkus said officials arranged temporary accommodations for the children, who range in age between 6 and 13. He refused to identify the mother and would not say who was taking care of the children.

"Right now we're trying to locate the woman," he said.

State officials in Boston said a family of eight would be eligible for a basic monthly grant of $368.30 under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. The family also could get food stamps, medicaid and some supplemental grants, officials said.

Black Woman on Trial As White Jailer Slain

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — A black woman on trial for the murder of a white jailer she says was trying to attack her predicts the prosecution is "going to be out like wolves to get me."

Joan Little, 21, made the statement while talking with reporters during a lunch break soon after testimony began in her trial Monday.

Her comments came after a Washington, D.C., police officer told the court he found the partially nude body of Clarence Allegood in the Beaufort County jail cell that had been occupied by Miss Little.

Sgt. Jerry Helms, the first prosecution witness, said Allegood's body was naked from the waist down. Helms said the jailer, 62, had an ice pick in his right hand and his trousers in his left hand.

Patrolman Johnny Rose said he made a quick examination of Allegood's body, including an attempt to find a pulse, but did not recall seeing anything in his hand.

Helms said he went to the jail about 4 a.m. last Aug. 27 at Rose's request to assist in the booking of a female prisoner.

Rose said that after the discovery of Allegood's body, he released his prisoner, a woman arrested for drunkenness, returned to his patrol car and started searching for Miss Little.

Both officers testified that a pair of men's shoes were on the floor outside the cell. Rose wore only an undershirt, shirt and socks.

Helms said a pair of eyeglasses and men's underwear were on the floor beside the cell block where Allegood was slumped. He and Rose both testified that they noticed blood on the jailer's mouth.

A medical report released Monday said Allegood had died of stabbed 11 times with an ice pick.

Miss Little was the only female prisoner in the jail at the time Allegood was slain. The men's cells were across the hall in a separate block.

Prosecutor Rex says she stabbed the jailer as he tried to attack her. She fled the jail, but turned herself in to state authorities eight days later.

Miss Little said the prosecutors are intent on sending her to the gas chamber, a mandatory penalty for first-degree murder under North Carolina law.

The trial was moved from Washington, a small eastern North Carolina town, to Wake County Superior Court in Raleigh on defence request.

Blackbird Assaults Golfers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The pond fronting the 11th tee at the Grandview golf course isn't the only hazard. The worst hazard is a bird protecting its turf at the water's edge.

The red-winged blackbird swoops down at every player approaching the clump of bushes it calls home. It makes special targets of players with bright caps or bald heads.

"He actually landed on one guy's Panama hat and pecked at it and he's drawn blood from a couple of bald-headed guys," said Chick Schumann, a club-house attendant.

"He's a vicious little rascal. You can tell he's mad."

The male blackbird, with its brilliant red and yellow stripes on the wings, has become somewhat of a legend at the golf course.

While players get through the hole by waving off the bird's attacks with their golfclubs, most would hate to see the bird go.

"He's a hazard, but little bird I've ever seen," says golfer Paul LaMarque.

Roy Dunn, who wears a white golf cap while he's on the links, said the bird has been bothering him for two years.

"At first I was afraid he was mean and wanted to peck out my eyes out, but he never tried," Dunn said. "He hates my white hat. He hits it two or three times every time I go by.

"For a while I thought he was protecting babies. But he bothers golfers from spring to fall. There couldn't be babies in there all that time.

"I think he just plain doesn't like golfers."

Underwater Cable Meets No Opposition

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Construction of a submarine, electrical cable bringing power from the new Lennox generating station to Prince Edward County drew no formal opposition from area residents and needs only government approval, says an energy ministry spokesman.

Andrew Fraser of the ministry of energy, said during an interview Monday there have been no submissions. "The minister (Dennis Timbrell) has to decide what he wants now," Mr. Timbrell was not available for comment.

The cable will be designed to carry 230,000 volts into the county, "assuming the county of power for its needs in the foreseable fiure," said Norm Manning, public relations officer for Ontario Hydro in Belleville.

"The cable will cross the Bay of Quinte near Green's Point — a distance of about one mile. Engineering studies have not yet been made though the project is expected to cost "roughly" $4.5 million, Mr. Manning said. The project could be completed in no more than three years.

The report of the crossing was made available to the public May 12 The government set July 15 as a submission deadline.

"There were inquiries at the Belleville and Toronto offices but there were no objections filed," said Mr. Fraser.

"We can't go ahead with the project until the minister makes a move," said Mr. Manning.

Making Hotel Brochure Another Tourist Lure

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Developing a brochure to attract business for a hotel chain is not a spur-of-the moment operation.

For a firm which specializes in such a trade, it means weeks of work for different clients in various locations from coast-to-coast, utilization of the talents of top-notch photographers and employment of talented models.

Bill Bard Color Ltd. of Monticello, N.Y. was in the city last week along with two Florida photographers and four Toronto models — to devise a new brochure for the Four Seasons Motor Hotel here.

"Hopefully, the brochure will bring more tourists to the Belleville area," said Al Bard, a spokesman for the American firm.

His firm is in the midst of a cross-Canada tour of duty. So far this year, it has completed brochure work for the Hilton International Group in Quebec City, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Three months ago, it completed a brochure for the Park Plaza in Toronto and will return next month for a new brochure for the second recently-constructed plaza.

On its current contract with the Four seasons chain, the firm will work at the motor hotel on Jarvis St. in Toronto following its departure from Belleville. Before coming here, it spent time at the Inn on the Park.

Mr. Bard said his crew here was shooting still scenes of the dining and various function rooms, ofc Terrasian scenes around the Bay of Quinte, of sightseeing spots in and around Belleville and of the hotel at sunset.

He noted this was the first time his firm had worked in Belleville.

Mr. Bard pointed out his firm attempts as much it possible to keep most of the work Canadian. "Although we're an American firm, all of our production and printing is done in Toronto for our Canadian clients," he commented.

PICTON — Tenders will be called for the interior painting of 60 residences at Price Edward Heights, the Ontario government complex for the mentally retarded.

Union Negotiators Favor Agreement

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

International Harvester staff may be back at their jobs this week if the 230-member union ratifies an agreement reached by the negotiating committees and a provincial mediator midnight, Monday.

Negotiating committees for the company and the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers met for 13 hours Monday to thrash out an agreement but no details were released following the meeting.

Ontario Labor Relations Board president William McGuire said during an interview with The Intelligencer, "It was a most difficult mediation in all respects.

"But, it's been a real victory for the collective bargaining process," he said. "I wouldn't say the union came out on top. Both sides agreed to compromise — allowing the workers to get on with their jobs."

Mr. McGuire did not elaborate on why the mediation was difficult and said only that, "of their own free will, both sides met and reached a settlement."

There is nothing binding about the agreement and does not restrict continued strike action o: the company's ability to lock the union out until a settlement; is reached, he said.

Ray Ryan, chairman of the union negotiating committee said following the meeting he and other union representatives will advise ratification of the contract at a union meeting to be held Wednesday at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall at 8 p.m.

Mr. Ryan would not divulge details of the mediated settlement. "We feel we won a victory and that's all I can say until I give the membership offer details."

Ontario district representative for the union Ted Whithames said, "We have accomplished something."

Neither would comment further.

The union voted to go on strike in June supporting negotiating committee demands of a 75 per cent pay increase and unlimited cost of living benefits in both years of a two-year contract.

The company's last offer gave a capped cost of living clause in the first year and unlimited benefit in the second year. The total package of wage and benefits offered by the company would have given workers an increase of about 36 per cent.

'Handymen' Factor In Wire Problems

Home handymen and "sloppy tradesmen" are the most dangerous factors in installation of aluminum wire, says spokesmen for Ontario Hydro.

In a move to ease the problem, the Canadian Standards Association in consultation with Ontario Hydro are making things difficult for either the do-it-yourself expert or the tradesmen.

Effective July 1 regulations passed by the CSA forbid the sale of aluminum wire to private individuals and effective Aug. 1, all electrical receptacles must be marked showing their capability to handle aluminum conductors. However, until back stock of aluminum wire is sold from various commercial outlets, individuals will be able to purchase it, said Ontario Hydro public relations officer Norm Manning.

For the tradesmen come more checks by Hydro inspectors.

"Our inspectors are extra critical of aluminum-wired connections to make sure the job is done well," an inspection department spokesman said.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters — and part-time bat-chasers — responded to the following calls for assistance during a 36-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Monday, July 28, 6:15 p.m. —reset alarm system at Montgomery Lodge on Farley Ave.

Tuesday, July 29, 3:40 a.m. — occupant besieged by bat in apartment at 276 Coleman St., bat removed by firemen, no casualties.

Like copper wiring, "it takes special expertise to install it safely," said Mr. Manning. "If you have hoey workmanship, you're going to have problems."

The controvers continues to boil over the merits and alleged dangers of aluminum wiring with one Ontario township banning its use completely.

"It's just not true that there are more fires stemming from aluminum wiring," said Mr. Manning.

Aluminum wiring has been a common use for the past 20, 30 or 40 years but the whole matter of safety is just a question of workmanship, he said.

Percival Pickering, of Hydro's regional inspection office in Belleville, said during interview Monday "99 per cent of homes built in the last three or four years have aluminum wiring."

To his knowledge there have been no fires in the Belleville area caused by aluminum wiring and he would not be reluctant to have aluminum wiring in his home.

He said: "There's no way we can check every receptacle in every house done by a contractor — but we make random checks and get a fair idea how well a contractor does his work."

"Some, we check more closely," said Mr. Pickering.

The immediate benefit of aluminum wiring is that it's cheaper.

A spokesman for Horlock Electric Co. Ltd. said it is $2 less expensive for each outlet, or receptacle when aluminum is used rather than copper. With 60 outlets in a home, the savings would amount to $120.

The same spokesman said staff receive updated training on how to handle aluminum wiring.

Developing Skills

Eighteen-year-old Bernadette Phillips talks with Hastings Manor resident Gladys Badgley about her work at the craft and therapy section at the Dundas St. E. home. Bernadette is currently working at the manor on the Ontario Experience '75 program which places students in various social agencies to learn first-hand experience at social work.

She Spends Summer Learning About Age

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Nicholson Catholic College student Bernadette Phillips is spending the summer learning about the elderly — and by her own admission there have been a few surprises.

It's all part of her eight-week job with Ontario Experience '75 sponsored by the ministry of community and social services. The 19-year-old Shannonville resident is one of 10 county students working in homes for the aged in Hastings County.

Ontario Experience '75 gives 50 students across Ontario an opportunity to work in a diversity of social service agencies, including recreation departments, sheltered workshops and day nurseries as well as homes for the aged.

Bernadette is working at Hastings Manor as an assistant to the craft and therapy workers and is getting first-hand experience working with the residents.

"We are mainly involved with a type of therapy here whereby we teach crafts to stimulate some of the older people who perhaps have been through long illnesses or suffering some form of senility," said Bernadette, who will be entering Grade 13 this September.

Bernadette explained that utilizing craft instruction as therapy for the senior citizens gives her an unique opportunity to learn about their problems.

"The elderly are not the way most people imagine," said Bernadette, "most people just think they sit and reminisce — but that's not true." She said many of the elderly resident have deep thoughts and can provide a good insight into life.

She explained the challenge of the job is that of trying to stimulate and draw the residents out of depression through crafts and talking. The residents can take knitting, macrame, weaving and quilting. Bernadette works with about 10 people a day.

City Composer Gets Rotary Prize

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

One Belleville youth, Christopher Tracey, hears music everywhere, even in the poetry he writes, and for the second time he has been chosen to receive a Rotary Club creative contest award because of it.

Christopher was one of five top winners among the more than 1,000 entries received by the Rotary International from 844 poets in 25 countries.

Christopher, 18, entered the poetry contest last winter during the school year when his English teacher suggested the project to the class, but he said it was the first poetry trial he had entered and had no particular illusion about winning.

"To be perfectly honest," he told the weekly meeting of Rotary Club Monday, "the only reason I entered was I needed the money ($75) to help pay for my music education at University of Western Ontario, next year."

Previously Christopher had received a music scholarship from the local club which he had planned to put to the same purpose.

Christopher is a musician first, he said, speaking after the meeting.

"Poetry has a rythm that is similar to music and I enjoy writing it, but music is my first love," he said.

Currently Christopher is writing a musical, which is near completion, and he hopes it will be performed some day.

"The story is about an Amish girl who leaves the solitudes of the farm life to explore the city and look for a young man who has also run away," he said.

"I hope to be able to show about the pains of loneliness that people are inflicting on one another without any thought whatsoever," Chronicle said. "It's at a matter of having respect for people."

Peter feels his poetry complements his music.

"The writing fits in with the music because I find I need a story line to work a piece of music around," he said, "but while most people write the words first I take a different approach and write the music first."

Peter comes from a musical family where everyone plays an instrument.

"I basically taught myself to read music, but that wasn't good enough for university, so for the past two years I have been studying with Mr. Johnston, the music teacher and organist for Tabernacle Church," he said.

"In order to study music at the university level it is necessary to have attained a Grade 8 (musical level)," he said, "and I would never have been able to do this without the help of Mr. Johnston."

"Our music teachers would tak on a fulltime student for that short a period."

"I am going to be studying voice at university but I think I want to be a composer," he said.

Rape Trial Date Set

A 21-year-old Belleville man charged with rape will appear in provincial court next Sept. 5 for either a preliminary hearing or trial following his court appearance here Monday during which the date was set.

Lynn William Parker of 220 A West Moira St. has been charged with one count of rape in connection with an incident July 10 involving a 22-year-old Chatham woman.

The incident occurred near a foot path in a wooded area between Tracey St. and Bell Blvd.

Poetry Is Music

Budding poet and musician Christopher Tracey receives a $75 cheque presented by Rotary President Neil Britton on behalf of the international organization. Christopher won the poetry award in competition with more than 840 poets from 35 countries and will use the money to finance his music studies at university in the fall.

Bear Loses Bout with Car

MADOC — When Constable Dereck Travis of Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc was summoned to gather the "bear" facts about a traffic accident near this village last Monday, he did just that.

Police said today the accident involved a collision between a 250 lb. 1969 Oldsmobile and a 300 lb. black bear which darted into the car's path on Highway 62 about three miles north of here.

The bear was killed in the impact but the driver, Gerald Blackburn, 28, of Ekfrida was unhurt. The collision caused $300 damage to the right front fender of the southbound car after the bear ran out of the west ditch.

The provincial ministry of natural resources office at Trenton retrieved the carcass, police said. If the meat is good, it will be given to a Hasting County senior citizens home for consumption.

Handyman 'Horrors'

In his attempt to bring electricity from home to garage, one homeowner turned an empty tobacco tin into a junction box — "a perfect example of some of the home handyman horrors we come across," said Ontario Hydro inspection department head Percival Pickering. Because special expertise is required in the installation of aluminum wiring in the home, the Canadian Standard Association has regulated that aluminum wire only be sold to qualified contractors.

Five RBI's. Fisk Powers Sox to Another

CARLTON FISK

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Carlton Fisk was a one-man wrecking crew in Boston's Fenway Park Monday night.

He hit a run-scoring single in the first inning, two-run homer in the fourth inning, another homer in the seventh and added his five runs batted in with a bases-loaded, 10-batting single in the bottom of the ninth that gave the red-hot Red Sox a 7-4 victory over Milwaukee Brewers.

In other American League baseball action, Detroit Tigers shut out New York Yankees 3-0, Minnesota Twins defeated Kansas City 9-8, Oakland A's beat Texas Rangers 12-6, Chicago White Sox defeated California Angels 3-2 and Cleveland Indians beat Baltimore Orioles 7-5 in 10 innings.

"When we were down 5-4, you'd have thought we were up by four runs," said Fisk, commenting on the spirit in the Boston dugout.

"We just know we're not going to lose. It's that type of feeling. I've never experienced anything like it. We've got so much talent. It's unbelievable. Enthusiasm? I've never seen anything like this."

When Fisk returned to the lineup about a month ago—after a year's layoff due to knee surgery last year and a broken arm in this season's spring training—Boston was battling for the lead in the AL East Division.

Now the Red Sox have won 18 of their last 21 games and lead runner-up Baltimore by nine games.

In 31 games, Fisk has batted .330, hit five homers, drove in 21 runs and scored 18. "I can't say Carlton's the only reason we're going so well now," said manager Darrell Johnson, "but he's certainly one of them. He's helped to lift us when we needed a little lift."

Winning reliever Jim Willoughby struck out four batters in 3 3-3 innings and picked up his first victory in one of his five saves he has in nine appearances for Boston.

Vern Ruhle pitched a six-hitter for Detroit to hand the Yankees their fourth consecutive loss and third consecutive shutout. Willie Horton's homer off Larry Gura started the decisive two-run second inning.

Lyman Bostock's bases-loaded single with one out in the bottom of the ninth boosted the Twins past Kansas City and handed Whitey Herzog his first loss in five games as manager with Rich Gossage.

Reggie Jackson's 26th homer of the season, a two-run shot in the fourth inning, and Joe Rudi's two RBI helped Oakland's A's rout Texas and widen their West Division lead over Kansas City to 10½ games.

Chicago pitcher Wilbur Wood recorded his sixth victory in his last 11 decisions, teaming with Rich Gossage to six-hit California. Nyls Nyman's two-run single followed by Brian Downing's sacrifice fly in the fifth inning gave the White Sox all the runs they needed.

Rico Carty's leadoff walk, Oscar Gamble's double and Charlie Spikes's two-run single gave Cleveland its 10-inning triumph over Baltimore.

Phillies Go Out of Their Way To Make Things Interesting

DAVE CASH

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just when it looked like baseball fans wouldn't have anything to get excited about for the rest of the summer, what with Oakland, Cincinnati and Boston running away with their respective divisions, along came Philadelphia.

The Phillies beat Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2 Monday night. The loss left Pittsburgh a respectable 4½ games in front in the National League East, but at least the Phils are close enough to stir some sabre-rattling on both sides.

"They think they're the best. We think we're the best," said Philadelphia second baseman Dave Cash. "It's just going to be a matter of who goes out there and does the job."

"The Phillies have a good solid ballclub and when they're getting the pitching they're going to be tough," said Pittsburgh outfielder Al Oliver. "We know what we're capable of. We've done it in the past and it's just a matter of going out and doing it again."

In other National League action, Cincinnati Reds gained more ground by beating San Francisco Giants 8-4, New York Mets defeated St. Louis Cardinals 11-7, Atlanta Braves beat Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3, San Diego Padres blanked Houston Astros 2-0 and Chicago Cubs beat Montreal Expos 4-2.

A pair of young right-handers, Pittsburgh's Bruce Kison and Philadelphia's Larry Christenson, were locked in a 1-1 battle of the eighth when the Phils' broke it open with three runs. Dick Allen's home triple drove the right field line drive in two runs and Ollie Brown singled for the third one.

Greg Luzinski and Garry Maddox doubled home the other Philadelphia runs as Christenson, 6-2, finished with a six-hitter. Willie Stargell hit his 20th homer of the year and Al Oliver hit his 11th to account for the Pirates' scoring.

Cincinnati stretched its lead in the West Division to 13½ games over Los Angeles but also managed to set a major-league baseball record by failing to get a complete game out in its pitching staff for the 4th consecutive contest. Dan Driessen hit a three-run homer in the first inning and George Foster replaced him in the sixth inning to hit a two-run single for the Reds. Chris Speier homered for San Francisco.

Felix Millan, who has hit in 31 of his last 32 games, collected two doubles and two singles and drove in three runs for New York. Del Unser added a two-run single as Joe Matlack struggled to his 12th victory in 16 decisions. Ken Reitz had four hits, including a two-run homer, for St. Louis.

The Braves jumped on Los Angeles reliever Mike Marshall for three runs in the eighth—a two-run single by Biff Pocoroba and an RBI-single by Phil Niekro—to win it.

Dave Freisleben, 5-10, tossed a five-hitter and drove in a run with an infield grounder as San Diego's winning streak and Houston's losing streak both reached five games. William McCovey belted his 11th homer of the season for the Padres' other run.

Cubs Edge Expos Right Time For Home Run

JOSE CARDENAL

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose Cardenal just hit the right at the fact he has a court date this morning on an assault and battery charge.

"I never think about it," said Jose, who hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning Monday to break a 2-2 tie and beach Chicago Cubs to a 4-2 National League baseball victory over Montreal Expos.

"I'll be in court tomorrow morning, but I'll also be back in time for the game. I think, maybe, they'll continue it."

The court date stems back to an altercation with a policeman July 3 at Chicago's O'Hare Airport when the Cubs were returning from a road trip. Jose's wife and the policeman were arguing over a parking violation when Cardenal allegedly struck the policeman.

"I never think about it," said Cardenal, whose home run was his sixth of the season but only his first since May 31 when he hit a pair against Los Angeles Dodgers.

"When I hat second in the lineup, I don't go for home runs," said Cardenal. "I swing hard and try to move runners along. Now, when I hat fourth, I swing different. I swing for hits and maybe even a home run."

Cardenal's homer enabled Bill Bonham to raise his record to 10-4 as he defeated the Expos for a third time this season. Twice he worked out of serious jams as he finished with a five-hitter, striking out nine and walking two.

"I had good stuff all along, but I made it hard on myself sometimes," said Bill Bonham. "I've been considering no-hit walking battersand it seems to work in reverse."

The only runs Bonham allowed came in the third inning on a walk to Pepe Mangual and singles by Jim Dwyer, Larry Parrish and Tim Blitzner.

After Blitzner's single, Bonham fanned Larry Parrish and gave up a sacrifice fly to pitcher Pete Mackanin to pop out.

Bonham didn't allow another base runner until Tim Foli singled in the seventh on Larvin Blitzner hit a tap back to Bonham who threw wide of second on an attempted force. But he set the side down on a fielder's choice and a fly ball to end the inning.

Matthews Wastes No Time In Filling Vacancy

After depriving himself of Bob Boyle, Jim Matthews didn't waste any time recruiting a new coach for his hockey team. Matthews had removed Boyle from the coaching position.

Meeting Bonnar whose credentials you may check elsewhere in the paper will quite adequately bridge that gaping void left when Matthews blew open the coaching job.

"My main objective will be to create harmony throughout the club," said Bonnar. "I'm not that familiar with the situation, but I understand things have been running at a smoothly as they should the last few years."

Bonnar's familiarity, or lack of, with the Bobcats' ailments might be just what the doctor ordered. He'll be able to look at the entire situation with an open, completely objective point of view.

He is not 100 per cent certain, however, of his local job. It's will be under his wing.

"I still have to make one more trip to the doctor," said Bonnar, "but he has indicated that my injury isn't responding to treatment and I might better be laid aside for awhile."

Bonnar's love for the game is what motivated his acceptance of the vacant job.

"I've never coached before," he said, "but if I can't play I guess coaching is the next best thing."

The local Fry Ford salesman has played under some excellent hockey mentors. (Ted Garvin and Bob Neil are just two) and that should certainly help him in establishing a hockey coaching system of his own.

An extra something Bonnar has going for him, which is only help the Cats, is he's never played on a team.

"Last season was the only time I haven't played for a winner," said Bonnar. "I was injured for most of the year, but still losing wasn't a nice experience."

So, Belleville Bobcat fans finally have a ray of sunshine in the somewhat clouded horizon.

CLIFFS — It's apology time. Just a second 'til I tune up the violin.

Seriously, I would like to apologize to Carol McFarlane. In Monday's edition we ran her picture with her sister's name under it. So, you were in the right place, but you had the wrong line.

Carol punched out four singles for the second Belleville and District Ladies Softball Game in which Belleville and District much recognition as possible. One thing bugs me, we did keep the mistake in the family.

Motorland Pro Tournament Takes Shape

With the Festival Weekend, including the Motorland Chrysler Pro Tournament less than one week away, it is shaping up once again to be a great three days of golf, August 3-3-4.

Also included in the Festival was a Mixed Pro Ball event, to be played Sunday, as well as three flights in the Men's Invitational. The B and C flights will be played Saturday, while the A flight, the top amateurs, will tee it up Monday morning, before the pros get on the course.

A top field should be on hand for the pro tourney, the fourth held under the sponsorship of Motorland. The tournament has been running for some 11 years now, including 1969 in which it was run by the CPGA.

Among the golfers already entered the last year's champion, Al Paterson, of Bayview, former player on the United States tour, and now Pro at Toronto Weston Club, Gary Bowerman, from Belleville originally, and former winners Frank Whibley and Ken Duggan.

About 40 entries have already been received by Bay of Quinte Pro George Balas, who anticipates a field of 45 - 50 to compete for the $375 first prize in the $1,500 tourney.

The Pro tourney has run into some difficulty in attracting the top tour players, however, with the other CPGA events also going on that weekend.

The Northern PGA Tournament wraps up its play in North Bay on Sunday, with some players trying to get down to the Belleville tourney, while the Manitoba Open on the Peter Jackson Tour, also finishes up on the day preceding the Motorland round.

Balas is still confident of a top notch field, however, and is keeping himself in the field of club pros playing the 18-hole tourney.

He would like a shot at winning the tournament. "After doing all the ground work and publicity for the event for its 11 years, I just wish I could win the thing once," he stated rather objectedly.

Last year, he came in with an 80, 12 shots back of winner Paterson, who carded 68.

The public is invited to come out for the three days of golf at the Trent Hills course on the Festival weekend, with no admission charged for any of the three tournaments going on.

Peter Elson (right) discusses the importance of physical conditioning on hockey players. Elson found himself answering numerous questions following his lecture yesterday at Four Seasons Hotel. The fitness expert is one of the clinicians at the week long Tam Hockey Symposium.

Bonnar Has Class Hockey Background

Experience Speaks for Itself

Meehan Bonnar is a right winger who isn't quite sure about his future in hockey.

He has fallen into a category many athletes end up in — he's had a bad injury and he's not sure he can come back. But that doesn't mean he isn't going to give it one back of a good try.

Originally from Ottawa, Bonnar settled here in 1970 when he joined the Ontario Provincial Police Department.

He had hoped to play Senior Hockey here that year, but only got into some exhibition games, before the OPP told him he was a cop and not a hockey player.

Bonnar didn't give up though, as he played Intermediate in Napanee for the Comets.

He decided to give up on his police career for better things in hockey, and became a member of the Detroit Red Wings organization.

But before all of that Bonnar had some interesting credentials.

He was the Ontario Hockey Association senior championship in 1966 with St. Thomas, and was drafted that year by the Boston Bruins.

He played on the Bruins farm team, Oklahoma City, with a good number of players now in the National Hockey League. For example: Wayne Cashman, Bernie Parent, Doug Favell, Barry Gibbs and Ace Bailey. Unfortunately, he hurt his knee and was told by his doctor to sit out a year.

That was when he joined the OPP, but he couldn't stay off skates long, as he was with Virginia the next season, a team owned by Detroit of the NHL.

One season there he was second on the team in scoring, with 26 goals and 42 points.

Last season he played with Syracuse, where he had 13 goals midway through the year. That was when the old injury problem cropped up again.

This time it was Bonnar's shoulder, as he was slammed into the boards after scoring a goal.

It turned out he had torn ligaments, and he was given cortisone shots. That enabled him to play a little more, but did him more harm than good, as he broke his collarbone.

MEEHAN BONNAR

Surgery was required, and now Bonnar's hockey career is up in the air. He did have one doctor tell him he'd lost 15 per cent of his strength, but he has been working out and plans to do so all summer.

One way he keeps in shape is by jogging every morning, with another hockey player, Larry Mavety, of the Toronto Toros.

Bonnar is not without major league experience, as he donned the Red Wings uniform a number of times last year.

"I didn't really get to prove myself" said Bonnar.

"I remember one year I had scored 12 goals and Bill Dineen had 10, yet he was called up and given steady work, and I wasn't" added Bonnar.

His agent, Brian Lewis, who handles 80 per cent of the Red Wings, may also have a deal in the makings with Indianapolis of the World Hockey Association.

He has certainly proven he can score in the clutch, as he scored four straight game winning goals in the playoffs for Virginia, one of the years he was there.

Bonnar prefers to think of himself as a steady, two way player who scores consistently.

Buchanan Retires From Fight Game

LONDON (AP) — Ken Buchanan said Last Friday, Buchanan retained his European title by knocking out Giacarlo Usai of Italy in Cagliari, Sardinia, before an angry crowd. Both Buchanan and his father were hurt by flying glass when bottles were thrown into the ring.

Buchanan wrs the British title in 1968, the European crown in 1970 and took the WBA title from Panama's Ismael Laguna in 1971.

He never has been a great favorite with British fans, and since he won the world title, the best of his fights have been overseas.

Buchanan said, Friday, Buchanan announced his retirement Monday after he turned down a fight for the World Boxing Association lightweight title.

Buchanan, 30, told reporters of his decision to retire after Roberto Duran of Panama was reported to be willing to put his WBA title on the line against Buchanan in New York on Oct. 24.

Buchanan lost the title to Duran in New York in 1972.

"I have had a contract for over three years for a return with Duran, but it has been nothing but promises," Buchanan said.

Nicholas Still Waiting in England

FOLKESTONE, England (CP) — After waiting more than two weeks to swim the English Channel, Toronto swimmer Cindy Nicholas is fighting a battle of morale and physical fitness.

Cindy, 17, said today that tides and winds looked right for an attempt at the swim to France tonight. But fog was moving in the English coast and could delay her departure again.

"Now, we're just waiting."

The swim has been on-again, off-again for days as Cindy and her parents sat out heavy tides and gale-force winds.

Meanwhile, she has been swimming about 4½ miles a day in a nearby pool to keep in shape.

Sunday, she went to France, by boat, to gaze at the spot where she hopes to touch bottom about 21 miles from England and beat the cross-channel record of nine hours 25 minutes.

That was set in 1964 by Barry Watson of Britain.

Have Faith Has Purse

TORONTO (CP) — Have Faith was the featured $4,000 featured eighth race at Greenwood Raceway on Monday for his fastest winning time.

He paced the last four furlongs in better than a minute and finished 1½ lengths ahead, paying $9.20, $4.20 and $2.70.

In the ninth race, Charlie Del and Fury's Shoe combined for an exactor of $65.20.

Trent Lobell in the first race and W. B. Lucky in the second combined for a daily double of $55.70.

An exactor combinatio of Norwalk and Kates Image — the third returned $35.20.

A crowd of 9,070 wagered $656,653.

Chiefs Down Gaels

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels 16-11 Monday to clinch second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A standings.

Tom Dyrgalov and Dave Lepore led the Chiefs with four goals apiece while George Chandler added three. John Campbell added a pair while single goals went to Henry Van Oort, Rick Halliay and Greg MacDonald.

Scott MacLean and Rich Barrow-Colnich each scored two for Oshawa. Single goals went to Dean Morgan, Ted Jak, Tom Wrezgitt, Stan Cockerton, Mark Kashul, Jeff Mason, and Rick Gray.

Play resumes tonight with St. Catharines at Lakeshore and Peterborough meeting Rexdale.

Dr. Richard Lonetto (centre) a sports psychologist explains one of his projects to the group viewing it by way of video tape recorder. Lonetto worked with the University of Guleph Gryphon's goalie to see just what effect on the hockey player a blindfold would have. The results were incredible as during the third blindfold session the goalie had adjusted to working without his sight and was making stops and cutting down angles as if the handicap didn't exist. Lonetto's presentation was part of his lecture program at the Tam O'Shanter Hockey Symposium, being held this week at Four Seasons Hotel.

Will Remain in Oakland Two Years

Golden Seals Sold To Swig and Company

OAKLAND (AP) — Melvin Swig's formal takeover of California Golden Seals was a quiet manoeuvre but the ringing of telephones provided some welcome background noise.

"We've had quite a few calls already from fans asking about tickets for next season," the new head man of the National Hockey League team said Monday.

Until last Friday, when the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency approved plans for a new indoor arena in that city, there was a strong possibility that the Seals would be based in Seattle for the 1975-76 season. Swig's 10 member group had NHL approval to acquire the team but would have withdrawn its offer if there was no assurance of a new 18,000-seat home arena in San Francisco.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said Monday in Montreal that the sale of the franchise, for an undisclosed price, was completed Sunday. Swig, working with San Francisco developer Lyman Jee on planning the new arena, apparently was too busy to make the announcement.

The Seals, operated by the league at a heavy financial loss the last 1½ seasons, will continue to play in the 12,000-seat Oakland Coliseum at least through the next two seasons, then make the 15-mile move to downtown San Francisco when the new building is ready.

"We'll do everything first class all the way," pledged Swig, a 37-year-old San Francisco businessman who played for a league hockey for Brown University and was president of the old San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League.

"We'll lose money for a few years. That's part of the price we're paying."

He repeated his contention that the Oakland facility's seating capacity is just too small to make a profitable NHL operation possible. And the Seals, a last-place team for several seasons, have played before sellout home crowds just a handful of times.

Swig said he didn't think Oakland fans would support the Seals in a lameduck team and lose interest.

"It's a Bay Area involvement," he said. "I think the fact that the team finished last again but still showed an increase in attendance last season proves there's some great hockey interest here."

Swig said the Seals' front office staff will stay on and that "I'll supervise the operation generally but won't be involved day-by-day."

Soviet Tour Still in Air

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations are still continuing for a North American tour of two hockey teams from the Soviet Union, Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League said Monday.

"There is no deal yet," he said. "We are still in the negotiating stage."

A report from Moscow quoted Tass, the official Soviet Union news agency, as saying the Central Army Sports Club, this year's Soviet champions, and Wings of the Soviets—the No. 2 team—will take on the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers, Boston Bruins, Buffalo Sabres, Montreal Canadiens, Pittsburgh Penguins, Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and New York Islanders.

"These are the eight teams," Campbell said. "We had to plan in advance to see which club would be available. If it's definite, I wish they'd advise us officially."

In 1972, the Soviet Union's national team played an eight-game series against an NHL all-star team. Last fall, the Soviets played an eight-game series against the top players from the World Hockey Association.

Als Out to Prove They Are Not All That Bad

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes have three things to prove in their Canadian Football League game tonight against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The first is that their 23-0 loss to the Roughriders in Regina in an exhibition game July 4 was not representative of the relative strengths of the clubs. The Alouettes also will be out to continue a home undefeated streak of 10 pre-season league and playoff games made up of 9 wins and three ties. Saskatchewan poses the perfect obstacle in that Montreal's last home loss was administered by the Roughies, 27-20, on Sept. 16, 1972.

And, perhaps most importantly, the Alouettes want to make the point to Montreal fans that they are worthy of support.

Despite a 32,000-seat stadium in the country's largest city, the Alouettes have long found themselves drawing from the CFL's gate-equalization plan instead of contributing to it.

The most embarrassing episode in Montreal's attendance troubles came when the 1975 all-star game pitting the Grey Cup champions against the best from the rest of the league, scheduled for June 24, was cancelled with fewer than 2,000 tickets sold.

But now the Als are coming off a lacklustre season with 33-23 win against the Tiger-Cats in Hamilton that has generated promising ticket sales.

"We have 16,000 sold," general manager Bob Geary said Monday, "including 11,500 season tickets. I can see a crowd of 25,000 or more. Considering our average last year of 17,000 or 18,000, we're happy.

"It could be the whole turnaround of our situation here. We've been in trouble here with a lot of seats beyond the goal line, but if people want to come and support us, they'll come.

"What those who come tonight will see is a Saskatchewan team that thrashed Calgary Stampeders 20-3 in its season opener and that head coach John Payne says is considerably improved from 1974.

"I think we're better in our defensive line and I think we're better in our offensive line," Payne said. "Plus our receivers are playing better than last year."

He said Saskatchewan's perennial offensive standouts, quarterback Ron Lancaster and fullback George Reed, are in top form.

"I've been very pleased with the way Ron and George have responded to their 14th seasons. Ron just gets better every year. It seems he's throwing well and is in better shape than he's been in somebody else in the past."

Reed, professional football's all-time leader in touchdowns, will be out after another mark as he goes for his 58th career

RON LANCASTER

GEORGE REED

100-yard rushing performance. Reed is tied at 58 with Jimmy Brown, former star runner with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

Reed scored one touchdown in Saskatchewan's opener to push his career total to 127, one more than Brown.

The game tonight will be carried on the full CTV television network starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

COUGH LEADS

TORONTO (CP) — Nigel Gough of Concord, Ont., and Peter Clare of Nashville, Ont., hold the lead in the Formula 100 and 2.5 litre sedan championships respectively going into the sixth round of the series Aug. 4 at Mosport Park. Gough leads the Formula 100 series by one point over David White of Brampton, Ont., and Clare has a 19-point lead over Werner Von Engelbrechten of Toronto.

Bombers Face Eskimos

EDMONTO (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers, sporting nine rookies and 14 second-year performers, go against a seasoned Edmonton Eskimo squad in the Western Football Conference tonight.

The Bombers are coming off a 17-9 win over British Columbia Lions in their season-opener last week, while the Eskimos, who ran up a 4-0 record in exhibition play, will be playing their first regular-season game.

Winnipeg running back Rich and Crump and middle linebacker Harry Walters are two of the rookies given favorable notice by the Bombers coaching staff for their performances last week.

The Eskimo starting unit includes only three players not with the team last year when the Eskimos made their second consecutive Grey Cup appearance—Sam Britts, Tom Lapetka and Wayne Matheraa.

Britts, who was certain as a rookie linebacker in 1973, jumped to the fiercely-contested World Football League last year and was welcomed back by the Eskimo coaching staff.

Defensive back Matheraa, obtained from British Columbia Lions, likes what he has found in Edmonton.

"Vancouver is a big city and there are lots of things to do. These guys here work harder, watch more films and ask more questions."

Lapetka, a veteran of the 1973 Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders and just back from the World Football League, said his old Ottawa squad and the Eskimos are "very, very similar."

The Eskimos haven't played for 13 days and the coaching staff says the players are ready.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, July 30

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's time to enjoy yourself doing "fun" things with family or friends, but if you splurge it'll bother you later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll get satisfaction working around the house to benefit the family. Avoid overdoing, or you'll wind up grouchy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you'll be about as much you could run into someone who's looking for an argument. When you do, keep it cool.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You perform well today in anything you put your hand to. Don't spoil it later by telling others how good you are. They know.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Travel will make you nervous int', though you've enjoyed an active day on the road. Plan to pack it in early.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you've called upon to help a friend financially, do it with a heavy advertising later. He or she comes.

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

"I wouldn't wear that dress to work, Amy . . . in my day they looked down on a girl in a low-cut blouse!"

considers this confidential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Handling large groups effectively is easy for you today. Others don't overextend your talents and be too boastful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your intuition is especially sharp today, but don't extend your theoretical thinking into the evening.

Aortic Surgery Affects Voice

By C. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had aortic surgery for correction of a large aortic aneurysm. He recovered well except for his voice. It sounds as though he has a bad case of laryngitis.

He was on a respirator a few hours after surgery. Could that have caused it? His voice is important to him in his work. He is a broadcaster. Will his voice come back? I have heard about Teflon injections. Please comment.—Mrs. L.

It is possible the voice change is related to the aortic surgery. Since it has been only three months since the operation, however, full recovery could not be expected. You might expect it.

Teflon injections have been used effectively to bolster weak areas of vocal cord disturbance. Teflon is a semi-liquid plastic material that has many uses in reconstructive surgery. In vocal cord surgery, there is a fairly prolonged period during which the voice should not be used. The specialist would be able to tell you whether or not aortic surgery is feasible, needed or timely.

The respiratory would not have caused the voice problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have diverticulosis, and also a hernia.

[illegible] months blood went into the colon [illegible] I was [illegible]

I was taken off the blood thinner, and put on a bland diet. [illegible] rough food is out because you say that a little roughage won't hurt. Can you explain? It has been over a year since my last problem, and I've been afraid to get off the diet.—M.B.S.

Adequate roughage [illegible] harmful in diverticulosis. [illegible] said diverticulosis [illegible] pouchings of the colon.

Diverticulitis, where the outpouchings become inflamed, is different. Sometimes this can explain an episode of bleeding. The anti-coagulant can "thin" the blood so that bleeding occurs at fragile sites. After a year, the "bits" part of your trouble should have become healed and you should be able to add some roughage to your diet.

After a year, you should have returned to your physician for specific instructions regarding this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been over menopause for two years and a half, and my doctor insists I take estrogen. I showed him your column. I was told this was caused by taking estrogen. What is your opinion about estrogen? Does it give you lots of [illegible]? Is it [illegible] does it increase your sex drive, etc.? Will it put weight on me?—Mrs. J.G.

Many doctors recommend continued use of estrogen because the immediate need to alleviate menopausal symptoms—such as hot flashes and irritability. But this use depends on symptoms and other findings. Estrogen isn't a panacea for all feminine ailments. It will make for gradual ovarian function decline in menopause. If women feel better with it, then there doesn't seem to be any overriding reason to discontinue it.

Spotting can be what is called "breakthrough bleeding," and this is controlled by adjusting the doses of the hormone downward. Weight gain often accompanies menopause, but this is coincidental. Women tend to lose some of their energy and sense of well-being and become more sedentary. Estrogen may produce some weight gain because of fluid retention.

Hormones generally are related somewhat to sex drive. However, the role of such hormones in sex drive is altogether too unclear for me to comment on.

Rum-runners Recall Those Good Old Days

HALIFAX (CP) — In 1920, on days when a full moon prevented enterprising Lunenburgers from delivering Gulanas rum and whisky to the United States from the French island of St. Pierre, you might see 60 rum-runners at anchor in St. Pierre," recalls an old Lunenburg sailor who worked on 14 rum ships during prohibition.

Mark Robin, along with his friend and fellow Lunenburger Joe Wentzell—who once was defeated in New York for smuggling — recalled their rum-running days for a crowd town Halifax shoppers as they manned a Lunenburg tourist bureau in the Scotia Square shopping centre.

Mr. Robin said rum-running was big business and 1920 was a good year for bootleg, plus a strong drink which could be bought for $4 a 13-bottle case in St. Pierre and sold for $60 to $75 in the United States.

With profit margins like that American gangsters were willing to risk relatively light penalties for smuggling. When a rum-running vessel was captured by American authorities, its backers would post up to about $50,000 bail for the crew, smuggled part of the country and forfeit the bail.

Six months in jail was the average penalty in the U.S., but Canada's laws were tougher. Here, convicted rum-runners faced three-year penitentiary sentences and bail was not easily granted.

Nevertheless, when the U.S. lifted prohibition in 1933 many of the rum-runners based in St. Pierre began to work the Maritimes.

"Using speedboats to bring the booze ashore, we worked the Maritimes until 1939," Mr. Robin said.

Schooners carrying as many as 4,000 kegs of rum would rendezvous off The Nova Scotia coast with speedboats capable of speeds up to 40 knots. Each speedboat would normally take on about 200 kegs of rum.

Mr. Robin worked as a wireless operator—an essential member of the crew of any rum - runner after the three-mile territorial limit was extended to 15 miles in 1928.

"When we had a three-mile limit, a runner the size of the Bluenose could anchor in sight of shore. Townspeople could see the boat, come on board and pay cash right there for their booze."

But with the 15-mile limit the runners needed a wireless to contact buyers on shore. It was in the wireless racket Robin started using speedboats to bring in kegs from schooners lying miles from shore.

By 1933, when rum-running was at a peak in the province, Nova Scotia could buy a 16 ounce "bully" of rum smuggled British Guiana for 25 cents.

"It was the keg that was expensive. The rum cost about 20 cents a gallon. The keg cost $4."

Mr. Robin says rum-running helped Lunenburg survive the Depression.

"People in Lunenburg didn't know anything about the mob, but I'd say most families in the town were connected with rum-running in some way. The boats were built in Lunenburg; their engines were installed by the foundry, and they were provisioned by the merchants of Lower Street."

And officials at St. Pierre and British Guiana "were glad to see us."

Mr. Robin did not get rich from rum-running but he knows some men who did. One Nova Scotian "started

Bell Rate Boost Gets Board OK

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has announced approval of the first phase of a two-part application by Bell Canada for an emergency rate increase that will cost customers about $14 million.

The approval, granted Monday, was in response to a request for rate changes that would have given the company an additional $28 million in revenue over the next five months.

Bell Canada serves Ontario, Quebec and parts of the Northwest Territories.

The commission award, effective not earlier than Aug. 1, will not affect existing monthly rates for basic, or black-box-type dial telephones or their current installation costs.

The additional revenue will come from other service amendments in the Bell application. Bell asked for rate increases of up to 10 cents a month on residence touch-tone, decorphone and contempra telephones.

The company had also proposed increased rates for long-distance, direct-dialled calls by up to 10 cents for the first minute and increases of between 10 and 50 cents on person-to-person calls in the first three minutes.

The spokesman said no details of the pact were available.

Again, no details of the agreement were available.

OTTAWA (CP) — Cyril Symes (NDP—Sault Ste. Marie) said Monday that oil companies had a $61.5-million windfall profit last year by raising pump prices before their costs were raised.

Mr. Symes, speaking in the Commons, said the government should do an inventory of oil company supplies before allowing price increases scheduled for next month.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Committee of Captive European Nations urged the government Monday not to sign the Helsinki agreement on East-European security and co-operation.

The agreement which External Affairs Minister Alan MacEachen stressed does not mean acceptance of the status quo in Eastern Europe, is seen as a "sell-out" by the committee. Prime Minister Trudeau is scheduled to sign the document this week.

Trudeau Expects 200-mile Control

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau suggested Monday that closure of Canada's Atlantic ports is the fearful result he feels is a first step in a policy that means eventual establishment of a 200-mile offshore limit.

He told Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) that the government action last week was predicated on the expectation that a 200-mile coastal economic management zone is in time be recognized under international law.

Mr. Trudeau said that although he could not guarantee he will be discussing fisheries with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev this week in Helsinki and officials were that he would discuss it with other leaders.

No definite meeting with Brezhnev has been scheduled for the prime minister said, and it would be "quite a task" to fit it into his busy schedule.

Mr. Trudeau said fears of economic effects of extending catch quotas set by the 12-nation International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries (ICNAF) from 200 miles are groundless.

Mr. Trudeau said he assures that fish stocks are becoming dangerously depleted.

Duckling Equipped With Artificial Foot

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Irving the Drake is proof that the early duckling in Oklahoma that swims, walks and even scratches with the aid of an artificial leg and foot.

Barely out of the egg, Irving swam into the jaws of a hungry snapping turtle and was chomped down on his left foot.

Quickly for Irving, he happened to be hatched on a farm near Ada, behind a department complex where two men with a flair for fitting out the fowl inhabiting the water.

Chris Swartz, a young maintenance employee, shot the turtle with his bow and arrow, with a line attached for retrieval.

Ray Parham, head maintenance man, grabbed the white duckling out of the water only to find the bird's foot mangled so badly it was past caring.

Using knowledge acquired over the years from working with animals, Parham amputated the foot below the main joint and stitched up the wound. He kept the youngster in a cage while the leg healed and Parham made sure chicken was the menu.

Irving learned to stand on his stump, then to walk and walk well or outright in the water without knowing the circles.

That was when Parham got the idea to manufacture an artificial foot for the duck.

He fitted Irving with a webbed foot to match the one he had amputated, made of a rubber tube, formed and aligned with a piece of living direct and propel himself through the water.

The foot was attached by bands below and above the joint, with nylon strings hold up them together.

Irving stand shakily at first, but he quickly learned to use the foot to propel himself about and he goes to walk like other ducks.

Now, at two months old, he has learned to use the foot for swimming and he paddles straight as his peers with two real feet.

He now is beginning to use the artificial leg and foot to scratch and preen.

Bill of Rights Urged For Court Witnesses

TORONTO (CP) — Witnesses are the forgotten people in the judicial system and it is long necessary to draw up a bill of rights for them, says Mr. Justice Robert Reid, a judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The current court system often leads to abuse of witnesses, he told the 29th annual meeting of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America today.

He said there will come a time when the witness, who represents almost the total input for the court's decision-making process, will no longer be willing to appear in court.

"Perhaps it is time that a bill of rights, a code of rules for the witness, should be evolved," he said.

"While evolving this system of rules, it is fair to say that the primary function is to reconcile the role of the witness in the court function with a need to make that role as comfortable as possible.

"We must once more learn how to encourage citizens to take taking part in a necessary process rather than make it into a course of action completely against his will."

PM Opposes Pay Limit For Top Civil Servants

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says it would not be fair to impose salary limits suggested earlier this year by Finance Minister John Turner on senior civil servants.

He was commenting in the Commons Monday on a report, issued last week, suggesting raises of up to $6,500 a year for top managers in the public service.

Earlier this year, Mr. Turner suggested a limit of $7,000 a year for salary increases under a voluntary program of wage and price controls. Business and labor leaders were cool to Mr. Turner's proposals and the wage-price restraint program has been dormant since late spring.

Ed Broadbent, the New Democrat leader, asked the prime minister if Mr. Turner's guides would be applied in dealing with the report which was prepared by executives of large companies.

The report suggests raising the range of executive salaries to $27,500 and $65,000 a year from $25,500 to $60,000.

The prime minister said the report has been given the green and a decision on executive salaries will be made soon.

New York City Talks Stalled

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham Beame, municipal labor chieftains and officials of the Emergency Financial Control Board (EFCB) made a final push to extend Beame's June 30 deadline for agreement on a package of concessions from the city, sources here say.

Union leader Victor Gotbaum chairman of the EFCB member Municipal Labor Committee, said talks Monday night had resumed after you during today.

Beame said he would proceed unilaterally with his "action plan" if the talks fail. The plan would lay off 15,000 city workers, cut city services and impose a hiring freeze.

The city was a court victory when Justice William Meriton of State Supreme Court ruled the city was within its rights in laying off garbage collectors because of New York's "unprecedented financial crisis."

The suit had been prompted by the firing last month of 2,300 sanitation workers who claimed their contract gave them job security.

John DeLury, president of the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association, said he was "disappointed" by the decision and would appeal within 48 hours.

Beame has said that in addition to the wage freeze he must have increased bus and subway fares, may have to impose tolls on the free city colleges, and take other steps to lower spending, including an estimated $100-million budget cut of 10 per cent.

These measures would be aimed, in part, at restoring the city's fiscal credibility with the financial community so that the MAC can sell bonds to raise money for the city.

Wagon Train at Ignace

IGNACE, Ont. (CP) — The 11-wagon train of the Northwest Wagon Train and its horses stopped and fed here at noon, just east of this community, 30 miles west of Thunder Bay, police and Monday.

The wagon train, officially named the Great Canadian Wagon Train, left Kitchener, Ont., April 1 for the 3,[illegible] mile journey to the Pacific River Valley in southern Alberta, with 11 wagons, 28 horses and mules, and 111 travellers.

Since then, the wagon train has travelled about 20 miles, an average of about eight miles a day.

Gordon Roberts, the original organizer, left the train the end of May.

Clean-up Begins After Hurricane

HALIFAX (CP) — Clean-up operations continued today as Nova Scotia recovered from the brief but frenzied onslaught Monday of hurricane Blanche.

The hurricane, with winds of up to 80 miles an hour, flattened a half-built slaughterhouse, overturned two mobile homes, snapped tree limbs and caused widespread power failures, but there were no injuries or reports of major crop damage.

By Monday night, the hurricane was nothing more than a 55-mile-an-hour storm centred over the Gaspe Peninsula and heading for Labrador. Gale warnings were out in these areas, but no destructive winds were expected.

Nova Scotia Power Commission crews were working through the night in an effort to restore power in affected areas.

The Annapolis Valley was not hit by the hurricane-force winds, and power commission crews from that area were called in Monday night to assist in the repairs in Halifax.

The hurricane's force, as it passed over land and diminished rapidly and rain was lighter than had been forecast for Nova Scotia. Although New Brunswick escaped wind damage, it received 3.5 inches of rain.

Crime Parley Moved

(CP) — A United Nations committee rejected Tuesday a Canadian request for a one-year postponement of the controversial UN crime conference and agreed, instead to pull the meeting out of Toronto and stage it in Geneva or Vienna.

There was no formal vote on the Canadian request for postponement but rather a consensus that developed as committee members debated the Canadian government proposal that the conference, which had been scheduled to start in Toronto on Sept. 1, be put off until 1976 and then held at a "suitable site" in Canada.

The meeting made only passing reference to the debate that had welled up in Canada over the conference, with the Ontario government and Jewish and other groups protesting the admission to Canada of delegates representing the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Nor was there bitterness. Most of the delegates—they represented Algeria, Belgium, Tanzania, India, France, Yugoslavia and Egypt—spoke of their close and friendly relations with Canada.

Brazil Will Benefit

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A frost that officials say has killed half of Brazil's 1976-77 coffee crop is expected to work in the country's favor by turning the world coffee market into one dictated by producers and not consumers, experts here say. Brazil has huge stockpiles of coffee that it can ease onto the world market at will and at a higher price.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — A vote by the Organization of American States OAS to end sanctions against Cuba has met Fidel Castro's main condition for resumption of relations between Havana and the United States, but it does not necessarily follow that a resumption of U.S.-Cuban relations is imminent. The U.S. Tuesday backed the majority in the 16 to 3 vote to end sanctions. Brazil and Nicaragua abstained and Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay voted "no."

Peaceful Methods Failing

LISBON (Reuter) — Gen. Detroit Riots Continue

DETROIT (AP) — Young blacks set fires and smashed windows for the second straight night and vowed to renew their assault on a bar owned by a white man charged with the fatal shooting of a black teenager.

About 300 riot-equipped police advanced Tuesday night behind clouds of tear gas, pushing a crowd of several hundred out of a decaying business strip in northwest Detroit.

Police said 26 persons were arrested, bringing the total for the two days to 99.

Some minor injuries were reported, but police said they had no idea how many persons were treated.

Police returned to the Livernois-Fenkell area Tuesday after the mob ransacked Bob Hulme's bar and attempted to burn it.

Andrew Chisarian, 29, owner of the bar, was charged earlier in the day with second-degree murder in Monday night's death of Obie Wynn, 18, who was shot in the back of the head.

The shooting immediately set off the disturbances and left the bar—already hated by local blacks because of alleged discriminations—as a prime target for Tuesday's crowd.

Officers moved into the area in force after an appearance by Mayor Coleman Young, a black, failed to dissuade the crowd from the assault on Chisarian's bar.

About two hours later, officers ordered the crowd to disperse and were answered with a five-minute deluge of bottles and rocks. Then police moved forward, firing tear gas, to broaden their grip on the area and divide the crowd.

Playground Carnival Is Staged

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

The gypsy fortune-teller smiled knowingly at the young man sitting in her darkened tent and whispered softly he would soon fall in love, become very rich and get married.

The man looked across the table at the magical lady, calmly watching her peer into her crystal ball, and then burst out laughing.

The young man, age 11, and 150 other parents and children participated in a penny carnival at the Hillcrest School Tuesday to raise money for muscular distrophy.

The all-day affair, lasting from 1 p.m. - 4 p.m. and then reopened from 8 p.m. - 8 p.m. raised more than $75 through the efforts of volunteer workers and playful participants.

The carnival was sponsored by the West Hill playgrounds, a group of 11 centres that is part of the recreation department's summer program for children.

There were sponge toss booths, bingo, ring toss, refreshments and watermelon raffle with the event highlighted by a mini-auction of games and a stuffed animal, a pink, and white toy poodle, which was the constant companion of Lavette Webb, the organizer of the carnival and a worker for the recreation department.

'Enduring Peace' Parley's Target

HELSINKI (AP) — The biggest gathering of world leaders in 160 years opened today and President Urho Kekkonen called it "a day of joy and hope for Europe."

Kekkonen, whose neutral country is host for the meeting, told the leaders of 32 other European countries plus the United States and Canada that a new era in our mutual relations is dawning" and "we have set out on a journey through detente to stability and enduring peace".

"The Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe is the largest gathering of world leaders since the Congress of Vienna of 1814-15.

After speeches by each of the 35 leaders, it will conclude with ratification of a 'wonderful' statement of principles to guide the conduct of the participating countries on a continent that has spawned centuries of strife.

Kekkonen called the conference "unprecedented in the history of Europe" and said it "is a result of the political will of all the participating states to improve and intensify their mutual relations in the interest of their peoples."

But some of the heads of state who arrived Tuesday said the conference would accomplish nothing if participating countries failed to implement the 30,000-word charter.

President Ford said the United States will participate fully in the goal of winning a lasting peace in Europe. He said the provisions of the Helsinki declaration "must be translated into policies of action."

A signing ceremony is set for Friday.

The Soviet Union has been pressing for a European security conference since 1954 when the continent still was recovering from the Second World War.

The Soviets originally hoped to exclude the U.S. and use a binding security treaty with the weakened Western countries to extend their influence even beyond the Communist regimes they installed as buffer states on the continent's eastern half.

But over the years, to gain Western acceptance of the idea, the Soviet Union had to include the U.S. and Canada in any proposal for a European security conclave.

It also had to make a series of pledges—again not binding—to further the civil liberties of their own people and their Eastern European subjects.

The 100-page document that emerged from 30 months of preparatory negotiations, first in Helsinki and then in Geneva, is riddled with qualifying clauses and conditions that could be interpreted to back—or at least not exclude—almost any political act.

For the Soviets, the main prizes were the clauses that provide tacit Western recognition of the postwar map of Europe and Soviet conquests there by declaring that the borders of participating states are inviolable and must not be changed by force.

For the West, the sections on human rights and a freer flow of information across the ideological divide were the most important.

The 35 participating countries agreed in Geneva to meet again in 1977 in Belgrade to evaluate how the document is working.

In addition to signing the treaty, Prime Minister Trudeau is expected to mention upon several leaders Canada's continuing interest in European affairs.

Trudeau's participation in the conference is expected to help him in his search for a contractual link with the European Common Market.

Trudeau Wants Poor Assisted

HELSINKI (CP) — Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau told European leaders today that the world needs a way to provide people with the benefits of nuclear power while not proliferating nuclear weapons.

In a speech to the European security conference summit meeting here, Trudeau also pleaded with the leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union to get on with the job of disarmament negotiations.

He also made an oblique but pointed reference to the fact that the document that 35 European and North American leaders will sign this week does not mean that they are accepting the status quo in Eastern Europe.

And the prime minister said that any stability created by the conference and the two year of negotiation that lead up to it will amount to nothing if the standard of living of peoples in other parts of the world are not raised.

Marchand Will Recommend One Runway at Pickering

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Tuesday he will recommend to cabinet that the federal government immediately begin building a one-runway airport at Pickering, Ont., near Toronto, the commitment came after a 90-minute meeting with Ontario Transportation Minister John Rhodes. He said a cost-sharing agreement must be worked out by the end of the year or Ontario will allow the land to revert to agricultural zoning.

Mr. Marchand said he will take the matter before the federal cabinet Thursday. Meanwhile, the cost-sharing would be referred to a committee of experts.

Mr. Rhodes estimated it would cost Ontario $18 million to provide roads and other ground facilities for the airport, and $400 million if rapid transit was involved.

"We have never said we were opposed to the Pickering airport," Mr. Rhodes told reporters in response to reminders that in a statement July 10 he had suggested this.

"I discovered there was no agreement to share in these costs. That really perturbed me.

"I had taken it for granted there was an agreement on who was to pay what percentage of what.

"The percentages are the things that have to be worked out."

NIGERIA

Gen. Yagubu Gowon, left, military ruler of oil-rich Nigeria, attending the summit meeting of African leaders in Kampala, is told by an aide of his overthrow in a bloodless coup. Gowon said, "I have a clear conscience. There is nothing to worry about."

New Nigeria Ruler Moslem from North

LAGOS (AP)-Deposed Nigerian-leader Gen. Yakubu Gowon said today he accepted the army coup against him and pledged his loyalty to the new government.

Gowon, speaking to reporters in—Kampala, the capital of Uganda, appealed to Nigerians to co-operate with the new government "to ensure the preservation of peace, stability and unity" in his country.

He said he remained ready to serve his country "in any capacity."

Gowon was in Kampala attending a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) when he was deposed Tuesday.

Nigerian broadcasts say the government and army of black Africa's largest and richest country are headed by Brig. Murtala Rafi Mohammed, 38, a one-time ally of Gen. Gowon.

London newspapers say there are no major political differences between Gowon and the new ruler of Nigeria, third-largest supplier of oil to the United States, after Canada and Venezuela.

The oil industry is worth $11 billion a year to Nigeria.

No violence was reported. Diplomats in Kampala said Lagos and surrounding areas were "surprisingly calm" late Tuesday.

Workers in non-essential jobs were told to stay home Tuesday "in view of the traffic situation in Lagos."

Lagos radio said Gowon's successor is a Moslem of the large northern Hausa tribe.

The Hausas are one of three dominant tribes with the Ibos and Yorubas—which evenly shared representation in Gowon's bureaucracy.

Hausas and other northern tribes make up more than half the population and have demanded more representation and a larger slice of Nigeria's booming oil economy.

Gowon, a Christian, also is a northerner but a member of the small Anga ethnic group. He symbolized a unified Nigeria after the bloody, 30-month Biafran civil war with the secessionists.

Both Mohammed and Gowon are graduates of Britain's Sandhurst military academy.

Bingo Fraud Brings Jail

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Mustafa Bakir Barron, 43, of nearby Waterloo was sentenced Tuesday to 3½ years in prison for defrauding eight area Lions Clubs of about $30,000 in connection with a charitable television bingo game.

William Johnston, assistant Crown attorney, described the case as being "close to the perfect crime" because there were no victims. He said bingo players did not expect to win, so did not complain when others appeared to be taking the cash prizes.

He said police checked eight games between January and November, 1974, and discovered that of the maximum $8,000 that could have been won by the public, $7,350 was pocketed by Barron and two assistants through phoney wins.

Labor Plans Seminar On Alcohol and Drugs

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte District Labor Council will hold a seminar this fall on control of occupational alcoholism and drug abuse.

Dour Sward, president of the council, said the idea now is not to fire someone "under the influence or coming to work shaking off a hangover but to counsel the individual."

Asked if Quinte area workers were particularly affected by alcohol and drug use in their working environment, Mr. Sword said "I've seen evidence of the problem."

"It's necessary that we deal with the problem and find solutions that help the individual overcome his illness," said Mr. Sword.

The seminar, to be held at Loyalist College Sept. 20, will draw management and labor representatives from across eastern Ontario. The local labor council is working in conjunction with the Ontario Federation of Labor to stage the one-day seminar.

Mr. Sword said certain members of the community with expertise in either field, along with representatives of the Addiction Research Foundation in Toronto, will be acting on discussion panels.

Thief Caught

GREAT MISSENDEN, England (CP) — Policemen ran to a bank after passers-by reported a drilling noise before opening time. But instead of finding a gang of bank robbers in the bank, they found only a lone workman, fitting a new burglar alarm.

Tails Change

ETON, England (CP) — A referendum among the 1,300 pupils at Eton has asked them if they want to wear their traditional tail coats and collars. The college paper said that "tails give Etonians a false idea of their own importance." But tourists said they would miss photographing the students without their top hats and tails.

Break-ins Reported

MASSASAGA — A break-in at Massasaga School, reported Tuesday morning, resulted in the theft of a quantity of magic markers, pens and pencils valued at $10.

Community Services officer with the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, Constable Donald Watt, said entry to the school was gained through a window on the second floor adjacent to a flat roof. Three screens were ripped from aluminum windows causing damage estimated at $50.

The break-in is believed to have occurred Monday night.

In another theft, police are investigating a break-in at Tobe's Country Gardens, the second in five days time.

On July 25 the restaurant was entered through a screen on the southeast corner of the building and a quantity of liquor and cigarettes taken.

A second break-in reported Tuesday resulted in the theft of two men's watches, three lighters and 20 packages of cigarettes valued at $80.

Entry again was made through the window screen.

PICTON — An employee of the Picton Gazette for 50 years, Claude S. (Pete) Cole died here Monday.

Mr. Cole, 67, was a lifelong resident of Picton and was foreman of the printing plant, a job he held until his retirement about two years ago.

In his youth he played an active role in Prince Edward County sports programs and was a member of several champion baseball and hockey teams from his community.

He was a charter member of the Picton Kinsmen Club and served as their bulletin editor for a number of years.

Mr. Cole had been in failing health for the last two years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Eunice Scott and three sons, Clarence, Lee Roy and Donald and a sister, Mrs. Harold Nash (Ruth) of Wellington and three grandchildren.

He was predeceased by brothers Harry and Clarence.

Rape Suspects Remanded

MADOC — Two Marmora youths have been remanded until Aug. 26 at provincial court here when they will face charges of rape.

Involved in the incident are Clarence Nobes and Dean Falls, both 18 and from Marmora. The incident took place May 18, 1974.

Driver Under Age

BLOOMFIELD — When Jason MacArthur of RR 1, Picton decided to go joy riding Tuesday afternoon he didn't anticipate a fender-bender that caused damages estimated at $325.

The 20-month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McArthur yesterday was left in the family car in parking lot at the rear of the bank of commerce here. The vehicle was placed in park but the chill lever was manipulated to drive position.

The baby steered the car around the corner of the bank and collided with a parked vehicle owned by Blaine Brant of RR2, Milford.

The child escaped injury in the accident which caused damages estimated at $300 to the Brant car. Damage to the McArthur vehicle was set at $25.

Road Open

Hastings County road crews complete clearing up operations after installing culvert on 6RD Road, Tuesday and grading approaches to the 6RD, 7RD main lines north of CFB Trenton. The road was closed the first two days this week to allow CP crews to raise the line about six inches.

Province Conveys Parcel of Land To County Conservation Authority

PICTON — The ministry of transportation and communications will convey a small land parcel on Highway 33 near Consecon 1-4ka to the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority for one dollar.

The land provides access to the Consecon Lake dam area.

Announcement of the conveyance was made this week by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Taylor observed that when the PERCA originally sought to obtain the land it was indicated by the ministry that it would be necessary to pay appraisal costs and market value for the property.

He intervened on behalf of the PERCA, emphasizing that cost of appraisal for this small land parcel would be high and suggested a transfer without appraisal since the property would be passing from one public body to another.

The ministry agreed and the land will be conveyed to the PERCA for a nominal dollar.

Bursary Established

PICTON — A $100 bursary, to be awarded for the first time this fall, has been established by the Prince Edward County Milk Producers.

All licensed milk producers have received application forms and details concerning the award.

The bursary will be presented to the son or daughter of a licensed milk producer or of a full-time employee of a licensed milk producer in PEPlaces Edward County.

The applicant must be entering his first year at an institute of higher learning following graduation from secondary school.

Authority Begins Work On Proctor Property

By AL SARAS
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — Caution and a good grip on the wallet will characterize the progress of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority as it embarks on development of its 13 conservation areas.

In 1975, the first year of its development plans, the authority will spend approximately $25,000 for primarily preparatory work in six areas in its 795-square-mile watershed.

It's beginning, says resources manager Bryan Boyce, of a process that will see the authority grow in staff size with a larger responsibility over areas open to the public.

But when this will occur is still unclear, said Mr. Boyce Tuesday. Much of the work is limited by the LTRCA's budget, now and in future.

To date, the authority has opened two areas, in Warkworth, and west of Orland on the former Frank Goodrich property.

Mr. Boyce said he hopes to see the Proctor area open within two years. But there's a catch. This year, the authority has allotted $20,000 to the development and the same sum would have to be okayed in the next two years to complete it.

He said if the money comes, so will the opening within his projected two years.

Proctor north of Brighton, is the site of the most extensive work this year. Butler Creek, a trout stream, will be improved with bank anti-erosion devices. Picnic grounds and washrooms, as well as a parking lot, will be laid out.

The 51-acre site is being looked upon as primarily an education centre — illustrating erosion, stream management, and tree nursery aspects of conservation.

In a concept plan of Proctor, Greer, Galloway and Associates Ltd. "felt that the wildlife aspect is a minor concern in this area with general education in conservation and habitat predominating."

The consultant's study was one in a $6,000 series of four filed with the authority in June. It outlines uses of the area in "zones" and breaks down development costs.

For Proctor, costs are estimated (at today's prices) at $45,430 below what Mr. Boyce expects will be eventually spent at Proctor. (about $60,000).

New Bond Issue Attempt to Beef Up Ottawa's Cash Position

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A program to beef up the federal government's cash position has been launched with the offering of $400 million in new bonds for delivery Aug. 15.

Ottawa is also raising another $150 million by issuing an extra $15 million in treasury bills each week for seven weeks to the end of August, and a special offering of $250 million in new year treasury bills.

The $565-million borrowings are the first step in the government's program to finance its 1975-76 cash requirement, $6 billion, estimated by Finance Minister John Turner in his June 23 budget.

Raising that amount of cash in the Canadian capital market is never easy but, for the next few weeks, conditions in the bond market will be as promising as they are likely to be at any time in 1975.

The borrowing plans of provincial governments and corporations are relatively light at the moment. That gives the federal government the opportunity to raise a substantial amount of new cash without interfering or competing with other big borrowers.

The federal government has tried to make its latest offering attractive to institutional investors not only by undertaking not to call the bonds for redemption prior to maturity but also by pricing them somewhat below the going market price.

Here are details of the three parts of the new $400-million issue as of Aug. 15:

—7.5-per-cent bonds due Feb. 1, 1978, priced at $98 to yield 7.95 per cent. An outstanding issue maturing on the same date had been trading on a 7.70-per-cent yield basis but before the new borrowing was announced July 28.

—7.5-per-cent bonds due Oct. 1, 1979, priced at $98 to yield 8.08 per cent. This is a reopening of an outstanding issue that had been priced to yield 8.01 per cent immediately prior to the announcement.

Holders have the option of exchanging these bonds at maturity for an 8-per-cent bond due Oct. 1, 1984. On that basis, yield to maturity would be 8.18 per cent.

—8.5-per-cent bonds due June 15, 1981, priced at $99.50 yield 8.79 per cent. This, too, is a reopening of an issue of which $249 million is outstanding, which had been priced to yield 8.61 per cent.

Although the new federal borrowing has the effect of slightly depressing bond prices right across the board and of raising interest levels generally, the impact is lighter than it would have been with less careful timing.

During the last four months of the year, the various provincial governments and their agencies will probably need to borrow at least $1 billion, and Canadian corporations will require about half that amount.

Fortunately for the individual Canadian who might be planning to borrow money, the big borrowers are likely to sell their bonds and debentures in the New York market.

This trend was given a big boost in the June 23 budget with the removal of the 15-per-cent non-resident tax from new issued corporate debt, with a maturity of more than five years.

One important effect of the capital inflow resulting from these New York borrowings is likely to be a strengthening of the Canadian dollar.

The dollar has been pushed below 97 cents. U.S. because of Canada's growing current-account deficit (which is expected to reach $3.5 billion this year).

All indications are that we will pick up the familiar method—that is, importing capital—to help pay this year's whopping trade bills.

We Should Elect Mayor

If one believes in political gambling, Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey is the odds-on favorite to succeed Dr. Richard Potter as the next Progressive Conservative candidate for the provincial riding of Quinte.

It being no secret that this is Tory country, that would make Mrs. Jeffrey a good bet to go to Queen's Park.

In fact, quite possibly the only unpredictable political question that faces Belleville voters in the next few months is who will be their next mayor.

And we do feel that question should be put to them.

Five of Belleville's ten aldermen have already gone on record in favor of filling the possible vacancy by council appointment. With at least four councillors indicating some degree of desire for the mayor's office, there surely exists what amounts to be a form of conflict of interest.

We do not feel that the public feels someone they elected as an alderman would necessarily make a good mayor, any more than many who thought Gerald Ford was a capable congressman should by any stretch of the political imagination become president of the United States.

This city's last municipal election cost nearly $14,000, a figure that clerk Earl Dafoe estimates would be required to stage a separate mayoralty contest.

If the ratepayers get the chance to select the right person, one or six could save the city that much and more through sound administration and direction.

Every present member of council owes it to his constituents to find out their feelings on the issue of succession.

Nothing Certain On Air Service

When it comes to talk of linking small communities such as Belleville with larger centres by air, what we are left with is mainly just that — talk. Nevertheless, there's always the possibility something may materialize where passenger air links with other cities are concerned.

For instance, there was last month's demonstration of short take-off-landing planes between here and Toronto using that city's Island Airport.

There has been talk of closing this airport and Belleville city council, in a move that likely meets the approval of many interested in small-community air links, is petitioning for retention of the field.

Any move to eliminate the island facility in Toronto could be a considerable setback to the cause of those air links, actual, or potential, such as Belleville's, that now come to mind.

Buses Still Ignored

How inconsistent we are! Or is it affluent?

With dollar-a-gallon gasoline looming on the horizon, people still shun public transit services by the thousands. This, despite the fact they know it is cheaper and healthier for an already over-polluted environment.

So it is undoubtedly with mixed feelings that Belleville's Transit Commission is once again considering servicing the city's industrial parks with daily bus routes.

A similar experiment a year ago folded after two months when it was found only an average 1.5 passengers were taking advantage of each bus run.

With the location of several new industries in the northend park in recent months, commission chairman Marylea Burtt says feasibility studies will be undertaken to determine if another crack at bus service is warranted in the industrial park. This will be part of an over-all survey of commission operations planned for September.

With the commission's operating deficit up — (over $100,000 to date this year, double that in the same period of 1974) — and fares down — ($20,000 fewer than in the first six months of last year) — re-assessment of the commission's entire operation is in order.

But unless there is some form of co-operation on the part of businesses and industry, it would seem there is little a public body such as the transit commission could do, short of Shanghaiing passengers.

If merchants, malls, or plant managers can help Mrs. Burtt come up with an incentive to bus users, the transit commission could be a better business, and Belleville air could be better to breathe.

Couchiching Conference Draws Figures of Kissinger Calibre

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

No one quite knows why Canada's oldest continuous public affairs conference keeps on going, or why it continues to draw world figures to a very pleasant venue, but now remote from the major centres, Toronto and convenient meeting places, of Toronto.

It is called the Couchiching Conference and will hold its 44th annual event on the shores of Lake Couchiching, 80 miles north of Toronto, from which its name is derived. And once again acceptances and regrets have come in from world-famous personalities.

To discuss this year's theme, Canada and the Third World: What Are the Choices?, will come United Nations Under-secretary-general Sir Robert Jackson. He is renowned both as chief of the post-war UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation agency) and also as economist Barbara Ward's husband.

This year's conference opener is S. S. Ramphal, the first Third World luminary to be appointed secretary-general of the Commonwealth from a distinguished career as lawyer and politician in his native Guyana where he was previously its minister both of foreign affairs and justice.

U.S. Secretary of Sate Henry Kissinger sent a warm and early message declining to come, as did former secretary of state Dean Rusk from his less-hectic academic abode as dean of the law school at University of Georgia.

In no case were conference invitations pretentious. Henry Kissinger had taken part in the 1961 Couchiching Conference, reading a full-blown academic paper on The Meaning of War.

The far-from-beady Orilla, Ontario, almanac noted he also helped put Henry on the much bigger road of global diplomacy since that paper has been listed among his publications as a former Harvard University professor.

Dean Rusk said on the phone he knew of the conference. He had not attended it previously. But many of his contemporaries from the Democratic years of power in Washington took part in earlier conferences including Frank Mankiewicz, press secretary to the late president John Kennedy.

This year's event will see the largest number of international speakers since the Couchiching Conferences of the mid-60s which were perhaps the most successful in a mixed record of good and bad annual events.

Canadian academics, an-president, economists, industrialists and international agency representatives will analyze and criticize Canada's aid and technical assistance roles in their countries, Zaire, Peru, Haiti, India, Pakistan, Kuwait and others.

Paul Gerin-Lajoie, president of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) with close to $1 billion in public funds to disburse in a needy world, will be a keynote speaker.

How does Couchiching (which incidentally is an Ojibway Indian expression for "place of big winds"), perpetuate itself? No one quite knows, neither is loyal conference-goers nor changing executive committees over the years.

It rarely publishes any proceedings or perpetuate annual conferences (though this year could be an exception) and it never recommends policies to governments or institutions.

Couchiching's continuity in a time of a plethora of conferences probably relies on its basic popular approach, that delegates come not as experts, but as a cross-section of interested Canadians.

And populism is the order of the day. But since Couchiching launched its first conference ago when public discussion of world affairs was monopolized by the experts, it has guaranteed its own longevity.

Election Priorities Lost in the Shuffle?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

For two months prior to the election we heard about priorities — do you remember them?

Roads for example, everyone agreed something must be done regarding the poor condition of many roads. But after the election it was decided that the cost was too high and we must wait for oil, asphalt and labor costs to drop. To that sought similar to the man that bought all the 1974 clothes in 1975 for 10 cents apiece, knowing he could make a killing if and when '74 came around again.

Then there was the sewer system for Bellevue. We had forgot to tell the residents that grandmother was going to chip in her pension to pay for them. The hay bridge was a priority to a couple, but — sigh — it shall remain. Nothing was an issue and a presentation was made to council four months ago as to how they could take advantage of programs offered by the federal and provincial governments to reduce the cost of land and thus housing, but again no progress.

The only two items that stick in my mind that did at progress is that council has assured a temporary home for wayward dogs by supporting the animal shelter and they have given themselves a ch . . . of well deserved . . . raise of $1,000.

The answer to the inefficiency of our council is that 99 per cent of our Indians want to be Dogs Chief.

In the past six months progress has been labelled due to strains on the taxpayer's pocket. Here are they going to rationalize a $14,000 expense imposed on us again for a new council, while the young council members are cut. Whole fields turned to weeds, while crops are insufficient to feed livestock, except at climbing prices.

Is the indifference of every citizen to the available and responsible reserve of this country spells calamity.

Pollution Indifference

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

When I take a walk across my bay of Belleville's harbor I wonder how long it will be before no water at all passes beneath them. The bridge has been dammed up so many times and left to fester that it is now assured polluted that there will be nothing left going into the bay. Except the flush from storm drains, of course.

To whom may concerned citizens address themselves about the careless and callous destruction of the environment going on here, which leads to such sorry empty riverbeds?

It would be foolish to blame anything on an accidental lack of rain. We have been depending on precipitation to augment our source of water, and a lack of it shows the dangerous low level of our sources.

Our city drives around the country can fail to notice how year after year water levels fall off. Trees die and do not get replanted, while young saplings are cut. Whole fields turned to weeds, while crops are insufficient to feed livestock, except at climbing prices.

Is the indifference of every citizen to the available and responsible reserve of this country spells calamity.

Favors Vote

Editor
The Intelligencer:

Among the hopefuls for the mayor's chair there would appear to be only one who is qualified to be worthy of the office. Others have shown the slightest leadership ability.

However, there should be an election. This club of municipal meddlers ought not to be allowed to appoint any of their number. We have been suffering under a mayor who was proclaimed to office. She wrongly assumed it was a vote to confirm her as part of the people.

For such an important position, lightly taken, it has been badly neglected for the past three years we need and should have an election. Let the people decide — if they are still interested.

Singing Cousins

South George St. resident John Simard finally got to meet he cousin this week 60-year-old Dennis Taylor from Darlington, England. Mrs. Simard left England at the age of two and had never seen her cousin who is three years her junior. Both their mothers were sisters.

City Cyclist Sets Off On 427-mile Journey

Seventeen-year-old John Cook of 547 East Bridge St. has undertaken an ambitious summer project. He left home Monday on a 427-mile journey to Boston, Mass. — by bicycle.

John is on his way to Beantown to visit relatives for about a month. He will bike back to Belleville about Aug. 28.

John said Monday his first day route took him to the International Bridge at Ivy Lea, Ont. via Highway 2 and then to Watertown, N.Y. on Route 180.

He said by late Thursday he should be camping at Petersburg, N.Y. after going through Schenectady and Troy.

John said by Friday, "I should be in Massachusetts and probably around Palmer, Mass., about 75 miles outside of Boston." Saturday will complete the trek.

"I'm just carrying the bare necessities," he said of his equipment which includes a clothing knapsack on his back, a sleeping bag and two panier bags on the bicycle's rear rack.

A ruling which prohibits bicycles from the New York Thruway and the Massachusetts Turnpike will take him 30-40 miles out of his way, he noted. "They're the only two that I've had to detour around."

His daily itinerary will see him "get a good start along the way in the mornings with a good breakfast . . . grab something at lunchtime . . . and cook my suppers at campsites in the evenings," John outlined.

A Grade 12 student at Moira Secondary School, John started planning the trip in February. "I've had my route all marked out," he said. "I had my camping sites planned out."

John had some advice for others who might wish to make a similar trip. "I'd like to caution other kids and warn them about the type of bike they use," he commented. "There's got to be quite a bit of planning."

Would-be long-distance bikers should also be prepared to spend a lot of money, he added.

John said he has never tackled a jaunt of this size before but pointed out, "I've been training quite a bit for it."

He said his parents and younger brother and sister are keen on his venture. While in Massachusetts, he plans to do some camping and sightseeing.

Two Hurt In Crash

TWEED — A two-car collision Tuesday caused a total of $1,200 damage to both vehicles and sent a Peterborough couple to Belleville General Hospital with minor cuts and lacerations.

Treated and released from hospital were Harry Tasker, 25, his wife, Vera, both from Peterborough. The Tasker vehicle had $1,200 damage.

Madoc OPP said the accident occurred about 10:30 a.m. at the intersection of Highways 7 and 37, about five miles north of the village.

Driver of the second vehicle was 20-year-old Sandford Gaylord, from Arden, Ontario. His car suffered $700 damage. He was unhurt in the accident.

Police have charged Mr. Gaylord with failing to make a proper turn. Constable Al Burger is investigating.

OPP Check Two Mishaps

KALADAR — During a recent week, members of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment here patrolled 2,100 miles in 360 duty hours.

Involved in part of that patrol were two major accidents — a one-vehicle mishap on Highway 330 when a gravel truck rolled over causing $2,500 damage and resulting in minor injuries suffered by the driver — and a one-car accident also on Highway 330 with resulting damage set at $1,000.

A total of 31 general occurrences were investigated including requests for assistance, domestic problems, compassionate messages, liquor violations and traffic problems.

Provincial Police Busy in May and June

Five persons died in motor vehicle accidents during May and June in the jurisdiction of the Belleville detachment of Ontario Provincial Police, a look at the detachment's monthly reports shows.

Overall, there were 72 accidents in June — an increase of eight from May. Four people were killed in two fatal collisions. All, including the May single, were passengers.

Personal injury collisions were down by five from May but the number of persons injured jumped 31 from 44.

Collisions involving property damage rose from 30 to 39 and non-reportable accidents increased slightly to nine from six.

Almost $3,200 worth of property was stolen during June — a large decrease from the approximate $8,000 worth in May. Police recovered about $12,250 worth in May and almost $600 worth in June.

The figures resulted from three thefts over $200 each in May and June. 14 thefts under $200 in June and 25 in May. Break-ins were down by five from 13 in May.

Other Criminal Code offences numbered 34 in June — up 11 from May — and provincial statutes charges excluding traffic were down by 11 to 59 in June.

School Board Plans Mobile Student Exhibit

NAPANEE — It is not exactly vaudeville, but the Lennox and Addington County Board of Education might have a travelling road show each year.

The board was decided on a test pilot for the project — an education display at the Lennox and Addington County Fall Fair here Aug. 3-4.

The display will include students' work from county elementary and secondary schools, a continuous slide presentation, educational television, county curriculum and a matriculation exercise conducted by students.

Spokesmen say if the program is successful, the board will consider a permanent display - type show which can be set up at all area fairs each year.

Trainer Pays Brief Visit

TWEED — Colin LaVallee, this village's contribution to professional hockey, is on vacation in the Quinte area this summer during his off-season.

LaVallee is head trainer of the California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League. He and his wife, the former Betty Woodley of Belleville, and teen-age sons David and Gary have their permanent home at Castro Valley about 4 miles from Oakland, Cal., the Seals' base.

Twins Share Job

TORONTO (CP) — Jane and Judy Chaply stopped dressing alike when they started high school because they "got tired of people staring" at them.

But the twins have no objections to wearing matching uniforms this summer because it is part of their job as information officers at the twin-towered Royal Bank Plaza office project under construction in downtown Toronto.

The plaza, scheduled to open early next year, will consist of two towers, 42 and 28 storeys high, connected by a glass-walled banking hall. In addition to office space, the 1100-million complex will include stores, restaurants and parking facilities.

Bank officials decided they needed identical twins to staff an on-site information booth and Jane and Judy were selected from about 20 sets of twins.

"But so far, the most common question we're asked is: Are you sisters?" said Jane. "We are also asked about the CN tower, restaurants in the city, the subway service and sometimes about the plaza itself," she said.

Although the twins dress alike on the job, they add, they try to avoid being seen together in uniform on their off hours.

"Judy always leaves about five minutes ahead of me in the morning, and we never go home on the subway together," said Jane.

The 24-year-old twins, born in Toronto Bay, Ont., about 115 miles northeast of Thunder Bay, moved to Toronto three years ago to attend Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

Judy has finished her third year in business administration, majoring in marketing, but needs additional credits to graduate. Jane has completed her third year in secretarial science and has one year left before graduating.

Employers Reluctant To Hire Women, Kids

OTTAWA (CP) — The reluctance of employers to hire women, the young, minority group workers and persons from economically-poor regions is a major reason for the co-existence of unemployment and job vacancies, a study prepared for the Ontario labor department says.

The survey, prepared by research economists M. L. Shulick and Farid Siddiqui of the provincial department, says the availability of jobless benefits has been over-emphasized as a cause of the unemployment-vacancy problems.

A summary of the survey is reported in federal labor department's June issue of the Labor Gazette.

The researchers, studying the Ontario labor market in 1974, found a large increase in the rate of rejection by employers of job applicants who were referred by Canadian Manpower centres. This was at a time when there were many job vacancies and unemployment was high.

In mid-1974, the percentage of persons hired after being referred to employers stood at 29.3 per cent, down from 42.1 per cent in 1968.

The researchers concluded that most unemployed persons in Ontario who sought jobs were felt to be not worthy of hire by employers.

Employers were reluctant to treat available labor as a resource that is to be developed, over time but saw it as a tap to be turned on and off as economic conditions changed, the study says.

During a slow growth period between 1967 and 1972, the supply of manpower was broken. "Once broken, it could not be repaired in time for the sudden expansion that began in 1973."

In recent months, unemployment has risen to more than seven per cent and the number of vacant jobs has declined substantially, Statistics Canada figures for May show the jobless total was 714,000 while there were about 65,000 vacant jobs, down from over 100,000 in a similar period of 1974.

The report concludes that the most pressing need is for improvements in the way workers are used, especially the young, women and minorities.

The survey found only a small increase in the number of referrals by manpower centres in the first quarter of 1974 when unemployment was increasing but complaints about claims were being carefully monitored.

"Unemployment insurance does not appear to be a significant factor in supporting the unemployment of the group (the young) that has the most unemployment problem."

Breast Cancer: Western Disease

GENEVA (Reuter) — About 250,000 women die from breast cancer every year, and the death rate is rising, the World Health Organization, (WHO) said Monday.

In Western Europe and North America, breast cancer accounts for one in 25 of all deaths among women, and remains a major cause of female deaths at all ages, a WHO report covering the last 30 years says.

"It is a moot point whether that present methods of treatment, though evidently effective in many individual cases, do not seem to be having any over-all impact upon the disease or upon the heavy toll it takes of female lives," the report says.

The study in the World Health statistics report says a woman who has a child before she was 20 has a low risk of developing a breast cancer. It occurs less often in married than single women, and even less often in those who have a child.

Japan has persistently low death rates, and the idea that Western diet contributes to breast cancer may be correct, the report says. A high intake of fish oil, a Japanese staple, may be responsible, the study said.

Beef Pyramids

New Techniques Add Eye Appeal to Meals

Surely the prime example of inspired cooking is to take a popular everyday food and present it in such a way that no one recognizes its simple beginnings.

That's what is done with this Pyramids of Beef dish. You start with a piece of braising beef — it could be rump, hip, top or bottom round, "anything you want" — and transform it into a culinary masterpiece. Yet, aside from the meat and vegetables, the only ingredients are three common items: beer, tomato ketchup, mustard.

The name comes from the shape the meat is cut — into triangular pieces, or pyramids. Of course, the result is equally delicious if the meat is in the more ordinary cubes, but some of the serving drama is lost. However, none of the wondrous richness of the savory sauce is lost as the various ingredients in the beer penetrate and draw out the flavor of the meat, then mingle with the onions, peppers and mushrooms.

The piquant addition of tomato ketchup and prepared mustard turns this meal into a classic as these two favored condiments give a hint of the barbecue to this great gravy sauce. The longer this dish cooks, the richer and tastier the gravy becomes.

Beef Kebabs Piquant

Marinade

¼ cup red wine vinegar
one tsp. salt
freshly ground black pepper
one tsp. dry mustard
¾ cup salad oil
two tbsps. capers, drained and coarsely chopped one small clove garlic, finely chopped
¼ cup chopped parsley
one cup thinly sliced onion rings four cups cooked beef, cut in 1½-2" cubes or sliced ¼" thick (leftover roast beef, barbecued or broiled steak or pot roast) one can, 14 oz. artichoke hearts
Stuffed olives
Cherry tomatoes

Combine first eight ingredients. Place onions and meat in a dish and pour marinade over turning meat so that all sides are moistened. Cover and refrigerate for several hours, turning meat and onions occasionally. Thread meat onto skewers alternating with artichoke hearts, stuffed olives and tomatoes. Place on a serving dish. Serve with Dilly Potato Salad and cold cooked vegetables moistened with remaining marinade. Serves four.

Broiled Steak

one 3-3 lb. round steak cut 2-3" thick OR one 4-5 lb. blade roast cut 2-3" thick OR one 4-5 lb. cross rib roast cut 2-3" thick

Marinade

two cloves garlic, crushed
one tbsp. lemon juice
¼ cup soy sauce
one tsp. Worcestershire sauce three tbsps. wine vinegar
one tbsp. salad oil
3-3 dashes Tabasco sauce
Instant Meat tenderizer without spices

Place steak in a shallow dish. Mix together marinade ingredients and pour over meat. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight turning steak two-three times. Use meat tenderizer as package directs. Broil meat four to five inches from heat source, about 30 minutes each side for rare; 25-30 minutes each side for medium. A meat thermometer can be inserted for accuracy in determining degree of doneness. Serves six.

Rice-Stuffed Roulades

two or three roulades salt and pepper to taste
¾ cup seasoned cooked rice
½ cup chopped pickle relish
Flour
Dripping or margarine
1½ cups beef stock or bouillon
two tbsps. tomato paste

With a meat mallet or edge of a heavy plate, pound meat until very thin. Cut each rouladen in two or three pieces. Sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Mix rice and relish and divide among rouladen, spreading it down the middle of the narrow sides. Roll up like a jelly roll and secure with string, small skewers or toothpicks. Coat well with flour.

Brown the rouladen in a little hot fat and transfer to a baking dish. Mix and pour in beef bouillon and tomato paste. Cover and bake at 350 degrees about 1½ hours, until tender. Adjust seasonings and if desired thicken; liquid in baking dish further with flour blended smoothly with cold water. Makes six servings.

Pyramids of Beef in Beer

Sauce

¾ pounds boneless beef, about 2" thick (Lean rump, hip, top or bottom round) salt and pepper
flour
butter
two large onions, thinly sliced
two large sweet red peppers, seeded and sliced
12 mushrooms, cut in chunks
1½ cans or bottles beer (about 2 cups)
1½ tbsps. tomato ketchup
one tbsp. prepared mustard

Trim all fat off meat. With sharp knife, slice meat lengthwise into two strips about 2" wide. Cut a diagonal slice off one end. Starting at point, cut diagonally in opposite direction to make thick triangle pieces of meat. Continue until whole roast is cut in triangles or "pyramids". Sprinkle pieces of meat with salt and pepper and dip in flour on all sides. In large pan or skillet melt butter and brown lightly, turning carefully to retain the pyramid shapes. Add the vegetables to pan and brown lightly. Pour beer over all. Stir in tomato ketchup and mustard. Cover tightly and simmer slowly for 1- to 1½-hours, or until meat is tender. If necessary, add more beer during cooking. To serve, stand pyramids of meat up on a warm platter and pour sauce and vegetables over all. Serves six.

Beef Stroganoff

three 8oz. club steaks three tbsps. peanut oil
two medium size onions
one tsp. paprika
one lb. mushrooms, thinly sliced three tbsps. flour
two cups hot beef stock a drop cayenne pepper salt pepper
¼ cup sour cream
one tsp. horseradish
One tsp. Dijon style mustard one tbsp. fresh parsley, chopped

Slice the club steaks into thin strips.

Heat two tbsps. of oil in a large saute pan, over high heat. When the oil is very hot, add the beef strips, a few at a time, and saute them for for one minute on each side, for rare beef, or two minutes on each side, for well done beef. Season the beef and set it aside.

Heat the remaining tablespoon of oil in the saute pan. Add the sliced onions and cook them, over medium heat, until transparent. Add the paprika and the mushrooms and saute for four minutes. Sprinkle the flour onto the vegetables. While stirring constantly, cook the mixture for two to three minutes. Gradually add the beef stock to the vegetables, season, and bring the liquid to a boil; simmer for three to four minutes.

Add the beef to the sauce and reheat it gently over low heat; do not let the sauce boil, as this would toughen the meat. Mix in the sour cream, horseradish and mustard after having removed the pan from the stove.

Serve the Beef Stroganoff with buttered noodles or rice.

Savory Beef Stew

three-four lbs. stewing bheef, cut in 1" cubes ¼ cup flour
three tsps. salt
½ tsp. pepper oil
three cups cold water
one tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. dry mustard
¼ tsp. thyme
½ tsp. savory
one bay leaf
½ cup pared sliced parsnips two cups, pared, diced yellow turnip (rutabagas) one cup pared, sliced carrots
one cup celery, sliced
One cup mushrooms, halved eight small onions, peeled eight small potatoes, pared and halved two tbsps. chopped parsley

Combine flour, salt and pepper in paper bag. Shake beef in flour until coated. Brown meat a few pieces at a time in salad oil in frying pan. Transfer meat to a large saucepan or Dutch oven. Add water and next five ingredients. Simmer covered for an hour; stir in vegetables and simmer covered one hour longer or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Thicken gravy, if desired, with three tablespoons of flour blended with sufficient cold water to form a smooth paste. Garnish with chopped parsley, serve with hot, crusty bread or rolls. Serves six to eight.

Ford Paid Millions After Warranties

OTTAWA (CP) — Confidential documents show Ford Motor Co. authorized payment of millions of dollars to correct problems in its 1967 to 1970 models—mainly for engine repairs and body rust—after the basic warranty had expired.

The repairs were made under secret programs through the Ford dealer network. Ford owners were not individually notified that repairs for certain problems were available free or on a part-payment basis.

All the Canadian car manufacturers have admitted they operate similar secret plans under which thousands of cars are eligible for free repairs. However, the service generally is given only to car owners who ask for them or complain loudly.

Information on Ford's "extended policy payments" is contained in a document sent to the U.S. Centre for Auto Safety. It reports on a meeting of Ford's "North American automotive operations" on Oct. 19, 1973.

The Automobile Protection Association (APA), a Montreal-based consumer protection group, and a rising chorus of consumer critics in Parliament have demanded the consumer affairs department act to force manufacturers to disclose repairs available after the basic 12 months-12,000 miles warranty expires.

Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet has promised to make a statement this week on the secret programs. The department was informed of them in April.

Jobs Offered

HAMILTON (CP) — About 350 area persons on welfare will be given the choice of working for the fruit industry or having their paymenis cut off, the commissioner of the Hamilton-Wentworth social services department said Tuesday.

Mac Carson said the department has approached two local fruit processing companies which want workers for picking and canning operations.

Murder Charged

TORONTO (CP) — A 15-year-old Toronto girl has been charged with killing her 11-year-old sister July 22 by slashing her with a knife and hitting her with an ashtray, Metropolitan Toronto police say.

The charge was laid under the Juvenile Delinquents Act and accuses her of being a delinquent in that she murdered her sister.

Two Wounded

EDMONTON (CP)—The wounding of two Edmonton teen-agers by police early Sunday has led to an internal police investigation, says Deputy Police Chief Ernie Roberts. He said the investigation will be completed within three or four days. Police fired five shots at a fleeing van near the exhibition grounds about 2:40 a.m. Sunday. Two 16-year-old students—one a passenger in the back of the van and the other sitting beside the driver—were hit.

Control Zoo

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council voted Tuesday to impose strict management controls over the Metropolitan Toronto Zoo but rejected a direct takeover.

The controls require the zoo to obtain council approval for unplanned expenses and use of any profits, and for introduction of street building and bodgeting controls.

69 Problem Areas

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A report to the International Joint Commission (IJC) says there are 69 areas in the Great Lakes which fail to meet Canadian-U.S. water quality objectives.

The report, to be presented to the IJC here today, says Toronto and Hamilton harbors are among the 69 "problem areas."

Farms in Jeopardy

TORONTO (CP) — Farm marketing boards are pulling family farms in jeopardy says Marvin Brechin, consumer representative on the national Farm Products Marketing Council.

Mrs. Brechin said the recent decision of the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board to limit production operations to 62 per cent Sept. 1, puts roadblocks in the way of farmers' making an adequate return on their investment.

Commons Expected To Adjourn Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is expected to adjourn today for a 3½-month summer holiday after finally giving the seal of approval Tuesday night to the bill authorizing the 10-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax increase.

The bill amending the Excise Tax Act received third reading in an 87-to-54 vote at 10:36 p.m. EDT in an overtime session. It goes to the Senate today and royal assent is expected this afternoon.

Provided for in the June 23 budget, the extra tax has been paid by motorists since then.

The bill provides for refunding the tax to purchasers who pay the retail price for gasoline. Regulations will establish who gets refunds and the government has said it will be mainly commercial users.

Finance Minister John Turner, however, said Tuesday that the tax will be refunded to handicapped persons who drive to work because they are unable to use public transit.

But this did not satisfy the New Democratic Party, which contended that handicapped persons should get refunds for all gasoline purchases.

"Is this country this hard up that we've got to chisel 10 cents a gallon out of people who are handicapped?" shouted Lee Benjamin, one of the main NDP critics of the bill.

Pact Called Canadian Blackmail

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Vance Hartke called the Canada-United States auto agreement a piece of Canadian blackmail as the international trade commission Tuesday opened a new investigation into the 10-year-old pact.

Meanwhile, the trade commission, a U.S. government fact-finding body, said it had begun an investigation of the trade, investment, employment and other effects of the pact. The review was requested by the Senate finance committee.

In his Senate statement, Hartke said the pact has caused the loss of 100,000 jobs in the U.S. industry and called on the trade commission to evaluate the effects of repealing it completely.

The Indiana Democrat said it gave out of Canadian moves in 1962 and 1963 to give automobile manufacturers in Canada relief from import duties to the extent that they increased the Canadian content of parts and vehicles.

"Due to this tariff remission scheme," Canadian automobile exports to the United States increased from approximately $11 million in 1961 to $95 million in 1964."

A legal suit was initiated in the U.S. to force the government to retaliate and under pressure from the suit and increasing imports, "the U.S. government entered into negotiations with Canada which five months later culminated in the auto pact." This, said Hartke, was blackmail.

Liberals Charged In Court

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec member of parliament and a member of the national assembly, both Liberals, were charged in court Tuesday as a result of an inquiry into political corruption last September involving town planner Roger Gagnon.

Antonio Yanakis, 35, MP for the central Quebec riding of Berthier, was charged by the Quebec Justice department with three counts of perjury, corruption, breach of trust and conspiring to defraud the public of $1,800.

Gerard Shanks, 51, who represents the Montreal district of St. Henri in the national assembly, was charged with one count of breach of trust and one count of corruption involving $1,750 he allegedly received from Gagnon.

The charges were understood to be part of a series of charges against several persons cited following the report of the closed-door inquiry at which Gagnon was accused of having offered almost $100,000 in bribes to Shanks and town officials of Saint Augustin, in the Eastern Townships, and Pointe Gatineau, near Hull.

At the time of the alleged offences, Gagnon was employed as town planner for both towns.

Gagnon faces 11 charges of political corruption and fraud in the case. He is also accused of defrauding the two towns of more than $38,000.

An unspecified number of municipal officials from various Quebec towns were also reported to have been charged in connection with the case.

Confidential

TORONTO (CP) — A policy questionnaire filled out by Ontario Liberal party members in February has been labelled a confidential document until a provincial election is called, Dr. Boyd Upper, policy director for the party, said Tuesday.

"The information in the questionnaire is very useful from a party standpoint to help us know what the reaction is of Liberals to a wide range of subjects," Dr. Upper said.

Will Testify

VANCOUVER (CP) — Andy Bruce, the prisoner injured in the June hostage ordeal at the British Columbia penitentiary, will give the Parris inquiry his version of events which led to the death of classification officer Mark Gomiero.

Bruce's lawyer, Terrence Robertson, announced Tuesday his client's agreement to testify after visiting him at the penitentiary hospital where he is recovering from gunshot wounds to the chest and spleen.

The inquiry was adjourned indefinitely Tuesday after Chief Justice John Farris, who heads the three-member commission, said he would accept testimony from Bruce. Mr. Robertson estimated Bruce would be able to appear at the inquiry in three weeks.

Harbor Probe Requested

HAMILTON (CP) — City council Tuesday unanimously approved a motion to ask the federal government for an inquiry into the Hamilton Harbor Commission.

The motion, which requires final confirmation at a special council meeting Thursday, will be the third formal request for an inquiry sent to the federal government.

Last week, Labor Minister John Munro, Liberal MP for Hamilton East, announced that there would be no inquiry unless the city established that there had been wrongdoing.

AM. Bill McCulloch said at the meeting Tuesday that there are some unresolved points that might involve the wrongdoing Mr. Munro is looking for.

AM. McCulloch said that the allegation that a government-owned crane valued at $1.5 million was being leased to a local firm at $1 a year and the whereabouts of $15 million in surplus funds that had apparently been in the harbor commissioners' coffers in 1968 but had disappeared still have to be answered.

Bell Rate Boost Cut

MONTREAL (CP) — Cutbacks in capital spending will inevitably follow the government's decision to limit Bell Canada's interim rate increases to $14 million, the company said Tuesday.

A statement released by Bell president A. Jean de Grandpre said: "There will certainly have to be cutbacks in our capital program."

Monday, the Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) awarded the company, which serves Quebec, Ontario and parts of the Northwest Territories, interim rate increases amounting to about $14 million—roughly half the additional amount sought by Bell.

"It is difficult to reconcile the commission's recognition of the urgency of our appeal with its conclusion that we can still somehow get by on 50 per cent of what is required without taking immediate action to reduce construction plans for late 1975 and early 1976," Mr. de Grandpre said.

Davis Visits Orillia

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis chatted with passers-by and shook hands for an hour Tuesday as part of a five-day holiday boat trip along the Trent Canal System.

Mr. Davis arrived at noon and attended a luncheon with Mayor Frank Dolcort and Gordon Smith, Progressive Conservative member of the provincial legislature for Simcoe East.

Following a tour of the main street, Mr. and Mrs. Davis attended a lawn party at a local old-age home.

Time to Remember

Seymour Tyler sits amid memorabilia from two world wars at his home in Lakeville, N.B. As president of this year's reunion committee, he is looking forward to the gathering of the Carleton and York Veterans Association at Fredericton, N.B. on Aug. 3 (CP Photo)

War Veteran Still Active

FREDERICTON (CP) — When the Carleton and York Veterans Association holds its reunion here on Saturday, Aug. 3, an unobtrusive little black mass will know the satisfaction of work well done.

Seymour Tyler, president of this year's reunion committee, has known soldiering since the First World War and still is active at 78.

A native of Saint John, N.B. he was born Feb. 21, 1897.

"When the First World War came along, I quit school and enlisted," he said.

"I landed in an outfit that was trained as infantry and could also handle most construction jobs. We landed in Liverpool after a crossing that took 21 days. We went first to Seaforth, then to Folkestone and next crossed to Boulogne and went right up to the front." I was later wounded at Vimy Ridge."

Back in New Brunswick after the end of the war, Mr. Seymour entered the militia as a member of the York Regiment. He went on a bugler's course in Halifax in 1920 and also played cornet in the regimental band.

Meanwhile, he had taken a farm in New Maryland, near Fredericton, and had married in 1929.

"I was on the way to Saint John with a load of vegetables to display at the exhibition on Sunday, Sept. 3, when I heard on my car radio that Great Britain had declared war on Germany. I turned right around, went back home and prepared to enlist for active service."

In 1938, the erstwhile York Regiment and the Carleton Light Infantry were combined to form the Carleton and York Regiment. The new unit was immediately mobilized on the outbreak of the Second World War and Mr. Seymour spent the autumn of 1939 with the battalion in Woodstock, N.B.

"We landed in Scotland on Dec. 17, 1939," Seymour recalled, "and I had the honor of leading the bugle band from the ship to the train. We went down to Aldershot and began our training.

"I sounded the Royal Salute when King George VI came to inspect the 1st Canadian Division. I was carrying the Efficiency Decoration and both the King and the Queen exchanged a few words with me that day.

Back in civilian life, Seymour Tyler moved the family home from New Maryland to Lakeville Corner. There he joined Canadian Pacific Railway as a porter.

"I agreed to try it for a week. I stayed on for 29 years." In that time he became a familiar figure on the pullmans between Toronto and Vancouver.

In recent years Mr. Tyler has lived quietly at Lakeville Corner. He has been an active member of Oromocto Branch, No. 63, Royal Canadian Legion, and has sounded Last Post and Reveille at Remembrance Day and other ceremonies through central New Brunswick.

Mrs. Tyler (Leoetia) is deeply involved in community and charitable work. She is president of the Carleton and York Ladies Auxiliary; president of a Baptist Missionary Society.

Finnish-born Artist Master Wood Carver

AVONMORE, Ont. (CP) — Finnish-born Mauno Velthein of Avonmore today ranks high among North America's master wood-carvers.

Only recently the 57-year-old wood-carver sent two of his works to the Toronto-based Garfield Gallerien.

Garfield Galleries replied they were not aware of any "in-your vein ever having been done by any other sculptor in this country."

The Avonmore resident was informed his work was "altogether unique in Canada" and was in the spirit of master carvers who, for centuries, practised their art in Austria, Germany and Switzerland.

The Finn, now a Canadian citizen, came to this country in 1951 and began his career as a full-time wood-carver in 1963. Today he works from a small room at the rear of his house in this community 40 miles southeast of Ottawa.

Mr. Veltheim was only eight when he made his first carving with a knife he borrowed from his businessman father.

Today he specializes in carving animals, singly and in groups. His recent creations include a bull moose standing off wolves, bighorn sheep at the alert, deer feeding and cranes at mating. He also carves owls, seals, eagles, horses, cows and buffalo.

Several of his pieces have been displayed in New York and at Ontario House in London.

A Veltheim woodcarving, Horses at Play, was recently donated by the Canadian government to the United States National Association of Furniture Manufacturers for presentation to the company making the most significant contribution to the use of wool in the industry last year.

As he works he concentrates on achieving the detail and sense of movement in his pieces that have made him famous.

His first carving, done nearly 50 years ago, showed a farmer sitting near a log fire and smoking a pipe. Later he studied anatomy for two years under the Finnish artist Jonas Heiska, took a course in drawing, but is otherwise self-taught.

At 17, he exhibited in Helsinki.

"I always liked to work with wood because it is nice and warm to touch," Mr. Veltheim said. "Wood is always nice to feel . . . I like clay work and ceramics . . . but this does 1206 satisfy me."

Mr. Veltheim, his wife Ethel and four children came to Canada in 1951 to escape "war and days of hardship back at home."

When he arrived, he spoke no English. He started his new life working on a farm near Montreal at $70 a month.

He worked on various jobs and eventually decided to move to eastern Ontario. Since he has been living the last 12 years.

He mostly works on butternut wood which he says is a little softer than walnut.

On an average carving, Mr. Veltheim spends two or three days. And on a more difficult carving, such as a pair of eagles—he has to spend as much as five weeks.

"Everything has to be perfect," he said. "If I am not satisfied with a carving, I do it all over again."

He produces about 200 carvings a year.

"I am at the moment 200 carvings behind my orders," he said adding most of his carvings are sold in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto.

His cheapest carving sells at $12 while the most expensive will be around $1,500.

Questions Reveal Hidden Alcoholics

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Can you stop drinking without a struggle after one or few drinks?

Have you ever neglected your obligations, your family or your work for two or more days in a row because you were drinking?

These questions are part of a test developed by Mayo Clinic researchers to identify the "hidden alcoholic" in the general medical population. It's a self-administered test that's aimed at helping doctors spot alcoholism early in patients who have seemingly unrelated physical problems.

The clinic says results must be interpreted by a specialist to have any meaning, but a score of 10 is a strong indication of alcoholism.

More Data Sought for Convention Centre

Executive members of the Quinte District Labor Council have arranged a meeting with the Peterborough Labor Council to discuss plans for competition of a 1,000-seat convention centre.

Council heard said plans for the centre in Belleville had been shelved while arrangements were being made for a meeting with Peterborough officials.

"They've had their trials and tribulations and we want to learn from their experiences," he said.

The Peterborough Labor Council has operated a facility similar to the one proposed by the local council for several years.

Quinte secretary treasurer Jack Thomas met with Peterborough council representatives Tuesday and said during an interview a meeting has been set for one day in the week of Aug. 18. The meeting will be held in Peterborough.

Some months ago, the local council endorsed a recommendation to undertake the project "because a facility of this kind is needed in the community," said Mr. Sword.

Council members and member unions plan to financially support the centre, with rentals expected to cover maintenance.

CN Delays Action On Jury Suggestion

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A coroner's jury recommendation that speedometers be installed in train cabooses is posing problems, a Canadian National Railways spokesman said Tuesday.

The recommendation was one of 11 jury recommendations following an inquest into the Dec. 20, head-on collision of two CN trains near Napanee. The crash took the lives of both engineers and a passenger. Jury was handed the jury findings March 15.

Max Lawson, Toronto public relations officer for CN, said during an interview with The Intelligencer Tuesday, the speedometer recommendation is a rather difficult one for us to comply with. Consequently, none have yet been installed."

He said because the steel wheels of the caboose wear down, "the accuracy of a speedometer becomes doubtful."

While engine crew have a speedometer to refer to, caboose crew rand gauge speed by timing the duration as the cabooses passes mile posts.

Asked why speedometers are used in the engine but would be of doubtful use in the caboose, Mr. Lawrem said "engine wheels are checked more regularly."

The spokesman said because there is more mechanical detail in the engine, it is checked more often. At the same time, wheels are checked for wear and diameter — both factors in how accurately the speedometer operates.

"That doesn't mean we've given up on the idea of putting speedometers in the cabooses," he said. "We're still looking into it."

Bernie Meagher, chairman of Local 402, United Transportation Workers, said the CN's explanation is "baloney."

"That's a pretty flimsy excuse," said Mr. Meagher. "There's no reason why speedometers can't be installed."

Mr. Meagher said he has had difficulty getting information about the proposed installation but following CN's explanation "I'm going to write to the union's general chairman in Toronto asking for action."

"I want the speedometers to make it safer," he said.

Other jury recommendations included additional, mechanical switching safeguards to halt trains which have not completed with signals, increased communication between the engine and caboose, a study of training procedures, implementation of surveillance techniques to ensure employees reporting for duty are fit, more frequent employee medical checks and senior employees should ride with employees with less than six months experience.

Mr. Lawson, in an interview Wednesday, said surveillance of trainmen has been "increased" since the accident. "The other recommendations have not been forgotten. They're being considered and if they can be adapted, they will be used."

Cabbage Country?

Off Highway 62, just north of Madoc a cabbage growing experiment is working out well for Adam Godfrey. The young farmer formerly grew cabbage near Stouffville before taking over his Hastings farm last September. He regards the crop as a good cash crop cushion against bad market conditions for other farm products.

Farmer Hopes Cabbage Crop Might Catch on in Hastings

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

A displaced cabbage grower, from Stouffville, close to the site of the proposed Pickering International Airport near Toronto, sees no reason why cabbages can't be grown in Centre Hastings.

"To prove his point — and make a dollar in the process — Adam Godfrey has mechanically seeded two acres of cabbage on his 300-acre farm four miles north of Madoc. He also has planted a good-sized plot of cabbage sets to compare their performance.

On his Stouffville farm Adam has grown up to five acres of processing cabbage successfully and he thinks highly of the crop as a "good cash crop cushion against a bad year in other farm ventures."

Cabbage, which yields 10 to 25 tons to the acre, sell for about $50 a ton last year, Adam said.

The Godfreys, Adam, Lynnsay and infant son, took over their Hastings farm last September. Of the 300 acres, about half is arable, with the rest in rough pasture and bush.

Eventually Adam plans to operate an extensive cow-calf — or breeding and selling — operation on the farm. Now he has about 40 head of Hereford and Hereford-Charolais crosses on pasture.

"This is a real good grass farm," Adam said. "Good for pasture, hay and forage crops other than corn. I don't see any reason why cabbage can't be grown here. My aim is to seed 20 acres on flat land near a stream, so I can irrigate. All I need is the right piece of land and the money to buy it."

The young farmer said farm assistance schemes recently announced could be helpful in his plans.

With direct seeding, Adam said, he uses an adapted seeder that drills three inches apart. The plants are eventually thinned to 16 to 18 inches. "This is the major part of the hand work. The rest is cultivating and spraying as often as once a week. This is mechanized.

"This year we'll harvest by hand, but with 20 acres, we should be able to interest a processor — like Bick's or Libby's — to bring in a mechanical harvester.

Adam sees a bright future for cabbage growing in the area. "It's an easy-to-grow, hardy crop that is successfully grown as far north as Alaska.

"Canada imports something like $5 million worth of cabbage from the U.S. every year, both for the table and for processing into sauerkraut and cole slaw. There's no reason why we couldn't grow it here."

Another plus for Canadian growers, Adam said, is the development of storage techniques similar to those used for apples. Temperature and atmospheric conditions are controlled so the vegetable can be delivered fresh any time in the year.

Frisbee Champions Cancel Demonstration

A planned frisbee invasion, sponsored by the recreation department and performed by the Canadian National frisbee champions had to be aborted because of strong winds at the Hillcrest School, Tuesday.

Part of the kick-off for a carnival for muscular dystrophy, the display received an enthusiastic response from the 100 children who came to watch but not nearly as energetic as the participation period afterwards.

Ken Westerfield and Jim Kenner, both of Toronto and national frisbee champions explained there are some days when active wind makes the demonstration difficult and it is necessary to just let the children fling away and practice the frisbee technique.

They won their title last year at the Canadian National Exhibition and say they are proud of the recognition because the field was international with competitors from all over North American.

Their tour is to encourage local frisbee competitions with the winners going to the CNE, August 16, for a playdown.

The men originally started making a living by performing exhibitions with the toy only this past year, they said, after having developed the frisbee game for the past years of their lives.

"We became interested in them while attended school and we needed to develop our time when we had nothing else to do," said Ken, "and it soon expanded until we realized we could earn livings from the sports."

"The only thing we want out of the frisbee now is an early retirement with full pension so we don't have to travel all the time and we can just frisbee away the day," he said.

Work on School Addition Now Ahead of Schedule

New guidance facilities, science and art rooms at Queen Elizabeth Public School will be ready for September, says Keith Hawkins, controller of plant with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Completion of the gymnasium change rooms and the library resource centre now is scheduled for November said Mr. Hawkins, who added that Trenton contractors Coad Construction Ltd. are ahead of schedule on the $188,000 project.

The current construction is the third stage of a four-part plan to make the MacDonald St. school a complete senior elementary school, including industrial arts and home economics facilities.

Mr. Hawkins said the graduating class of 1974 contributed funds and the board of education is taking each step as it can afford to. Queen Elizabeth was selected for expansion because it's relatively new and has the best central location for this part of Belleville.

The first phase took place in 1973 and involved a general updating of the grounds in cooperation with the city of Belleville. Community tennis courts, a new ball diamond and a soccer field were developed as part of the community co-operative aspect with the city.

The second phase of the plan was advanced ventilation to the core of the building. Mr. Hawkins said the building underwent renovations for the heating, ventilation and plumbing systems.

The final stage to the plan will be to construct industrial arts and home economics' rooms. The students now attend Queen Victoria Public School for these subjects. When this stage is completed Queen Victoria will become a kindergarten to Grade 6 school.

Windows Smashed

Three youths escaped after they were observed breaking two windows in the laundry room of an apartment building at 183 Mary St. early today.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today property damage in the 12:45 a.m. incident is estimated at $50.

And in another vandalism case, officials of Coca Cola Ltd. at 174 Sidney St. reported four broken windows on the south side of their building at 3:31 p.m. Tuesday, Chief Crosbie said.

He said it is believed the incident occurred during the weekend and property damage is estimated at $75.

Tuesday, July 29, 7:37 p.m. — diluted gasoline spill in parking lot in front of Shoppers Drug Mart at Quinte Mall, used 25 gallons of water, firemen on scene for about 15 minutes.

PC Convention Veteran Enjoys Race for Top

Maude Rollins is a household word — at least in the Progressive Conservative house. She has attended more party conventions that she can recall and will be one of 800 delegates and alternates to nominate a successor to Quinte MPP and minister of correctional services Dr. R.T. Potter Aug. 11.

Remembering the conventions she has attended, Mrs. Rollins says "they're always exciting but you never know if they'll be boring."

She's been a voting delegate at the most of the conventions she has attended. Maybe she would have gone anyway.

"I always hold for the candidate that gets beaten," she said.

Mrs. Rollins, with her husband Harry moved from Tweed to Belleville in 1927. Reflecting over the subsequent years she say conventions haven't changed much.

"Women always did the work — though the men will never agree to that," she said. "We had monthly meeting and guest speakers. We looked amalgamated with the men and they just don't see the point in regular meetings.

"One thing that is unusual about this nomination meeting is that none of the candidates have approached me yet to see it they can get my vote," said Mrs. Rollins. "That's sort of unusual."

As far as Mrs. Rollins is concerned, a provincial election shouldn't be held until October. "I don't think the election will be held in September. That would mean the guys us three weeks or so for campaigning and that wouldn't do at all."

Police Officer Resigns

There will be no departmental hearing into assault case involving former city police sergeant Douglas D. Davidson, Chief Douglas Crosbie said today.

He said the hearing became unnecessary when Mr. Davidson recently resigned from the force. A staff promotion will fill the vacancy, he added.

The 49-year-old Davidson was sentenced to two days in jail in provincial court July 31 after he pleaded guilty July 10 to a charge of common assault.

The incident from which the charge arose occurred May 28 at the police station and Davidson was suspended from the force May 30.

Mr. Davidson is alleged to have grabbed Gary Holleman of 8 Dunnett Blvd. around the neck after Holleman went into the station to file a complaint following a previous occurance outside the station between the two men.

Conventions Exciting

Happy or sad, Progressive Conservative conventions are always exciting, says Maude Rollins, a mainstay in the local party machinery. She is one of more than 280 voting delegates who will chopse a successor to Quinte MPP and minister of correctional Services Dr. R. T. Potter Aug. 11 in Trenton.

Model Railroaders Plan CNE Exhibit

By RON HUSER

All aboard! The Belleville Model Railroad Club is rolling out.

This may just be the call when several members of the club go to display some of their trains at the Canadian National Exhibition (CNE).

"We'll be at the CNE Aug. 22 from 9.30 to 4 p.m. and August 30 from 4 p.m to 10 p.m., in the Arts, Building and Craft Building inside the Dufferin Gates," says the president of the club, Jack Colette.

The club was invited to the CNE by the Central Ontario Division and the Lakeshore Model Railroad Club.

It will be a public display of "what the hobby is all about," said Mr. Colette.

What is all about says Jack, "is the exchange of knowledge and friendship."

The club in Belleville was set up to "assist the newcomer and people who are thinking of joining but feel it would be too expensive," said the president.

He said membership costs $5 a year individually, or $10 a year for a family, which is an "inexpensive way of enjoyment."

The club was also set up to help keep the costs down.

"There has been a wicked increase of prices and it hasn't stopped yet," says Jack.

Currently, members are building their own track and switches and designing the layout of the track.

"With a large club track, this allows small outlay at home with little costs," he said.

There will be 19,200 ties in the construction of the club's rail lines and about 800 feet of rail or 400 feet of track in the new system, said Mr. Colette.

A model railroader for 12 years, he said he first got interested in the hobby because his sons's "fiddle" with electricity.

In his basement, he has the rail yards of North Bay (shown) and Timmins in his basement. For two days in August the club will have a display at the Canadian National Exhibition.

scaled down versions of the

"I worked out the measurements by sketching it out and then changing it down to scale."

Owning about $1,000 worth of equipment without track and switches, Mr. Colette said he got 60 per cent of his equipment used that he has just rebuilt.

"Practically everything has been hand-painted one time or another," he said.

As auditor by trade, Mr. Colette said the club hopes to have a club house in the future but at the time they have had their meetings at Queen Victoria School.

No Secrets Says Shero 'Just Stick to System'

Boris Kulagin, the Soviet National team coach, and Fred Shero, coach of the Philadelphia Flyers. Both are participating in the Tam O'Shanter International Hockey Symposium being held this week at Four Seasons Hotel.

Philadelphia Flyers are unquestionably the number one hockey team in North America. Because of their success, management, coaches and players across the continent have attempted to learn their secret. However, what everyone's been trying to learn isn't exactly a big secret.

"We don't cover up anything," said coach Fred Shero. "I want other coaches to talk to us about how we play. We don't do anything coach different than the rest of the clubs. I feel I can learn from other coaches and they can learn from me."

That is why Fred Shero is in Belleville. At a lecture, at Tam O'Shanter's International Hockey Symposium, Shero plans not only to inform the elite gathering but also to be informed.

"I wouldn't be here if I didn't think I could learn something," he said.

"This should have been done years ago. We should all get together and help another. I can be added.

The only problem is, Shero can't find any other professional coaches in the National Hockey League anyway, that want to talk.

"I've only been approached by one other NHL coach about systems," said the Flyer tactician.

The one other is Los Angeles Kings' master mind, Bob Pulford.

"We've discussed training methods, systems and techniques by the hour, said Shero, "and him telling me or me explaining something to him has only helped our clubs."

That is a proven fact. Since Shero took the Flyers reins and Pulford moved into the coaching position in LA, both clubs have gone right to the top.

"We don't think we're divulging secrets when we have our discussions," said Shero, "this secrecy business is ridiculous."

The Flyer coach says his club does one thing, "Stick to the system". He feels any team can have success if they lay down a formal and stick by it. The only difference he says is how the system is executed.

"That's why we're the Stanley Cup champions," said Shero. "We have our own system and no matter what, we stay with it."

"Every team has systems," he added, "execution is the big thing. It happens that our clubs execute our system better than any other team in the league don' their's."

Shero lectures twice today and again Thursday. He and the other clinicians, along with Father David Bauer and the Soviet National coach, Boris Kulagin will be involved in a panel discussion tonight at Queen's University. Grant Hall. Tickets are available to the public at McDonald's Family Restaurant.

Macs Meet Tonys Tonight

The Belleville McDonalds have been having troubles, to say the least, in their first year of Ontario Football League play. Yet there is one thing the Macs seem to do particularly well against, that team is the Oshawa Tony's, last year: Canadian Senior A champions.

Whether it is a feeling of rivalry because of the close proximity (compared with other OFL centers) or just a fluke of nature, the Macs have never played a bad game against Oshawa.

Tonight the 1-9 Macs will clash again at the Alemite, finishing one game and then launching themselves into another hook up.

The game they will be completing is one that west 11 innings last time Macs were in town, before it reached the city's curfew.

So far this year in regular games the Macs have won one and lost three to the Tony's, with a 1-0 victory for Ted Waite in Oshawa. The losses have all been by one run, 3-1, 2-1 and 4-3. If we'll be a late inning rally last time in Oshawa, Belleville would be even up with the Tony's in regulation play.

Larry Mavety has done particularly well against Oshawa, smashing homers off pitchers Wayne Colley and Barry Timbers. Terry Measner went three for three last time Timbers pitched against Belleville.

As anyone who has seen them known, the Macs are pot bad ball team. They are third in the OFL in fielding, and supplied three players to the All-star team. They have best 14 games by one run, and even if they would have reversed half those games, they would be doing respectably for a first year team.

It is difficult for a squad of "rookies" to do well their first year, but still more should be expected from the McDonalds before this season ends.

If the Macs can't come up with two points on Wednesday night, it'll be time to seriously consider some big changes, at all levels to prepare for next season.

One problem which should be solved immediately is the fact that some players are taking an "I'll be there if I can make it" attitude. With the fan support the Macs have been getting, they should want to be there.

Desire is as important as any other aspect of the game. If they are to win it'll have to come out at the Alemite tonight.

Expos Ripped Off by Umpires

CHICAGO (AP) — It doesn't take much to get Gene Mauch, fiery manager of Montreal Expos, angry and when he has a three-run homer taken away because of an umpire's call, it wouldn't take much.

Mauch was pacing and fuming in the Expos dressing room Tuesday following a 4-3 National League baseball loss to Chicago Cubs.

The disputed play came in the seventh inning when Barry Foote lofted the ball towards the left field wall. The ball hit a hole in the basket that would always have been a home run and popped out onto the field.

Left fielder Joe Cardenal reversed the ball and held Foote to what became a run-scoring double.

"I know it was a homer," fumed Mauch. "Nobody has to tell me that. The first 30 seconds I was out there I asked the umpires where was it. They didn't tell me. With runners on first and second and the second base umpire on the infield side, I assumed it was the third base umpire's call."

Art Williams was at third and Bruce Froemming at second.

"I asked Williams where did the ball hit. He told me I didn't see where it hit. Then I told him he should have been in position to see where it hit."

The instant replay on television showed the ball clearly bounce in and out of the basket and fans in the immediate bleacher area all said the ball was in the basket.

"I'm going to look at the films and see what we will do," said Mauch. "Heck, all you have to do is ask Jose Cardenal about it. He's still under oath and he'll tell the truth."

Earlier in the day Cardenal had to go to court because an assault case against an Expos fan was dismissed. The case was continued.

"I don't know," said Cardenal sheepishly. "I go back for the jump and I don't know what I know the ball is in front of me. Only I don't know if it was fair. Ask Rick Monday, he see it better."

Monday joked about the play and said: "Honestly, fellows, I did you a favor. I didn't see it was looking at the runners."

Williams, the umpire, was dejected when interviewed.

"I thought it came under the basket and bounced up," said Williams. "I saw Jose come in and thought he would make the tag. But now I know it got out there. Are you sure the replay showed it went in? Damn, Damn, Damn."

Foote's double broke a 1-1 tie and put the Expos ahead 2-1 and they were unable to score any more as Rick Reuschel got the Expos catcher Dave Rosello to bounce to first, walked Pepe Mangual and end the inning as Tim Foli grounded into a force play.

Tim Stoddard led off the bottom of the seventh with his fifth homer to tie the game and the Cubs broke loose for two runs in the eighth to win.

They loaded the bases on a pair of walks and a hit batsman. Champ Summers delivered a run-scoring pinch single and pinch batter Vic Harris knocked in another run on an infield force.

The Expos picked up a run in the ninth on singles by Pete Mackanin and Jose Morales and a sacrifice fly by Mangual.

GENE MAUCH

SETS MILESTONES

NEW YORK (AP) — If it weren't for the designated hitter rule, Tommy Davis might be collecting his hundred-point season. Instead, he collected a handful of baseball milestones last week. Davis drove in his 1,000th career run, collected his 2,000th career base hit and clouted his first American League grand slam, home run you don't get good pitching, they'll kill you. They've got some ungodly bats."

Their domination over the Pirates has pumped optimism into the Phillies' camp.

"There's no pressure on us because nobody but ourselves believe we're going to win it," said Underwood. "I'm not saying we will win it—but we certainly believe we can."

In the other National League games, San Francisco Giants defeated Cincinnati Reds 4-2; Atlanta Braves shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2; Houston Astros stopped San Diego Padres 6-2; Chicago Cubs nipped Montreal Expos 4-3; and St. Louis Cardinals defeated New York Mets 5-3 in the first game of a losing the second game 11-4.

Underwood pitched a four-hitter and doubled in a pair of runs to help Philadelphia win. Underwood, a 21-year-old southpaw, hit his double to left centre to key a four-run fourth inning off losing pitcher Dock Ellis, 7-2.

Underwood, who walked one and struck out six, raised his record to 12-7 with his third victory in four decisions against Pittsburgh this season.

Bobby Murcer's two-run double in the sixth inning carried San Francisco past Cincinnati as the Reds failed for the fifth consecutive time to get their complete game from Jack Billingham.

Fred Norman made a strong bid to become the first Cincinnati pitcher to complete a game since June 11, but left in the eighth in favor of Rawly Eastwick. Jim Barr, 9-8, got the victory.

Blue Moon Odom earned his first win and Darrell Evans hit his 13th home run as Atlanta beat Los Angeles. Odom, 1-4, who came to the Braves early in June in a trade with Cleveland Indians, entered the game with a 6.60 earned-run average. He left with two out in the ninth after the Dodgers loaded the bases and Ron Cey greeted reliever Elias Sosa with a two-run double.

Jose Cruz' run-scoring double highlighted a three-run Houston uprising in the fifth inning as the Astros defeated the Padres, ending a five-game losing streak. Dave Roberts, 6-11, allowed only four hits in winning his seventh game against the Padres in nine career decisions.

Ron Fairly drove in three runs with two singles and his fifth homer of the season to lead St. Louis to its first-game victory over New York. Del Unser collected four base hits and drove in three runs to lead the Mets' triumph in the second game.

Brewers Win Despite Star

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gorman Thomas of Milwaukee Brewers was a desperate man. He had eight consecutive strikeouts to his credit, tying an American League baseball record. He needed one more to tie the major league mark.

The fans in the centrefield bleachers at Boston's Fenway Park rose to his support with a big standing ovation as he came to bat in the ninth inning.

"I think they were just trying to get a share of my success," said Thomas.

Manager Del Crandall offered encouragement.

"Before Gorman went to bat in the ninth inning I told him if he strikes out again I'll buy him a dinner," said Crandall. "I did it because he was getting tighter and tighter and I just wanted to loosen him up."

Not to worry. Thomas came through in the clutch. He bounced into a double play, this chance for glory passed.

"I think I deserve at least an asterisk," he said.

Despite Thomas' efforts the Brewers won the game 4-0 behind Jim Colborn's seven-hitter.

In Tuesday night's 8 other American League games, Texas Rangers topped Oakland A's 4-3, Baltimore Orioles defeated Cleveland Indians 7-1, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 4-3, Kansas City Royals dumped Minnesota Twins 5-3 and Chicago White Sox downed California Angels 7-4.

The Boston fans, without much to cheer about, adopted Thomas. After he grounded into the double play, he received a second standing ovation as he trotted out to centre field. He doffed his cap and got yet a third massive round of applause.

"The fans are OK," said Thomas. "They were good and cured, except for the one who threw a beer bottle. I was kind of disappointed because there was nothing in it. I threw it back."

Thomas started his streak with a pair of strikeouts Sunday in Baltimore and added four more Monday night in Boston. Actually, he struck out four times Sunday in Baltimore but there was a walk after the first two which officially interrupted the streak.

Don Money and Darrell Porter led off the game with home runs and Money added another one in the third inning as the Brewers handed Boston only its fourth loss in the last 22 games.

Jim Colborn, 7-4, blanked Diego Segui, 2-4, who struck out 11 batters in his first start since May 16, 1972.

Toby Harrah collected four hits, including the first grand slam home run of his career, and knocked in five runs for Texas. Steve Hargan, 7-4, beaten Jim Perry, 4-10. Joe Ruth homered for the A's who still lead the West Division by 9½ games.

Mike Torrez tossed a six-hitter and Bobby Grich and Lee May knocked in three runs apiece for Baltimore. May increased his runs-batted-in total to 74 for the season. Torrez, 13-6, gave the fifth time in his last six decisions. Don Hood, 3-5, took the loss.

New York broke its scoreless inning string at 27 with an unearned run in the first and added three more in the fifth. Thurman Munson drove in two runs with a single and infield grounder. Doc Medich, 9-12, got the win with last-out relief help from Tippy Martinez.

George Brett drove in three runs with a home run and a sacrifice fly and Paul Splittorff, making his first start in over a month, won his third game in 12 decisions for the Royals.

Dennis Johnson slammed a three-run homer. Ken Henderson whacked a two-run shot and Carlos May hit a solo clout for Chicago. Dave Chalk had a two-run single and Rich Balza a two-run double for California.

Chicago Owner Denies Reports

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox owner John Allyn disputed reports Tuesday that plans are being made for a major shift of baseball franchises involving his team and the world champion Oakland A's.

The Chicago Tribune reported Monday that discussions are underway to move Charles O. Finley's Oakland team to Chicago and Allyn's franchise to Seattle.

"I don't think there's a chance that the White Sox will leave Chicago," Allyn said. "He (Finley) has commitments in Oakland that I don't think he can get out of."

But Allyn has said that he would sell the White Sox if he received an acceptable offer. Allyn's asking price is about $20 million, but he said he would settle for $18 million.

If the White Sox were sold and the proposal realized, it would solve Allyn's financial needs and end competition for attendance in the San Francisco Bay area between the A's and the Giants.

It also would provide a team for Seattle, which lost its franchise to Milwaukee, and fulfill Finley's desire to have a team in Chicago, where his home and insurance operations are based.

But Allyn said he has not been involved in any discussions of the switch.

"I have no intention of moving the club to Seattle. I also don't know of anyone in Seattle who's interested in putting up the money for a baseball team."

Penguins New Owners Bring Back Boileau

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The new owner of Pittsburgh Penguins, pieces together their organization after purchasing the franchise, announced Tuesday the rehiring of Marc Boileau as head coach.

"We concluded a new contract after two meetings," team president Wren Blair said at a news conference. He said the one-year contract is renewable, but other terms were not disclosed.

Also announced Tuesday was an across-the-board increase in ticket prices ranging from 25 cents to $1.50, bringing the top price in Civic Arena to $9.50.

"The NHL wouldn't have given us permission to lay the club without bringing our ticket prices into line," said Blair, formerly affiliated with Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars.

"Otherwise, when next spring comes around, we could be in the same position as the former owners were."

Last season, the club lost $1.7 million, despite fielding a team that had the best record in Penguin history and made it quarter-finals of the Stanley Cup

Dukes, Rays Battle to Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Dukes, leaders in the West division of the Ontario Football League, and Newmarket Rays, leaders in the East, split a doubleheader in London Tuesday with the Dukes winning the first 1-0 and dropping the second, 5-4 in 19 innings.

In the only other action Tuesday, Toronto Waxman Globals edged Oshawa Toops 4-3.

Don Demmas and Dick Hames combined to limit Newmarket to just two hits in the first game with Demmas (7-5) getting the win. Losing pitcher was Bill Lunney, (12-6).

London's only run scored on Art Paquette's single in the second inning. The Dukes share first place with St. Catharines St. Jackets.

In the second game Wally Cooper singled in Lee Downing with the winning run in the 19th. Winning pitcher Bob Domnik (16-5) struck out nine batters and gave up 12 hits.

Losing pitcher Metro Serryk (7-6) gave up 18 Newmarket hits and struck out 18.

In Oshawa, the Globals were led to victory by a former Toop, pitcher Reg Martin.

Martin allowed only seven hits and struck out the same number as Oshawa helped out by committing errors on the first and winning runs.

East Germans Blank Canada

TORONTO (CP)—East Germany, playing in Group II of the qualifying round in the Olympic soccer tournament, scored a 3-0 win over Canada's national team in a international exhibition game before a crowd of 7,000 Tuesday night.

The East Germans, on a tour of Canada, the United States and Mexico, will play their second game in Ottawa on Thursday night against the same Canadian national side.

The East Germans, the only team to beat West Germany in last year's world soccer championships won by West Germany, got a goal at 11 minutes. The goal was scored by Chris Herrocks of the Canadian team who was trying to clear a rebound from the top of the net on a shot by Jurgen Sparwasser, one of the German strikers.

Germany went ahead 2-0 at 30 minutes of the second half when Eberhad Vogel kicked the ball from into an empty net behind the Canadian goalie Jack Brand.

The Germans scored their third goal with three minutes left to play on a two-yard shot by Bernd Branach.

Tigers Lose Stanley

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers apparently lost veteran outfielder Mickey Stanley for the American League baseball season Tuesday when he underwent surgery to repair a ligament in his right thumb.

The Tigers placed Stanley on the 60-day disabled list and said he was not expected to return to action this season. He injured the thumb last Friday in a game against Cleveland.

Stanley joins pitcher John Hiller, outfielder Dan Meyer and catcher Terry Humphrey on Detroit's disabled list. Another veteran, Tom Veryzer has a sprained left foot and is not expected in the lineup for another week.

The Tigers called up 24-year-old outfielder Billy Baldwin from their Evansville, Ind., farm team to fill Stanley's spot on the roster.

Als Nearly Complete Miracle Comeback

MONTREAL (CP) — For a while Thursday night, it looked as if Montreal Alouettes would be able to pull off one of their miracle comebacks.

The Alouettes, defending Grey Cup champions, entered the final quarter of their Canadian Football League game against Saskatchewan Roughriders trailing 14-6 and fell behind 17-6 after an early Brian Berg field goal.

Quarterback Sonny Wade, who sat on the bench in the first half, engineered a three-touchdown comeback in the last quarter which culminated with a 37-yard TD pass to Skip Kaye man with 1:31 left to play. Montreal a 20-17 lead.

But, 24 seconds later, veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster found Hank Dawson wide open the Saskatchewan back slipped away from defender Phil Hoag to score the game-winning touchdown as the Roughriders topped Montreal 24-20.

The Roughriders now are 3-4 while Montreal, who defeated Hamilton 19-23 last week, dropped are 1-1. Tonight, Hamilton is at home against Ottawa in an Eastern Conference game.

Tom Campana got the other two Saskatchewan touchdowns in the first half as he soared through the Alouette defense. Berg converted all three Saskatchewan TDs.

Peter Dalla Riva caught two TD passes from Wade in the last 15 minutes and also grabbed a two-point conversion pass after Montreal's TD.

The crowd of 20,383 was quiet for most of the first three quarters, but came to life as Montreal rallied.

"One of the cardinal rules in football is that you don't hurt yourself," offered Saskatchewan coach John Jenkins. "We almost did that tonight with those late fumbles and those penalties.

"I looked like we were losing the impetus."

But Lancaster, expecting Montreal to be in a prevent defence, found Dawson behind the linebackers and, after Price's mistake, Saskatchewan had its 14th score in 15 league games against Montreal.

"It's very seldom that a play like that goes for a touchdown," said Lancaster. "We knew they would be back in a prevent defence, so we sent three receivers down. Rhett ran it just right and came in just behind the linebackers."

It was Dawson's fumble that led to Kaye's game-winning catch and, ironically, it was Price, the man he beat for the game-winner, who picked up the ball and dropped it.

"We were in a prevent defence on that play," said Als coach Marv Levy. "Dawson caught the ball and slipped away from the defender. We knew the were going to throw the bomb. That was their only chance.

"It's inexcusable to let a thing like that happen, especially when you're expecting them to do it."

The Riders did more passing than some expected, completing 15 of 35 passes for 228 yards.

The Alouettes passed a good deal as well, particularly in the first half when starting quarterback Jimmy Jones seemed to have a particular liking for the long bomb.

The loss snapped Montreal's 16-game home-field winning streak. Their last loss was a 37-30 setback to Saskatchewan on Sept. 18, 1971.

The Roughriders conclude their Eastern swing in Toronto Friday night. Montreal's next outing is at home against Hamilton next Tuesday.

Cindy Nicholas – New Time for Women

Misses Channel Record

DOVER, England (P) — Cindy Nicholas of Toronto fell 11 minutes short of the record for swimming across the English Channel when she stepped ashore at nearby St. Margaret's Bay at about 4:30 a.m. EDT to day.

The 17-year-old swimmer, who last year set the Lake Ontario record, was aiming at the Channel record of nine hours, 36 minutes when she started out from Cap Gris Nez, France, Tuesday night.

Miss Nicholas' time was reported at nine hours, 46 minutes.

It was 13 minutes faster than the previous best time for a woman swimmer from France to England. But the no less difficult crossing from England to France was accomplished last year by Lynne Cox of the United States in nine hours and 36 minutes, just one minute short of the all-time record set by Britton Barry Wacon in 1964.

It was the second attempt at the Channel crossing for Miss Nicholas. She made her first try July 18, starting from the English side, but ran into high winds after about seven miles and abandoned the attempt.

Miss Nicholas last year made the 33-mile crossing of Lake Ontario in 15 hours, 15 minutes, breaking the record set by Marilyn Bell in 1954. Miss Bell became the youngest swimmer to cross the Channel when she made the swim in 14 hours, 36 minutes at the age of 17 years, 20 months in 1951.

Since then, the age record has been lowered by Egyptian swimmer Abla Adel Khairi who was two months under 14 years when she made the crossing last year.

Miss Nicholas said she felt good after her swim and said the last couple of miles were perhaps the easiest. The hardest part, she said, was the first few hours of the swim which began shortly after midnight local time and she had trouble seeing her escort boat.

The boat was piloted by Captain Val Noakes and carried her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Nicholas.

Also on hand were observers from the Channel Swimming Association who confirmed her time of nine hours, 46 minutes as official.

Cindy and her parents were forced by bad weather and heavy tides to wait almost two weeks before conditions were right for her second attempt and then she started from the French coast to take advantage of tides on the westward swim.

The previous women's record for the Prince-to-England crossing of nine hours and 59 minutes was set by Australian Linda Mcgill in 1967.

Miss Nicholas was one day off being the first person to swim the Channel this year, the ceremonary year for the marathon crossing.

The feat was first accomplished in 1875 by Capt. Matthew Webb, a Briton, who years later was drowned trying to swim the whirlpool below Niagara Falls.

Ten players tied with one touchdown each: Rodgers, Ferneghelli, L. Smith and Eamon of Montreal; Perez, Bender and Hopkins of Hamilton; Holloway and Bledsoe, Ottawa, and Orange, Toronto.

Rookie Bob Macritti of Winnipeg Blue Bombers booted three converts and a single in Western Football Conference action Tuesday night.

The effort didn't prevent the Bombers' 28-22 loss to Edmonton Eskimos, but it kept him on top of the WFC scoring race with 15 points.

Brian Berg of Saskatchewan Roughriders is second with 14 points after kicking three converts and a field goal in his team's 24-20 win Tuesday over Montreal Alouettes in an Interlocking Canadian Football League game.

Nine players were tied with one touchdown each: Reed of Saskatchewan; Lefebvre, McGowan and Highbaugh of Edmonton; Crump, Exley, Odums and Jack of Winnipeg and Young of British Columbia.

EDMONTON (CP) — Head coach Ray Jasch of Edmonton Eskimos said his club was lucky and offensive coach Vern Rapp was concerned for the future after the Western Football Conference defending champions escaped with a 28-22 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers Tuesday night.

A crowd of 21,606 watched the Eskimos overcome a dismal start and the loss of flanker punter Garry Lefebvre in their first game of the season. Rapp said in the dressing room the team must conquer its habit of waiting until the last minute to pull out a victory.

The win came on a 29-yard touchdown pass from Tom Wilkinson to Larry Highbaugh with less than two minutes remaining in Highbaugh, normally a cool sprinter, was in the game only because Lefebvre broke his his shoot six inches above the ankle in the fourth quarter.

Winnipeg coach Bud Riley refused to criticize the officials but it was obvious he was disturbed over a rough play penalty against centre John Bonk two plays before the winning score. The call erased an apparent reception by Gord Peterson on a pass to George McGowan and gave Wilkinson the extra chance he needed.

It was the third touchdown pass for the stumpy Wilkinson, player of the year in the Canadian Football League last season, who completed 16 of 22 passes for a whopping 238 yards. He found Lefebvre with a perfect sideline pass for a 5-yard score and McGowan—his favorite target with six receptions for 100 yards—for a 30-yarder.

Dave Cutler completed Edmonton's scoring with three converts, two field goals and a single on one of the two field goal bids he missed.

All three Winnipeg touchdowns—by quarterback Chuck Ealey, running back Rich Crump and tight end Brian Jack—were long ones.

Crump counacted on a 35-yard sweep to the left and Ealey ran a 35-yarder that looked almost the same to the crowd. Jack, a speedster, was left alone on the last play of the first quarter and scored on a 51-yard passand-run play.

Bob Macoritti kicked three converts and produced a single on a 40-yard punt. All the Blue Bomber scoring except Macoritti's third-quarter punt came in the first quarter.

After that, the veteran Eskimos defense settled down and the offence found the consistency it had been lacking. Nine penalties were called against Edmonton, many to quell promising marches.

"We were lucky," said Jasch, despite his club's net offence of 372 yards compared with 308 for Winnipeg.

The undecimated Winnipeg, they deserve credit for what they did, but over all I'm not impressed with our play."

Rapp agreed.

"It's really something when we come back like that, but if we keep doing it, one of these days we're going to come up a little short. We have to get more consistency . . . avoid penalties.

"We get a lot of penalties in the exhibition games, too. It's a concern to us."

Edmonton's players and coaches blamed a 12-day layoff after their last exhibition game for their slow start.

"We were a little tight," said Jasch. "It didn't help us."

Soviets Bounce Canada

LENINGRAD (CP) — The Soviet Union beat Canada's national team 87-72 in an International Cup basketball game Tuesday night.

The Soviets held a 53-38 lead at halftime.

Lars Hansen of Port Coquitlam, B.C., led the Canadians with 24 points and Martin Riley of Winnipeg added 18. Bill Robinson of Chesterfield, N.S., Tom Tallentyre of Raymond, Alta., and Sam Rowe added eight points each and Romel Haffin of Montreal, Oct., had five. George Rautins of Toronto and Ian Sharpe of Guelph, Ont., added four points each.

In other Intercontinental Cup matches, the Italian national team beat Brazil 90-73 at Trieste, Italy, and Yugoslavia beat the United States 83-79 at Belgrade.

The loss was Canada's third after an opening-game win against Greece in Athens. The Canadians lost 97-87 to Yugoslavia and 98-79 to Italy.

The team now returns to Canada for four additional games in the Cup series. The team plays Greece in Wetaville, N.S., Aug. 8, Yugoslavia in Hamilton, Aug. 12, Italy in Windsor, Ont., Aug. 14, and the Soviet Union on Aug. 17 in Toronto.

A CASE AGAINST HOARDING

Lack of availability of jar lids has inconvenienced many home canners this year. In the United States, the situation has reached crisis proportions due to hoarding.

Our Canadian problem has a number of explanations: Supplies normally exported from the United States has been cut off. Two-thirds of the canning done this year is by women who never canned before, and need entire new canning equipment. And lid suppliers were on a steel quota until April 1.

How easily you can get jar lids will depend to a degree on your buying only for immediate needs. If facilities are available, freezing instead of canning would also ease the situation.

Immigration Officials Check List of Arrests

VANCOUVER (CP) Scanning the overnight arrest sheets in search of non-Canadian law breakers is a daily task for Caroline Mandigo, an employee of the immigration department.

The information sheets at the Vancouver Public Safety Building note the citizenship and country of origin of those arrested overnight.

She takes the details of every suspect who is not a Canadian citizen and takes the information back to the Canada immigration office.

After checking the information against data on known criminals and previous deportees, she returns for the opening of court.

Miss Mandigo is empowered to interview prisoners in the cells, make arrests as an officer under the Immigration Act and give counselling assistance to legitimately-landed immigrants who have run afoul of the law.

The immigration support services branch of the immigration division, Canada Manpower, is the official name for the organization whose employees greet rainclouds of refugees, deal with sailors who jump ship and return criminals to their homelands.

There has been some criticism of the department's powers. Its officers may determine status, prohibit entry, govern work permits and deport undesirables.

Vancouver lawyer Don Rosenbloom, who has defended a substantial number of immigration cases, said the act leaves too much power in individual immigration officials.

"The regulations on prohibited classes are supposed to be tight and scientific, but there is incredible latitude and incredible discretion in the hands of the officers," Mr. Rosenblom said.

He fights deportation orders against his clients, or fights for a change in status to allow his clients to remain in Canada as visitors or workers.

Ross Coulson, district supervisor of immigration's special inquiry officers, said he wants to be scrupulously fair in his administration of the regulations.

"We don't like putting anyone in jail and we sure don't want to keep them in there," said Mr. Coulson.

"If someone has been convicted of a crime that puts him in one of the prohibited classes, we try to get him a hearing and determine how to dispose of his case."

An immigration hearing, convened by a special inquiry officer, can result in a deportation order. Notes are taken by a shorthand reporter on every hearing and a complete report is filed on every case.

If a deportation order is made and the deportee is in detention, immigration officers can physically carry out the return of the person to his country.

In the case of United States nationals, this usually means delivering the deportee to border officials at Blaine, Wash.

Even then, the system is not fail-safe. Immigration officials still tell the story of the escorting officer who dropped his charge at Blaine, then stopped in Douglas, B.C., for a coffee with fellow officers.

By the time the escorting officer got back to Vancouver, the man he deported had lied his way back across the border, returned to Vancouver and had been arrested again.

Late Letter

Frank Andrews of Welland, Ont., wrote a letter to his sister and brother-in-law Jan. 14 1945 while stationed at the air force base at Yorkshire, England. The letter arrived in Welland recently Mr. Andrews said it was "eerie" to read something it wrote so long ago. His sister and brother-in-law have since died. (CP Photo) by Jean Francis Welsh.

An isolated castle contains the sarcophagus of a legendary actor, and the heroine discovers he is not dead but playing a deadly role.

THE COTTAGE — by Gretchen Dykes.

THE CURSE OF THE KINGS — Victoria Holt.

A contemporary middle-aged widow rents a cottage to a young man.

Honeymooning, a bride is entombed then miraculously rescued. This novel contains murder, intrigue, romance and is set in Victorian England and on the banks of the Nile.

THE GLASS VIRGIN — by Catherine Cookson.

A beautiful girl learns the shameful secret of her birth and descends into a world of degradation and suffering. A mysterious, handsome hero defies convention to save her.

ILLUSION AT HAVEN'S EDGE — Dorothy Daniels.

Accused of murder, committed to an asylum, then released, our heroine narrowly misses being murdered herself before she discovers the real villain. The opening chapter gives a picture of confinement in an asylum.

THE JADE BOX — Nancy Faulkner.

After her grandfather's death, our heroine learns what evil dwells at the great stone mansion and what hideous curse is contained in the oriental box.

KNIGHTS KEEP — Rosa Randall.

Once-locked castle doors open when an orphaned seamstress becomes a sudden heiress. Slow poison threatens until the hero rescues her.

THE LION TRIUMPHANT — Philippa Carr.

The beautifully, fiery-tempered heroine is literally storm-tossed when she is kidnapped by Spanish pirates and taken to the Canary Islands. Violent hate and passionate love await the turnpetuous Catharine, called Cat, before she and the lusty Jake Pennlyon are reconciled.

LOVERS ALL UNTRUE — Norah Lofts

A Victorian English heroine goes insane and does not get her man when she cannot escape her cruel father and the customs of the times. A true evocation of the era.

MOONRAKER'S BRIDE — Madeline Brent

A young English girl, born and bred in China endures harsh Oriental life and encounters strange intrigue before finding a new life and love in England.

ON THE NIGHT OF THE SEVENTH MOON — Victoria Holt

An impulsive, imaginative girl lives through a fantastic adventure in her mind instead of the real nightmare in the Black Forest. An ancient legend comes to life.

OUT OF THE DARK — Nora Lofts.

Set in Victorian England and partly based on an actual unsolved murder. Our heroine is acquitted but her innocence is still questioned.

SNOWFIRE — Phillis A. Whitney.

Icy passions spark terror at a great Norman House in the Pocono ski area.

WINTERWOOD — Dorothy Eden.

Col. By's Birthplace Pretty Little Village

FRANT, England (CP) — Little bits of Canada turn up in the strangest places. Such as the day we took a pleasantly lazy ride on a local bus which laces in and out of old Sussex villages from Sevenoaks to Brighton.

One of these places is Frant and when the driver called it my husband exclaimed, "Frant, why that's the spot where Col. By came from. Let's stop and look around."

Frant, a tiny village of pretty rose-covered houses, grouped around a triangle of very green grass, is the place where Lt. Col. John By was born in 1783. This was the man who built the Rideau Canal system, and who laid out Bytown (now Ottawa) with its beautiful Sussex Drive and its own St. Alban's Church on Daly Ave.

In the churchyard of St. Alban's at Frant, we sought out the grave of Col. By, founder of Canada's capital city. The massive white marble memorial stone rises above other graves in the older part of the cemetery where grass and weeds have long since grown wild.

Inside the church, is a white marble plaque to his memory. It gave us a strange feeling to think that even generations ago, people could find their way from such a remote village across the Atlantic, deep into the North American wilderness.

By was one of those who did so. But unlike the forefathers of so many of the older Canadians, he did not stay. Col. By returned to rural England and his home village to live out his declining years and be buried near the village green where he had played as a boy.

Perhaps some day, as overseas pilgrimage of Canadians to Frant in Sussex might be arranged to honor Col. By, who contributed so much to the growth and beauty of Canada and its capital.

What if your pay cheque was late?

Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers.

Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later" . . . and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.

For many of us this would be a calamity. Of course, you want to be paid promptly. All of us do. The boy or girl who delivers your Intelligencer will appreciate being paid promptly.

HOLBATE — Jackie and Robin are pleased to announce the birth of their sister Jennifer July 29, 1973 at Belleville General Hospital. Proud parents are Dorothy and Robert. Special thanks to Dr. Allen and the 4th level.

Bryson — To Byron and Pat (nee Brassard), a daughter, Tricia Marie, on Friday, July 27, 1973 in Kamloops, B.C. A sister for Paula.

JOHNSON — Ed and Joan (nee Dupont) announce the birth of a daughter Andrea Vincent, in Trenton on July 17, 1973 at Belleville General Hospital. A sister for Tracy and Stephen.

IN MEMORIAM

CANNONS and PHELPS — In loving memory of our daughter Alice Cannons, who passed away July 29, 1973, and my sister Martha Phelps, who passed away June 19, 1956, my father, Charles Phelps, who passed away July 14, 1940.
Two hearts that lived as one,
Two hearts that were true,
Two hearts that loved and suffered,
Two hearts that bore and bore,
When I lost one your aching pain,
Your loss I felt as my own.
Two hearts that were true,
Two hearts that were true,
I visit your resting place
And place the flowers with care,
Yet I know that you are there,
When I turn to tell you so
—To dearly loved to ever be forgotten. Ever remembered.

CANNONS — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Alice, who died exactly three years ago today, July 30, 1970.
As we loved you, so we miss you,
As we think of you so we pray,
Time will never be long enough
For us to forget you.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by husband Bert, daughter Susan.

HALL — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Norman Dalton Hall, who passed away July 30, 1968.
Sweetly the angels came and gently lifted away
Their loved one, but memory lingers on with us still.
Time can never take from us
Some dear think you are forgotten,
Sometimes we think of you
But in memory you are with us
Where we see you years before.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Kate, children and grandchildren.

SOUCY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Gerald Soucy, who passed away July 30, 1973 at age 19.
The shock that we received that day,
The pain we felt,
God gave us strength to meet it
And courage to bear the blow,
And what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
We miss your smiling face,
We miss your voice and your laugh,
For life is not the same for us,
Since you were called away.
You took no one's heart forever,
Left no one's heart sore,
You were gone before we realized,
And only God knows why.
—Always loved and sadly missed by Mum, Dad and LorAnne and Mark.

BYRD — David and Sharon (nee Brownell) thank doctors Lee, Marie, Ingram, Ellis and Hanna, Lisa Marie, 3 lbs. 11 oz. born July 31, 1973 at the Belleville General Hospital. Ballet Manager Breaks Even VANCOUVER (CP) — Anyone can make a profit but the general manager of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet tries to break exactly even.

Jim Cameron says if the company makes money the grants start to fall off.

"On the other hand, if we lose money we have to raise more to pay off the debt," he said in an interview.

In 1973, the company lost $200,000, four times its greatest previous loss.

To keep a top dance company together, they have to be as a company at least 40 to 45 weeks a year and give about 120 performances, Mr. Cameron said.

"If you'll pardon my saying so, there just aren't 120 performances in Winnipeg in a year, or even in Canada," he said. "So we travel."

There are about 35 dancers in the company, compared with about 60 in a comparable company, he said.

"This means everybody has to work harder. One advantage of travelling light is the company can move by bus, and can play in places in between the major centres."

Of last year's budget, 60 per cent was for wages. Fifty-three per cent of the money came from performances and the federal government contributed 22 to 23 per cent. The remainder came from the city of Winnipeg and various organizations and individuals.

Because of its mobility the company has the United States university circuit to itself, as far as the dance goes.

"You have these huge, great universities in the middle of somebody's field. We are the only company small enough to play them economically," he said.

Tours off the continent are another matter. A 12-week tour of Australia in 1973 was done on a fee of $100,000.

"We budgeted with an ace," said Mr. Cameron. "Fortunately, these people are very dedicated and there aren't too many complaints."

A 1973 South American tour was a little different in that the Canadian government did part of the arranging.

"It cost $250,000, the government paid for most of it. Can you imagine trying to budget in an area where there is a 25-per-cent inflation?" Mr. Cameron said.

He added that the company's main audience is in Canada.

"We can play all the major cities except Victoria, Halifax and London. They don't have the facilities," he said.

Mr. Cameron said this year's fund-raising campaign had proceeded slowly but surely and that if the goal of $200,000 was reached, the ballet's 1974-75 budget of $1.5 million would be balanced.

Of the four new ballets mounted this season, three were done for less than the budgeted amount and the fourth was slightly over budget, Mr. Cameron said. He said the company had not toured as much this season as in 1973-74.

Ulcer Victim Has Nerve Cut

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: Are you familiar with a method of ulcer surgery where the vagus nerve to the stomach are cut?

My husband had a history of ulcers (surgery at 31 and medication for the last 30 years) and two years ago he had two bleeding ulcers, one within 24 hours. He had the gastric surgery. He has had no trouble with food since.

But he has since ignored his doctor's advice to quit drinking, even though he was told his life could depend on this.

Is he about to get another attack, or another ulcer, or what?—Mrs. R. H.

In serious cases (which your husband's seems to be) when all else fails it is possible to reduce the motility of the stomach and stomach secretion by cutting the vagus nerve. This nerve actuates these activities, allowing healing of a peptic ulcer to proceed more rapidly.

It is even more important now that your husband adhere to lifestyle, with special reference to his drinking. The relative inactivity of the stomach after the operation makes an ulcer even more vulnerable to the ravages of imprudent eating and drinking than ever before.

I suspect you want me to "Scare"him into realizing this. Only he can do this.

Dear Dr. Thompson: My husband has had what the doctor says is shingles. He's had it for four weeks, and he has received cold pills and shots for it. The rash ran around his shoulder and up his back.

He is still bothered with pain and has last weight since his his skin has cleared up. We can't find out much about his disease.

I am anxious to know now if there are any after effects to this disease, and what similar have caused it in the first place?—Mrs. W. R. G.

There are no after-effects. However, while an attack usually subsides within a few weeks, it can often linger with painful symptoms much longer, in some cases for years.

During this period, flare-ups can occur, especially if the victim contracts a cold or some such illness. The symptoms last certainly longer in older persons.

Happily, one attack does confer immunity for life.

It is a virus-caused disease, the virus striking at a ganglion (nerve root) of a major nerve. It is a form of neuritis. If you have a medical book, look it up under "herpes zoster."

How is it caused? We're not absolutely sure. There are several theories. One is that it can be contracted by contact with a chicken pox victim. The virus is identical.

There is no cure. The medication prescribed does help, but most likely to alleviate the symptoms only.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, age 13. Is it really necessary to keep bathwater lukewarm during menstruation? I simply enjoy steaming in baths, and I don't see why I should give them up during menstruation.—M. M.

Whatever temperatures is comfortable for you is okay.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am in my first pregnancy and I have a very sensitive question for you. I'm almost embarrassed to ask. Is it safe to have sexual intercourse during your pregnancy? I've heard it can harm the unborn child.—Mrs. M. T.

No need for embarrassment about a perfectly natural question. Precaution should be taken, especially during the early and late pregnancy. Gentleness is always the guide. Some physicians advise against intercourse in the last month.

Condominium Life Pleases Owners

OTTAWA (CP) — Seven years after it was built, one of Canada's first experiments in condominium apartment living is reported to be success by almost all its 120 owners.

Horizon House, a 12-storey building in the capital's west end, was built in 1968, shortly after the Ontario government passed the province's first condominium law.

At first, buyers balked at the initial selling price for a two-bedroom unit, in part because they didn't know what the ownership" arrangement would work out.

Now there is a waiting list to buy the apartments even though the price for a two-bedroom unit is between $33,000 and $40,000 and condominiums are common here and in other cities.

Alf Ritchie, a former Ottawa city treasurer and one of the original residents, said the building "is running as smoothly as a well-oiled machinery."

Under the condominium law, each apartment owner owns the inner walls of his apartment and its contents, the foyer, garage, swimming pool, elevators and halconies—belonge to the owners collectively.

The owners elect a board of governors who run the company meeting the collectively-held elements of the building. Each apartment owner has a number of shares, proportional on the size of his unit.

When the first buyers moved into Horizon House they discovered some problems created by the legal division between the private and common elements.

The installation of an air-conditioner was not a private one. The installation of an air-cooler would protrude into the building's exterior, a common element. The board of directors, which yet to e ent anybody permission for such an installation.

Nor could a resident change the outside of his front door without the board's consent. One resident put an antique finish on his door but the problem has not arisen since.

Residents like Harlamand like the feeling of ownership.

"In an apartment building you don't have the feeling nothing really belongs to you," he said.

"If something goes wrong, you don't feel it matters. I don't have that feeling here, and I would never allow anything dirty outside the hall because I have pride in the place."

But Horizon House is not the place for people looking for complete privacy and anonymity.

"We had one rather wealthy known doctor who bought his mistress a unit here," Mr. Ritchie said. "It wasn't very long before he got her out because he hadn't counted on 119 other people knowing exactly what was happening on a day-to-day basis."

Owner participation in the board's position, and turnout at board elections have been high with an average of 100 candidates running for five positions.

E. A. Pearse, president of the condominium corporation, said he is particularly proud of the $50 monthly fee residents pay for heat, light, water, cable television, maintenance and snow removal.

"We've one of the lowest fees around," he said. "And we plan to keep it that way. The only other expenses an owner has to think of are his property taxes and telephone."

Blackwood is not really a method of bidding slam. It is a method of checking for aces after you have counted enough trick-taking potential to make a small or even a grand slam.

Thus, you should plan to bid six any time your partner's response shows that your side holds three aces.

If his response shows that you hold all four aces you may settle for six, invite seven or even bid seven.

The normal way to invite seven is to follow up your four notrump with five notrump. This follow-up asks for kings in the same manner four notrump has asked for aces. Six clubs shows zero or four kings, six diamonds one king, six hearts two kings and six spades three kings.

It is most important to bear in mind that when you ask for kings you are guaranteeing that your side holds all the aces.

This makes it possible for the partner of the Blackwoodor to take charge—when he has the right cards. It wasn't hard for Nor th to count to 13 tricks after South's bids of four and five notrump. Then since the game was made South and North bid the grand slam in notrump. Ten points means nothing in rubber bridge, but it means the difference between a good score and a top.

Ask the Jacobys

"I responded one notrump to my partner's spade opening. He rebids three spades. What should I bid with:

♠ K 6 ♥ X X ♦ A 10 X X X ♣ K Q 10 X

We would bid four spades. Our seven high card points are in the form of an ace and a king and even our doubleton heart might be worth a trick. Our second choice is to pass and we definitely would not rebid three notrump.

Ontario Hydro Wants To Buy Alberta Coal

EDMONTON (CP) — A coal-mining project which could create a new energy link between Ontario and Alberta was closed before the province's energy resources conservation board Tuesday.

Luscar Ltd. of Edmonton wants to develop a mine on property which holds an estimated 300 million tons of recoverable thermal coal.

The 1,056-acre parcel proposed for the mine was once an important coal-producing centre in the Coal Branch area about 140 miles west of here.

The proposal calls for initially establishing an open-pit mine capable of producing a minimum of 2.1 million tons of coal annually. The main market for the bituminous steam coal is Ontario Hydro, which hopes to take at least 1.5 million tons annually in 1977.

If the development is permitted by the provincial government it will result in millions of dollars worth of mine construction, railway expansion, Great Lakes lakeshipping and construction of a bulk coal terminal at Thunder Bay.

Luscar estimates that the Coal Valley project and associated railway equipment will cost about $100 million. A similar expenditure would be required for the bulk terminal and coal-carrying ships.

Pipeline Report Alarms Eskimo

OTTAWA (CP) — A U.S. report outlining possible hazards in a natural gas pipeline running through Canada from Alaska should cause alarm and concern, Tagak Curley, land claims director for the Inuit Tapirisat of Canada, said Tuesday.

Mr. Curley said the Eskimo organisation thinks the federal government should reconsider the proposed Mackenzie Valley rel.

Tax Is Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Cuts of slightly more than two cents a gallon in the export tax on petroleum, effective Friday, were announced Tuesday by Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

The reductions in the tax follow increases in the domestic price of crude oil and the effect it is to keep prices of petroleum products at about world price levels of $11-to-$12 a barrel.

Ontario Will Spend $5 Billion on Energy

GUELPH Ont. (CP)—Ontario spending on energy is expected to reach more than $5.5 billion this year, Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell said Tuesday.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Ontario region of the National Farmers Union, he said that cost could double within five years given projected costs increases, questionable supplies, the vagaries of energy pricing and the fragile nature of energy politics."

Ontario can't afford to return to the "energy binge" of the 1960s and 1970s, he warned.

Domestic food production accounts for between 12 and 15 per cent of total energy consumption, he said. Production at the farm level is responsible for only 2.5 to 3 per cent of that amount with processing and marketing requiring the balance.

At one time it used to tick.

Ontario to Set Up Rent Review Boards

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will support rent review boards in low-vacancy areas of the province in an effort to stop exorbitant rent increases, Housing Minister Donald Irvine said Wednesday.

The long-awaited announcement of government action in the rental field falls short of imposing rent controls but goes some way to answering calls for measures to control rent increases.

The proposed boards, to be brought in on the request of municipalities following legislation expected this fall, will not have the power to roll back or amend rent increases, Mr. Irvine told a news conference.

But they will have power to subpoena landlord's records and "publicly expose unjustified rent increases through the holding of public hearings."

"If we publicize the gouge we'll be able to shame the person by showing that he or she is asking for too much."

The announcement was part of what Mr. Irvine described as a "five-point program to provide protection for tenants in Ontario."

Other measures include:

—Government efforts to increase the rental supply by 10,000 family units this fiscal year, —Bolstered up by the Urban Development Institute, (UDI) whose members furnish about one-quarter of the rental supply in the province, of a standards committee to arbitrate tenant complaints.

—Amendments to the Landlord and Tenant Act in the fall to provide minimum leases of one year for buildings with six or more units and three years for buildings with fewer than six, and mandatory lease renewals unless landlords can show just cause for non-renewal.

The proposed amendments would also require two months' notice of rent increases and reasons for increases and three months notice of non-renewal with reasons on a lease of one or more years.

Mr. Irvine said he continued to reject rent controls because they had a detrimental effect in areas where they were used.

He said the package approved by cabinet after many sessions was the one he and his ministry felt most advocating for some months.

He said housing ministry research showed rents across the province had been increasing at an annual rate of 11 per cent "on average at about the same rate as other basic goods and services in our economy."

Mr. Irvine said rent controls cause developers to leave the housing market, a decline in building maintenance and lead to slum decay.

The proposal will cost about $2 million a year, Mr. Irvine said.

Mr. Irvine said the 100-per-cent provincially-financed boards likely would be set up in six municipalities where vacancy rates fall to "roughly 2.5 per cent" according to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) statistics.

Among municipalities which might qualify are areas in Metropolitan Toronto, Thunder Bay, Sudbury, London, Windsor, Hamilton and Ottawa.

Of these, Thunder Bay had the lowest vacancy rate of 1.7 per cent, CMHC April statistics showed. The rate in Metro Toronto was 2.4 per cent and Ottawa was the highest at 3.5 per cent.

Until the boards are set up, tenants can take complaints to rent bureaus and municipal advisory bureaus and municipalities with low vacancies can receive 50-per-cent provincial funding to set up such bureaus "beginning the review process now."

Ford Talks To Turk On Bases

HELSINKI (AP) — Turkish Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel met with President Ford Wednesday and talked of possibly reopening United States bases in his country.

After the breakfast meeting, Demirel told reporters he and Ford had reviewed troubled relations between their two countries and he added:

"As far as Turkey is concerned, these relations are very valuable. We will do our very best not to spoil these relations."

Ford said the U.S. will "do our best to remove any roadblocks" to close ties with Turkey. The U.S. relations between Turkey and the U.S. were mutually beneficial and of great value to the rest of the Western world.

The U.S. Congress banned arms shipments to Turkey earlier this year after Turkey used American weapons to invade Cyprus. That led Turkey to halt all U.S. military activities at the bases last Saturday.

Mohawk Church Damaged

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Her Majesty's Chapel of the Mohawks, built in 1785 and the oldest protestant church in Ontario, was damaged by fire early today.

Fire Chief Wesley Wood said structural damage to the Anglican chapel was limited, but smoke and water damage was extensive.

Mr. Wood said he would not speculate on reports that the fire was deliberately set but he said fire department investigators would examine the chapel and if arson is found to be the cause the Ontario Fire Marshal's office will be called in to investigate.

Rev. W. J. Zimmerman, pastor of the chapel for 3 years, said many religious artifacts, some written in the Mohawk tongue, were destroyed by the fire.

Mohawk Indian chief Joseph Brant is entombed beside the chapel, built in 1785 with a grant from King George III.

Hydro Cuts Rate Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Robert B. Taylor, chairman of Ontario Hydro, announced today that the utility has reduced its 1976 wholesale rate increase proposals to 25.1 per cent for municipal customers and 34.9 for industrial customers.

In a statement to the Ontario Energy Board, Mr. Taylor said the revised proposal would mean increases of $2.26 a month or eight cents a day for the average municipal customer.

Hydro had proposed in April that 1976 rate increases be 29.7 and 39.9 per cent for municipal and industrial customers respectively—$3 a month for the average municipal customer.

Brezhnev Emphasizes Nations' Rights to Control Own Affairs

HELSINKI (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev told the European security conference today that his country would not tolerate interference in its internal affairs.

Brezhnev said the major conclusion reflected in the conference's final document is that "no one should try to dictate to other peoples, on the basis of foreign policy considerations of one kind or another, the manner in which they ought to manage their internal affairs."

"It is only the people of each given state, and no one else, that has the sovereign right to resolve its internal affairs and establish its internal laws."

This was apparently directed at United States congressional leaders who have sought to link East-West detente to an easing of Soviet emigration policies, particularly for Soviet Jews.

Brezhnev spoke to the 35-country assembly. The largest gathering of world leaders in 100 years, which is viewed as a triumph for Soviet diplomacy and a personal achievement for Brezhnev.

The conference has been billed by the Soviet Union and her Eastern European allies, as a salvation for a continent ravaged by centuries of war. Brezhnev stressed a reduction of military hardware as a means of preventing further conflicts.

"A priority goal in this regard is to find ways to reduce armed forces and armaments in central Europe without diminishing the security of anyone," Brezhnev said. "On the contrary, to the benefit of all."

In Washington's view, talks in Vienna between the United States and Soviet Union on reducing forces have been stalled by Moscow.

"In our view, the aggregate result of the conference is that international detente is being increasingly invested with concrete material content," Brezhnev said.

"It is the materialization of detente which is the essence of all that should make peace in Europe truly durable and solid.

"And here, uppermost in our mind is the task of ending the arms race and achieving tangible results in disarment."

Ordination Off If He's Elected

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Bob Thompson of Deseronto is willing to give up his chance of being ordained as United Church minister for a political career.

Mr. Thompson succeeded in winning the nomination as candidate for the New Democratic Party for the Hastings-Peterborough riding in the upcoming provincial election.

If elected, Mr. Thompson could not be ordained. "Once available to locate anywhere the church wishes to send him," he explained.

Mr. Thompson, a lay minister ordained, a minister must be with the United Church in Deseronto, said during an interview with The Intelligencer Wednesday: "I'll have to resign from church duties if I succeed in the upcoming election."

Both Mr. Thompson and his wife are scheduled to be ordained as United Church ministers in May.

"If I get elected, my wife can take over the church duties," he said.

This election will mark the first for the new riding which includes all of the former Hastings riding plus about 10 townships to the west from Peterborough County. Hastings is currently represented by Progressive Conservative Clarke Rollins.

Neighborhood Plaza Is Planned

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A Kingston developer today applied at city hall for leave to demolish a set of row houses here, to make way for a "neighborhood shopping plaza" at the intersection of Coleman and Moira St. West.

Lloyd White, representing Jamie Holdings, told The Intelligencer today the plaza will include approximately five stores and will be built at a cost of approximately $150,000.

The property is currently zoned for commercial use. If the plans meet with building inspection department specifications, the plaza could be under construction this fall and be completed by the spring "at the latest," said Mr. White. The plaza will front on Moira St.

"We have an anchor tenant lined up but no agreements have been signed yet," he said. The tenant is a convenience grocery store. "We're interested in cleaners and possibly a bank."

Henry Vermette of Royal Trust, agent for the project, said "small centres are needed for neighborhood convenience."

Demolition of the existing rowhouse units will not take place until a building permit has been secured, said Mr. White.

Billionaire Knew of Assassination Plot

Maheu Says Hughes Sought CIA Link to Be Used as Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billionaire Howard Hughes learned in 1959 of a CIA scheme to poison Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, says a former aide who has admitted taking part in the plot.

"I had to explain to him what I was doing in Miami," Robert Maheu said Wednesday as he described how he was forced to tell Hughes about the plot in order to convince the billionaire that he could not undertake a Hughes assignment in Los Angeles.

Maheu, currently involved in a libel suit against Hughes, did not claim that Hughes had any involvement in the scheme.

However, he added that in 1968, when he went back to work for Hughes full time, he was asked "to set up an important covert-operation for him through the CIA" so that Hughes could threaten to blow the cover on the operation in case he ever became involved in a serious problem with any agency of the U.S. government.

Maheu said he refused and that he does not know whether the covert operation that Hughes sought became the Glomar Explorer project—a joint venture with the CIA to raise a Soviet submarine from the floor of the Pacific Ocean.

In other developments Wednesday:

—Senator George McGovern (Dem. S.D.) turned over to the Senate intelligence committee an 86-page report compiled by Castro outlining 10 alleged CIA-inspired assassination plots against Castro and other Cuban leaders.

—The Senate intelligence committee announced it has voted to call former president Richard Nixon to testify on U.S. covert operations in Chile. There was no indication of when, where or under what conditions Nixon might be questioned.

—Representative Robert J. Dellenback (Dem. Mass.) introduced an impeachment resolution against former CIA director Richard Helms.

Informed sources say Helms, now ambassador to Iran, already is under investigation for possible perjury as a result of his congressional testimony on CIA operations in Chile.

Maheu recounted for the first time in public the widely reported plot between the CIA and the Mafia to kill Castro.

The plot, which was timed to coincide with the April, 1961, Bay of Pigs invasion, was "subject to a go signal which to my knowledge never came," Maheu said.

Maheu said he dealt directly with two CIA officials, Col. JS/Field Edwards, then-chief of security, and James O'Connell, but he was unable to say where the government orders to plan Castro's murder originated.

Maheu said he was contacted by O'Connell sometime in 1960 and asked to approach Mafia figure John Rosselli about participating in a plot "to remove Mr. Castro from the scene."

Rosselli and Maheu then went to Miami where they met a man named Sam Gold who subsequently turned out to be Chicago mobster Sam Giancana, Maheu said.

As described by Maheu, Rosselli and Giancana were to use contacts they had established during the pre-Castro years in Cuba to pass poison capsules "to someone who was in a position to be close enough to Castro so that it could be administered it feed be."

"In our view, the aggregate result of the conference is that international detente is being increasingly invested with concrete material content," Brezhnev said.

"It is the materialization of detente which is the essence of all that should make peace in Europe truly durable and solid.

"And here, uppermost in our mind is the task of ending the arms race and achieving tangible results in disarment."

Safe Bicycle Design Standards Are Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Bicycling has gained much popularity that last year more bikes were sold in Canada than cars — about 1,250,000.

More and more people are turning to bikes, not only as a form of exercise, but as an alternate form of transportation. They are an escape from public transportation and rush-hour traffic in hot summer days.

With this increase in popularity comes more accidents. In 1971, 179 Canadians died in cycling accidents, 22 more than in 1970.

Part of the problem seems to be unsafe bicycle riding, but poorly designed bikes are also a factor.

The federal department of consumer and corporate affairs says it is working with the Canadian Standards Association to set safe standards for bicycle design.

When you buy a bike, look at it closely, the department advises. Make sure the wheels and pedals spin easily without wobbling, the tire valves point straight to the centre of the wheels, the paint is not chipped and the spokes are w' uniform tightness.

Don't buy a bicycle that is too large because it may force you to sway from side to side to reach the pedals, making it difficult to control the bike.

For a touring or lightweight bike the ball of your foot should be able to touch the ground while you are sitting with the other foot on the pedal.

For a small-wheel bike make sure the handlebars are far enough forward to give you something to pull against while pedalling uphill.

If your bike has hand brakes, have it checked frequently and adjusted when needed. Remember that no hand a signal, only one can send you over the handlebars.

With coaster brakes, don't forget that they are not too effective in wet weather.

A used bicycle should pass all the tests set for a new bike. A common flaw, a bent frame, can easily be checked, says consumer affairs. If there is wrinkled paint where metal tubing meets, the bike has been bent and straightened, has been bent and straightened.

Displaced Ducks

Five baby blue-winged teal have a new home after being discovered abandoned by their mother on Zwick's Island. City parks department employees picked up the young ducks and turned them over to local conservationist George Woodhouse for rearing on his east-end bird sanctuary. The five, three-week-olds, are thriving on a diet of chick starter, Pablum and insects attracted by their night light. When full grown in the fall, they will migrate south with their kind.

Rollins Promises Repairs To Burttdale Homes

By Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Belleville builder Maurice H. Rollins said Wednesday his company will meet its responsibilities concerning defects in homes bought in Burttdale Heights who claim his firm has promised, but not acted to correct defects in their homes.

His pledge came in a meeting that forged a consensus on the method to end complaints by a majority of the homeowners in the 76-home subdivision built under Ontario's Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) plan.

Mr. Rollins told the group approximately 35 persons was awaiting on all homes will be housed past the one-year expiry date "until the house is finished to your satisfaction or an inspector's satisfaction."

The builder's presence Wednesday was prompted by a 43 name petition plus claims by Burttdale spokesmen that homes contained structural faults, that repeated requests for correction have led no action, that no final inspection was done by the Ontario Housing Corp., and that homeowners had not received warranty information.

Housing ministry official Robert Smith, representing the OHC, told residents Wednesday he would personally make sure repairs were done in the homes he judged to be defective should start, likely with in 1½ months, and should be completed by November, when the warranty on the last house sold in the subdivision expires.

Resident spokesmen Gerry Kurkuski of 35 Graham Rd., called Wednesday's meeting "workable" and "the best possible situation we could have achieved."

But complaints by homeowners that homes contained structural defects were denied by Mr. Rollins.

He maintained his previous position that there were no structural faults in any of the homes when individual buyers moved in. He said pre-move-in lists, therefore produced when agreed upon by both the buyer and builder, were followed up and faults were corrected if they affected the "liveability" of a home.

Complaints that more promises than action were obtained by homeowners were dismissed Mr. Rollins. He said his company had intended to correct all faults at one time in all homes approximately a year after the last subdivision home was sold in November, 1974.

Robert J. Smith, provincial housing ministry home ownership (Burttdale subdivision manager, (centre) talks to residents of the 76- home Burttdale Height subdivision after a meeting with builder Maurice H. Rollins of Belleville over faults in homes.

Mr. Smith pledged his personal involvement in correction of faults in the northeast Trenton subdivision.

Assailants Sought In Woman Beating

TRENTON — A Wooler woman is still in hospital here today more than 24 hours after she was beaten by two men and robbed of $23 around midnight Tuesday.

A Trenton Memorial Hospital spokesman says Bertha Stacey, 64, RR. 1, Wooler is in satisfactory condition with cuts to her left shoulder.

She was beaten by two men after being pulled from her car on the Wooler Road between 11.30 p.m. Tuesday and 12.30 a.m. Wednesday. Brighton provincial police say she was stopped in pick up, a female hitchhiker she thought she recognized.

A hospital spokesman said late Wednesday the woman had rolled down her window when two men grabbed for her purse. In an ensuing struggle, she was pulled from her car and dragged into a wooded area where she was beaten on the neck and shoulders.

The woman was left in the wooded area. She then staggered to her car, parked on the roadside north of Murray Township Public School.

Police say a passing motorist called police after he stopped to help what he believed was a stranded motorist.

A spokesman said police are looking for at least two, and possibly three men, or two men and a woman.

Sharp Hopeful Of Accord

TRENTON —Trenton clerk Aubrey Sharp is confident an early settlement an be reached in talks continued today over the 1975 contract with the 11-man Local 1323 of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

Mr. Sharp said Wednesday that barring unexpected complications an agreement might be reached within three meetings between the two groups. He said he is "optimistic" over the outcome of the talks.

A meeting today is the second this week following on the heels of a 2½-hour meeting Tuesday.

The clerk said the first meeting went "exceptionally well." Negotiating teams for the town and its firemen discussed interpretation of clauses in the proposal submitted to Trenton early this year, he said.

Talks over this year's contract were held up while both sides waited for an arbitration award to settle the 1974 contract. In June, firemen were handed an award that increased salaries 17 per cent from $8,400.

A first-class fireman, the bottom-rank salary now, earns 12,348, up from $12,455. The top-rank, second-in-command, settlement was retroactive to Jan. 1, 1974.

Two Dead In Crash

By RACHAEL SPENCER
Staff Correspondent

MADOC — A three-car collision near here Wednesday has left an Eldorado man and a Madoc man dead and three others injured.

Dead are 71-year-old Roy McAdam, of Eldorado, and William Edward Gordon, 43, of 24 Queen Victoria St., Madoc, both drivers of two vehicles.

Injured in the accident were a hitchhiker, Michael Brian McIntosh, 21, of 24 East Moira St., Belleville, 11-year-old Anthony Gordon and Tilsinden Hoehn, 38, of Mississauga.

McIntosh was taken to Belleville General Hospital and is listed in fair condition with a broken leg and possible neck and back injuries. The other two were treated and released.

Madoc OPP said the accident occurred about 1.45 p.m. on Highway 62 about a mile north of here. Police said the McAdam car was northbound on the highway when the Gordon vehicle crossed the lane and was in collision with the McAdam car. A third car, driven by Kurt Hoehn, of Mississauga, hit the other two vehicles after the collision.

The McAdam vehicle had $1,000 damage while the Gordon car suffered $2,000 damage. The third car, which was also northbound on the highway, had $200 damage.

Post mortem examinations were conducted on both accident victims today at Belleville General Hospital. Provincial Constable Bill Hoff is investigating the mishap.

Cemetery Condition Main Topic at Annual Meeting

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The annual meeting of Glenwood Cemetery shareholders will be held Saturday, August 9 but is unlikely that any of the plot-holders will attend.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis, who with councillor Bessie Ward will be appointed to the cemetery board this month, said Wednesday that interestin the annual meetings seems practically non-existent. Several telephone complaints have been made, however, to the local press.

He suggested that, should plot-holders angered by the overgrowth of weeds and toppled grave markers at Glenwood attend the meeting to protest, the cemetery's neglected state could readily be explained.

"How do you look after a 45-acre cemetery with a 1974 revenue of $13,000?" he asked.

"We are doing the best we can. Its a financial problem, not unwillingness to do the work," he noted.

At the inaugural session of town council last January a former Picton resident, Provincial Court Judge George Inrig, addressed councillors to request an annual grant of $10,000 toward improvements and maintenance at Glenwood. Judge Inrig, now of Lindsay, is a member of the cemetery board.

Judge Inrig informed council the cemetery company had been left all of its funds for grounds maintenance.

The cemetery superintendent had been laid off as there was no money to pay his salary.

It was noted that the cemetery board has approximately $84,000 invested in long-term bonds paying as low as three per cent interest.

After Judge Inrig's presentation town councillors met with the cemetery board and reached an agreement including a grant of $7,500 from the town to assist with maintenance costs.

Mr. Jarvis said Wednesday that two men have been hired to work on a part-time basis, assisting the cemetery caretaker who has returned to his job.

"We have to find some more assistance if the maintenance work is done as it should be," commented the town clerk.

Mr. Jarvis observed the cemetery board hopes to introduce a LIP program this winter in an effort to improve conditions at Glenwood.

He said there is "quite a lot" of money in the cemetery's perpetual care fund but under law only the interest income can be spent.

As the investments made at low interest rates in the 1930s mature they will be re-invested at higher rates.

Mr. Jarvis observed it is time the community realized "there are other things needed besides swimming pools and recreation facilities."

He suggested plot-holders at Glenwood might assist in maintaining family grave sites.

Mr. Jarvis said any plot-holder at Glenwood Cemetery is considered a shareholder and is eligible to attend next week's annual shareholders' meeting at the cemetery chapel.

Passenger Hurt In Cycle Mishap

MARMORA — A single vehicle accident, early Thursday morning, on Centre Line Road, five miles north of here sent one man to the hospital.

James Brindle, 20, RR 1 Tamworth, a passenger on a motorcycle is in Belleville General Hospital with back injuries. He is listed in fair condition.

The accident occurred when the motorcycle, driven by Barry Eden, 18, RR1, Erinsville failed to negotiate a turn while travelling northbound on the road. The vehicle went into a ditch, skidded and struck a wire fence throwing the riders off the bike.

Mr. Eden was treated at the hospital for minor injuries and released.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $300. The wire fence sustained $20 damage.

Opinions Differ Widely on Growth Outlook for Canada in 1976

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

"The recession is over," according to the economists on the staff of Canada's largest investment house.

"Canada now is moving into a period of economic growth led by consumer expenditures," said the economists at Wood Gundy Ltd.

They expect 1975 to show better growth rate decline as measured by Gross National Product. But they forecast roughly six-per-cent real growth in 1976.

Before you start celebrating, however, consider this more cautious assessment of Merrill Lynch Royal Securities Ltd., the Canadian arm of the largest U.S. brokerage house:

"Real GNP in Canada will decline about 2.5 per cent in the current year.

"Canada will thus have to rely on the rather strenuous recovery in the UL economy to achieve even a sluggish improvement in 1976."

An even glummer view is that of William Mackness, chief economist at the Toronto-based investment firm of Burns Bros. and Denton Ltd.:

"It is highly unlikely that the worst of the recession will be in Canada."

Mr. Mackness is concerned that high wage rates in Canada-Ontario will mean continued slow growth and high unemployment.

Such a sharp divergence of views among prominent economists helps to underline the fact that the economy of Canada is at a crossroads.

Our economy has absorbed a battering over the past couple of years—from the five-fold increase in world oil price, big jumps in other commodity prices, shortages of food and other essentials, unprecedented wage inflation and a disastrous drought in crops.

In the view of the optimists, the encouraging thing is that we have weathered the storm, are still on our feet, and—with a little help from the international pattern of business cycles are ready to resume economic expansion. After all, some economic necessities—such as food—can't be put off indefinitely.

The opposite view is that we have not solved the problems of the 1973-75 recession, but have only become accustomed to them. The energy crisis still is real enough, even though the initial shock has worn off. Inflationary expectations are deeply ingrained, however, and political leaders of most Western countries have a perfect record of making all the wrong economic moves.

Faced with strong yet unevenly exclusive analysis, one must look for guidance to objective figures on economic performance and then compare them with historical records.

One analytical tool, based on 11 significant measurements of economic activity, is the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce's recently revised leading indicator.

Changes in these 11 variables have usually preceded fundamental changes in the pace of overall economic activity by about 12 months.

The current reading of the Commerce Leading Indicator? It has just turned upward, but the bank's economists are urging that more hard evidence before concluding that we are on the road to a strong recovery.

Nevertheless, they say that the current reading of the index is bottoming out, and that a modest improvement in GNP production is likely by next year."

How modest? Probably 3.5-per-cent real growth in production in 1976—but with inflation running at about 9.5 to 9.5 per cent both this year and next.

Too Many Seats?

The temporary shelving of the Quinte District Labor Council's plans for a 1500-seat convention centre raises some pertinent questions about lack of co-ordination.

A joint Quinte Arts Council-Loyalist College committee is awaiting word on approval of second stage of a study that would see a 1,200-seat hall erected on the Loyalist campus. Cost: $2 million.

And the Belleville Yardmen's Sports Centre is still up in the air, with city council debating a takeover of the project toward which the Yardmen have accumulated a fund of some $2.4 million. Original plans for the sports complex included provision for an 800-seat auditorium and a 3,000-seat arena.

It would be appropriate for representatives of these groups to get together, determine one another's needs and aspirations, and see if it is possible to hoop them under one roof.

We already have the 850-seat Centennial Secondary School auditorium theatre, Ben Bleecker Auditorium, and two arenas which are capable of accommodating a few thousand delegates of one sort or another.

Some joint planning in this area could save a lot of people a lot of money.

Trenton Fights Vandals

The price on a vandal's head in Trenton is up to $300. That is the total amount pledged by three town businessmen for information leading to the apprehension of one of that strange breed who takes delight in the wanton destruction of private or public property.

One Trenton police spokesman estimates an average $200 damage is done each weekend in the town, with windows and automobiles prime targets.

While it is unfortunate that the public needs financial incentive to cooperate with the police in apprehending criminals, we agree with Trenton Police Chief David Saunders when he says rewards perform the valuable function of focussing public attention on the growing problem of vandalism.

It is important for the general public to realize that we are all the victims of many crimes.

We all pay higher prices when stores are plagued successfully by shoplifters. Similarly, we all pay more taxes when vandals break school windows, steal park flags, or chop up picnic tables for firewood.

Public parks are becoming a particularly popular place for trouble-makers, thieves and rowdies. It seems each Monday morning brings news of weekend problems from such potentially idyllic settings as The Outlet Provincial Park.

It is so bad that The Grand River Conservation Authority has decided to ban all but marked campsites from its campgrounds, following a rash of wild drinking sprees, thefts, and other disturbances.

In all too many cases, the few can spoil things for the many.

Hillcrest Raising Stink

There are few areas of our everyday lives not touched by the rising cost of living.

Increases in gasoline prices are responsible for many tugings at the taxpayer's purse strings.

Why, just last week George Masterson had to ask city council for an increase from $575 to $600 a month for his "nightshift" collecting services. Perhaps recalling what happened last year when fewer-less Hillcrest residents were without collection for several days, council immediately amended Mr. Masterson's 1975 contract terms.

Meanwhile, Hillcrest ratepayers are currently raising a justified stink about a related issue: the spiralling municipal tax costs of their long-overdue sewage system.

Some ratepayers can see their city taxes triple, and the Ontario Municipal Board will hear their complaints.

Because the area was not on the priority list for such services for years, the city must bear some responsibility for what are indeed exorbitant local service charges.

Liberals May Field Full Slate of Members

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Of the 117 members who closed their desks when the session broke off at least 20 probably won't be back. It is estimated that at least that number won't be running again.

There will be losses from all sides, though the Liberals may be fielding their full slate of sitting members. One of their question marks is Donald Patterson of Essex South. At one time he was ready to quit, but recently has been said to have changed his mind. Jim Bullbrook of Kent is in the same position.

But the PCs are losing a host of their present members and the NDP are slated to drop at least three (Morton Shulman, Reg Gibson and Norman Ross, all of Hamilton).

This is a large exodus, though not too extraordinary. Every election sees a certain number of drop-outs.

But the most interesting facet of this year's departures, however, is that with the announcement in recent days of both Allan Grossman and William Stewart that they would be retiring, there is a definite end to an era—the era that started with Leslie Frost.

Both men were in Frost government and they are the last men in the ministry to have served under the Old Man.

There will be a few Frost members left (Jim Allan, who, of course, was a minister, and Donald Morrow, if they decide to run again, and Rev. Wally Deverett, who has been a fixture since 1937) but these are the last two ministers who have remained active.

Both have been good men and deserve public eulogies.

Grossman, who has been in the house since 1953 and has served in several portfolios, has always been a good administrator, particularly in his years in correctional services.

It is said he still would like to remain in, but word has gone out that a new youthful look is on the books. As it is, however, he is in line to be contest his Toronto riding.

Personally, I will miss his frank and cordial approach.

As for Bill Stewart, reality not enough can be said.

He has guided agriculture in Ontario for nearly 15 years and in all has done an outstanding job.

His departure means a big gap. He will be hard to replace.

African Summit Meeting Bears Watching by World

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The 40 nation summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) in Kampala, capital of Uganda, is one of several large Third World conferences to be held before 1976.

Three others, a major meeting of foreign ministers from the non-aligned states in Lima, Peru, and two crucial meetings of the UN General Assembly, will all deal with the growing economic and social problems of the developing world.

Therefore, what happens at the OAU, bearing in mind it represents a continent with the largest solid block in the United Nations, should tell us the way the others might go.

In particular, we should watch for the attitude of OAU delegates who are all chiefs of state toward the developed world. The major development here will be how the emerging countries, making commodity producers, will play the prices and cartel game against the industrial nations who supply them with manufactured goods and in many cases development funds.

But an ominous development has taken place in Kampala, which you will recall is the capital city of President Idi Amin's unhappy and straight-jacketed little country.

This is an OAU resolution calling for the expulsion of Israel from the UN at the next General Assembly meeting this September.

Originally the resolution was to read expulsion of Israel, but some of the more temperate states suggested a reprieve.

Well you might ask, what is an African conference doing trying to shove Israel out of the United Nations?

It is because the African block in the UN support the Arab group of nations in their resolutions against Israel's position on Middle East peace negotiations.

But it is more subtle than this Israel is viewed as an important ally of the United States, Britain and France, the former colonial powers no less, against whose machinations the "downtrodden" under-developed nations still must struggle.

The dismal paradox in all this is that Israel is the only truly democratic country in the Middle East and is hated treated as an "outcast" among nations at a summit conference where not a single African chief of state was elected to office.

Ironically are the Africans about their own continental problems that the saying goes, "no conference without a coup."

This took place in 1971 when Dr. Milton Obote was deposed as president of Uganda by the mercurial and clownish Idi Amin at an earlier time who Uganda was supposed to be host nation to the OAU.

And this time during an OAU morning conference Nigeria's military president General Gowon, one of the truly impressive African leaders, is passed a note his government back home has been overthrown by an army revolt.

We in the West become very angry and righteously indignant at the machinations of the emerging states, the Africans ones often leading the way for inconsistency and arrogance.

Halifax Restaurant Resort of Famous

HALIFAX (CP) — A landmark and way-station for thousands of university students, sport enthusiasts and others was closed to doors on almost four decades of familial feeling.

Thomas Sweets, a restaurant in midtown Halifax since the late 1930s, has been sold, ending what the Sweet family often refer to as "50 beautiful years."

Since the establishment on Spring Garden Road, proprietors Joe and Tom Sweet figure thousands of students and members of what they call the "jock set" have used their restaurant as a place to unwind, catch up the coached and dissect a variety of world ills.

From the day it was opened by the late Leo Sweet, a Lebanese immigrant and father of the last owners, the restaurant was a favorite haunt.

Joe recalled recently that during the Second World War, off-duty officers lined up outside waiting to get in.

When the war ended and university enrolment rose, students congregated at Thomas Sweets, using it as a sort of student union building because such structures did not then exist on campuses.

Neither Tom nor Joe was ever surprised to see an old acquaintance from earlier days drop by to introduce children and grandchildren and to take another look around a place that never seemed to change.

Political figures gravitated to the place. The Sweets remember early law-student visitors such as Gerald Regan, Richard Hatfield, Alex Campbell and Allan Blakeney—now the premiers respectively of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, P.E.I. and Saskatchewan.

The late Angus L. Macdonald, premier of Nova Scotia for 14 years and wartime navy minister, was another noted visitor.

The entertainment list included Max Rawlide Ferguson, Bill Langstroth and Jim Bennett, and the sports greats included Rocket Richard, the late Rocky Marciano and the late Terry Sawchuck.

Friday at 1 p.m., there will be a conducted hike into the park interior. It will last 3-4½ hours and visitors are requested to meet at the main gate with their vehicles.

And on Saturday, the final day, there will be a conducted hike at 8:30 a.m. by canoe to view pictographs and climb to the top of Ben Echo Rock.

It will last 2-2½ hours and interested persons are advised to meet at the lagoon 2½ hours before the start.

At 9:15 p.m., there will be a one-hour evening program at the amphitheatre.

Health Unit Plans Display at Quinte Mall

"The family planning centre of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit will bring its expertise before the public eye with a display booth at the Quinte Mall next week.

"We plan to be there on Aug. 7, 8 and 9," said public health nurse Pat Atkinson Wednesday.

"We're going to be giving any information that the public wants to know about controlling conception," she explained.

Mrs. Atkinson said there will also be a questionnaire which may be filled out and there will dispense "information for parents about puberty."

Family planning co-ordinator Gale Dolgoff will be present most of the time, she added.

Bancroft Gemboree Set to Go

Carl Boslak, owner-manager of the Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree takes a rest after completing preparations for the arrival of an estimated 20,000 rockhounds beginning Thursday and ending Monday. The 13th annual Gemboree attracts rock enthusiasts from all over North America. This year there will be four tents filled with rock, jewelry and mineral exhibitors ready to buy, sell or swap with other enthusiasts. Other events and exhibits include a country music festival and a mobile geological display from the Royal Ontario Museum.

20,000 Expected to Attend Annual Rockhound Gemboree

BANCROFT — Tents going up, a midway is being assembled, hydro is being connected and exhibitors arriving. The 13th annual Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree is ready to get under way.

The Gemboree will run from Thursday, July 31, to Monday Aug. 4 this year and, according to owner-manager Carl Boslak, is expected to be the biggest and best yet.

"We have four tents that will be filled with rock, mineral and jewelery exhibitors," said Mr. Boslak. "Of 41 exhibitors we have got ten new ones this year.

In addition to the rock and mineral dealers at the Gemboree, four miles north of Bancroft, there are also numerous commercial hobby and handicraft displays.

The Royal Ontario Museum's mobile museum with geological and fossil displays also will be at the five-day show.

More than 20,000 people are expected to pass through the gates of the internationally-known mineral show.

One of the visitors expected this year will be Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism for Ontario.

Mr. Bennett will be at the show Friday afternoon.

Carl Boslak said he hopes the visit from the minister will result in some concrete financial assistance for the Gemboree.

"I hope that this visit will lead to some provincial funds. "We need money for more facilities here on the grounds, for advertising and of course, this would be a perfect place for a mineral museum."

Rock collecting in the Bancroft area has taken on a slightly new flavor recently with the announcement by Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources that a color brochure on the mineral capabilities of the area has been timed for release on August 1.

The Bancroft Mineral Society, Carl Boslak said, is also expecting a grant from the ministry so that a program for developing and freshening sites can be started.

"We are expecting the grant soon," said Mr. Boslak. "The sites have been selected, we're waiting for the final okay and if we get it, they'll be developed in October."

Meanwhile, the big event of the season gets underway this week and lots of activities have been organized.

On Thursday, displays open, mid-way rides will be in operation, rock swapping will get underway and the grandstand show will feature local country music and dancing under the stars.

On Friday, Saturday and Monday field trips will be sent out from the grounds and all the other activities will continue.

Friday is children's day and between 2 p.m. and 5 pm all midway rides will be half price for the half-size crowd

The featured entertainment on Friday and Saturday evenings at the grandstand show will be the Singin' Post Family fro mFarrying Place.

Ferry Becomes Museum

MANITOWANING, Ont. (CP) — Residents of this community on Manitoulin Island, about 20 miles south of Little Current, will unveil their latest tourist attraction this week—an Norkie ferry, recently acquired from the provincial government.

It is a combination museum, restaurant, arts and crafts centre.

The Norkie was one of two ferries used between Tobermory, at the tip of Cape Bruce, to South Baymouth on Manitoulin Island. The ... and the Nergeson were taken out of service in 1970 when the government began operating the Chi-Cheemaun ferry.

Air Service to Resume

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Great Lakes Airlines, which stopped scheduled service to Peterborough, Ont., in January because of lack of business, is ready to resume service to the community, Oct. 26.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Great Lakes general manager, James Plaxton, during the third day of a hearing by the Canadian transport commission into an application of Peterborough-based Ontoulines Ltd. to extend its Ontario service.

Great Lakes has registered no objection to an Ottawa application to add Toronto International Airport, St. Catharines and Chatham to its routes.

Great Lakes started service between Toronto, Peterborough and Ottawa in June, 1974.

The company's Convair, a 50-passenger turbo-prop aircraft, made several round trips a day but stopped flying in late January.

Treatment Protested

OTTAWA (CP) — The Committee for the Defence of Valentyn Moroz Wednesday began a two-day picket in front of the Soviet Embassy to protest recent information it says it has received that Moroz is being transferred to a Soviet psychiatric hospital.

Moroz, a 38-year-old Ukrainian writer and historian, was jailed in 1970 for "anti-Soviet agitation." Last year he staged a 146-day hunger strike.

Monster Crane Silhouettes Sky

OTTAWA (CP) — With the trend towards high-rise buildings, the skies of large cities are increasingly filled with the towering silhouettes of building cranes.

One such crane is operated by Charlie McIntosh of Ottawa. He runs a 40-ton crane capable of lifting 5,000 pounds of steel or concrete 34 storeys above the heads of passing citizens.

As crane operator for Dilax Construction Ltd., he is responsible for just about everything connected with his job. He even has to make sure the street below is clear of cars and people if his crane lifts anything from there.

"I also have to make sure the man leading the hook out of any sight lines the proper signals, because I have to trust the signals if the load is too far away to check myself," he explained.

Mr. McIntosh constantly checks his crane to ensure it is mechanically sound and the three-ton balance weight secure. When not in use, the crane swings free, but if the wind rises above 35 miles an hour it must be secured.

The 36-footer crane is so big it a concrete base one foot, 10 inches deep and 10 feet, eight inches square, packed in firmly with oak wedges. Its 75-foot boom can lift 3,500 pounds as fast as 400 feet a minute.

With all this power, cranes in Ontario are regulated under the Construction Hoists Act and the Construction Safety Act.

They are inspected every six months and a $1,000 fine can be handed out for infractions of the law.

Mr. McIntosh says there are safeguards built into cranes to help the operator. They have an overload switch that stops the motor when it tries to lift something too heavy, and lights and a bell to warn the operator of the problem.

Some cranes have "deadman" controls that must be pressed and pulled at the same time by the operator. They don't work if the operator is asleep or has a heart attack. However, these controls are not mandatory.

Tower Cranes also have a height control that prevents the hoist from colliding with the boom, the horizontal part of the crane. Booms can be anywhere from 80 to 200 feet long. Regulations require them to be kept at least 30 feet from power wires.

All this sophisticated technology is expensive and now cranes range in price from $125,000 to $300,000. Rental fees here run from $5,000 to $6,000 a month, depending on the size of the crane.

Most of the cranes used on high-rise buildings are tower cranes. They work from the centre of the building and must be moved up by hydraulic jacks as construction progresses.

When one is at the top of the completed building it must be dismantled and lowered piece by piece with a movable derrick. The derrick, in turn, may have to be dismantled and lowered to the ground by pulleys.

Changes Urged

CROWTHORNE, England (CP) — Changes in the treatment of mentally ill criminals were proposed in a confidential report on Broadmoor Hospital, compiled by the hospital advisory service, an independent service watching over hospital conditions. The report recommended that half-way hostels for selected patients should be instituted and mixed-sex wards would provide more realism in the hospital.

In Little Rock School Students Carry Guns

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — It's been nearly 21 years since a handful of black children — the "Little Rock Nine" — entered Central High School under the protection of 11,000 paratroopers and National Guardsmen.

The nation's eyes have turned away from Little Rock since. Central High has a black principal and more than half its students are black.

But it also has two "campus supervisors" — essentially unarmed security men — who guard the main entrance and patrol with walkie-talkies. The school, indeed the entire school district, suffers from an abnormal school-astic crime rate.

Last November a black junior high student was shot to death by another black student during school hours.

In December, authorities found a black student with a 25-calibre revolver in his belt.

In January, William Robinson 18, a white, was expelled. He brought a sawed-off .410 shotgun to school, school officials said, and aimed it at black students as a warning.

In March, two young black students were expelled from Central after a fight in which, police officials said, a gun was used to threaten other black students.

In the same month, Waddell Smith 14, was expelled after threatening students with a gun during a fight involving blacks and whites on a school bus. The young black, said the bus driver, fired two shots in the air after leaving the bus.

In the same month, Paul Vines, a 14-year-old eighth grader at Horace Mann Junior high was expelled for carrying a gun. Vines is white. "I don't ever want to go back to Horace Mann," he said. "Things are really bad there."

He protested that he hadn't intended to use the gun. He was only, at the behest of a friend, trying to sell it.

"It turned out to be stolen," he said. "My friend figured the best place to sell the gun would be at Horace Mann."

And in May, Larry Barnes 13, was expelled from Dunbar Junior High after he threatened a white student with a small-calibre pistol.

"I did it because this Anglo was bashing me," Barnes said. "They had pistol-whipped another guy the week before and they said they were going to get me next."

Barnes, a black, vowed he never would get into "bad trouble like this again" because he wants to play basketball in school. But nevertheless, he said: "There are plenty of guns and knives at Dunbar. If you'd come through all the lockers you'd find three or four guns and loads of knives."

All of this is less than two decades since Little Rock became in 1957, the prime example of resistance to the Supreme Court decision of June 1954, to desegregate schools. Now again, Little Rock is the focus of charges and counter-charges. Is discipline being fairly levied? What is the source of the problem? Is it white? or Black?

The school district has hired 11 campus supervisors to police the 22,127 students in its schools. This spring authorities even confiscated a pistol from a first-grader.

The school board has adopted a policy of mandatory expulsion of any student caught with a .22 ammo, and 17 of those caught with guns have been expelled this year.

In addition, one of every 16 black students, and one of every eight black males, have been suspended for disciplinary reasons.

In numbers, that means that of 919 students suspended, 580 were black males against 128 white males, and 180 were black females against 31 white females. The district has 11,231 black students and 10,896 whites.

"We, as a community have nothing to do with race," said Dr. Paul Fair, the district superintendent. "We suspend on the basis of action, without reference to race. It just seems to happen that more blacks are suspended than whites."

Fair said the discipline problems in Little Rock are "no worse than elsewhere in the country."

"Yet according to a federal government survey of discipline in the nation's schools in 1974, blacks accounted for, 27 per cent of the expulsions and 42 per cent of the suspensions. Blacks made up 27 per cent of the enrolment in the 2,908 school districts surveyed.

North Sea Oil Platforms Pose New Defence Problem

LONDON (CP) — The question of protecting Britain's North Sea oilfields from accidental or intentional damage has [illegible] of petroleum from the offshore fields turns into a [illegible] stream. Authorities already have taken some steps and more are in the planning stage.

Already a dozen oil or gas production platforms are scattered offshore. By December at least four oilfield[illegible] will have started production, including one of the largest — British Petroleum's Forties field. It alone will have four giant and essentially vulnerable installations.

Within four years, some 100 major installations will be operating around the shores of the British [illegible] the east coast of England to the remote Shetland Islands off Scotland. They will represent a tremendous economic investment and a vast national asset which will make Britain a [illegible] producer. But this new resource also poses problems for the defence planners whose job it is to defend the rigs against any [illegible].

At present the Royal Navy has two ships regularly patrolling the oilfields. Faster and more-powerful warships such as guided-missile destroyers and helicopter-carrying frigates are routed through the area on random patrols. Other combat forces, including the Royal Marines, are available should the need arise. Royal Air Force aircraft also fly occasional surveillance patrols.

Now, as an additional special unit [illegible] Britain's newest security community, [illegible] being built and specially equipped for the task of deterrent patrol. The ships, expected to be in service by 1977, will be similar to the offshore fishery protection vessels at present operating in the difficult [illegible] around the Scottish Island. This combination of surface ships and long-range aircraft, with their ability to cover large areas [illegible] seems, in the British view, the [illegible]

New problems are bound to [illegible] installations increases, particularly if they need to [illegible] major shipping lanes is what is already one of the world's most congested sea areas. There have been occasions where North Sea weather has caused parts of an installation to break away and, drifting, to become a hazard, both to other installations and to shipping in general.

Protecting the resources in and under the sea does not concern Britain alone.

At least six other Western powers share assets in the North Sea.

Optimistic Oldster Doesn't Fear Aging

Wondering what it will be like to grow old, in June I invited senior readers to write, telling me of their experiences.

Here's a reply from Mrs. E.W., who signed the letter "A Happy Oldster". Her philosophy is a useful one: Wherever you are now, is the best possible place to be!

• • • •

"I would like to give some advice to the young women worrying about growing old.

"Stop thinking about it!

"She must be feeling ill, discouraged or very tired. I am three score years and ten, and living on quite a bit of borrowed time. I seldom feel blue, sick or lonely.

"There is so much to see, do and read that I haven't even found time to join a senior citizen's club. I am always promising to do so next year.

"As for the wrinkles that crisscross my face, I do not blame them on age but on neglecting to take care of my skin when it was smooth and fresh. But I do not worry about wrinkles, as my friends call them laugh lines.

"We older people in Ontario never had it so good. I regret we didn't know in our younger days that we would be receiving a pension when we became 65.

"We had to budget our money and plan for our old age. We had to endeavor to buy a home, to buy life insurance to protect our children — and these things came before a car or pleasure trips.

"There wasn't hospital insurance, so you took care you didn't get sick. We were a healthy group of people in those days, due, no doubt, to the fact that we worked hard, and ate well, all home-prepared foods.

"We got our rest at night, we only had the occasional party, and there wasn't the stress of keeping up with the Joneses. There were no long telephone conversations because we had party lines, no television sets so we got our work done and read or knit, or took the children for a walk in our leisure time, or shared a cup of tea and a chat with a neighbor.

"The men looked forward to retirement so they could indulge in their hobbies and take a real vacation.

"Instead of thinking you are old, and no longer needed, you begin to live. Now you have time for your grandchildren, more time to relax and entertain.

"As for feeling ill at ease with young people, I have never found it that way. They make you feel they value your opinion, they lend you their books on history or science fiction, believing you will enjoy them. And I do.

"How wonderful it is for senior citizens to have lovely modern apartments, so easy to care for instead of having to look after a big house and yard. I now live in an apartment, and love it.

"My arthritis has eased up and I go for a walk every day. I enjoy the scenery as well as the exercise, so I feel I am on top of the world. I would like to share it with all the folks who do not see the beauty of sunshine, the thrill of singing birds, the stars like jewels at night, the white clouds like sails floating through the sky.

"Of course, I realize that some older people have had difficult years, or tragedy in of their own. But if they would only try to see all the lovely things in life instead of the drabness they would find that beauty outshines all else."

Few Babies Available for Adoption Prospective Parents Less Choosy

EDMONTON (CP) — Five years ago, prospective adoptive parents would ask for a blonde, blue-eyed baby girl whose natural parents had university educations, says Don Alexander of the social services department.

"Today, parents are more likely to ask simply for a healthy baby."

The declining number of babies on the adoption market has forced many adoptive parents to play the waiting game, he said.

Last year, 388 babies were placed for adoption in the city while 1,904 applications were filed for babies.

The declining adoption market has been reflected in adoption policy as well as in the community's attitude toward adoption, the social worker said.

In 1969, the social services department relaxed regulations so that single parents, older people and parents of large families were eligible.

Today, regulations stipulate no more than a 40-year gap between the ages of the oldest parent and the child; parents must be married for more than a year; and must proof they can have no children of their own. The mother must agree to quit work, if necessary, and remain in the home of the initial six-month probationary period.

There is no stipulation about how much money the adoptive parents must earn, nor is it necessary for them to own their home.

The regulations governing adoption are flexible, with the welfare of the child the prime consideration, Mr. Alexander said, adding that delays in placing children are caused mainly "the sheer number" of applications.

Medical problems or specific requests by natural or adoptive parents contribute to the processing delay, he said.

However, fewer prospective parents are strictly qualifying requirements.

"We try to balance the applications with the children available, but today we find people are more choosy."

Birth control, easier abortion and a statistically large proportion of unwed mothers who decide to keep their fatherless children have all contributed to the situation, Mr. Alexander said.

"The number of available babies peaked about five years ago," he added. "In 1968 there were 1,900 unwed mothers who surrendered their babies for adoption, and last week there 1,280 in 1969. They it started to decline."

Karen Cuberwood of Health and Welfare Canada's new microbiology laboratory in Vancouver shows one of the steps necessary in testing a product's purity. Most of the lab work involves identifying bacteria in food and screening for environmental poisons. In the background is May Milling, lab supervisor.

'Loose Lips' Are Dangerous

VANCOUVER (CP) — Loose, excessive wrinkling, pin lip and droop are some of the ailments diagnosed at Health and Welfare Canada's new microbiology laboratory.

The long-suffering lips are not sick people—they're an ills case that have been improperly manufactured or sealed with a trace of contamination.

The work on cans is a sideline for the laboratory workers, whose job is to protect Canadians from food hazards.

Until early this year, the laboratory staff of five worked in cramped quarters.

Western regional director John Sandbrook said more space in new quarters will mean more accurate results because there will be less risk of one test contaminating another, and because the bigger quarters will make possible needed expansion of staff and equipment.

"We'd like to be able to screen imported products much better than we do now, especially now that we have so much trade with Pacific Rim countries," said May Milling, lab supervisor.

She said standards are low in some Asian countries.

She showed a collection of cans in which some had blooms (lumps in lip); one had a crimped seam with a wavy, saky edge (excessive wrinkling); and one in which the lip seal was not crimped at all in one spot (droop).

In the pin-lip example, a small burr on the lid had sierced the side of the can.

Most of the lab work involves sensitizing bacteria in food and screening for environmental poisons.

Silicone Injections Help For 'Disabled' Dancer?

Dear Ann Landers: Our family accepts what you say as the "gospel truth." We have faith in your common sense and judgment. We also know you go to great lengths to consult with the experts. This letter is to alert you to clear up something at once. Either you've been doling out wrong information or someone is in serious error.

I clearly recall that in the last three years you have advised unequivocally that silicone injections to enlarge the breasts are illegal and dangerous. You stated recently that some women have had to have their breasts amputated because of tumors caused by these injections.

This morning I read a wire story which I am enclosing. I couldn't believe my eyes. It says the state of Wisconsin paid for silicone injections for an 18-year-old dancer who "lacked the necessary equipment" to land a job. The dancer was listed as "disabled" until the silicone treatments enlarged her breasts. She is now gainfully employed.

What about this, Ann Landers?—Chicago Ann Fan

Dear Fan: Silicone injections are illegal. I strongly suspect there was an error in reporting the story. The "disabled" aspirant probably had silicone implants which are legal, and which have proven satisfactory.

If the story was accurately reported, however, and the woman did have silicone injections, two people, at least, are in trouble—the girl concerned and the physician who administered the shot.

Dear Ann Landers: Latest reports indicate that a total of $5,822.83 has been received—thanks to your simple suggestion that those who wish to help a good cause should send money to Dialogue. And it took only three months after the column appeared! More important is the fact that this unexpected windfall saved the Braille edition subscribers were so low, we had just about decided to suspend publication of the Braille edition. This would have been a tragic loss, because those who cannot hear recordings or the radio and TV are more isolated and cut off from the world that the "ordinary" blind.

If our deaf-blind readers knew what your help meant to them in keeping the Braille edition alive, I'm sure each one would write you a note of thanks.

In behalf of all of us who have profited from your kindness, I send our warm thanks.—Sincerely, Dan Nold

Dear Dan: What a delightful day-brightener! Add now—just in case anyone out there meant to get that address which is first appeared—and didn't—a Dialogue, 3100 S. Oak Park Ave., Berwyn, Ill. 60402.

Dear Ann Landers: At the last count there were 17 churches in Los Angeles and the surrounding area whose membership is composed of homosexuals. This scares me to death. Are straight people going out of style? Please comment.—Mortified

Dear Mort: I'm more concerned about violence and street crime than I am with people who want to meet in peaceful assembly to worship—no matter what their sexual preference.

Birthright Provides Abortion Alternative

EDMONTON (CP) — The woman who pregnant, a widow and threatening suicide.

"Her whole life was in a state of chaos," said Terry O'Connor, a volunteer worker with distressed pregnant women here.

"She didn't feel she could ever face her children to tell them of her pregnancy, and she was in poor health as well."

Through volunteer assistance, the woman agreed to seek psychiatric counselling, obtained a temporary housekeeper, and went through with her pregnancy.

Today, three years later, this woman "has adjusted beautifully" and can't believe she ever considered even an abortion, the registered nurse said.

Mrs. O'Connor is one of about 50 trained volunteers in the local chapter of Birthright, an independent pro-life organization established in Toronto in 1968 to aid pregnant women.

Since the local chapter began in 1971, volunteers have worked with more than 70 pregnant women from as far away as Nova Scotia, offering counselling, shelter, and moral support.

"Our major concern is helping the girl," Mrs. O'Connor, a mother of six, said. "We don't make judgments and we don't moralize.

"It's a woman decides to go through with an abortion, we respect her decision. But we do offer alternatives."

She said many women are shocked to realize there are alternatives because society "seems to have brainwashed them" to think only in terms of abortion.

Birthright, which bills itself as non-political and non-sectarian, places advertisements in the personal columns of newspapers inviting distressed pregnant women to call a 24-hour service number for help.

"Many of the women who contact Birthright think it is an abortion referral service, and can't visualizing going through with pregnancy," Mrs. O'Connor said.

"We tell them immediately that we are pro-life and that that is what we can help them."

The organization, through trained volunteers, gives clients how they can continue education or pre-natal pregnancy. Some are provided with shelter in Birthright Homes, in charge of 24 a day, while others are placed in approved "family dwellings" where they are required to help with the household tasks.

More independent clients, who choose to live alone or with their families, receive professional counselling. Topics include preparation for single parenthood, and assistance in deciding whether to keep the child.

"A lot of the time, pregnancy is not the girl's problem," Mrs. O'Connor said.

"The reason she became pregnant in the first place was because there were other problems."

Birthright, which acts as a liaison between clients and social agencies, provides pregnancy testing, medical referrals and clothing, as well as personal counselling.

Mrs. O'Connor said most clients are single, between the ages of 17 and 25 and from a wide range of socio-economic backgrounds.

One married client who had recently immigrated to Canada didn't know she was entitled to medical care until she got in touch with Birthright.

The organization, funded entirely by donations, does not provide abortion referral, but will give it to clients who request it.

The majority of pregnant women Birthright encounters have never used birth control and "somehow thought it could never happen to them," Mrs. O'Connor said.

She said that despite the fact that the pill is now supposed to end unwanted pregnancies, there is a growing need for the services Birthright provides.

"Society is becoming more tolerant towards unwed mothers, and they are seldom kicked out of homes anymore. "But there still is a stigma attached."

Matchmaker Performs Service for Men, Women

TORONTO (CP) — The single group at Beth Sholom Synagogue here is a curious mix of swinging singles and sing-along Hebrew.

As in ancient Jewish tradition, when a "yenta" or matchmaker matched couples together, so does Rabbi Meir Goldsmith try to fulfil that function.

He instituted this six-month program because he said he is concerned about the high rate of mixed marriages involving Jews.

In 1971, 19.4 per cent of Jewish grooms and 16.1 per cent of Jewish brides in Canada married outside their own faith, Statistics Canada reported. There were 2,225 Jewish brides and 2,316 Jewish grooms that year.

Rabbi Goldsmith told his class that mixed marriages represent "a tremendous loss because Jews are a minority in Canada and the world."

He said he started the group because "young people need the socializing and discussion of religious topics."

"I try to bring persons together in an atmosphere which is more meaningful than a singles' dance which is often a very superficial setting with guys looking around for the prettiest girls and handing out gib lines."

The group ranges from 18 to 35 persons, mostly in their 20s.

Myer Skolsky, 21, has gone to singles' groups at most Jewish organizations around the city. He has attended this group for several months.

"Now when I go, I think more of what I'm going to learn than whom I'll meet," he said.

Sandy Goodman, 28, said that he has not found the girl he is looking for at the group meetings. He said he expects to find somebody next year after going to a professional matchmaker.

Rabbi Goldsman said he believes in marriage for young persons.

"I personally believe that people should get married young. Otherwise they miss opportunities and get nervous when they are in their late 30s or early 40s."

Canadian History Told for Children

EDMONTON (CP) — A trip to the library to pick up some children's books inspired John Leibel to launch his own publishing company.

"There weren't any books available for children that reflected Canadian history," the local publisher says.

"Elementary age children knew all about Davey Crockett, but not about Louis Riel or Dr. Banting."

So in 1973 he founded J. M. Leibel Enterprises Ltd., a one-man publishing firm which specializes in producing historical novels for children aged 8 to 12.

To date the company, believed the only educational publishing firm in Western Canada, has published two novels — both recommended for use in Alberta and Ontario schools.

Plans are under way for novels on the Riel Rebellion, the Vikings, exploration of the St. Lawrence and a Canadian soccer manual.

The Toronto-born publisher, who worked for major American publishing firms for seven years before striking out on his own, said it is important that children be introduced to history in novel form.

"Social studies can be very dry if presented factually. But if we can get it into novel format, where the readers identify with the children in the story, it can be a super learning experience."

Leibel's first novel, Packy the Elephant, evolved from a 1,500-word short story submitted by Marjorie Morgan of Edmonton, in reply to an advertisement in a literary publication.

"I was flooded with manuscripts. About seven of them showed promising writing style and were going the direction I was interested in."

The publisher then requested author Morgan to resubmit a 10,000-word manuscript arising from the original, about an elephant at the Alberta Game Farm, near Edmonton.

The result, termed "a winner" by school librarian publications, is considered a major seller in the field, with 5,000 copies sold so far.

A second novel, Gold Fever Trail: A Klondike Adventure, tells the story of a motherless brother and sister who search for their father in the Klondike gold fields at the turn of the century.

Written by Monica Hughes of Edmonton, it has elicited an enthusiastic response from young readers, said Mr. Leibel's wife, Pauline.

"Kids write in to say it helped them understand the Klondike," she said. "Children are able to relate to the key characters in the book." Published in 1974, it has sold 2,000 copies so far, mainly in schools in Alberta and Ontario.

A third novel, by Alberta writer Jan Truss, revolves around a modern-day Metis boy confronted with the same situations faced by Louis Riel 90 years ago. The book, entitled A Very Small Rebellion, is to be on the stands by Christmas.

Mr. Leibel, who tests each manuscript in classrooms, says it is particularly important that children's books be written in a clear, bold style, with plenty of action. But he says availability of material has not been a problem, with a number of budding western scripts.

On financing, the publisher says it is "probably less difficult" to make a profit in educational publishing than in other areas of the trade, because of the volume of sales contracts to governments.

However, many Canadian schools have shown little interest in purchasing Canadian books, preferring instead to use American resource materials.

As well, many fail to realize what services a custom publishing firm, such as Leibel, can provide.

Don Juan Repeats Claim to Throne

LISBON (AP) — For years he lived the a life of yachting trips in the Mediterranean, the best clubs, imported food and drink.

But Don Juan de Borbon y Battenberg, the Count of Barcelona, son of Spain's last monarch, the late Alphonso XIII, never made it to the Spanish throne.

And now, when finally he appears ready to make his move, his chances are even dimmer.

On June 15, he issued a statement here, saying that he, not his 37-year-old son Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, should become king of Spain, and the eventual successor to Gen. Francisco Franco as chief of state.

Don Juan claimed that the ascension of Juan Carlos to the throne would mean only a continuation of Franco-style rule in Spain.

The Spanish government responded officially to Don Juan's statement four days later by banning him from Spanish soil. Then, Premier Carlos Arias Navarro went before the Cortes, Spain's parliament, and to the cheers of its deputies reassured them that Prince Juan Carlos, Franco's personal choice, would be Spain's next king.

In typical Don Juan fashion, the 63-year-old count left for the Mediterranean within a week after being notified he was persona non grata in Spain. He reportedly went to see about his yacht and do some pubblicking.

Weak as his father's bid for power may be it has put Prince Juan Carlos in an embarrassing position.

The prince, official heir by Franco's decree, has remained silent.

After his father abdicated in 1931, Don Juan followed the family into exile, continuing his studies at the naval academy of Dartmouth in Britain.

Juan Carlos, born in Rome during the war in Spain, became the one to fulfill Franco's requirement, not Don Juan.

At the end of the war, Don Juan fled with Franco, over what he considered the general's undemocratic regime. But the son remained in Spain, where he was educated and trained for the job which Franco was to declare officially in 1969 that the prince would eventually inherit.

Promoting a national referendum in 1947, Franco already had decided to restore the monarchy.

When Juan Carlos was officially named eventual successor, Don Juan noted he had not been consulted, had not renounced his right to the throne as bloodline successor and indicated he would not interfere, referring to himself as a spectator. Visits to see his son in Spain began regularly.

Don Juan took himself into exile in Portugal in 1946, and began annually receiving a group of Spanish monarchists and assuring them the monarchy was the only answer for Spain's future.

Spanish government officials see his bid at this late date as a mistake, blocking any opportunity he might have had to advise his son and play an important role after Prince Juan Carlos is on the throne.

With Portuguese life changing rapidly, the country's lifestyle seems an anachronism. He still plays golf, but many of his golfing partners already have fled the country.

Ball and Chain

LONDON (CP) — During a stag party before a wedding, guests clamped a ball and chain to the ankle of bridegroom Magdy Soliman. When police arrived at the party, Soliman accidentally dropped the heavy iron ball on the policeman's foot. He was accused of assault in court, but charges were later dropped against the bridegroom.

Grand Banks Fishermen Have Disastrous Season

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Many foreign fishing ships entering this centuries-old port are riding high on the water, a sign that fishing on the traditional Grand Banks has not been the successful this season.

Local trawler captains have reported foreign vessels conspicuous by their absence in certain areas and it is believed fish were so scarce they left the fishing grounds weeks ahead of schedule.

The captain of one large Russian factory trawler said, "The fishing has been a disaster this year. There have been many days when Russian ships lay idle because there were no fish to catch."

The Soviet fleet is being barred from use of Canadian East Coast ports because of over-fishing.

Other nations are having the same problem. A spokesman for the Spanish fishing fleet said that last year Spanish vessels fishing the Atlantic took 20 per cent less fish than the previous year.

Juan de Dios Cortes, secretary-general of the Instituto Social de la Marina, who was in St. John's recently to visit the Spanish Seamen's Centre and to meet with government officials, said that each year about 300 vessels carrying some 4,000 men leave Spanish ports and spend up to eight months fishing the Grand Banks and other fishing grounds from Sable Island off Nova Scotia north to the Hamilton Banks off Labrador and the Greenland coast.

He said Spain is heavily dependent on fish, especially cod taken from waters off Eastern Canada, but is recognizing that fish stocks are rapidly declining and is prepared to negotiate with Canada on measures to protect existing stocks.

Angelo Da Silva, manager of the Centre for Portuguese Fishermen said his company's vessels are finding it harder to harvest good catches because of the declining fish stocks.

Like the Spanish, the Portuguese fish the Grand Banks and waters off Nova Scotia and Labrador.

Missing from St. John's this year are the white-hulled Portuguese schooners with their tall masts, white canvas sails, old-fashioned rigging and decals of cod-man design.

About a year ago, a lone vessel, the Novos Mares, sailed from St. John's. Her departure marked the end of a once-proud fishing fleet.

The Novos Mares was one of three vessels of the Portuguese fleet tied up in St. John's for almost a month while their crews, more than 200 men, tried to press the Portuguese government into giving them higher returns for their work.

The fishermen lost their battle. The dispute ended when the three schooners, last of the fleet, were recalled to Portugal.

"The white fleet is finished," Mr. Da Silva said. "When the Novos Mares sailed out of St. John's she brought to an end an era in the Portuguese fishery and the one-man dory schooners will never be seen on the fishing banks again."

As late as the mid-1950s, about 50 Portuguese sailing vessels were visiting St. John's several times each season.

Unlike the modern trawlers, the small schooners were not equipped to stay at sea for long they were continually on the move in and out of St. John's during the fishing season.

Since the new Portuguese government came to power, the fishermen's wages have been doubled, Mr. Da Silva said.

"Fishermen on the trawlers usually fish for six months at a time and if they return to their home ports with even half a cargo of fish they receive about $1,000 a month. This was as much as the schooner fishermen made for an entire season."

Federal Fisheries Minister warned other nations they risk similar action to that taken against the Soviet Union, but local harbor officials don't like the idea.

Port manager Brian Higgins said it would simply mean that Spanish and Portuguese vessels now tied up in St. John's would divert to the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, where some foreign craft already go.

Mr. Higgins said 42.3 per cent of the traffic flow in St. John's is from visits by fishing fleets.

Last year, the Portuguese topped the list with 313 vessels visiting the port, followed by 163 Spanish vessels, 158 Canadian, 100 Russian, 43 Polish, 40 British, 18 Norwegian, 15 West German, 10 Japanese, nine French, five East German, three Faroese and one Greek.

Survivor to Fly Again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — I want to go back to flying again—but not in a Canadian plane," says a Canadian pilot who survived the worst air disaster in Canadian Pacific flying history.

David Hatton, 32, was scheduled to return home to Vancouver today after receiving a new thumb for his frostbitten right hand.

Hatton was co-pilot of a four-engine Lockheed Electra that crashed into the Arctic Ocean off Baa Point in the Northwest Territories last Oct. 30, killing 31 persons. Only one other person, flight engineer Gary Weyman, survived.

Freezing water and air temperature of 27 degrees below zero C. cost Hatton all but the stumps of his fingers and thumb of his right hand, and in first two joints of the left index finger.

In nine hours of surgery by a special microsurgical team at Vancouver Hospital, he lost the stump of Hatton's left index finger was translocated to his right thumb. Doctors said this gave Hatton a workable thumb.

He was flying for the Pacific Oil Co. at the time, ferrying oil workers to Baa Point off Melville Island, 80 miles from the magnetic North Pole.

The wind was gusting to 70 miles an hour, the ceiling more than 85 degrees. Then the plane crashed on frozen sea ice. The water temperature was 27 degrees (+4 C.) in which you're not supposed to be able to live for more than three minutes.

Weyman kept me moving, kept me from freezing," said Hatton. "One of the reasons I didn't freeze was that we came across a hardy, down-filled parka. Weyman wrapped me in it. Since I was making wet, I would have died in a few minutes.

Finally, the two were found and flown to a hospital at Edmonton, where Hatton was in hospital for six weeks. He was then taken to Vancouver for recuperation and therapy.

Weyman was treated for scalp lacerations and is flying again, Hatton said.

The biggest step Hatton has taken toward getting back to came three weeks ago when, a passenger for a Canadian ministry of transport agent, he successfully flew a twin-engine Piper Seneca.

UN Picks Geneva for Parley

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations committee conferences Wednesday selected Geneva as the site of the UN crime prevention conference which was to have opened in Toronto on Sept. 1.

In doing so, the committee formally turned down a request by Canada that the conference be postponed for a year and held at a "suitable site" in Canada in 1959.

The Canadian request followed protests over admission to Canada of delegates from the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

The decision was made after the Austrian delegate reported that Vienna, a possible alternative site, was not available.

Geoffrey Bruce, deputy Canadian permanent representative to the UN, expressed the "deep disappointment" of the Canadian government at the committee's unwillingness to agree to postponement.

He said Canada accepted the decision and that a Canadian delegation would participate in the anti-crime congress.

Bruce said Canada also was disappointed by the fact that its motives and intentions regarding the crime congress have in some quarters been called into question.

A number of delegates suggested Tuesday that all UN meetings and activities would have to be suspended if they accepted Canada's argument that the international climate was not conducive to the success of the conference.

Fathih Rawnaque Bouayad-Agha, the Algerian delegate, asked whether Canada would be prepared to pay the additional $170,000 that UN experts estimate it would cost to move the conference to Geneva.

Bruce said his personal question was that it was difficult to argue that Canada should assume the additional cost. But he said he would inform the Canadian government of the suggestion.

Electric Heat Hard Sell Over

By SHARON ARMBART
Staff Reporter

Ontario Hydro won't try to sell you on electric heating, but if you don't you'll probably regret it.

Hydro is proud of promoting electric heating. Ontario Hydro has got the kid in the hard sell.

If a person had made up their mind they wanted electric heat before they came to town, they'd give them information.

The International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers voted 113 to 31 to accept an offer — the equivalent of 16 cents an hour and a further 35 cents an hour effective next June.

This will bring the average pay from its current $3.70 an hour to $4.60 an hour.

Ray Ryan, chairman of the union negotiating committee said the settlement is a "good one" with the cost-of-living clause "the most important area."

The company's last offer included industrial pay benefits but capped the cost of living clause in the first year and left it unlimited in the second year.

Workers will receive an additional one cent-an-hour for each half percentage point increase in the consumer price index.

Ted Whitbanner, international representative for the union said in a written release, "many areas" have been improved including vacation entitlement, number of paid holidays (12) and increased life and health insurance benefits.

About half of the 200 bargaining staff will be re-called to their jobs Tuesday "with the remaining half to be called in during the following week," said Mr. Ryan.

According to union sources, this marked the first strike against Quinte Metal in 25 years.

The company spokesmen were available for comment following the taking of the vote at the Lingan building Wednesday.

Worm Threat Subsides

By CASH McHAFFY
Staff Reporter

The life cycle of the army worm, larva or caterpillar of the owlet moth has apparently ended further major threats to crops in the Quinte area. They've had enough to eat.

The worm, which eats voraciously at night through its three-week caterpillar life before going into the stage that will transform it into the moth, has subsided in Hastings Prince Edward and Northumberland counties. It calls to provincial ministry of agriculture offices are its indicator.

Last week, ministry spokesmen said: "The phone was ringing off the hook." All is quiet this week.

When the worm has reached a length of one to two inches, it stops eating and begins to work at becoming a moth. This said Hastings ag rep Doug Tipper, his colleague Doug Young in Northumberland and assistant ag rep Richard Hendry in Prince Edward, is apparently what has happened.

"Either that or the farmers are coping with the problem on their own," they agreed.

The worm problem was most serious in Northumberland and Hastings counties they said, with only isolated outbreaks in Prince Edward.

Napanee Blaze Remains Mystery

NAPANEE — Cause of the fire which raced through a downtown business block here July 19 will remain an unknown factor, says Fire Chief F. W. (Pat) Patton.

The blaze, which was discovered at about 6.15 p.m., gutted a warehouse and three stores used as a display area for the retail section of Gilbard Furniture.

Chief Patton said David Shorey of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in Brockville was called to investigate and it was determined the fire began in a storage shed at the rear of the furniture store.

However, there was no evidence as to the cause, he noted. He said Shorey sifted through debris but nothing turned up which could have been sent to the attorney general's forensic sciences laboratory in Toronto.

International Hardware Workers Reach Accord

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The staff of International Hardware will be back at work Tuesday morning after union vote Wednesday night bringing to a close the seven-week strike.

Workers gained an unlimited cost-of-living benefit in both years of a two-year contract with the firm along with two pay raises of an immediate 16 cents an hour and a further 35 cents an hour effective next June.

The company's last offer included industrial pay benefits but capped the cost of living clause in the first year and left it unlimited in the second year.

Workers will receive an additional one cent-an-hour for each half percentage point increase in the consumer price index.

Ted Whitbanner, international representative for the union said in a written release, "many areas" have been improved including vacation entitlement, number of paid holidays (12) and increased life and health insurance benefits.

About half of the 200 bargaining staff will be re-called to their jobs Tuesday "with the remaining half to be called in during the following week."

Trenton ARC Here

The ambitious attitude of the staff of the recreation department summer program for handicapped adults, stationed at the William R. Kirk School has allowed participants in Trenton ARC Industries to enjoy summer fun not available in their city.

In an effort to maintain full and constant use of the facilities at the school, David Joyce, Co-ordinator of the project and his staff have been running a number of special holidays (12) and increased life and health insurance benefits.

About half of the 200 bargaining staff will be re-called to their jobs Tuesday "with the remaining half to be called in during the following week."

Forging Ahead

Beams against wall of ANAP building on Front Street won't delay progress of construction of Century Place at the Four Corners. Wednesday concrete was poured around the beams, which were boxed in. When the beams are removed following assessment and repair of possible damage to the ANAP wall caused by excavation, the boxed areas in the slab will be filled in, Brian Holmes, president of general contractor Cornerstone Builders, said.

Female Students Hold Own In Rugged Field Work

For two Centre Hastings girls, a long hot summer is coming to a close. It has also been a summer when the traditional roles of man and woman in the labor market have been challenged with tradition beaten.

For the first time, the province's ministry of natural resources has hired women to carry out rugged field work designed to assess the regeneration of tree stands in the rugged back woods of Hastings and Frontenac counties.

The forestry division of the ministry each year conducts careful analysis of lands cleared by lumbering operations to ensure new stands of hard and soft woods are regenerated. Until this year, the chore has been tackled by males.

"We wanted to do it . . . to show that women can do just as good a job as men," said Margie Woolfrey of Tweed. She and Michelle Labey of Madoc will wrap up the assessment project this week—a project that was required at least five miles of daily walking.

"When they first came into the office I was reluctant and didn't think they'd make it," said project supervisor Murray Anthony.

"They've come back to the office scraped, bruised and wet (from a dunking in a swamp) but they'd rather be in the field than in the office," he said.

Since June the two girls have covered more than 3,000 acres of land in the townships of Denbigh, Effingham and Abinger. Each day, using compass and topographic maps, the two walk off into the bush to catalogue new growth.

He said a number of areas have been identified as slow growth areas through the girls' work — areas which now will be aided by ministry planting programs.

This fall Miss Labey will return to Waterloo University for her second year in chemistry and Miss Woolfrey will register at McMaster to study social sciences.

Taking The Plunge

Barry Clements, 11, gets diving instructions from counselor Beverly Payton at the Salvation Army's Robin Lake camp in Ameliasburgh. Barry and 34 other Belleville youngsters are attending the one-week camp sessions being sponsored by the Army.

Camp Provides Week In Country for Kids

It was make your bed, don't run near the swimming pool and play ball for 36 Belleville children all of whom lived the sound of the orders and weren't complaining about the food.

The young city people were part of the first group of underprivileged youngsters attending the Salvation Army's regional Robin Lake camp, leaving the city for one week of outdoor recreation, sponsored by the army.

"It's succesful," said Capt. Robert Sloss, local commander, "and it's the result of the fantastic support the community has given to the Army that allows us to give these city children a taste of country living.

"Since 1951 when the army purchased the camp from the Belleville Kiwanis the army has been providing a place for people who never might have a chance to leave the city for a vacation", Capt. Sloss said.

The children are expected to take part in a series of activities including crafts swimming and outdoor games.

He said there was a limited program for boaters on the Robin Lake.

"Currently there are only four water vehicles," he said, "a rowboat and three canoes and we are hoping for donations so we can begin to include a full scale program in boating."

The facility the site of the Salvation Army's music camp, could also be used for other activities but is limited to summer use right now, he said.

"It's a shame these facilities are only used three months out of the year," Capt. Sloss said. "I hope someday soon it will be possible to insulate the buildings and use the camp year round."

OFY Grant Gives Handicapped Chance to Enjoy Summer Fun

The sounds of the children playing around the William R. Kirk School wading in the pool are familiar as the sounds of young people having summer fun but a closer look reveals a subtle difference.

The children are receiving more attention from the young adults supervising them. There is a quiet patience in the air, a studied effort to be always alert accending the supervisors movements, sometimes exploding into a brief fury of frustration.

"It's hard being constantly on the watch," said Barbara MacQuarrie, 17, one of the three Belleville youths running the summer program for handicapped children at the William R. Kirk School, and sometimes the children can get to you."

"There are 25 children taking part in she program and we wouldn't be able to do the job without all the help we receive from the 10 volunteer workers who come everyday," said Barbara.

The program, Summer Involvement with Mentally Handicapped Individuals (SIMHI) is operating with a Opportunity for Youth grant with a total funding of $2,297, and runs from June 3-August 15.

Originally, a similar program was instituted for these children two summers ago, all of whom attend William R. Kirk during the school year," said Miss MacQuarrie, but last year it was not in operation."

"We decided (Nancy Brown 16 and Peter Crowell 18 the other two co-ordinators) to run the program again and part of the reason was because the school's principle said a regular summer program would be invaluable for the children."

New School to Offer Education Alternative

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — This community has a new school. It's called the Trenton Alternative School (TASK) and it's aimed at 15 young people who don't fit into traditional classrooms.

TASK is an effort by Trenton Task Force which was set on this year by the Hastings County Board of Education to explore the ways and means of educating those students who can't cope with the system.

The pilot project, spearheaded by Burle Summers, a Trenton Public School principal, begins September and will be located in the second floor offices of the A and P store in Trenton.

Mr. Summers, principal at Queen Elizabeth Public School, said TASK will provide a different type of environment for the students than is normally found in the classroom.

TASK is designed to accommodate those students who would normally drop out of school this year or attend a regular school and under achieve. The school is also interested in court referrals or other social agencies as well as students who have chronic attendance problems.

The board of education has hired a former North York principal, Ted Holland, to act as the school's instructor. The 46-year-old educator is returning to teaching after a few years in private business.

Mr. Summers explained the new school will attempt to give the students a "realistic slice of life" through a variety of individual programs and possible field work in the community.

The students are being selected from the eight elementary schools and one high school in Trenton. The class will consist of both boys and girls between the ages of 13 and 14.

Thompson Gets Nod in NDP Election Bid

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

MADOC — United Church lay minister Bob Thompson of Deseronto will carry the New Democratic Party colors in the newly-created Hastings-Peterborough riding in the next provincial election.

Mr. Thompson, 34, was unopposed in the race for the party nod at a nominating convention held at Madoc Hastings Secondary School here Wednesday.

The convention drew 44 party supporters.

Mr. Thompson's strongest pitch to the convention floor was an indictment of the Progressive Conservative government. He said the Tories have lost touch with the people in the province."

Their motto seems to be "love everybody, avoid the issues and get the donations," said Mr. Thompson.

He pointed to the government's freeze on gas and oil prices and provincial grants to first time home buyers as "sugar coated, temporary measures."

"Instead of treating the symptoms of the illness in the province, the New Democratic Party seeks to treat the cause . . . " he said.

Stormont MPP George Samis, convention keynote speaker, said the government is using a "four point system to win the election."

"Divide is pounding away at TV violence, whatever anything pon wrong blame it on the Liberals in Ottawa, bodge-it, fiddle with goodies, and a gas and oil price freeze," are the four points Mr. Samis listed.

Commenting on the last election, Mr. Samis said the NDP has learned a lesson since the last election.

"We came out last time thinking we had all the answers to all the problems that was silly," he said. "This time we don't claim to have all the answers but we promise to deal with all the problems."

Mr. Samis stated many Ontario residents are living beneath the poverty line and "no one should have to live a eat dog food and settle for a second class existence."

Questioned later, he said he knew of no poll in this predicament and that no one had complained of that kind of situation "but it has been documented."

Points he listed as NDP campaign planks included a rent review board with "teeth," a comprehensive dental program for children under 12 years of age, pensions at 55 years of age, more control over hydro rates and freezing of food and agricultural farm land.

"Farmers can't just bitch and complain," he said. "If they want a change they'll have to change the government".

NDP Plan Door-to-door Approach

MADOC—People are looking for a change in the provincial government and they're ready to listen to what the New Democratic Party has to offer," Stormount MPP George Samis said at a Hastings-Peterborough riding nomination convention here Wednesday.

"Big majorities — such as the one enjoyed by the Tories — bring bad government," said Mr. Samis, the victor of a byelection in Cornwall nine months ago.

Riding president Elmer Buchanan said during an interview campaign machinery will begin moving immediately.

"Through the nomination has only been in existence since 1972, we have developed a nucleus of each small town.

"Our biggest problem in the campaign will be to get Clarke Rollins on a platform with our candidate Bob Thompson to discuss the issues," he said "We've got to get Clarke Rollins out into the open."

The major thrust of the campaign will be a door-knocking spree spiced with a few meet-the-candidate functions, he said.

Mentioned if the 34-year-old candidate's age will work against the party, Mr. Buchanan said "We try to downplay his age. Most people — after they talked to him — don't think of him as 34."

Minister Carries NDP Colors

A lay minister of the United Church bob Thompson (left) will carry the New Democratic Party colors for the Hastings-Peterborough riding in the next provincial election. He won the nomination in Madoc Wednesday. With him are riding association president Elmer Buchanan and Stormount NDP member of the Ontario legislature George Samis (sitting).

Success Not Always Defined on Stat Sheets

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Sportswriter

When the Philadelphia Flyers won the Stanley Cup two seasons ago many considered it a fluke. Certainly they were a good team, but how could they have going for them. A coach with an exercise book under his arm, a rather bitter tension between the coach, and a young team capable with a little charisma.

On paper though, that shouldn't win you a Stanley Cup. As a matter of fact, it shouldn't even get you beyond the quarter-finals.

Last season the Flyers repeated their feat and that really baffled the armchair experts.

"Individually we're an average team," commented Flyer coach, Fred Shero. "As a unit we're great."

As a team Philadelphia is incredible. They don't have a guy shooting for the scoring championship, or the record book or even the 30-goal bracket. The Flyers strive for one thing — the good of the Philadelphia Flyers.

Shero has taken a group of individuals and turned them into a family and you can believe it's a happy family. Often he has been referred to as the greatest hockey tactician in the world. There aren't too many people, in North America at least, that would challenge that either. However, though tactician perhaps describes his hockey genius, it does not properly describe Fred Shero the man. And Fred Shero the man is quite likely the biggest reason the Philadelphia Flyers are the Stanley Cup champions.

His private concern not only during the hockey season, but all year round. His hockey team is like a family to him. In Philadelphia players are treated as objects and that's something that is completely non-existent in the cold cash business of hockey. Instead, this calculating wizard simply treats his players like men.

"They're human beings," said Shero. "They appreciate the same things as the rest of us."

The Flyers don't just have a dressing room relationship, nor is it just a seasonal relationship. The Philadelphia family is a constant clan.

"All the players live in Philadelphia," said the coach, "they've all made their permanent homes there." In sports sports many athletes only live in a team-city during the season.

"It's important that we become a part of the community," added Shero, "It's good for the team and it's good for the fans."

The players are constantly attending community functions and helping with community events.

Last year, the wives of the players went out and raised over $10,000 for muscular dystrophy.

"They didn't have to do that," said Shero, "but it's just the way things go on our team."

Each year the Flyers put on a benefit game for Fred Shero' expects this year they'll clear $50,000.

"It's just something everybody wants to do," he said. "The guys are always speaking at charity banquets and events and it's good for them I think they should do those kinds of things. It's good for the team."

By caring about their community, the Flyers have learned to care about each other and the Philadelphia club as a whole. Each individual plays or places the importance of the team above his own. With the exhorbitant salaries athletes demand for their individual skills, that's hard to picture.

"We just enjoy doing things together," he added, "we drink together, laugh together, we even vacation together."

The coach feels this type of attitude is necessary for players to win 100-per-cent. He also thinks it is a vital part of the success of the Philadelphia Flyers.

The next time you're asking yourself why the Montreal Bruins, with their half-dozen 50 goal scorers, or the Montreal Canadiens, with their super-skating all-stars, aren't the Stanley Cup champions remember to look beyond the numbers on the data sheets

In the second game, Belleville fans got a pleasant surprise, as Ted Hoy stepped to the rubber.

"I didn't tell anyone that Hoy, Lehman and Goyer were joining the team, because every time we set something up, we get disappointed people" said part owner Dale Donald.

Hoy pitched a strong game for the Macs, while Goyer started the game at first base.

A mental error cost the Macs one run in the top of the seventh, when three players were loaded, up a play at third base and no one was covering the plate. Daryl Hudgin took advantage of the situation and raced in ahead of Larry Mavety's Lollie throw.

The Macs got men on first and third but couldn't score as Oshawa pitcher Paul Wannamaker bore down and showed why he is one of the top hurlers in the OFL.

The Tony's scored again in the eighth and it was a 3-4 deficit when Belleville came to bat in the bottom of the ninth.

Larry Mavety singled, but that was as far as he got, as the McDonalds dropped their 22nd game of the year.

Wannamaker picked up the win. He struck out 12 Belleville batters, allowed just four hits and didn't walk a man.

Hoy took the loss. He gave up nine hits, fanned four and walked one.

The four Belleville hits were contributed by Wayne McTaggart, with a triple, Hoy, Mavety and Peter Harrison, all with singles.

The Macs now have five pitchers, as Hoy and Lehman join Chase, Waite and Scott Reid.

Goyer is a welcome addition to the team, as he can play almost anywhere, infield or outfield, and is a proven slugger.

The three new Macs will have a chance to prove themselves over the weekend, as Belleville plays Woodstock here on Saturday night in a doubleheader, and then Newmarket on Sunday in another OFL doubleheader at the Alemite.

Macs Make Changes in Lineup, Still Can't Change Scoreboard

By TOM CAVEY,
Staff Sportswriter.

Reinforcements were in evidence for the Belleville McDonalds on Wednesday night as they met the Oshawa Tony's in Ontario Football League play.

It was the same old story though, as they were downed for a consecutive contest at Alemite Park.

The reinforcements were pitchers Ted Hoy and Jack Lehman and first baseman Gary Goyer.

Still it was the same old story, as the Macs completed a game they had tied with the Tony's earlier in the year, and then launched themselves into a regular game.

It took Oshawa two innings to defeat Belleville, as they scored two runs in the fifteenth inning. The first eleven frames were played here on July 3 before the city curfew forced the stoppage.

Roy Graham slammed a triple for Oshawa to bring Daryl Hudgin in, spelling doom for pitcher Ted Weite's hopes of victory.

The win went to Wayne Colley, he gave up just four hits in thirteen innings and struck out nine batters.

Ted Waite took another loss. This time in relief of Jim Chase. He gave up four hits and struck out five Tony's batters.

The four Macs' safeties came from Carl Boomhower, Larry Mavety and Glen Carton with two singles.

Robinson Makes Ellis Believer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Robinson asked what seemed to be an ironic question: "What's everyone so upset about John Ellis for?"

The feeling had been that Frank's manager was upset about John Ellis, or vice-versa. Mere weeks ago the Cleveland Indians manager had benched the big catcher and said that Ellis might never play another game for the Cleveland colors.

At least, that's the way it appeared; but Robinson criticized reporters for blowing out of proportion a two-run eighth-inning home run Wednesday night had beaten Baltimore Orioles 3-1 in American League baseball action.

"When a story is carried nationwide also, you guys never get the full quote. The full quote was: 'He'll never be my regular catcher and he'll never play for me again if he doesn't come over and tell me he's going to play the game the way I want it played—for the good of the team.'

"No player is bigger than the team. It's as simple as that."

Now it seems Ellis agrees when asked if the hatchet had been buried with the manager he said: "I'd rather not talk about it. I'd rather just stay away from it."

He let his bat do the talking as a three-hit, no-strike effort led his mates against Baltimore.

The way Ivan been hitting this year—I've been terrible against the Orioles—I'm sure glad he hasn't been hitting like this" with a 3-0 count, Ellis said. So Cuellar learned to cripple right down the middle.

The pitch could end up in the left-field seats and Cuellar ended up the losing pitcher. Dennis Eckersley won a duel of four-hitters with Cuellar and took over the league lead in earned-run average by dropping to 2.28.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angels beat Chicago White Sox 5-4, New York Yankees edged Detroit Tigers 3-1, Oakland A's blanked Texas Rangers 1-0, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Boston Red Sox 6-2 and Kansas City Royals beat Minnesota Twins 8-4.

Eckersley, a 20-year-old rookie, pitching his first shutout, raised his record to 9-3. His single mistake turned into his second home run of the season in the seventh inning.

Charlie Spikes' game-winning homer produced Cleveland's first run.

John Doherty's base-loaded ninth-inning double scored the three-run rally that lifted Cuellar torna past Chicago and gave Ivan Ryan his second consecutive victory after eight consecutive losses.

Rudy May held Detroit to three hits and Roy White's ninth-inning double in the sixth inning drove in the winning run for New York. Mickey Lolich pitched a five-hitter and lost.

Bert Campaneris hit his fourth home run of the season—the 28th surrendered by Texas pitcher Ferguson Jenkins and helped Oakland pitchers combined for a five-hitter to carry Oakland past Texas.

Stan Lesnarek's three run homer in the eighth inning was the winning blow in Milwaukee's triumph over Boston, which lost its second consecutive game at home.

Fred Patek had four hits and drove in three runs to help Kansas City beat Minnesota.

Rodriguez Leads Comeback

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Julio Rodriguez scored two secondhalf goals Wednesday to bring London City from behind a two-goal deficit and salvage a 2-2 tie with Kitchener Srbija in National Soccer League action.

In other games Wednesday, Hamilton City and St. Catharines Heidelberg played to a 0-0 draw while Toronto Italia blanked Toronto Ukrania 4-0 and Oakville United defeated Toronto Polonia 3-0.

First Kitchener Rodriguez scored one of his two goals on a penalty kick after Jim Hayward and Hugh O'Brien had given Srbija a 2-0 lead.

Following the game Srbija announced that midfielder Joe Albrecht and fullback Mike Bonnar had been signed from London and First Portuguese, respectively, for cash.

Third Strange Play of Series

GARY CARTER

CHICAGO (AP) — Montreal Expos manager Gene Mauch had to go back a long time to remember when he saw a game score on a bunt.

"The last time I saw it happen I was seven years old and my daddy did it in a softball game," Mauch said Wednesday afternoon after his Expos beat Chicago Cubs 6-1 in National League baseball action. "I don't think I've ever seen a man in professional ball bunt a ball and score."

It happened in the third inning when catcher Gary Carter beat out an infield bunt and moved to third on Bill Madlock's errant throw to first. Pete LeCock scrambled for the ball and bunted it into left field as Carter came home.

"It was a routine game," quipped Mauch, who remembered the two strange plays in the last two games with the Cubs. One occurred Monday when two Cubs were on third base and both were called out and another was called back a day when Barry Foote hit an apparent home run, which early went for a double.

Expo pitcher Steve Rogers tossed an eight-hitter for his second complete game for him and his record to 8-7 for the season. He held the Cubs hitless until the fourth inning when Rick Monday led off with his 13th homer of the year.

Montreal's balanced offense was led by Mike Jorgensen, who hit a single, a double and his ninth home run of the season, as the Expos pounded out 13 hits against four Cub pitchers.

"Rogers pitched like I thought he would pitch and we hit like we did in 1956," Mauch said. "If we scored six runs every game, I'd say pitchers would be winners."

Jorgensen hit a solo homer off lefty Ray Burris, 9-6, in the third inning to give Montreal a 4-0 lead.

The Expos opened the scoring in the second after two were out when Pete Mackanin walked, Jim Pole singled and Rogers knocked in Mackanin. Pope changed then singled to score Poll.

The Expos added another run in the fifth to chase Burris on Jim Dwyer's double and Larry Biittner's single, then scored their final run in the eighth on a double by Poll and a single by Dwyer.

Beside Monday's home run, the Cubs could muster little offence except in the eighth inning. Chicago filled the bases on infield hits by Don Zimmer, Madlock and Jose Cardenal, but all Terry Morales flied out to end the inning.

40 to One Longshot Wins

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Justin Fireball, a 40-to-one longshot, won the $400 first race at Barrie Raceway Wednesday night, paying $81.60, $8 and $3.90.

Justin Fireball combined with a second-place entrant Katie McTish for a daily double payoff of $538.10.

Reds Hurlers Back on Track

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The game was not really in doubt but there was a lot of image record at stake when Pat Darcy took the mound in the ninth inning for Cincinnati Reds.

"I could hear the crowd pulling for me in the ninth," said the 25-year-old right-hander who was just hoping Sparky would have me in. I really wanted it.

He got it, just barely, beating San Francisco Giants 6-1 Wednesday night to become the first Cincinnati pitcher to finish what he started since June 11. Two Reds' pitchers had gone through a record 45 consecutive games without a complete one. It was getting embarrassing.

"It was becoming a number," said manager Sparky Anderson. "I'm glad it's over with."

PAT DARCY

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Philadelphia Phillies 8-1, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Atlanta Braves 8-3, St. Louis Cardinals beat New York Mets 5-2, Houston Astros topped San Diego Padres 8-4 and Montreal Expos downed Chicago Cubs 6-1.

Darcy, a hard-throwing ex-reliever, said he began to live a bit in the seventh inning but manager Sparky Sparky gave him a pep talk.

The big test came in the ninth when the Giants loaded the bases on singles by Gary Mathews, Willie Mays and Steve Ontiveros. But Darcy got out Manager Jake Brown on a grounder to first to end the game.

Darcy, 7-8, finished with an eight-hitter and his first complete game in the majors. Tony Perez drove in three runs with a triple and single and Bench had three hits and two runs-batted-in. John Falcone, 6-7, was the loser.

In Pittsburgh the Pirates beat

MANNY SANGUILLEN

the Phillies for the first time in their last 10 meetings. Manny Sanguillen collected five hits, including a two-run homer, and Jerry Heuss, 13-6, scattered six hits.

The Pirates increased their lead over the second-place Phils to 4½ games in the East Division.

Ron Coy singled in a run in his sixth to break a 2-2 tie and Los Angeles wrapped it up with four unearned runs in the eighth. Doug Rau, 9-8, got his win with relief help from Mike Marshall. Earl Williams drove in both Atlanta runs with a double. Carl Morton, 15-12, lost it.

John Curtis, 7-6, gave up four hits in the first inning and only five the rest of the way en route to his fourth complete game of the year. St. Louis scored all its runs in the second, three on a home run by Willie Davis and 11 other two singles by Bobo McBride and Ron Fairly. Randy Tate, 4-6, was the loser.

Houston brought out the big bats to beat San Diego. Jose Cruz and pitcher Jose Sosa hit two-run homers and Doug Rader added a three-run shot. Sosa's hit came in his first major-league at-bat. Each club used four pitchers with Doug Konieczny, 5-11, getting the win and Joe McIntosh, 8-9, the loss.

Victorian Queen Comes in at Wire

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Victorian Queen was the winner of the 10-horse big favorite in Ontario Sire Stakes and lived up to the confidence bettors had her bet before giving her backers a big margin.

Owned by Jim Black of Brampton and ridden by Bob Plaita, the four-year-old filly broke from the outside post position and was third going into the stretch.

"I didn't think we were going to make it," Plaita said when the race was finished.

But in the final few steps Victorian Queen had moved in front of Shesbegwaning to take the victor over the 1-16 polytrack turf course. The winner paid $9.80, $4 and $3.30. The sector of Victorian Queen and Shesbegwaning paid $27.20.

Although Sandy Hawley didn't have any luck in the feature event he managed four victories on the card, including the daily double of Anna's Last Chance ($2.30) in the first and Amazing Grace ($2.20) in the second. The double returned $14.

Hawley, recently returned from riding in California, went on to win aboard Terenion ($3.30) in the fourth and the conversation in the ninth ($3.10).

A crowd of 8,718 wagered $717,182.

Rough Riders Eat Pussy Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Tight end Tony Gabriel, a Canadian Football League star here the last three years, returned to his familiar role Wednesday night but most of the 34,249 fans found it hard to notice.

Gabriel, formerly one of receivers and the occasional native player in the CFL last season, was wearing an Ottawa Rough Riders uniform Wednesday and hauled in two touchdown passes from rookie quarterback Condredge Holloway.

The work of Gabriel and Holloway led the Riders to a 21-6 victory over the Tiger-Cats and put Ottawa in first place in the Eastern Football Conference with a 5-6 record. It also left third place Hamilton with an 4-7 mark.

The Ticats, unable to agree to Gabriel's salary demands this year, traded him to Ottawa before the season started. Wednesday, they watched him hand in passes of 37 yards in the first quarter and 20 yards in the third quarter that helped give Ottawa a 14-3 lead at half time and 24-3 after three quarters.

In all, Gabriel caught four passes for total gains of 107 yards.

Holloway, who came off the bench to replace veteran Jerry Keeling and rally the Riders against Toronto Argonauts last week, had the starting role against the Ticats. Keeling traded earlier this week to the Ticats, watched from the sidelines as Hamilton rookie quarterback Jim McMillan faltered in his first starting role.

Holloway, (5a) rookie from University of Tennessee, started the Ottawa team with an 11-yard scoring pass to Art Green in the second quarter.

Ottawa receiver Moody Jackson turned a reverse play into a 39-yard gain to set up the second Riders touchdown by Gabriel.

In the third quarter, Gabriel was credited with his second touchdown after a 39-yard pass from Holloway and more controversy. Game officials at first ruled Green with the score but later gave it to Gabriel.

John Biedess added the Riders' fourth touchdown on a 25-yard pass from Holloway in the fourth quarter and Gerry Organ kicked four converts and a 37-yard field goal.

Running back Andy Hopkins led the Hamilton offence, picking up 125 yards on 17 carries and scored the Ticats' lone touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the fourth quarter. McMillan's two point convert attempt with a pass to Gerney Harvey went incomplete.

Ian Sunter kicked an 11-yard field goal for Hamilton in the second quarter.

Just as he did in the Riders' season opener against Toronto, Holloway battled the opposition defence with his scrambling style and completed 12 of 24 passes for 202 yards and ran for another 23 yards on eight carries.

McMillan managed only six pass completions in 30 throws for 92 yards but he scrambled for 105 yards in eight carries, contributing to Hamilton's total of 329 yards rushing. The Riders gained 175 yards on the ground.

Nicholas Plans Round Trip

(CP) — Cindy Nicholas, the 17-year-old Toronto schoolgirl who battled seaweed and jellyfish in her record cross-channel swim Wednesday, is considering another challenge—a double crossing of the English Channel.

Cindy churned through the murky channel waters between Cap Gris Nez, France, and Dover in stop-hours and 46 minutes, crossing by 13 minutes the old France-to-England women's record set in 1964 by Ian Linda McGill in 1967.

She sprinted the last mile in an effort to beat the all-time mark of nine hours, 30 minutes set in 1964 by Barry Watson of Britain. Lynne Cox of the United States bettered the time a year later, 1973 to swim the England-France leg.

"There was no time I didn't think I would make it," the young Canadian said later in her hotel room. "When I saw the white cliffs about a mile out from shore, I zoomed in for the last stretch."

Although disappointed she did not break the 11-year-old channel record, Cindy admitted she is considering swimming both ways—but left open any time element for future conquests.

"If I feel like making another goal for myself, I will. It just depends," she said.

Miss Nicholas burst on the international marathon swim scene a year ago her with her record-breaking swim of Lake Ontario, completing the 32-mile crossing from Youngstown, N.Y., to Toronto in 15 hours, 15 minutes.

The young swimmer, who waited two weeks at her hotel here before conditions were ideal for the swim, estimated she swam about 35 miles in an S-shaped course from the coast west while battling brisk tidal movements in the 21-mile stretch of water between the two points

"You lose confidence waiting," Cindy said in her post-swim comments. She was turned back by waves after swimming seven miles in her initial bid to beat the channel on July 16.

With no immediate plans to seek out new waters to conquer, Cindy and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Nicholas, who were aboard the pilot boat throughout the swim, will holiday in London before returning home.

Pulled From Channel

FOLKESTONE, England (AP) - Strong tides beat the attempt of paraplegic John Robertson to swim the English Channel and he was lifted from the water early today a half-mile from the French coast, his trainer said.

"He wanted to continue but it wasn't safe," said Tom Pilkington, trainer of the 32-year-old Robertson, crippled from the waist down as the result of an auto accident.

Robertson, from the United States, swam about 14 hours in the water.

"It was terribly disappointing, but the pilot decided there was no point in going on," said Philabeun. "We could see the Cap Gris Nez lighthouse on the French coast for which he was heading, but he had been battling strong currents for a long time and he simply wasn't getting anywhere."

St. Catharines Misses Opportunity

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Mr. Jackets missed their chance to move into first place in the west division of the Ontario Football League on Wednesday when they dropped both ends of a doubleheader to Hamilton Scrappers, 3-1 and 9-1.

In other games, Oshawa Tonys took two from Belleville McDonalds, both 5-4, Toronto Globals won two from Kitchener Evergreen, 3-0 and 6-2, and London dropped two to Woodstock, 1-0 and 3-2.

In Hamilton, pinch-hitter Ted deHunter slammed a two-run homer over centrefield fence with two out in the final inning to give Hamilton its win in the second game.

Wally Dick (7-6) picked up the victory in the nightcap while the loss went to Dick Bartlett (13-6).

Bill McNeils (9-4) tossed a two-hitter in the opener to lead Scrappers to their win. Ken Rhora was the loser.

Toronto Globals moved out of the west division cellar by their double win in Kitchener while the Evergreens slid into the spot they vacated.

Right-hander John Young fired a six-hitter in the seven-inning opener and then came back to help out winning right-hander Reg Martin in the second game.

Martin picked up his 10th win in 23 decisions while Terry Gallmore dropped his 11th in 17.

Herbert Wins Sires

TORONTO (CP) — When the colt Rand Herbert was being broken in the harness at the farm of his owner Bill Herbert of Lambeth, Ont., he showed a preference for trotting.

Then for no apparent reason he switched to pacing and from then on began to show real promise.

Wednesday night at Greenwood Raceway, the son of Rapidex Herbert and Roxan Herbert won the $25,051 second division of the Ontario Sires Pacing Stakes with the fastest time for the three divisions. 2:04 3-5.

Driven by Jack Herbert, the colt finished ahead of Valiant Idea and Good Streak and paid $8, $3.80 and $2.80. The exacta returned $18.70.

In the first division, Armbro Benny, a colt owned by Elgin Armstrong and Gordon Shipp and driven by Jack Kopas, finished first, beating out a 45-to-1 chance, Popular Guy, by 3¾ lengths, he winner paid $15, $6.80 and $8.70. The tipo combined returned an exactor of $208.10.

A crowd of 8,571 bet $680,711.

Douglas Fires TD Pass on Final Play

CALGARY (CP) — Karl Douglas made the right decision with no time showing on the clock and the result was a 30-28 victory for Calgary Stampeders over Brian's Columbia Lions in an entertaining Western Football Conference game Wednesday night.

"On the last play I didn't know whether to throw or run," the back-up signal-caller, said after directing the Stampeders to 16 points in the final 11 minutes and their first win in two outings.

"Then I thought what were they paying me for, so I threw."

Glen Scolnik latched on to the loss, an 18-yarder, deep in the end zone and the 23,850 fans went home happy.

"Our players and our fans deserve a victory," coach Jim Wood said in the Stampeder dressing room. "It's nice to win because we've lost some tough ones, but it's better yet to win as come from two touchdowns back in the last quarter."

The winning score created some controversy, with several B.C. players apparently complaining that Douglas advanced the line of scrimmage before unleashing.

"I don't know about crossing the line," said Douglas, who spired late last year from the Lions in a swap for veteran quarterback Peter Liske. "I don't know where I threw it from."

It appeared that Scolnik was left in the clear when B.C. defenders, thinking Douglas had passed the line, moved in to prevent the quarterback from running into the end zone.

Douglas replaced starter Joe Paiarcik at 5:15 of the final quarter with B.C. thanks to quarterback Don Moorhead's two touchdown runs and 37-yard scoring pass to Jim Young, holding a 25-14 advantage.

He threw a 43-yard pass to Rudy Linterman in the end zone that was nullified by a clipping penalty before Cyril McFail, who made three converts, boosted a 43-yard field goal at 7:18.

An 89-yard Douglas-directed drive ended with Linterman grabbing a 13-yard pass at 12:17. The two-point convert attempt failed, leaving the Lions, now 3-2, ahead 28-21.

The Stampeder defence, which allowed 179 yards rushing and 147 passing, stiffened as the Lions were forced to punt. Paiarcik took over on his 21 with 1:35 remaining and mixed passes to Linterman, Rick Galloo and Tom Forzani with the exclusive running of Willie Burden to move to the 18, setting up the touchdown.

Moorhead's six-yard run and his pass to Young gave the Lions a 14-6 first-quarter lead. A one-yard plunge by Galloo and a diving, end-zone catch by Forzani of a 35-yard Paiarcik pass enabled the Stampeders to knot the score at halftime.

Moorhead ran over from the one in the third quarter and duplicated that effort early in the final frame before the closing Calgary offensive explosion began. John Wintemeyer successfully handled the four Lions' converts.

Burden's 159 yards in 19 carries accounted for almost all of Calgary's 182 yards along the ground. Paiarcik and Douglas combined to complete 16 of 25 passes for 277 yards.

Connors Refuses To Play for Davis Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Jimmy Connors play for the United States Davis Cup team?

Not as long as Dennis Ralston is captain, he says.

Bill Riordan, Connors' manager, says he won't play for Tony Trabert, either.

Trabert, a Davis Cup player and International singles champion in the 1950s and now a teaching professional in California, was named captain of the team Wednesday by the U.S. Tennis Association.

The appointment was an effort to put the US. back into Davis Cup competition after early-round defeats the last two years. One of the boys was pitching Connors to play.

"The USTA came to us four or five months ago saying they wanted to talk, to try to bring all the sides together," said Riordan from his office in Salisbury, Md.

Riordan said Stan Malless, president of the USTA, went over a list of 30 possible candidates. "The only one he said Connors couldn't agree with was Tony. Trabert's name came up one. They don't want Connors to play. He said Trabert was disparaging remarks about Connors in a television ad for American Open championships and at Las Vegas during the Connors-Ashe match. Bill John Newcombe, took Riordan aside. "He went into a long rampage about how Connors was disgusted on the court," he said if he had his way he'd suspend him. He went into the glory days of tennis in the 1940s and 1950s and I told him that things had changed.

"Baseball, this is another American tragedy. We lived through Watergate and Vietnam. This tells off in proportion, but it is a sad day in tennis."

Connors has boycotted Cup competition since Ralston refused his offer to help the squad in the final in 1973.

Now Riordan says because of the USTA's hollowcrity, he and Connors can't be around when the 1976 best-of-five series opens with the U.S. playing Venezuela at home sometime before November.

"Jimmy Connors will not prostitute himself to hypocrisy," Riordan said. "The kid has too much character."

JOE NAMATH

Namath Highest Paid Ever

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — "I feel good—I am anxious to get to work." Joe Namath said Wednesday after signing a two-year, $800,000 contract with New York Jets that makes him the highest-paid professional football player in history.

The 32-year-old quarterback is reported to have asked for $1 million—$500,000 a year—with the Jets holding firm at $400,000. A $100,000 raise over the figure Namath received while playing out his option year in 1974.

"Did you bend?" Namath was asked.

"Of course, we both bent," Namath replied.

The contract, coupled with a recent $250,000-a-year deal with cosmetic, firm and other endorsements, puts Namath's yearly income at close to $1 million.

The only football player approaching Namath's salary is Larry Csonka, who received the major share of a multi-million contract which he and two other members—Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick—of the NFL's Miami Dolphins signed with John F. Bassett of Toronto to play for Memphis Southmen of the World Football League. Csonka's football paycheque is about $400,000 a year.

St. Kitts Oarsmen Get Competition

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Crews from Toronto, Argentina and Mexico gave defending champion St. Catharines Rowing Club some strong competition Wednesday at the 102nd Royal Canadian Henley Regatta get under way.

Argos and St. Catharines each qualified five entries from the 24 elimination heats which made up the opening program.

The Mexican Rowing Federation moved three up with Club Espana of Mexico City adding another to give that country four qualifiers for its best showing since coming to the Canadian rowing championships.

The Malta Boat Club of Philadelphia made it in three heats while the Ridley Boat Club added to the St. Catharines total with a pair of firsts. Detroit Boat Club and Buffalo West Side duplicated the showing.

Blue skies and flat water with a slight following wind greeted the record field which began at the five days of competition. There are 1,062 competitors from 68 rowing clubs in Mexico, Canada and the United States on hand for this year's regatta which winds up Sunday with senior finals.

St. Catharines RC crews won twice in the junior four heats and added the junior 155-pound eight, while 16-year-old Peter Morris took the junior 155-pound single. A second also qualified St. Catharines in the junior one four.

Jim Ingram won the junior 155-pound single for Argos while other Toronto wins came in the junior car four and the junior 145-pound four. Andy Kernahan's second in the junior single and a third in the junior 155-pound eight were also good enough to qualify Argos for today's finals.

The Mexican Rowing Federation's national team romped home on top of the junior car four and junior 145-pound four then used a second in the junior 155-pound eight to qualify. Club Espana's success came with a qualifying second in the junior four.

Ridley BC wound up six lengths in front in a heat of the junior four and 15-year-old Ryan Elliott winner of last weekend's youth single at the national trials, took a heat of the junior single by half a length over Edgar Tams of the Mexican RF.

Stan Depman won the junior 155-pound single for Malta while Bob Engel made it in a heat of the junior 155-pound single. The Philadelphians also moved a junior 145-pound four into today's final with a second-place finish.

Ralph Pries in a heat of the junior 155-pound single and Jim Seller in the junior 155-pound single were Buffalo West Side qualifiers. Chris Penoyer and Brian Brennan qualified for Detroit BC.

Port Credit, Ont., Dons, on a comeback in Canadian rowing, had open water on a crew from the Kennebecasis Rowing Club of Saint John, N.B., at the gun in a heat of the junior 145-pound four. However, the second was good enough to earn the Maritimers a berth in today's final.

The day's best time was clocked by a University of Western Ontario junior 155-pound eight. The London College crew covered the flat calm 2000 metre distance in a sizzling 5:52 to edge Mexico by three feet.

The first nine of the regatta's 47 finals are scheduled to wind up today's 23-race program.

Ellis Suspended

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Cornerback Ken Ellis, who has sulked out of the Green Bay Packers' training camp twice in four days because of a contract dispute, was indefinitely suspended Wednesday by coach Bart Starr. Starr said corporate general manager Bob Harlan informed Ellis of the suspension through the player's agent, the inactive or reserve list. Ellis came to camp 10 days ago, but left Friday. He was back in uniform Tuesday but left before the afternoon drill.

Sets Record

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Nina Margunova set a world record Wednesday when she clocked one minute 58.4 seconds in the women's 800 metres at the Soviet Spartakiad track meet.

NOW—ONTARIO REBATES SALES TAX!

Effective July 7, 1975, the Ontario Government will rebate the 5% Provincial Sales Tax to purchasers of specified new passenger vehicles manufactured in North America. This rebate applies to all new GM automobiles and station wagons, except full-size Cadillac. Together with our new, unique engine guarantee, stated below, that means greater value and savings for you!

60,000-MILE ENGINE GUARANTEE

47,500 miles tougher than the leading import.

Until now, in the 1975 model year, the toughest engine guarantee you could get on imported or North American cars covered either three years or 50,000 miles, or one year with unlimited mileage. Well, General Motors has just gone all the rest of them one tougher, with a 60,000 mile or five year engine guarantee (whichever occurs first), on new 1975 Chevrolet Vegas and Chevrolet Monzas equipped with a 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine delivered on or after June 25, 1975.

General Motors guarantees to the owners of these vehicles that any authorized Chevrolet dealer will make repairs, without charge to the owner, during the term of the guarantee, to the cylinder block, cylinder head, all internal engine parts, the intake and exhaust manifolds and waterpump made necessary because of defects in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is in addition to the New Vehicle Warranty but does not apply to repairs required because of misuse, negligence, accident or lack of reasonable or proper maintenance.

This guarantee is available at nominal extra cost to those taking delivery of 1975 Chevrolet Vegas and 4-cylinder Chevrolet Monzas earlier than June 25, 1975 through any Chevrolet dealer before October 1, 1975.

A five-year/60,000 mile engine guarantee! Don't make any deal until you see your Chevrolet dealer.

40 MPG.

The Chevy Vega equipped comparably to the models sold in Canada with 4-speed manual transmission achieved 40 miles per Imperial gallon in the U.S. Government EPA* Highway Tests and 25 miles per Imperial gallon in the City Tests.

37 MPG.

The Chevrolet Monza 2+2 Hatchback Coupe comparably equipped to models sold in Canada with the standard 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine, 2 barrel carburetor and 3-speed manual transmission, achieved 37 miles per Imperial gallon in the U.S. Government EPA* Highway Tests, and 24 miles per Imperial gallon in the City Tests.

VEGA.

The tough little car from Chevrolet now carries a tougher warranty. 5 years or 60,000 miles... that's a guarantee from General Motors no one else matches. Looking for small car convenience... test drive the 1975 Vega. It's priced about the same as the others... but built a little better.

Vega Hatchback

MONZA.

Now one of the most popular new cars of 1975 is an even better buy. The spirited sporty Monza... style, value, economy... and a new 5 year or 60,000 mile guarantee on 1975 4-cylinder models delivered on or after June 25, 1975. No other car manufacturer makes this offer. Test drive Chevrolet Monza today....

Actress Wows Leacock Fans

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — A sold-out crowd in the Orillia Opera House Saturday night enjoyed an almost continual ripple of laughter for the Leacock Festival's second show of the season, Barbara Hamilton and Sandra O'Neill in Sweet Reason.

Miss Hamilton, the queen of revue comedy, and her singing and dancing sidekick, underchanges on the women' (their attire ranging from carnival tie (or cravenoon) days to the age of the pill and vasectomy) — There is not much of a plot for such a show, but its rudimentary structure gives their explanation that one is Miss Hamilton, while the other is Ms. O'Neill.

"Liberation will broaden your horizons," said Miss O'Neill.

"My horizon is broad enough," Miss Hamilton replies, surveying her ample figure.

Nineteen-seventy-five is international women's Year. "In one year and out the other," said Miss Hamilton.

The pair is almost perfectly matched. Miss Hamilton's clear strong voice, especially in a couple of blues numbers, nicely offsets Miss Hamilton's husky alto.

They do a skit in which Miss Hamilton is interviewed as the first woman pro football player. "Outside the locker room, it's not all that dangerous," she says. But she does like the quarterback: He has soft, warm hands. She plays centre on the team.

Their skits touch on sex life from 1000 years BC—before Cleisa—to Eve in the Garden of Eden with the apple—a hard-core one.

Included in the best of That Hamilton Woman, an earlier one-woman show, which was widely heard on radio.

"Being 40 is no problem," says Miss Hamilton. "Neither is any solution."

Ms. O'Neill sings a parody on Christmas carol, taking all the comfort out of joy, and Miss Hamilton returns with a show stopping parody on America the Beautiful, called Vancouver.

The show was every bit as funny as last year's revue during the Leacock Festival at Humer, which many of the audience found brightly fresh. Sunday summer evening in Orillia was a pleasant one.

But this time, the audience seemed to be a tougher age appiance, they enjoyed every bit of it. Miss Hamilton's well-loved face, by no means beautiful, but more attractive than mutroely figure let her get away with lines that would disturb Sunday night go-to-meetin' folk in any other context.

After all, Barbara Hamilton once played as the dear, prim old maid in Ann of Green Gables. How motherly can you get?

Their show is currently running at the Teller's Cape theatre restaurant in Toronto, where it was first known as Lib and Let Lib, a title later changed to Sweet Reason.

It was brought here for the second Leacock Festival by its artistic director Martin Brosseau, a former example of good Canadian humor.

The festival continues tonight with a public taping of the CBC radio show, The Royal Canadian Air Farce, and next weekend with Brosseau's The Jest Society, and Alterations While You Wait, performed by the Second City Company.

Jaws Packs Theatres

TORONTO (CP) — An official of Odeon Theatres says patrons are almost "breaking down the doors" of theatres across the country to see the movie Jaws.

"We've never had a picture that the public wanted to see as much," said Robert Myers, director of buying and booking for the theatre chain.

To date, about one million Canadians have paid to see the Universal Studios shark adventure film now playing in 50 theatres coast to coast. It opened June 30.

The movie has grossed a record-breaking 3.8 million in Canada and $30 million in the United States so far, theatre officials say.

"There's nothing to compare it against," said George Destounis, president of Famous Players. In its first week in the U.S., it outgrossed the current box-office champion, The Godfather, by $4 million.

As a measure of its popularity, Jaws is playing in English only in some Quebec theatres that haven't shown an English-language movie without dubbing or subtitles for several years.

And said Mr. Destounis, it's doing well at them.

"It's such a usual movie that language doesn't seem to be the problem," he said. Jaws dated remarkably better in its first few weeks than any other movie ever released."

Movie officials said that if it keeps breaking records, Jaws will become North America's all-time box office champion. The Godfather currently holds the record at $200 million, followed by The Sound of Music at $79 million.

An example of public enthusiasm is in Sarnia in southwestern Ontario, where a local theatre manager says 22 per cent of its population there has seen the film.

Manager Jim Strickland said this week that about 19,000 persons have watched the film in Sarnia, population of about 58,000.

Dancers Reject Film Offer

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — The great dancing stars of Hollywood's past say they are being offered enormous sums to come out of retirement and dance in movies and stage shows but most insist they have hung up their dancing shoes for good.

"I think it's because nostalgia is such a big thing now," said Ray Bolger, the dancing straw man of The Wizard of Oz, now 71.

"People in Las Vegas are after me every week with enormous amounts of money. It's a terrible temptation."

Eleanor Powell, the tap-dancing star of a number of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer musicals of the '30s and '40s, says she believes the sidtime dancers have found new renown through the resurfacing of their musical numbers in the Metro film That's Entertainment.

"Since that movie came out I'm constantly getting offers to appear in stage revivals of musicals and to do television specials," Miss Powell said.

"But I've had my career," said Miss Powell, now 63. "You can't go back and have it all over again."

Metro's two most famous male dancing stars, Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly, also insist their dancing days are done.

"A dancing career is like an athletic career," said Astaire. "It's asinine at 76 to do what I did at 46 or 66."

And Kelly, 62, said: "We go through the same ... I blood test tears as the athletes. You have to have some kind of a unexplained masochism in your system to be a dancer."

Kelly now directs films. Astaire plays character roles in the movies and writes songs.

Nevertheless, rumors are strong in Hollywood that when Astaire and Kelly appear in Metro's follow-up to That's Entertainment, called That's Entertainment, Too, the two will again dance together on the screen.

Astaire and Kelly are in be home and making regular concert appearances around the United States.

He recently returned to movies after a 10-year break for an acting and dancing role in a make of John Osborne's The Entertainer with Jack Lemmon.

Bolger complained, after a morning of going through rapid-fire tap dancing routines with the agility of a 30-year-old, that the dancing didn't make him tired but the acting did.

Showbiz Short

TORONTO (CP) — Singer Frank Sinatra will appear at the Canadian National Exhibition (CNE) for an Aug. 21 concert, CNE general manager David Garrick announced Sunday.

Mr. Garrick said he had been negotiating with Sinatra since last November to perform at the grandstand show. He said an agreement was reached one week ago.

Tickets for the performance go on sale Tuesday and Wednesday.

There will be no mail orders. Tickets will be sold through agents or at the CNE box office for up to $10.

Comedian Pat Henry will open the show, as he did for Sinatra's Maple Leaf Gardens concerts here in April.

NEW YORK (AP) — When television's Det. Lt. Kojak stapped by city hall the other day, he departed with an invitation to move a cancer growth in one lung. He was released Tuesday after an operation to remove a growth in his other lung.

SET TO MUSIC

Avco Embassy Pictures has acquired the release of a musicalized The Old Curiosity Shop, a Reader's Digest movie starring Anthony Newley, who also wrote the songs.

the resultant layoffs of police and other municipal workers.

As the mayor presented Kojak with a lollipop, the actor confessed:

"Kojak is no supercop. I'm just a neighborhood kid."

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Erskine Caldwell, author of Tobacco Road and God's Little Acre, has been released from Methodist Hospital after surgery for lung cancer.

Caldwell will remain in Rochester for several days as an outpatient at Mayo Clinic. The 71-year-old novelist, who lives in Dunedin, Fla., underwent surgery 11 months ago to remove a cancer growth in one lung. He was released Tuesday after an operation to remove a growth in his other lung.

Sunlight Helps Psoriasis Victims

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: Would you be good enough to give me some information as to just what causes scaling in psoriasis? I have this miserable trouble and wondered if there is anything to relieve it.—Mrs. M.

The outer layer of the skin is "dead" about every 30 days. This outer layer (the epidermis) is composed of dying cells which have been pushed out to the surface by new cells constantly being produced underneath. As the outer layer of cells dies, it begins synthesizing a substance called keratin. The silver scaling is the result of this outer layer change.

Normally, all of this goes on unnoticed by us. However, if psoriasis, the cycle occurs much more frequently—every three or four days in some cases. The slow process of new cell creation and old cell shedding is out of phase, and the result is the creation of abnormal amounts of keratinized cells—scales.

Sad to say, medicine has yet to learn why this happens—much less cleaning up some for it. There are numerous ointments and treatments programs available to lessen the discomfort. A dermatologist could suggest one for you. It is well-known that psoriasis improves in summer months. Sunlight seems to be the reason for this.

Psoriasis victims are advised to get gradual exposure, then gradually increasing exposures. When sunlight is not available, ultra-violet lamps can be used, with the usual precautions to avoid eye damage and overexposure of the skin.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I have had hemorrhoids for eight years, and during that time trouble until I became pregnant. At that time they bled and were painful. They made my pregnancy miserable.

Now, a year later, they have calmed down and there is no ordinary flare-ups. I want to have another child, but thought it advisable to wait until the hemorrhoids problem again discourages me. Is surgery the only relief? Or is there any medication which could get me through the pregnancy comfortably? I am sure the situation would be livable afterwards.

Pregnancy, as you are now aware, can make existing hemorrhoids painful but not cause women. While your 1-year wait has lessened your pain, relief, and since it is such a simple procedure with usually good results, I would consider it.

It is important for you to feel at ease and well-prepared during pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I just had a baby a year ago, and it left me with a lot of stretch marks. I tried creams and oils to get rid of them, but they still are visible.

Can you tell me if some method exists for me to prevent stretch marks?—Mrs. B. N.

There is little to be done to get rid of stretch marks.

Creams and oils won't help. Some people complain of itching while using them. It was probably due to other factors.

Pregnancy can have the same effect as weight gain followed by weight loss (which is what occurs, usually, in pregnancy). The marks are the result of a break in skin fibers due to overstretching of the skin. They are bluish at first, but the color tends to fade with time.

You don't give your age but if you are young, time and good nutrition should bring a return of muscle and skin tone and the marks should become less visible.

Panama Canal Causes Dispute

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A potentially dangerous and explosive dispute has been developing between the United States and Panama over the future control of the U.S.-Panama Canal Zone.

A top state department negotiator, Ellsworth Bunker, has been working out details of a new treaty aimed at giving sovereignty and jurisdiction over the Canal Zone to Panama but allowing the U.S. to operate and defend the canal.

But Republican Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has won the support of 37 senators for a bill that the United States should maintain and protect its existing rights and jurisdiction . . . and should in no way cede, dilute, limit, negotiate or transfer any of these sovereign rights."

In the House of Representatives, Republican Gerald Ender of Kentucky pushed through an amendment by a vote of 246-164 barring the use of state department funds for "negotiating the surrender or relinquishment of any U.S. right in the Panama Canal Zone."

These moves clash directly with long and deeply felt sentiments of thousands of Panamanians that their government should have control of the 18-mile-wide zone which splits the country in two.

Mr. Snyder's amendment still must be approved by the Senate and Senator Thurmond's proposal is only at the committee stage.

But if the senator can keep his supporters in line, they would be able to block approval of a new canal treaty—which must be ratified by two-thirds of the 100-member Senate.

American officials stress that the situation in Panama is calm with no indications of any return to the bloody demonstrations in 1964 which left 20 Panamanians and four Americans dead and led to a temporary break in diplomatic relations.

But they fear that if negotiations break down or a new treaty is not ratified in the Senate, Panama might erupt again in anti-American violence.

Bunker has warned that without a new relationship between the two countries, "we would likely find ourselves engaged in hostilities with an otherwise friendly country."

He added that the canal is "vulnerable to sabotage and terrorist acts" and would be difficult to run "against allied Panamanian opposition."

Another Latin American expert, director Robert Pastor of the Council on U.S.-Latin American Relations, calls the Canal Zone "one of the world's three or four international flashpoints."

"This is a very potentially explosive situation, particularly since the domestic situation has been left to the antiquated forces, and we have not learnt the lesson of Vietnam," he added.

A Panamanian diplomat here commented: "The people are impatient. If we are progressing, there won't be problems. But there will be great problems if the Senate does not ratify a new treaty."

At issue is the 1903 treaty in which the newly-created state of Panama granted in perpetuity to the U.S. the use of the zone for "construction, maintenance, operation and protection" of the canal and rights over the zone which America would possess "if it were sovereign."

Another major irritant is the relatively small annual payment which the U.S. pays Panama for its right to operate the canal each year.

Bunker says he has been following the policy of "keep the powder dry" and that it is non-essential to our purposes in Panama.

Under the terms of the new treaty now being negotiated, the U.S. will return to Panama its jurisdiction over the zone but receive rights, land and facilities to operate and defend the canal.

It will both operate and defend the canal with Panamanian participation and retain in Panama the land which it does not need.

When 4NT bid isn't Blackwood

Thus, as a starter agree that an immediate four notrump response to partner's opening bid of one, two or three notrump is plain raise and does not ask for aces.

North's four notrump shows 15 to 16 points. His plus was the three 18 aspirin. South's bids to six because, he holds 17 points plus one in his five aces.

The slam makes easily when the jack of clubs drops on the second lead. It fails to drop, South would have lost the jack of the queen of diamonds.

When you play Blackwood should you use all four-notrump bids as ace requests?

That is the simple way to play the convention. Later on you and your partners might want to play some four-notrump calls as strong bids in solving. Before doing so make sure that you are in complete agreement as to which bids aren't Blackwood. You can make this as complicated as you wish, but the best thing to do is to keep it simple.

Tuesday's hand illustrates the problem. Suppose that you never bypass a four-card major suit. In that case you respond one spade.

With eight high-card points, you are too strong to pass and too weak to respond two clubs.

Vancouver Runaways Play Dangerous Games

VANCOUVER (CP) — Night children of this city's downtown play dangerous games. They play with pickpocketing and prostitution along Granville street and drink behind the town's cobbled streets.

They are runaways in search of adventure and glamour. They are girls, young 13 or under. Most are from Vancouver.

Alone, unfamiliar with downtown streets, they are often befriended by strangers, strangers who protect them and eventually have them selling drugs, breaking into stores, shoplifting and drunks or soliciting for them.

"There is absolutely no way a young person can survive down here without turning to crime," said Tony Mears, who runs 53 Water Street, located in Gastown.

This is the large second-floor office and medical clinic where doors are open to young people from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. every day but Sunday. They come freely or are brought in by police and social workers. The people there help them avoid courts and criminal charges.

Mr. Mears started 52 Water street with a six-month local initiatives Program grant. He was an English hobby for seven years and then served as a member of the Vancouver police department for seven years. He now is director of City Centre Youth Resources.

The downtown children's situation, he said, has reached "crisis proportions" by October, 1971. Since this ban has been taken or sent home approximately 2,000 children.

Why do children leave home? Occasionally because of incest, although most workers like Dowie remembers one where the girl was perfectly agreeable to her father's behavior until he hit her. Then she ran away.

Other causes are too much freedom, too much strictness, parental beatings, drugs, alcohol, school troubles, economic problems, or just a hankering for a little adventure.

Fewer than 90 per cent of runaways never run again.

One job is to protect children and to prevent prosecution and crime," said Mr. Mears.

"We try to help children before they get into a bad scene, or to help them out of one."

Tony Mears has no way of knowing how many children "live" in Gastown or around the Granville Mall.

But from the 52 Water Street found shelter for more than 4,000 young people in its first 10 months of operation.

Traveller Sees World On Wheel

EDMONTON (CP) — Wally Waits, the wobbling wizard of the unicycle, has his sights set on another world record.

Waits, who travelled 1,500 miles in 42 days across Canada to earn a place in the Guinness Book of World Records for the longest unicycle ride, wants to see the world from his unicycle.

He has estimated a world unicycle trip, scheduled to start in Scotland next April, will cover 15,000 miles. Tentative plans call for him to wobble his way through Scotland, France, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Iran, India, Thailand, Australia, New Zealand and across the United States in one year.

"There are two things I want to do on this trip. I want to meet the Guinness brothers and have my picture taken in front of the Taj Mahal."

Why the Taj Mahal?

"I don't know, it's always fascinated me."

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Illinois wants to know what the correct response to partner's opening bid of one diamond is when you hold:

♠ 9 7 6 4 ♥ A 10 2 ♦ J 2 ♣ K 9 7 6

The answer is that you should respond one notrump unless you have some special partnership agreement that you never bypass a four-card major suit. In that case you respond one spade.

With eight high-card points, you are too strong to pass and too weak to respond two clubs.

Trudeau Says Tax $8 Too Big

ST. ADOLPHE D'HOWARD, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is disgusted what he claims was an overpayment of at least $8 in taxes last year on his 400-acre wooded property on the Saint-Jean lake road in the Laurentians.

Mr. Trudeau is reported to have bought the property for $18,000 in 1967, shortly before he became an MP.

Lise Villeneuve, secretary-treasurer of St. Adolphe d'Howard said the town council will discuss the matter at the regular meeting next Monday evening.

In a letter to the community's secretary treasurer dated March 27, Mr. Trudeau claimed he had been consistently overtaxed.

"Seeing that the taxes had increased considerably yet again, I asked the Quebec municipal affairs department for information and I learned that . . . the tax on my lots should not be more than one per cent," the letter reads.

Mr. Trudeau asked for an adjusted tax bill to be sent to him so the tax rate imposed had been greater than one per cent for several years and had been ten per cent this year. A refund for past years could also be discussed, the prime minister said.

Lise Villeneuve, who has been secretary-treasurer for only 12 days, said the fund is valued for tax purposes at $40,000, and an unfamiliar tax rate was applying 19 feet by 22 feet, is valued at $1,875.

Homes Unlicensed

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Ontario government is allowing group homes for disturbed teen-agers to be operated without licences.

The newspaper says that investigating officials found flaking plaster falling off walls, exposed electrical wires, while in a basement two more disturbed children in one house and lack of fire escapes from the second storeyed-down from floors where the children slept.

Bales Won't Run

TORONTO (CP) — Dalton Bales, who has held three Ontario cabinet posts since he became a member of the Legislature for York Mills riding in 1963, said Wednesday he will not run in the next provincial election.

Service Popular

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — A St. Thomas church which has of been holding its summer services on Wednesday evenings rather than Sundays has had a jump in attendance of more than ten per cent, its minister says. Rev. Gordon A. Duncan said Wednesday that St. Andrew United Church has averaged 70 to 80 persons at a service compared with 25 to 30 persons in other summers. Last year the Wednesday services will continue during August because of the July success.

Hope Said False

CHICAGO (AP) —AFL-CIO leaders said Wednesday that U.S. President Gerald Ford's administration has based economic forecasts on false hope and warned of "the very real danger of a deeper, more serious recession."

AFL-CIO President George Meany said one-third of U.S. productive capacity remains idle, consumer purchasing power and real wages are down and more than 12 million workers are unable to find either jobs or full-time employment.

Study Urged

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A Canada-United States study group is needed to explore potential health hazards from tiny asbestos fibres in drinking water, the Great Lakes Research Advisory Board says.

House Adjourns Until October 14

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament finally took a vacation Wednesday after sitting more than one month of overtime into one of the warmest summers in the capital's history.

The parliamentarians, who began this session last Sept. 30, rose at 5:35 p.m. after the government's hotly debated 10-cents-a-gallon increase in the excise tax on gasoline was signed into law. They now have 3½ months to return Nov. 17 before returning to another heavy workload Oct. 14.

The summer break came long after the originally-hoped-for June 27 adjournment. But since 1964, the year of the great flag debate, have MPs sat so far into summer.

The gasoline tax bill was the last of 85 bills to go through the House since the session began—about 10 more than average for a 155-day sitting. However, government introduced 89 bills, about 20 more than average.

And despite unanimous agreement that this majority Parliament has made good legislative progress, some of the more hotly issues remain on the order paper for the resumed sitting in the fall. These include bills affecting the future of Time and Reader's Digest, a complex bill to slow down medical care program costs, a new Prairie grain stabilization plan, a new Citizenship Act and the complex question of late visiting House proceedings.

As still to be debated is the bill to reduce penalties for possession of marijuana and hashish.

The government hopes to complete this session by the Thanksgiving Day, says Progressive Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin. "But I don't see how."

Sharp Asked If Other MPs Involved in Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Acting prime minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday he is not aware of reports that other MPs may have been involved in a Quebec allusion that has led to one Common's member being charged with perjury, corruption, breach of trust and fraud conspiracy.

Walter McKinnon (PC—Victoria) asked Mr. Sharp in the House whether the government is aware of the reports and who the other MPs are.

Antonio Yanakis, Liberal member for the central Quebec riding of Berthier, has been charged along with Quebec assembly member Gerard Shanks, also a Liberal. The charges follow evidence at a royal court hearing for Roger Gagnon, former Montreal town planner accused of offering bribes to politicians.

Nuclear Waste May Be Moved

OTTAWA (CP) — The waste dumps at Elderado Nuclear Ltd. at Port Hope, Ont. are so radioactive they may have to be moved altogether, an investigation report says.

An Atomic Energy Control Board report says a "systematic radiation survey" of the dump sites, which are up to 4 years old, shows they made it is cate the "high radiation fields."

Eldorado is a uranium refining plant and the wastes are the rejected material from the refining process. Among the material in the wastes are included uranium, arsenic, thorium and other, unspecified elements.

The report says a survey should be made of the Port Granby dump site to establish contamination levels in the Lake Ontario shore because arsenic and radium levels in the lake made the water dangerous to drink.

The report also says boundaries around the dump sites must be extended at once, warning signs erected and security patrols increased.

It also questioned the adequacy of the provincial environmental monitoring program at the Port Granby, Mondey Mountain and Welcome waste dumps.

Dose rates at the Welcome site were almost 32 times higher than levels described as safe by the board. Dose rates along the Port Granby dump were more than 10 times higher than the safe limit. Radiation levels at the property boundaries of the Mondey Mountain and Port Hope mills exceeded safe levels slightly.

The summarized report said a confusion of sources and surveying methods of the so-called safe dosage of radiation over the years apparently has produced the situation at Port Hope.

Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland Durham), who raised the questions that led to the investigation, called for the report to be made public.

Mr. Lawrence said the "doctored summary" of the report doesn't answer complaints in Port Hope that sites are not clearly marked, that Eldorado has been guilty of not marking its transport vehicles and that local officials are not informed about shipments in advance.

"This is a matter of concern not only to those in Port Hope. It has some very wide-ranging implications for the handling of all radioactive wastes in this country and hemisphere."

Davis Says He May Call Election Soon

HONEY HARBOUR, Ont. (CP) — Premier Davis indicated Wednesday that he might be calling the long-awaited provincial election "within the next few weeks."

Mr. Davis capped a five-day holiday-political tour on a houseboat in the Trent Canal system with a birthday party at the Delaware Inn in this community about 15 miles northwest of Orillia.

Earlier, the premier fenced with reporters when asked what the election date would be but said he would share the knowledge with them. "If you prepare not to use it for the next few weeks."

In his speech, Mr. Davis said Ontario government decisions were made in the best interest of the people of Ontario.

"We will be able to face the voters of this province with that knowledge," he said.

Baby Born in Field

ROCKWOOD, Ont. (CP) — When Charles Black returned to his farmhouse near here late Wednesday morning his wife and three children were missing.

He found them in a corn field a short mile later with one addition—a six-pound, eight-ounce baby girl.

While he was away, his wife began going into labor. She got her children into the car and began driving toward Kitchener to her family doctor.

But when the car ran out of gas a short distance from home she parked it in the corn field and delivered the infant herself.

"A friend of mine found her first," Mr. Black said. "She was smoking a cigarette and the baby was in her lap. I couldn't believe it when I got there. She just didn't look as if she had had a baby."

She had given birth to the child about 45 minutes before being discovered. Her husband took her to Guelph General Hospital where she and the baby were listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday afternoon.

Rockwood is seven miles east of Guelph.

Jones Complains

OTTAWA (CP) — Leonard Jones, Independent MP for Broadview, complained in the Commons on Wednesday that the recommendations for Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grants were rejected because they did not contain enough Francophone names.

Not 'Irregular'

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet denied Wednesday that it is "irregular" for auto companies to keep secret programs to repair basic production defects after regular warranties have expired.

The practice is estimated by a Montreal consumer group to have cost car owners hundreds of millions of dollars because they were not aware of the program.

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The world's population was estimated at 3.86 billion in mid-1975, an increase of 228 million compared with mid-1970, says the latest issue of the United Statistical yearbook. The growth represents an average annual increase of 2.1 per cent.
